I. R. C. Represented At Regional Meeting

The twelve-man delegation departed for the 15th annual convention of 400 Pennsylvania college delegates last Thursday and returned tired and exhausted on Sunday. After the smoke of political battle had cleared, the Wilkes IRC members again found themselves in prominent positions in the MODEL CONGRESS.

Louis Bonanni, president of the Junior Class and a Political Science major, was elected the assistant regional director for the Northeastern Region of the ICG at the annual meeting in Harrisburg last week-end.

Two other Wilkes delegates served in the capacity of clerks on legislative committees. Joseph Reynolds acted as the clerk for the Labor Committee while William Caruth acted as the clerk for the Committee on Natural Resources.

John Murtha was also appointed a teller for the election of speaker involving candidates from Dickinson, St. Vincent's, and Haverford.

The club is presently making preparations for the WSSF auction. The funds derived from the auction will be sent to the WSSF which in turn aids students in colleges abroad.

Charles Caffrey will arrange several discussion meetings with the members of the club participating on the panels on present controversial topics.

5th Annual Ball To Be Held To-Nite; Vincent To Play, Get Tickets Today

It's Lee Vincent and his orchestra tonight from 9 to 12 at the Wilkes College Gymnasium on South Franklin Street. There the curtain will be raised upon the fifth annual April Showers Ball.

Sponsored yearly by the Wilkes Lettermen's Club, this event has been in the past one of the outstanding social and entertaining successes on the college calendar. Its success might be attributed to its semi-formal nature. In this it appeals to the attitude of women toward formal attire, and to the attitude of men for the informal in dress. Then too, corsages have usually been prohibited at this affair, as they have been this year, to keep the cost within the means of every student. As an added appeal, there is the secretive, the choosing of the Colonel's Queen. In choosing her majesty, the Lettermen have always tried to be as democratic and objective as possible. Her 'loveliness' is chosen by a committee which is unknown and not selected until a short time before the dance. The Queen can be any one of the women present. The only requisite is that she fulfill the standards of royalty in the eyes of those who are to choose. She will be crowned at intermission and will, as in the past, receive a lovely gift.

According to the general chairman of the dance, Chet Molley, the heads of the various committees have reported that all is in readiness for a wonderful evening. Dave Minasian, chairman of the Ticket Committee, reports that the sale of tickets has been fair and he is hoping for an increase before the day is through. James 'Roxy' Reynolds head of the Decoration Committee, with the aid of Joe Stephens, has engendered a fine decorative plan to brighten the gymnasium. Leo Solomon reports that refreshments will be available. Olie Thomas has worked out a lovely program which the ladies can place with pride among their souvenirs. George McMahon, Isabelle Ecker, and Ed Bogusko have done a fine job on publicity. All in all, the committees have responded well to their separate tasks and are to be commended.

This then is the night. If you have permitted the opportunity to slip by, you have lost much. Those who have merely forgotten to purchase a ticket can yet obtain one at the bookstore, from any one of the Lettermen, or at the door tonight. The price is $2.80 per couple. Those who are going to the April Showers Ball can look forward to a truly pleasurable evening. Come with your best smile to add to the atmosphere of conviviality and congeniality. Don't leave your ticket at home.

Spotlight On 1-Acts; Warmouth Shows Skill

The Cue 'n' Curtain presented its first attempt at "Experimental Theatre" last Wednesday and Thursday nights at Chase Theatre. The Wilkes College "Trio" included "False Adventure", an original play by Dale Warmouth, "Refund", and "The Summons of Saniel".

"False Adventure", a melodrama, presented Dale Warmouth in the dual role of actor-author. The extremely high quality of his writing overshadowed his acting ability. In spots the lines of the play were vaguely reminiscent of Anderson or Fry. Warmouth's play lacked a certain amount of dramatic punch, but the occasional superb line, and the ingenious stagecraft were more than sufficient to "make" the play. Terry Turissini stole the show and delivered the best performance of the evening with her portrayal of "Rose Mary", the prototype of the first love of all men of every generation. Dale Warmouth, appeared as the lead; Wayne Madden was the chief supporting actor.

The remainder of the cast included Helen Brown, Joseph Rogan, Joseph Pace, Elaine Bogan, Peter Margo, Robert Stackhouse, and Leo Kane.

The second play, "Refund", was directed by Tony Andronaco. Ed Wallison turned in the top performance among a group which was universally good. Bert Stein Douglas Newton, Ellie West, Rod Russin, David Whitney and Robert Ladd have all been mentioned as possible applicants for vacancies on the Wilkes faculty.

The third play, "The Summons of Saniel", was, according to the program, "a beautiful drama placed in the antechamber of heaven." Shirley Salsburg received a few good lines, and, as a result, did a superior job as "The old, old

INTRA-MURAL NEWS --

Ten teams competed in the Volleyball Tournament two nights last week.

The Pick Ups, made up from a group in the gym class, won the tournament laurels. They defeated the Pre-Meds in the preliminaries, beat the Vultures in the quarter finals, drew a bye in the semi-finals, and won the championship by knocking off Cook's Toms in the finals, two games to one.

Dennis and Heltzel starred for the losers in the finals. Gritsko and Oliver sparkled for the winners.

The Pick-Ups included the following players: Ed Gritsko, Herb Oliver, Lee Morris, Bill Lewis, Bill Johns, Len Kruello, Lionel Dannick, and Carl Lahr.

The softball league, under the guidance of "Happy" Moran, will begin activities on April 24. Six teams have entered the league. The games will be played in Kirby Park and will start at 4 p.m.

Get out and get over and cheer the boys on!

The cast included Diana Campus, Ann Belle Perry, Ann Azat, Sam Meline, Irene Janoski, Shirley Salsburg, Betty Dretzel, and Shirley Williams. The play was under the direction of Peter Margo.

The supervisor of production of the one acts was Alfred Groh. The stage manager was Jack Gallagher and the members of his crew included Bob Stackhouse, Bob Ladd, and Bert Stein. Peter Margo and Ann Azat were in charge of Make up and Shirley Salsburg was the head of the costume committee.

All in all, the evening's entertainment was a worthwhile effort on the part of Cue 'n' Curtain. The plays certainly were well received by the packed house each night.

EDITORIAL

Is The Jr.-Sr. Prom Passe?

The Junior Class announced last week that they had abandoned the practice of holding a Junior-Senior Prom. In its place the Juniors are going to substitute a "party" which is to be held at the American Legion. By this action the Juniors succeeded in destroying the embryo tradition which the current Seniors had set up when they held the first Junior-Senior prom last year. In place of the traditional farewell gathering, the Juniors are planning to stage a new version of a hackneyed Wilkes standby, the cabaret party.

The Juniors argument has been that they are financially embarrassed, and therefore they will be unable to conduct the Prom. In 1950, the present Senior class staged the dance when they had a deficit of over fifty dollars. The Seniors (then Juniors, of course) held the dance and ended the fiscal year with a surplus. The Seniors were faced with the additional financial burden of hiring a hall.

The present Juniors, however, were afraid to take the risk. As a result they have destroyed the tradition in its crucial year.

Last year's prom was one of the most successful affairs of the season. Virtually every senior attended, and the atmosphere that surrounded the affair was nostalgia in the raw. The substitution of the cabaret party for the prom has not only robbed the affair of the sentiment which is inherent in a farewell party, but it has added an atmosphere, to say the least, not conducive to nostalgic good-byes. As one student stated rather bluntly, "Shoot man, I can go to the American Legion, anytime. All I need is my membership card."

Our sentiments exactly. We feel that the Juniors have missed the boat. Shoot man, by closing the eyes and using the imagination, even records and the gym would seem like the starlight roof at the Hotel Astor. We're all for keeping the prom as an annual feature. Many Juniors and Seniors would like to have a sentimental evening with a friend whose head cannot be blown off.

Theta Rho To Throw College Punch Party

On Wednesday, April 25, from 3 to 5, Theta Delta Rho will sponsor an All College Punch Party in the Girls' Lounge, Chase Hall. Jane Salwoski has been named general chairman of the affair. Faculty and students are invited to attend.

Other committees are as follows:

Refreshments: Kay Read, chairman, Florence Kevlock, Lorraine Mason, Sonia Witzling, Beth Badman;

Publicity: Nancy Fox, chairman, Rosemary Colletti, Annette Reinert, Sandra Cheslar, Vera Kolb;

Hostess: Connie Olshefski, chairman, Louise Brennan, Jeanne Smith, Jane Carpenter, Beryl Colwell, Pat Boyd;

House: Florence Kistler, chairman, Lois Shaw, Isabel Ecker;

Entertainment: Ann Belle Perry, chairman, Aida Shuman;

Clean Up: Mary Lamoreaux, chairman, Phyllis Deisher, Adeline Elvis, Doris Gates.

Literary Society Meeting

The Literary Society held a combination business and social meeting last Thursday evening at Chase Lounge. Wendell Clark was chairman for the meeting. At this meeting Marion Weltman was nominated as the society's Cinderella candidate. Refreshments were served. The date for the next meeting of the society has not been set yet.

CAMP POCOHANA SAFARI

By ANITA JANERICH

Sometime in March the Library staff decided to have an outing. After diligently perusing the Farmers' Almanac they decided to hold it on Sunday, April 15, 1951. It was a typical almanac prediction: "Fair and Warm." And it was! That is if you want to overlook the fact that the morning was as frosty as any in February, that the wild wind blew as in March and that even some snow fell as in January.

The staff met at various and sundry spots and proceeded at various and sundry hours to the appointed camp equipped to the hilt with cameras, axes, funny papers, search-lights and a .405 Winchester, H & H Magnum caliber gun—but no sugar.

No one was hungry on their way up. We all vowed we had a heavy lunch and were full up to here. But once there we began to immediately forage for food, Gloria Chiloro, chairman and thoughtful hostess, displayed her culinary skill by splitting hot dogs, filling them with cheese, wrapping them in bacon, sticking them with toothpicks and cremating them over the open fire-place. The only complaint in the process of wolfing was: "This dog had bones", by people who had forgotten to remove the toothpicks.

After everyone had satisfied the inner man we split into three groups and set out in different directions . . . not to hunt for the buried wealth of long-dead pirates, but to "lay up treasures in memories where neither the rust nor the moth doth consume."

Inexperienced hikers talked a mile into a minute and soon found themselves mighty short of breath. Refreshingly enough neither the President nor the General came along. No one was psycho-analyzed, we did not look for motives and only occasionally did we stop to think about split infinitives when we remembered the presence of Mr. Foxlow, who puffed contentedly on his bowl.

All along the stream, silent and hopeful men were fishing for trout. Mr. Myers, head librarian at Wilkes College, remarked that the reason the men couldn't catch any fish was that the government sent out postal cards to all the fish stating that the hunting season ended as of Saturday and from Sunday on the fish were on their own. Wade Hayhurst and Vester Vercoe tried to catch the fish by hurling huge rocks into the water in imitation of the Greek Discus throwers. The fish, at a safe distance, flipped their fins and murmured: "A couple of throwbacks from the Cenozoic Era."

Midway we rested on a moss covered ledge above the roaring river. In no time at all we had two water accidents. Topsy, Mr. Myers' wire-haired terrier, fell in headlong into the turbulent stream while attempting to lap up some water . . . There was a surprised and reproachful look in the canine's eyes as she crawled out and promptly proceeded to shake off the icy water indifferent to the feminine shrieks that pierced the air. Amid all this confusion Romayne Gromelski fell into the water. But what shall mystify everyone to their dying day was why Gloria murmured: "Thank God!" at this unfortunate incident.

We were anxious to get back to the cabin, but it wasn't until we observed Mr. Myers, our guide, flipping a coin at a fork in a road that our worst fears were realized. The more realistic members of the party began picking red berries and storing them like mad in every available pocket. It was about this time that Vester Vercoe's vanity suffered a mortal wound. His legs refused to carry out orders so V. V. V. fell by the wayside and begged us to carry on!

But just before he fell he thoroughly inspected the ground for any sign of dampness, broken bottles and crawly things. There he lay prostrate, with the heatless sun blinding his eyes, hands limply crossing his chest.

"Do not worry about me, men—try to reach the camp before sundown," was his unselfish cry. Mr. Myers gazed regretfully at the prone figure that once was V. V. V. and went in search of two white birch twigs to form a cross over V. V.'s head. Mitzi, his wife, stared indifferently at her spouse, impatient to resume the journey. Bill Siglin sounded taps, while Padre Saba wrung out a heart broken "requiescat in pace". Mr. French whispered "Amen". Our eyes turned heavenward at the gathering buzzards. It was then that a cannibalistic gleam crept into Mr. Myers' eyes. He whipped out his hunting knife and said: "Men, this is a foolish waste, we will need fresh meat for our journey." In an instant the horizontal V. V. became electrified into a perpendicular streak. The journey was resumed at a lively trot.

When we came back hours later it was not to rest but to chop more wood and carry gallons of water. Bodies in various degrees of repose draped benches and chairs. Elaine Bogan was promptly squelched when she suggested a Farmer dance. Petite Ann Havir suggested games for the less fatigued.

Tuesday morning's Record stated that the "Wilkes College baseball team hopes to make its initial appearance on its home field at Kirby Park on Wednesday afternoon when it plays Ithaca College." The sports writer was misinformed because Wilkes baseball team MADE its initial appearance on Sunday afternoon on the Pocohana sand lot.

(Both Cathy MacDonald and Nada Vujica pleaded previous engagements.) The fact that the Hysterical Hens did not know the rules did not deter them from running up a victorious score of eight to two. There was a casualty when one of the spectators decided to promote herself to participant—the result was a badly rent skirt. For a moving version of the game see Jane Carpenter. Word got around about the remarkable game Parker, first-baseman, and Steve Krupinski, right-handed pitcher, played. They were both sold by Mr. Ralston to King's for an undisclosed price.

When it was too dark to play or hike, we gathered around the fire-place, drinking hot coffee and singing songs. For a while we watched Ronald Brennan and Karl Krassik silhouetted against the flames pantomiming a boxing match.

When the last log was burned, we gathered our equipment and reluctantly closed the door of the cabin. On our way to the car we plucked sapphires from the frosty sky to paste in our scrap books.

Colonels Gain First Win, Beat Powerful Team From Ithaca, 5-4

The Wilkes Colonels defeated a strong Ithaca team last Wednesday afternoon, 5-4. The team from New York held a 1-0 lead after two innings, but Wilkes came back with three runs in the third to go into the lead. From that point on, the Colonels were never behind. John Zigmund allowed 11 scattered hits and was never in serious trouble. He also scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth inning when he doubled and eventually scored on an error by the 2nd baseman.

The Ithacans scored first when Leonard and Weiss walked. Yancey flied out to center, but Cole doubled to score Leonard. Zigmund then forced the pitcher to ground out, third to first, and struck out the lead off man, Gilberti, to end the inning. Wilkes came right back to go into the lead. Zigmund struck out, Blankenbush flied out to left, but Bartroney drew a base on balls. He stole second base and

Davis drew a walk. Molash doubled to score two runs, and Kropiewnicki followed with another double which scored the "Big Mo". Wilkes added another run in the fourth when Osmer, the Ithaca center fielder lost Hall's high fly in the sun. Zigmund followed with a triple which scored Hall. Ithaca threatened in the sixth when they scored two runs on singles by Yancey and Cardones and a Wilkes error. They tied the score in the seventh when Der Cola reached first on an error, stole second and scored on Yancey's single. Wilkes scored the winning run on Zigmund's double and a subsequent Ithaca error. Ithaca threatened in the eighth and ninth, but Zigmund was too tough with men on. The winning pitcher was Zigmund, the loser Cardones. Kirkgasser started for Ithaca and lasted three and one-third innings. Cardones too over in the fourth and was credited with the loss.

Kernels from the Colonels—
Coach Partridge presented an altered line-up to the fans who saw last Wednesday's game. Molash is now playing first, and Hall is playing right field. Gavlick took Molash's place at short. Kropiewnicki caught. Molash played the bag with a great deal of skill when one considers that he is right-handed and has been playing short for the last three seasons. Gavlick, on the other hand, is an unknown quantity. He handled several routine chances at short, and bobbled a difficult grass-cutter that drew him far to his right. He seems to have a good arm, but he takes a long time on the throw to first. Wednesday's game saw Zigmund star at bat with a double and a triple. Hall, Molash and Kropiewnicki contributed a double apiece to the cause. Perfundo led the visitor's attack with three singles for five trips to the plate.

Choral Club Makes Hit At Tuesday Show

On Tuesday morning, students of Wilkes College heard an entertaining program of music presented by the Choral Club at the assembly. The program was directed by Dr. Cobleigh, head of the music department. A first rendition of the choral group was that of the Waltz Scene, from Gounod's operatic adaptation of the drama, Faust. The three soloists who participated in the number were Nancy Boston, soprano, as Marguerite; Jake Wentland, baritone, as Mephistopheles; and Helen Bitler Hawkins, as Siebel. The Jewel Song, taken from a scene where Mephistopheles presents Marguerite with a chest of jewels, was sung as a solo by Charlie Jane Thomas. Following this beautiful aria, Mr. Wentland sang Valentine's Song, another well-received aria, arising from the scene in which Valentine, Marguerite's brother, implores God to protect his sister

COLLEGE PICK-UP

Joe: How did you get that flat tire?
Jim: I ran over a milk bottle?
Joe: Didn't you see it?
Jim: How could I! It was in a kid's pocket.
Married Student: I wish I had my wife back.
Single Student: Where is she?
Married Student: I swapped her for a bottle of whiskey.
Single Student: And now you realize how much you love her?
Married Student: Nope, thirsty again.
Courtship is that period during which a girl decides whether or not she can do better.
.....
She (to date): Have you heard those awful things people are saying about me?
He: Sure, baby. Why do you suppose I'm taking you out?
The imprudent man reflects on what he has said; the wise man, on what he is going to say.
.....
Student: Hey, rabbit, what are you doing in my icebox?
Live Rabbit: Isn't this a Westinghouse?
Student: Yes.
Rabbit: Well, I'm westing.
Friends are people who dislike the same people.

There once was a Sultan who kept his harem three miles from where he lived. Every day he sent his man servant to get him a girl. The Sultan lived to be eighty-seven, but the servant died when he was only thirty.
The moral of the story is: It's not the women that kill you, but the running after them.
He: How many drinks does it take to make you dizzy?
She: Three, and don't call me Dizzy.
Every man has his wife, but only the ice man has his pick.
.....
Teacher: Has anyone here any Indian blood?
Johnny: I have.
Teacher: What tribe?
Johnny: It wasn't a tribe; just a wandering Indian.
Looking coldly at the man who had just given him a nickel for carrying his bags twelve blocks, the little boy said: "I know something about you."
"What?" Asked the man.
"You're a bachelor."
"That's right. Know anything else about me?"
"So was your father."
.....
A bather whose clothing was strewed
By winds that had left her quite nude
Saw a man come along—
And unless I am wrong,
You expected this line to be lewd.
Coed (at dance): Wait right here, Joe, while I go powder my nose.
Coed (ten minutes later): Been waiting long?
Joe: No, but I've been looking all over for you to give you your compact.
He gazed admiringly at the chorine's costume. "I wonder who made dress," he remarked to his companion. "I'm not sure," came the reply, "but it must be the police."
.....
Customer at lunch counter: One roast beef sandwich.
Waiter: Will you eat it here or take it with you?
Customer: I hope to do both.
She: How did you find the men at the party?
Her: I just opened the door marked 'MEN', and there they were.

HAUGHTY HOMER HACKS HALLOWED HALLS; SIMPLE SOLUTION SQUELCHES SPIRIT SAG

(SPECIAL TO THE BEACON)

"Memo this!—We're just going to have to do something about the lack of spirit in these campus organizations," bellowed J. B. Coons, vice-chancellor of Kilroy University.

His secretary nodded approvingly, jotted down three pages of shorthand, and left the room. She was back in a minute in a rush in a heat.

"Mr. Coon, Mr. Coon! Homer Bones of Wilkes College just arrived on campus. He has solved the spirit problem in campus organizations throughout the country. Perhaps he can help us."

"Yes, yes, indeed! Show him in! Show him in!"

Homer swaggered into J. B. Coon's office, took the offered chair and smiled knowingly.

"Look here, Mr. Bronez," began J. B. Coon, "this situation is getting out of hand. We have to have bigger turnouts and more spirit in the organizations on campus. What can you do for us?"

"Bones" is the name, Homer Bones.

"Sorry, H. B., but I'm pretty well shaken up about this.—You don't mind the 'H. B.' do you?—fine. What can you do for us?"

"How's your enrollment?"

"Dwindling. Down to a mere skeleton—oh, pardon me. It just slipped out.—We were once sufficiently overcrowded. Our school was famous and had much tradition. Kilroy was here when—uh—why are you giggling, H. B.?"

"Sorry. I was just thinking of an old Army expression."

"Keep it clean, boy."

"Oh, it's clean. What were you saying about enrollment?"

"Yes, H. B., it's just this: the spirit on campus is at an all time low. Membership is dwindling too much."

"I think I can handle your problem quite easily. Now as I understand it, your problem is to get students to meetings. Am I right?"

"Gad, what a mind! Yes, you've hit the problem on the head, H. B., but how do you propose to solve it?"

"Quite simply. As you know, most normal and abnormal students love to have their pictures taken. My plan is simply this: each time you want a turnout, simply announce that pictures are to be taken. And when that method wears out, you can begin using a camera, then a flash bulb, and finally, as a last resort, you can put film in the camera."

When Homer ceased pounding on the desk, he sank back into his chair and pulled forth his billfold.

J. B. Coon kissed Homer's hand and gave him a quick shoe shine.

"H. B., you've solved our problem; you've cleared the case; you have done it! Oh, how can I repay you? How? HOW?"

H. B. toyed with his billfold, smiled, and counted his $3.80.

"Tell me, H. B. Tell me! I'll do anything."

Homer recounted his money. The secretary knocked and announced that the reporters and photographers from the campus newspaper were waiting to interview Homer.

"You mean I'm going to be interviewed and my picture is going to be taken?" asked Mr. B.

"Front page spread!" bubbled J. B. Coon. Homer beamed.

Student Council Meeting of April 17-th

The meeting was called to order by President Bob Eltus.

Mr. Eltus read two pending acts before the Pennsylvania Legislature, the first regarding loyalty oaths, and the second setting up a commission to investigate indoctrination of students into Communism. Mr. Goldstein moved that we act in such a way that it be made known that the Council vigorously oppose both bills.

There were Cinderella committee reports.

Mr. Lewis moved that the Sophomore Class control Freshman trials, with upperclassmen to participate in the hazing. Mr. Cathro seconded. Mr. Reynolds amended to read "subject to the approval of the Student Council" and Miss Menegus seconded. Mr. Lewis accepted the amendment. Mr. Cathro amended it to read "and that the rules and regulations be made by the Sophomore Class" and Mr. Lewis accepted the amendment. The original motion carried.

"You don't owe me a cent, not a cent," warbled Homer as he disappeared out the door.

Miss Menegus moved adjournment, and Mr. Whitney seconded. The meeting was adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,
Connie Smith
Secretary

NEWS BRIEF --

The Bloodmobile will arrive on the Wilkes campus in about ten days—Wednesday, May 2. It will be on campus from 12:00 to 6:00.

So save up your blood and be ready for the Bloodmobile when it comes. You'll feel good by knowing your blood helped save someone's life.

NOTICE!

The Gymnasium will mark the scene of the United Nationalities Pageant on Sunday, April 29.

The cause is something we should all be aware of and active in each day. Plan to attend the special event.
