

INAUGURATION COMMITTEE APPOINTED

'MIKE' SPEAKS AT SUMMER SG MEETING

The annual summer SG meeting was marked by a message from Dr. Francis Michelini, the introduction of the new Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, various committee reports and a discussion concerning the proposed Judicial plan pending before SG.

Dr. Michelini introduced Jim Moss, an alumni of the class of 1954, as the new Assistant Dean of Student Affairs. Mr. Moss has assumed many of the duties of Arthur Hoover, former Assistant Dean.

Michelini also announced that the library plans to enforce a more stringent policy concerning the removal of books from the library in an effort to control book loss. It was mentioned that these plans were formulated in the Library Faculty Committee.

It was announced that attempts are being made to secure additional buildings for dormitories in an effort to eliminate the use of the YMCA as a dormitory. Next year, Slocum Hall will be a men's dorm.

Drew Gubanich, President of IDC, filed a report with SG relating to the group's activities during the summer. He announced that a basketball court has been constructed outside the bookstore. Gubanich also informed SG members that the dormitory handbook will be included in the all college student handbook next year so that all students are aware of the regulations governing dormitory residents.

The Concert-Lecture series has been finalized for the 1970-71 academic year with ten events scheduled from September through May. These events include speakers such as Dr. Rollo May, a noted psychoanalyst who will come to Wilkes in September. Various musical and theatrical appearances will supplement the guest list of speakers.

Mike Daney, representing the Freshman Orientation Committee, filed a report stating the progress of the Committee and the final plans that have been made. Daney announced that Freshman Orientation Activities will begin on September 8 and continue through September 12. He also announced that hazing has been abolished. S.G. supplemented this move with a formal vote of approval.

Richard Sunday, chairman of the Freshman Reading Program outlined his committee's plans for the fall. He noted that this year the objective will be to acquaint the freshman class with such contemporary topics as drug abuse and sexual morality. The freshmen will be expected to read: THE STUDENT'S DILEMMA, POISONED IVY, DRUGS ON THE COLLEGE CAMPUS, and SEX AND THE COLLEGE STUDENT.

INVITATIONS PROGRAMS CONSIDERED

Preliminary meetings have been held in Weckesser Hall throughout the past few weeks to plan the formal inauguration of Dr. Francis J. Michelini as the second President of Wilkes College.

The committee, composed of members of the Board of Trustees, The Administration, the faculty and students feels that the installation should be an occasion for the presentation of the President to the College and the community. It is also felt that the occasion should be a time to present the college to other academic institutions as a school of quality and maturity.

The final date for the inauguration has not been set pending the selection of a speaker. The inaugural committee will direct the program, over a three day period, the invitations, and the practical implementation of the program.

Committee Representatives

Representatives of the committee from the Board of Trustees are Donald Carpenter, Thomas Kiley, Joseph Savitz, Mrs. Eberhard Faber, and Attorney Louis Shaffer (ex-officio).

The faculty is represented by Dr. Charlotte Lord, Dr. Hugo Mailey, Dr. Charles Reif, and Dr. Ralph Rozelle.

Student representatives include Aldo Farneti, president of Student

Department Adds three Teachers

Dr. Benjamin Fiester, chairman of the English Department, has announced the hiring of three new faculty members for the Fall semester. The three teachers are: Dr. Bruce Craddock, Michael Greenwald, and Robert Pasquarelli.

Dr. Craddock, who comes to Wilkes from Ohio University, received his A.B. degree from Park College, Parkville, Missouri, and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Texas. He will be teaching American Literature, in addition to several freshman and sophomore English classes.

Mr. Greenwald is currently completing his doctoral dissertation at Harvard University. He received his A.B. degree from Princeton University, and holds an A.M. and an LL.B. from Harvard. Greenwald, a native of Kingston, will teach Modern Poetry in the Fall.

Mr. Pasquarelli is working toward his Ph.D. in linguistics at Syracuse University, where he received his A.B. He recently returned from

Summer Theatre Workshop Presented Plays

The Summer Theater Workshop got underway in the Center for the Performing Arts on July 5, with 22 participants present. The program is designed to give high school students four weeks of intensive training in all phases of theater. The program is under the direction of Alfred Groh.

The first student presentation was on July 9, when scenes from Alice in Wonderland were produced. Yesterday scenes were presented from four more plays.

Martin Boylan directed a scene from Fumed Oak, with assistance from Douglas Arbetman on set and light design. Years Ago was directed by Nancy Karp, with set and light assistance from Douglas Arbetman.

Shakespeare was spotlighted in presentations of scenes from two of his famous plays. Romeo and Juliet was directed by Judy Panzini, with light and set design by Grace Perkins. Anne M. Richey directed scenes from Macbeth, with assistance from Elliot Rosenbaum on sets and lighting.

On July 30, three more presentations were offered at the CPA. Elliot Rosenbaum will direct a scene from the award-winning musical Oliver. Nancy Karp and Anne Richey assisted in presenting the famous "Who Will Buy?" number.

Douglas Arbetman directed an act from Charley's Aunt, with set design by Judy Panzini, and lighting by Martin Boylan.

Finally, Al Groh's original play, Recollections of Childhood, was directed by Grace Perkins. Martin Boylan designed the set, and Judy Panzini assisted with lighting.

Two high school students enrolled in the Wilkes Summer Theater Workshop are pictured backstage before a presentation of Alice in Wonderland. Carcy Brown, left, from Hickory, Pa., portrayed the Duchess in the CPA production. Charlene Bryant, right, from Boothwyn, Pa., worked on the costume committee for the play.

Editorial:

On The Surface

On the surface the student written Judiciary proposal may seem to be another whim of students. Yet, the proposal deserves a lot of respect and attention as do the students that wrote it.

The Judiciary proposal represents a sense of maturity and foresight on the part of the students. The writers of the proposal modeled it after our legal courts and based it on a theme of integrity. The system, if passed by the Administrative Council, will enable the students to present their cases and be judged by peers, members of the faculty and Administration.

Although, fundamentally, courts of this nature in colleges and universities are not revolutionary — they should not be ignored. Once again students have shown their initiative and written a proposal for the students of Wilkes College with betterment in mind and maturity as a guide.

At last Saturday's meeting it was announced that hazing will be abolished this fall. Once again, on the surface this may seem unfair to many supporters of hazing. Likewise, under the surface the abolition of hazing represents more.

For students, faculty, and Administration who are supporters of change this reversal in policy and tradition represents just that. To augment the Freshman orientation program and to replace hazing, planners have decided to give the freshman class projects both at the school and in the community.

We live in times where we fight pollution and clamour to help the unfortunate.

With the abolition of hazing and a proposed substitute we have an opportunity to make words actions. Let's hope that it isn't all words.

Mayer Draws Philosophical Conclusions

by Eric Mayer

I imagine that a lot of readers are already questioning my maturity and sagely pointing out that the world is not perfect and there never was and never will be a perfect society. This cop out illogic accomplishes even less than it proves but does show how hard it is for many people to even think, unfettered by prejudice. Once in a while it might be a good exercise to consider a problem under the condition that we will not try to reach a conclusion. Our insistence on ANSWERS to all problems, immediate and workable, has led to student radicals and their destructive pseudo-answers, and worse, to a society that refuses to question itself, believing as it does that it already possesses the only realistic answers.

When we briefly consider some past ideas of Utopia we may be surprised that, educational propaganda notwithstanding, democracy was not foremost among them. The ancient Greeks, for example, envisioned a society ruled by those most capable. To Socrates that meant the best educated. Plato refined that philosophy to mean a society ruled by benevolent philosopher kings.

Power for Good?

At first such an idea may be repugnant, but remember that these rulers would be the epitome of learning and understanding. They would have the power of tyrants but being such superior human beings, they would employ that power only for the good, which would be clear to them in their infinite wisdom.

Obviously, the ideal of the philosopher king, as such pretenders as Frederick the Great of Prussia proved, is, at this time, unworkable. It is of interest though as a Utopia, based not on a political system, but rather on the individual, who, Plato hoped, could be perfected through education.

Look at the negative Utopias depicted by Orwell and Huxley in 1984 and Brave New World. In both we see that the absolute power of the dictators is based on suppression of individuality through society. Big Brother is ever vigilant, brainwashing his charges and keeping them in line, by any means necessary. A simple human relationship cannot hope to survive in a world where the government is God. In Huxley's nightmare "people" are indoctrinated from birth and drug their meaningless way through a programmed life, giving themselves up, at last, to be turned into fertilizer for the good of the people. The Savage, the hero, an individual, cannot survive in such a world.

"Tyranny of Majority"

Even Utopias which espouse democracy do so in the belief that democracy results in free individuals. This isn't strictly true. It can and does, result in a tyranny of the majority.

What is so Right about majority rule when it creates permanent minorities such as the Blacks and Indians? What does it offer them?

A BUMMER IN THE SUMMER

College Friends Die

Arnaud C. Marts Katherine Stark

Arnaud C. Marts, one of the leading founders of Wilkes College and a former president of Bucknell University died recently at Doctor's Hospital, New York City. He was 81.

Marts was acting president of Bucknell from 1935 to 1938, and president from 1938 to 1945.

Upon leaving the university he worked full-time with his fund raising firm, Marts and Lundy.

During World War II he served as director of the Pennsylvania Council of Defense from 1941 to 1942.

Mrs. Katherine Stark, wife of Admiral Harold R. Stark, U.S. Navy retired and former chief of U.S. Naval Operations, passed away recently at her home in Washington, D.C.

Admiral and Mrs. Stark were former residents of Wilkes-Barre.

In 1937 the Starks donated their home at 184 South River Street to Bucknell Junior College (now Wilkes College) as a memorial to Fred M. Chase and his wife, Admiral Stark's sister.

Admiral and Mrs. Stark took an active interest in the college and its development.

THEN WILL I KNOW

When the only pleasure found is behind locked doors,
Or doled in a valley by the scores,
Or when subconscious minds are screaming for more,
Then will I know I have lived too long.

When a baby's tender crying stirs no soul,
Or hands are never outward to console,
And hearts are as empty as old kitchen bowls,
Then will I know I have lived too long.

When hearts are only given out of force,
When no man will another's trust enforce,
When man and nature have been divorced,,
Then will I know I am dead.

YELLOW BRIDGES

Yellow bridges are a novelty around here.
On cold blue mornings is when they usually come.
Supposedly they remind me of us — but how could that be?
When we went bust.

Cornered and unable to move is a funny place to stand —
You ought to try it sometime —
On weekends maybe —
Try watching Saturday Night at the Movies a few times yourself.
After a while you begin to know all the plots and all the words
Because you've heard them before.

Groton Schools Pick 150 Wilkes Teachers

To James Shaughnessy — assistant superintendent of schools in Groton, Connecticut — a visit to Wyoming Valley means a chance to play some golf on the fine local courses, an opportunity to exchange pleasantries with old friends and a search for teaching talent at Wilkes College.

Shaughnessy has a special liking for people who gained their training in education at Wilkes for a very simple reason — they have proven to be well qualified in all respects and they "fit" the educational system at Groton.

150 Go To Groton

To prove his point, Shaughnessy did a quick mental recount on the number of Wilkes students who have been plucked from the local campus and signed on as faculty members at Groton.

"In the past 10 years," Shaughnessy said, "we have hired about 150 Wilkes education graduates. This year we are taking eight from the 1970 graduating class."

Robert Strouse, who accompanied Shaughnessy on the trip, is principal of the West Side Junior High School in Groton.

Strouse reminded Shaughnessy that percentage-wise Wilkes ranks rather heavily when it comes to teaching jobs at Groton.

Record Set

This caused Shaughnessy to make another estimate — figuring roughly that of the 550 teachers in the Groton school system, slightly more than 50 are graduates of Wilkes College.

"That must be some kind of a record," according to John Chwalek, Wilkes placement director and personal friend and golfing partner of Shaughnessy.

The assistant superintendent of the New England school said he first came in contact with Wilkes College "about 11 years ago" while making a tour of the northeastern part of the country for teaching talent.

Reflecting for a few seconds, Shaughnessy's face suddenly glowed with a satisfied grin as he said, "I can even remember the first person we hired. Her name was Sandra Feldman."

Since then it has been simply a case of Shaughnessy thinking in terms of Wilkes College when it came to looking for replacements.

Congratulates "Mike"

During this most recent trip, Shaughnessy made it a point to pay a special visit to Weckesser Hall — "just to say hello again to Dr. (Francis) Michelini and congratulate him on his recent move up to the presidency."

As further proof that Shaughnessy is well satisfied with the way educational training is provided at Wilkes, he informed Dr. Michelini that he will have a personal representative on the campus for the next four years.

"My daughter is enrolled in the freshman class which begins in September," he explained.

Yeager Ranks Fourth In Base-Stealing

by George Pawlusch

Base stealing figures released last week by the NCAA Service Bureau disclosed that Wilkes' Ted Yeager's individual thievery ranked him fourth among the nation's baseball collegians. The 5-6, 150-pound speed merchant from Catawissa recorded 22 steals in 17 Colonel games for an average of 1.29 per game.

Entering his junior year the versatile Yeager is eagerly awaiting the start of the upcoming football season where the mini-mite has a few other marks going. With two years of varsity eligibility still remaining Yeager is already the greatest rushing leader in Wilkes history with 1,311 yards behind him. His first of 289 collegiate carries went for a 77-yard touchdown against the University of Vermont in 1968.

Other post season baseball plaudits were received by shortstop-second baseman Tom Higgins who was named to the Topps District Two All-Star second team. District Two, one of eight districts on the NCAA national map, comprises Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Higgins is the first Wilkes baseball player to ever achieve NCAA laurels. A .333 hitter with 24 hits in 1970, he is one of the top all-around players to ever don a blue and gold uniform.

Wilkes College wrestling fans will be treated next winter to the toughest slate of opponents ever compiled in the 25-year history of the sport at the college. Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, will find the blue and gold taking on Lehigh, Maryland, and Southern Illinois in a quadrangular match at Lehigh. Sessions will start at 7 P.M. on both nights.

The newly elected president of Wilkes College, Dr. Francis J. Michelini and his wife Anne Marie, will be honored at a semi-formal dinner-dance on Friday evening, October 30, by the Wilkes College Faculty Women. The event will be held at the Treadway Motor Inn.

New Books Displayed

Summertime reading need not be neglected with many new books currently being displayed in the Farley Library. Students are reminded that new books are displayed on a shelf to the right of the entrance. Currently on display are the following books:

Devotees of William Faulkner will find interesting reading in The Faulkners of Mississippi, a memoir by the author's brother, Murry C. Falkner. The book offers new insight into the complex personality of William Faulkner (who changed the spelling of the Falkner family name), but it also gives an authentic view of what life was like in the first half of the twentieth century. The 205 pages, published by the Louisiana State University Press, highlight the antics of the Falkner boys, and their fascination with the coming of movies, automobiles, and aviation.

German-Americans can't afford to miss Rochard O'Connor's book, appropriately titled The German-Americans. One out of six of us is German-American, and that percentage has had considerable effect on our culture, politics and economics. Germans are of all three major American religions — Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish. Following 464 pages of detail, O'Connor concludes that with the likes of Babe Ruth, Walter Lippman, Everett Dirksen, Rod Steiger, John J. Pershing, Theodore Dreiser and one-half of Grace Kelly being of German descent, they "can't be all bad, or all good." (Edited by Little, Brown, and Co.)

Those concerned with race relations and urbanization will find interesting reading in E. Franklin Frazier's book, The Negro Church in America. The short book is an analysis of how Christian religion provided Negro slaves with a basis for social cohesion. Frazier, himself a Negro, maintains that the Negro church was the most stable institution on the Negro side of the American color line, and also the least powerful. (86 pages of reading, published by Schocken Books.)

Fiction lovers will find a collection of short stories by James Leo Herlihy (author of Midnight Cowboy) on the shelf. A Story That Ends With a Scream and Eight Others, presents nine short stories set in such places as Key West during the 1930's, to a hippie pad in modern Greenwich Village. In all the stories, a pleasant place becomes spooky, as ordinary people find inevitable terror in their lives. Nelson Algren compared Herlihy to Steinbeck and Sarayan when Herlihy published his first book eight years ago. (214 pages.)

To understand one of the hottest conflicts in our modern society, one might choose The Israel-Arab Reader — A Documentary History of the Middle East Conflict, edited by Walter Laquer. The editor brought together historical documents and essential agreements which lie behind the Middle East conflict. Showing both sides, Laquer outlines an account of 80 years of conflict. In Part IV, he offers articles by Gamal Abdel Nasser, Aba Eben, Arnold Toynbee, and his own conclusions — Is Peace in the Middle East Possible? (Citadel Press, 368 pages.)

Just for the record Wilkes athletic teams finished the 1969-70 athletic year with a combined 66-41-1 (.616 Pct.). Six out of nine sports on the Colonel schedule posted winning marks while the major entries finished a perfect four for four (football, wrestling, basketball, baseball).

The wrestlers led the way with a 12-2 (.855) percentage followed by Football, 6-2 (.750); Golf, 8-3 (.727); Baseball, 11-6 (.647); Basketball, 14-8 (.636); Soccer, 7-4-1 (.625); Tennis, 5-5 (.500); Lacrosse, 2-3 (.400); and Swimming, 1-8 (.111).

What about their free will and individuality? They can only wait on the goodness and humanity of the majority, which is naturally not anxious to relinquish any of the power that can give some degree of freedom to its possessor.

A Psychology Today article, wrestling with this problem, suggested that all groups, minorities or not, have a right to some amount of power. But how to arrange such a system?

Hopefully it can be seen by now that democracy is not necessarily the ultimate answer any more than communism or other ideologies. We just have to attempt the impossible and keep open minds.

Capitalism

Imagine for instance that every person in this country was assured of enough money each year to survive. Then all people would be free to pursue what they considered important. To many that would mean accumulating more money so as to be able to afford luxuries.

It was announced that District Attorney William Cohn, of Nassau County, New York, will speak to the freshman class on Thursday, September 10, concerning drugs.

A new approach has been taken with personal freshman contact this year, with the freshmen being given a list of both dorm and day students they can reach who have similar majors and interests.

The proposal for the formation of a Student Judiciary was read for the second time for student consideration. The proposal was originally submitted at the May 14 SG meeting under the direction of Denny Brew and Alton Kenny. The proposal was passed by SG and will be submitted to the Administrative Council.

It was announced that the final decisions concerning fund requests have not been made and are waiting committee approval.

Teachers To Study Sciences

An In-Service Institute at Wilkes College for secondary school teachers covering topics in environmental science has been announced by Dr. Alvan Bruch, coordinator of the environmental science program at the college.

The program is one of 1000 projects supported annually by the National Science Foundation.

The Institute will run from September, 1970, to May, 1971. It is designed for general or earth science teachers holding baccalaureate degrees with a science major. It is assumed that these teachers will have little or no proficiency in mathematical analysis (calculus and beyond). The specific goal is to bring the candidates for the program to a point where they are familiar with many differential equations applicable to astronomical and geophysical problems.

Prospective candidates are urged to request applications by writing or telephoning Dr. Bruch, Institute Director at Wilkes College. Final selection of candidates is scheduled to be made after August 1.

Three graduate credits will be offered each semester which may be applied to the Master of Science degree in Education. Tuition has been waived by Wilkes College, and book allowances and traveling expenses are available.

Four topics will be considered in each of two 15-week semesters. Class meetings will be Thursdays from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Stark Hall of Science, Wilkes College.
