

White House Ed. Conference Meets Here On Tuesday

On Tuesday, the Wilkes campus will play host to the Luzerne County White House Conference on Education, sponsored by the Anthracite Institute for Developing Schools. The event is in collaboration with the national White House Conference plan instituted by President Eisenhower. The White House Conference on Education is a plan to focus citizen interest on local, state and national problems of education, and to search for possible solutions. It is a result of President Eisenhower's appeal for "the most thorough, widespread, and concerted study the American people have ever made of their educational problems."

The afternoon session from 4 to 6 will consist of group discussions on the six major issues of the year:

1. What should our schools accomplish?
2. In what ways can we organize our school systems more efficiently and economically?
3. What are our school building needs?
4. How can we get enough good teachers — and keep them?
5. How can we obtain a continuing public interest in education?
6. How can we finance our schools — build and operate them?

Each of six groups will discuss one of the questions in regard to the local situation, and formulate possible solutions.

Chairmen in charge of these groups are: Dr. Gordon D. Bell, Wyoming Valley Chapter, American Red Cross; Mrs. Leroy E. Bugbee, League of Women Voters of Wilkes-Barre; Mr. Herbert J. Morris, Greater Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Milona Klineb, Pennsylvania State Education Association; Dr. Samuel A. Rosenberg, Wilkes College Economics Department; and Atty. Maurice S. Cantor, Wilkes-Barre Citizens Committee. In addition, over fifty people have been invited to attend the group meetings and act as consultants.

2nd Beacon Queen To Be Named For '55 Homecoming

Editors, Groh, O'Toole, Picton To Make Choice; Decision On Next Tuesday

The BEACON picks its second annual Homecoming Queen next week. This year's Queen will be selected from a field of a baker's dozen candidates nominated last Monday. Final selection will be made next Tuesday by a judging board comprised of the editorial staff, Mr. Groh, and Mr. O'Toole.

The Queen will be crowned at the Bridgeport football game next Saturday. Gloria Dran, last year's Queen, will crown her successor at the game. The Queen will again have a Marine honor guard for the ceremonies.

This year's coronation will be conducted by the Beacon in conjunction with the Alumni Association. Alumni will make arrangements, procure honor guards, gifts for the Queen.

The two runners-up in the contest will serve as princess-attendants to the Queen, will join her during the halftime ceremonies.

Besides the official crowning at Kingston Stadium on Saturday afternoon, the Queen and her Princesses will attend the Alumni Warm-Up Party Friday evening at the Kingston House, and the cocktail party and buffet supper Saturday night after the game.

The board of judges will meet on Tuesday at 11 to select the Queen and her attendants from the 13 contestants. The judging policy differs this year in that last year's Queen was selected directly by the Beacon staff.

The identity of all contestants will remain unannounced until the final selection is made.

Last year's Beacon began the practice of selecting a queen for Homecoming. With her succession by a second next Saturday, it is hoped that the practice will become customary each year.

WC Honor System Interest is High At Assembly Talk

Five Wilkes students brought the honor system to life on campus again this year by presenting their views to the student body at assembly Tuesday.

Helen Rutledge, Helen Krachenfels, Chet Miller, Bob Coon, and moderator Jessie Choper took the first part of the assembly hour to present personal views and allowed the students to question them in the final portion of the program. As was typical of past honor discussions many questions were left unanswered because of insufficient time. Many opinions were still on the lips of the students as they left the assembly hall.

Choper opened the program with a brief historical account of attempts to bring an honor system to the school from the time it was Bucknell Junior College to the present time. The most recent attempt that was carried to completion was in 1954, when the senior class voted against "honor". Last year elements of the student body originated new discussions that have carried into this year.

Non-Informing Favored

Miss Krachenfels spoke first expressing an affirmative view and emphasizing the need for integrity and responsibility among students.

Miss Rutledge spoke affirmatively and negatively on certain aspects of an honor system. She was opposed to the student informer type system that substitutes many proctors for one proctor. She favored a "system that will make a student feel as though he is stealing from the blind when he cheats".

Bob Coon, the third speaker, presented a definite plan that a number of dormitory students had thought might work. The high light of this plan was "noninforming" by students on each other.

Chet Miller took a definite negative stand and presented four great stumbling blocks. 1. The school is too small. 2. The school is not founded on tradition or religion.

'55 MANUSCRIPT NOW TO HAVE NEW ARTICLE SELECTION PLAN

In an effort to revive interest in the Manuscript, Wilkes literary magazine, sweeping organizational, procedural and policy changes have been made. By changing the method of selecting articles for publication it is hoped that more students will write for the magazine. The changes are intended to give every contributor an equal opportunity to have his article published.

Highlighting the changes made is a system whereby the identities of contributors will not be revealed to Association members until after it is decided to accept or reject the manuscript. The editor-in-chief will detach or efface the author's name before submitting a manuscript to the staff for discussion. In this way, articles will be judged solely on their merit, the staff not being influenced in any way by the names of the authors.

Association members will read every manuscript and submit an oral criticism of each, together with a rating of 3, 2, 1, or "reject" to the Editorial Board. Guided by the criticisms and ratings of the Association members, the Editorial Board composed of the editor, associate editor, secretary, and business manager, will decide which manuscripts will be published.

The Association may, however, override the decisions of the Editorial Board by a three-fourths vote of the members present at a meeting called for that purpose. Only those manuscripts which have been accepted for publication will be submitted to the advisor, Dr. George Raddin, to ascertain whether they adhere to the principles of good writing and good taste.

Hallas, Schuster, Vose First WC Majorettes

For the second consecutive year Wilkes College has added something special to its homecoming festivities. The big news last year at this time was the Beacon staff's idea of having a homecoming queen to reign over the event. This year, the new attraction comes from Band Director Bob Moran of the Music Department.

For the first time in the history of the college, majorettes will lead the band at the halftime ceremonies at homecoming. The girls, three of them, will wear the traditional blue and gold of Wilkes College.

The new majorettes include two sophomores and one freshman and are Carol Hallas, Janice Schuster, and Barbara Vose.

Carol Hallas is a sophomore at the college and has had experience as a majorette at Swoyerville High School where she lead the majorettes. At Wilkes she is a member of the Education Club and TDR Sorority.

Janice Schuster, also a sophomore, comes from Coughlin High School where she was drum majorette. At Wilkes she is a member of the Beacon staff, secretary of the sophomore class, and a member of TDR.

Barbara Vose, the sole freshman also comes from Coughlin where she gained her experience in twirling and strutting. Barbara belongs to Cue 'n' Curtain and TDR at Wilkes.

FIRST CUE 'N' CURTAIN COMEDY TO HAVE THREE NIGHT RUN

Rehearsals are now underway for the Cue 'n' Curtain production of "Nothing But The Truth" which will be presented on November 17, 18, and 19. The forthcoming production is under the direction of Alfred Groh.

The entire cast has been chosen and as the curtain opens on the first act Bruce Williams will have become Robert Bennet; James Miller, E. M. Ralston; Larry Amdur, Dick Donnelly; Paul Shiffer, Clarence Van Drusen; Carl Ernst, Bishop Doran; Jane Obitz, Gwen Ralston; Marian Laines, Mrs. E. M. Ralston; Pat Yost, Ethel Clark; Barbara Tanski, Mabel Jackson; Nancy Beam, Sable Jackson; and Nancy Brown, Martha, the maid.

Rehearsals are open to anyone who should wish to come, and especially to those who are interested in finding out how a theatre really works. A great deal is to be learned by watching the actors transform into their new selves.

The amount of work that goes into making a production a success may prove to be surprising. All interested in "behind the scenes" can see a world of reality evolve from the imagination and ingenuity of the stage crew which is under the direction of Fred Helfrick.

HOME COMING DANCE SPONSORED BY DORMS TO BE IN CAFETERIA

Following the Homecoming football game next week with Bridgeport the Wilkes College Dormitories will sponsor a Coke-Dance at the Cafeteria.

Irwin Kaye, President of the nter-Dormitory Council, and Anita Cherkes, General Chairman of the Dance, have announced that all day students, dormitory students, and visiting Alumni are invited. There will be dancing, refreshments and admission will be charged. The dance will be informal and "come as you went to the game" will be the order of the dance.

This will be the first function to be held upstairs in the cafeteria which once was the most popular meeting place on campus. It is hoped that this dance will acquaint the returning Alumni with the newly remodeled cafeteria as well as instill a Homecoming function for all day and dormitory students.

This is the last home game of the season, and it is hoped that a large and enthusiastic throng will attend.

Bio Club Aids Research

Dr. Charles B. Reif, professor of biology, announced on Wednesday that Dr. Sheldon Cohen will again undertake a research project at Wilkes with the assistance of members of the biology department and qualified students.

The project is aimed at demonstration of the Antigenicity of Stapholoccus cellular substances and experimental production of Arteritis by passive sensitization.

The federal security agency of the Public Health Service has awarded Wilkes College a grant of nearly $2,000 with the stipulation that any patentable discoveries accruing therefrom would be taken up with the Surgeon General of the Health Service.

THATCHER GIVES SPEECH ON WORLD PEACE HOPES

On United Nations Day, October 24, Dr. Harold W. Thatcher, professor of history at Wilkes, was the principal speaker before a large crowd of members from Nanticoke service clubs, fraternal and veterans' organizations at a dinner held at the Nanticoke American Legion Home.

Dr. Thatcher noted that world peace has long been sought and that the two thousand year old vision to unite mankind has never been achieved. He added that this was nearly accomplished when the Romans ruled the known world, but since then the efforts of Christianity and social forces have met only partial success.

Sadie Hawkins Square Dance Tomorrow Night At Gym

Batchelor Heads Econ Club Shindig;
Wilkie, Schiffer to Call, Play
At 8:30 Affair; Admission 50 Cents

In celebration of Sadie Hawkins' Day, the Economics Club will sponsor a square dance at the gymnasium tomorrow night, it was announced by co-chairmen Nancy Batchelor and Chet Miller.

Larry Wilkie, a country music specialist, will call the square dances and the musicians of Paul Schiffer will be on hand to furnish some slower tempos for those who do not desire a solid evening of square dances.

The attire for the 8:30 to midnight affair is optional. In keeping with the Sadie Hawkins' Day theme it is expected that many will wear plaid shirts and jeans. An early plan was to make this attire mandatory but a definite decision could not be reached.

The intermission entertainment which has become a part of most dances on campus this year is still in the planning stage. It is expected to be a "I'll Abner" type skit, since it was in this comic strip that Sadie Hawkins' Day found its fame.

This day carries with it the connotation that the female will assume some aggressive steps toward the male. Members of the club expressed the hope that all who attend would join in the fun and square dancing with this principle in mind.

Tickets are on sale for fifty cents and can be obtained from most club members or at the door tomorrow night.

WISDOM OF WILKES

By GWEN EVANS and SHELDON ISAAC

Question: What is your opinion on honor systems?

Ruth Younger, sophomore: "I believe an honor system would be a definite asset to the educational program of Wilkes. However, an honor system would be even a greater asset to the character of the individual student."

Frederick Krohle, junior, English major: "I feel that an honor system is inevitable at Wilkes, regardless of the form it may take. Sooner or later, the students will see that the benefits of an honor system and adopt one. Personally I am in agreement with the plan proposed in assembly, a program whereby individual honor is encouraged."

Nancy Casterlin, sophomore, chemistry major: "The honor system gives the student a sense of responsibility which helps him get along in life. At Wilkes we should have a system of individual honor without informing on one's fellow-students."

John Bucholtz, junior, political science: "While the adoption of an honor system would probably prove beneficial to the College in terms of prestige derived, it seems to me that no practical, down-to-earth system has as yet been presented. Clearly more is needed than visionary speculation. Furthermore, no real need for such a system has as yet been satisfactorily demonstrated."

John Scandale, sophomore, accounting major: "It sounds good in theory, but I believe that it is just an ideological concept. I don't think it can be made practicable at a small school or as young a school as Wilkes."

Robert Payne, freshman, English major: "It is a good idea, if a system can be worked out by which everyone will be benefitted."

Ellen Kemp, freshman, elementary education: "I think the honor system is sound in principle, but I don't think it would work at Wilkes because some of the students aren't mature enough to have the responsibility placed upon them and would just abuse the privilege."

Barbara Poris, freshman, liberal arts major: "An honor system at Wilkes would be a good thing if a method can be worked out to discourage the habit of cheating, especially by those individuals with whom it was common practice in high school."

BECAUSE ONLY VICEROY GIVES YOU A PURE, NON-MINERAL, NON-TOXIC FILTER WITH 20,000 FILTER TRAPS IN EVERY FILTER TIP!

1. Yes, only Viceroy has this filter composed of 20,000 tiny filter traps. You cannot obtain the same filtering action in any other cigarette.

Pig in a Poke

We trust that most of our readers bestirred themselves enough to go to assembly Tuesday, though the problem being discussed being merely one which actually concerned them, we doubt it. At any rate the agitators for an honor system on campus proposed a system by which, among other things, there would be no informing on others observed cheating in examinations.

The authors of this travesty went on to propose an "Honor Council" which would have the impressive duty of meeting monthly to discuss the workability and continuation of the system.

Somebody from the audience summoned enough courage to ask the backers of the system just what the point of it would be, and got the highly informative answer that while cheaters might get ahead at first, something would have to be done. Whether that "something" might be expulsion, low-grading or a slap on the wrist, the answerers did not seem to deem worthy of their attention, nor did they bother to explain what the point was of not incorporating a discipline program into the system to begin with, if one were so likely to be needed so soon.

PRESTIGE?

When another of the students ventured to inquire why such a system should be offered them at all, he got the lofty answer that if it were 'good for the school' why should the system not be accepted. There was other similar yap of 'prestige' along the same line, oblivious to the fact that there is little prestige in practicing the opposite of what one preaches. In short, the gentlemen of honor blandly urged that the students and the College be identified with a system little short of hypocritical.

Indeed, we are reminded of an incident a few months ago at one of last semester's discussions of this question (doubtless conveniently forgotten by the gentlemen behind the current proposal), which concerned this concept of 'prestige.' Someone whose name wouldn't help anybody here began to speak, then paused and remarked, "Now I am assuming that you people are not supporting an honor system merely because you've talked to someone who comes from a college where they have an honor system, and were ashamed." The gentleman making the remark then went on with what he had begun to say in the first place, but the room was rimmed with red faces, or so it looked to us.

The incident, we feel, is unhappily too characteristic of the thinking on the system we have heard since the discussions began last year.

WHO'S WHO?

The trouble with the thinking that we have heard so far seems not to be quantitative, almost everybody having something to say of suggest, but qualitative, few, if any of the suggestions representing much more thought than that needed to produce something to talk about.

If the apologists for honor systems can't come up with something besides a flurry of foggy words and a haze of fuzzy semi-ideas, perchance they ought to sit down and think some more. It does seem odd, though, while many students appear to favor some kind of honor system, sometime, there seems to be only a very few militant in this 'student movement.'

JUST TO MAKE IT CLEAR

It occurs to us that some of what we've said said above might be interpreted as placing us in opposition to the honor system. This is by no means the case; rather, we have not yet ventured to commit ourselves on the concept in general.

But while we are withholding judgement on the idea itself, we do reserve the right to object to dubious programs supposedly based on the honor concept which may be foisted upon our readers. — T.R.P.

Booters Tie Stroudsburg, Top Trenton

1955 WILKES COLLEGE SOCCER TEAM

Koo, Ferris Tally First Goals; Play Gettysburg Away

The Colonel booters had to settle for a tie with East Stroudsburg State Teachers College Wednesday afternoon as a raft of injuries hampered the Reesemen after they took a 2-0 half-time lead.

Younsou Koo and Nick Giordano sent the booters off winging in the second period. Koo got his first goal of the year midway in the stanza when he picked up a Bill Lloyd pass and drilled it into the net.

Giordano made his fourth of the year on the final play of the half off a pass by Carl Van Dyke. The horn sounded just as the ball hit the cords.

Shugar, Bresnahan Hurt

However, the Colonels lost Sam Shugar and John Bresnahan on injuries and East Stroudsburg took control of the game in the third period as John Reese was forced to use linemen in the backfield to replace the two Plymouth halfbacks.

Dave Smith put the Teachers one goal behind in the first minute of the third quarter and Howie Staeger tied the game midway in the fourth.

Two five-minute extra periods were played in virtual darkness with neither team being able to break the tie. The Colonel booters will still be looking for their first victory over the Teachers next year.

Dump Trenton

The booters notched their third win of the year last Saturday by dumping a rugged Trenton State Teachers outfit, 2-1.

Trenton led at the half but Jim Ferris tied the game early in the third period on a 25-yard free kick. Nick Giordano got the winning tally in the same period.

At Gettysburg Tomorrow

The Colonels play at Gettysburg tomorrow and will still be trying to get above the .500 mark. The record now stands at three wins, three losses and three ties.

Gettysburg has been having their troubles this year but recently notched their first win of the season. They are a new team on the schedule this year.

The booters will be at top strength for the tilt as it was learned that both Shugar and Bresnahan would be able to play.

Cagers Will Play 23 Games in Coming Season

The Colonel hoopsters will play a total of 23 basketball games this year and will also compete in the Sampson Air Force Tournament on December 16, it was revealed today.

Other participants in the tournament have been announced as Hobart, Upsala and Hartwick.

New schools on this year's card are Elizabethtown, Bridgeport, Lebanon Valley and Newark College of Rutgers. The toughest game on the slate will be Lafayette.

New coach Ed Davis, former Colonel hoop great, will have four men back from last year's starting five. They are Joe Jablonski, Jim Ferris, Carl Van Dyke and John Bresnahan.

The schedule: December 2, Ithaca, home; Dec. 3, Bloomsburg, away; Dec. 7, Rider, away; Dec. 10, Yeshiva, away; Dec. 12, Moravian, away; Dec. 14, Susquehanna, home; Dec. 16-17, Sampson Air Base Tournament.

January 7, Ithaca, away; Jan. 11, Hartwick, away; Jan. 12, Newark College of Rutgers, home; Jan. 14, Lycoming, home; Jan. 27, Scranton, away; Jan. 31, Elizabethtown, home.

Gridders To Play at Hofstra Tonight

Seek First Win Over 'Dutchmen' After Dropping Three in Past; Cliff Brautigan on Doubtful List

Wilkes College's gridgers will head for Hempstead, Long Island, today for a night clash with Hofstra College. In last year's contest the Flying Dutchmen from New York defeated the Colonels by a 32 to 12 score. Overall, Hofstra holds three victories over the Colonels in the three games played between the two schools, but all have been thrillers.

MARYLAND STATE 45-0 VICTOR OVER GRIDMEN AS INJURY JINX HITS

Rugged Maryland State won its seventh straight game this year by walloping the Colonels, 45-0, last Saturday.

Maryland scored twice in the first quarter, once each in the second and third and three times in a big fourth.

The one bright spot in the Colonel defense came when guard Bob Masonis blocked a punt but the Wilkes offense never could put any type of a serious threat together.

Bob Yokavonis and Wilbur Smiles received painful injuries with Smiles sustaining a broken instep. Cliff Brautigan was forced out of action due to illness.

Grapplers Card 12 Meets; CCNY Tops

The Wilkes College wrestling schedule will consist of 12 meets this year with the City College of New York heading the slate, it was announced today.

Other schools on the schedule which are rated tops are Lafayette, King's Point, Muhlenberg, Ithaca, and Hofstra. The team will be handled by John Reese again this year.

The schedule: Dec. 14, Swarthmore, away; Dec. 17, Hofstra, away;

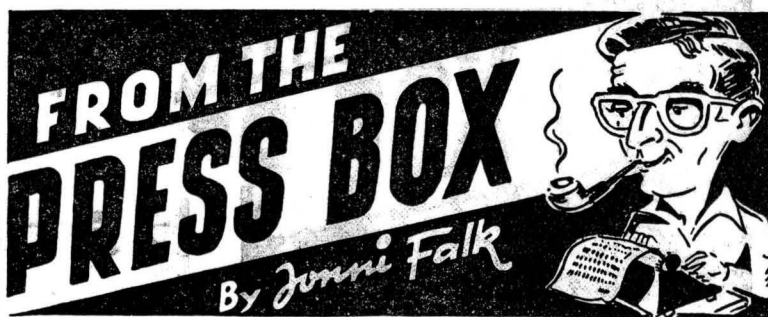

January 7, CCNY, away; Jan. 14, East Stroudsburg, home; Jan. 18, Lafayette, away; Jan. 28, Scranton, home.

February 4, Bloomsburg, home; Feb. 11, Ithaca, home; Feb. 18, Kings Point, home; Feb. 22, Scranton, away; Feb. 25, Muhlenberg, away.

THAT INJURY EPIDEMIC

Somebody said that we could fill up this week's column by just publishing a list of injuries to the football and soccer teams. That is not quite true, but it would fill up a good part of it.

We really can't figure out what is causing this year's epidemic. It is just one of those things that usually occur when a team is lean in numbers. Maybe that is the only time you notice injuries. But we wonder what would have happened this year if both Colonel outfits had been able to get off on the right foot.

The gridgers never really had a chance to work together before the season started. At one time, seven of them were down with virus bugs. Then, the season started and many of them were not in top-notch condition and a raft of injuries resulted. Seemed to hit at the thinnest positions, too — tackle, center and end.

The booters probably would have had their greatest season if Ahmed Kazimi had been in the lineup. After almost every game, you hear the remark from one of the players, "If only Ahmed had been out there." It's a fine tribute to Ahmed when every team that was on last year's schedule asks where he is when they come to town.

Now, the injury jinx has really hit the Colonel backfield. Fullback Dave Polley was lost for the season; Sam Shugar, Bill Lloyd and John Bresnahan, all halfbacks, have been hurt in recent games. Tony Bianco has never been able to regain top speed after an injury in the season's opener. We've had them all this year — shouldn't have to worry about injuries next year.

KOO NABS 'ATHLETE OF THE WEEK'

"Fiery, aggressive, workhorse of the team, good in every game so far this year", are the words used by soccer coach John Reese to describe Younsu Koo, this week's choice for Player of the Week honors.

Koo, who is a 23 year old South Korean native, has been a great asset to the club ever since joining it. But it was last week against Trenton that Koo really shined. Although he did not score (he has not scored all season but leads the team assists with three) he was spark plug in the booters 2-1 victory. Koo was always around when needed. Whether it was to stop an opponent's drive toward the Blue and Gold goal or to dribble downfield to set up a Wilkes score, Koo was always on hand.

Honors Not New

His play was so outstanding in the Trenton game that the referees selected him for All-American honors. But this is not the only honor to be bestowed on the former South Korean lieutenant. Last season he was placed on the Tri-State All-Star team and also was voted an Eastern All-Star by the coaches. Younsu was voted the most outstanding player on the team by his teammates at the close of last year's soccer season.

Koo has come to Wilkes by a round-about way. During his hitch in the R.O.K. army he heard about the college and made application for it. He was admitted in 1953. Next spring he will leave Wilkes to continue his studies at Bucknell majoring in sanitation engineering.

Butler Hall, Engineers Win In Intramural Football Play

By CLIFF KOBLAND

The busiest week of intramural football so far this season saw both Butler Hall and the Engineers pick up victories and Weckesser suffer a loss and a tie.

On Thursday, October 27, Weckesser Hall and the Engineers fought to a 6-6 draw. Weckesser opened the scoring when on fourth down Engineers' punter George Morgan was smothered near his own goal before he could get off his kick.

On the next play from scrimmage Weckesser's speedy halfback Gary Weingartner carried over for the score. The conversion was missed and at the half Weckesser lead, 6-0.

It wasn't until late in the third period that the Engineers started to move on the passing of their quarterback Don Pacropis. The Engineers score came as a result of a Pacropis pass to end Harold Pezzner late in the third quarter. Both clubs could not move the ball in the final quarter and the game went into the books as a tie. Engineers Wallop Butler

On Monday, the Engineers picked up their first win of the season with an easy 30-6 victory over Butler Hall. Paced by their triple-threat quarterback Don Pacropis, who scored three T.D.'s, the Engineers never had any trouble with the men from Butler. Sheldon Isaacs and George Morgan broke into the scoring column for the Engineers. This game was a replay of one that was protested by the Engineers two weeks ago.

Wednesday saw Butler get its first win of the campaign with a close 14-6 victory over Weckesser Hall. The Weckesser team gave the highly favored Butlers quite a scare when at halftime Butler led by only one point, 7-6. The Butler score came on a pass interception by Jerry Lind, who ran from his own forty for the score. The extra point was successful when Lind hit Mickey Perlmuth on a pass play.

Bill Duffy took a Gary Weingartner pass and scampered for a Weckesser TD late in the second quarter. The score stood 7-6 till the final period when Butler added the insurance tally on Stan Abram's buck up the middle. Lind this time ran for the extra point.
