PRESIDENT
EUGENE SHEDDEN FARLEY

To the Class of 1956

During the last four years you have added to your store of knowledge and have increased your skills so that you can be a more effective person. And yet neither knowledge nor skill will be of value to you in the years ahead unless you have developed those personal qualities that mark the real person.

The next quarter century offers no promise of ease, of peace, or of security, and yet all men need some of each if they are to attain any measure of happiness. As world conditions do not promise to satisfy these personal needs, each of you must, therefore, cultivate them within yourself. Many recipes for the cultivation of inner security have been offered to our restless generation, and I would not offer another — for it is unlikely that equanimity will come to those who seek it. It is more likely to come as a by-product of constructive thinking and creative action.

Some years ago I asked a very good friend for advice regarding an unpromising task that needed doing, but instead of offering advice he asked a question: "Are you sure this is the right thing to do?" The answer was, "Yes!" "Do you think you can do it?" My reply — "I don't know." And then he advised, "Well, if you are sure it is right, plan as carefully as you can, do all you are able, enlist the help of friends, and await the results."

The task that then seemed difficult has long since been forgotten, but the advice has helped throughout the years. Undertake a worthwhile task! Give it all you have! Have faith that the results will be good! Achievement will be the direct result; happiness and a measure of serenity will be the by-product.

Foreword

In this year's AMNICOLA, we have tried to trace the progress and development of the individual and show the influence his years at Wilkes have had upon him. We have also tried to point out how the various facets of his college life combine to bring about this development.

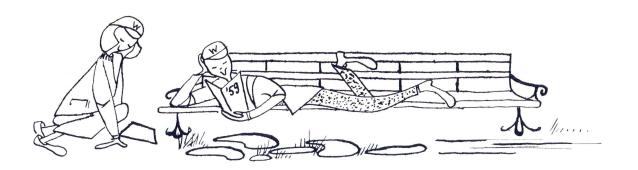

As the individual passes from one year to another, he displays different characteristics. In his freshman year, he looks ahead to the future, speculating upon what it may hold for him. His sophomore year is one of decision, for he must choose a definite objective. During his junior year he works toward this goal. As a senior, he is prepared for his future. The results of his development are shown as he takes his place in the community.

Other things also contribute to his growth.

In his study he seeks truth and knowledge. From campus life he learns social graces; from sports he learns teamwork; and from activities he learns the meaning of true fellowship.

One of the most important things college does for the individual is to strengthen his faith and morals. This effect of college life is not placed in any one section of the book because it pervades the whole atmosphere at Wilkes. We feel it in the reading of the Bible in assembly, in the quick silent prayer in our hearts before an exam, and in the very essence of our life — hard work and trust in God.

Our two figures, Betty and Joe, are not intended to represent anyone in particular. They symbolize the influence which college life has upon the development of an individual's character.

Education

THE SEARCH

FOR TRUTH

An essential part of an individual's development is his intellectual growth. Textbooks and instructors provide the necessary facts and knowledge; the individual, however, must organize these facts and utilize this knowledge to give it meaning. It is here — in these classrooms, in these departments — that the individual achieves his growth by seeking and learning the truth. Here, Betty and Joe study, struggle, and strive to reach their goal, the acquisition of an education.

Acquiring an education involves essentially the accumulation of knowledge; however, it is more than this. The educated individual is able to apply what he has learned. He organizes facts into patterns so that each new fact becomes a part of his conception of life and its meaning. He thinks clearly; he has a flexible mind and can cope with new situations. He reaches decisions logically and is not swayed from a course of action once decided upon.

Yet, for Betty and Joe, whether they are majoring in English, biology, commerce and finance, or engineering, the main objective is finding the truth; for only when they have secured this knowledge can they go on to achieve the rest.

By seeking truth and holding fast to it in the face of all odds, the individual can withstand any force that tries to narrow his personality or destroy his individuality.

The Administration

The center of official activity on the Wilkes college campus is Chase Hall. There the important asks of forming policy and laying plans for the uture are performed. There also the friendly and fficient office force works with the administrators a carry out these ideas.

Every student has felt the influence of these eople. When we first arrive at Wilkes as freshmen, ney are the first to meet us and make us feel at ome. Even after we become accustomed to colege life, they are always ready to help with advice or a friendly word. No problem is too small to warrant their attention. Students are encouraged to arrange interviews with them to discuss difficulties or simply to talk over their progress.

Although Wilkes in its development has experienced many "growing pains," the administration has never failed to cope with inconveniences and find quick solutions.

We feel sure that under the guidance of our able administrators the future will see Wilkes continue to succeed and grow as it has in the past.

The Humanities

The term "humanities" was first applied to the study of Greek and Roman classics and culture as opposed to the study of divinity and theology. With the rise of humanitarianism, the doctrine that man's obligations are concerned wholly with the welfare of the human race, the term was enlarged to take in the study of all languages and their origins as well as all other studies which concern themselves with human civilization.

Another definition of humanity is "that which distinguishes man from other beings." Man is the only creature who can think of and logically conceive a system of mathematics; he is the only creature who can sum up his thoughts through the medium of language in philosophy, religion, and literature, and only man can express his most beautiful thoughts through art and music.

At Wilkes the humanities division encompasses all branches of learning primarily conducive to culture and a liberal education. Here it includes the study of English, foreign languages, art, mathematics, music, philosophy, and religion.

The aim of the College in presenting the humanities is not merely to give the student a factual knowledge in these fields, but also to teach him to apply what he has learned to his own life, thus enriching it and giving it real meaning. In presenting the best in literature, art, and music to the student, the College strives to give him a lasting enjoyment and appreciation of all the benefits not only of our culture, but also of other nations. Mathematics and philosophy help the student to think clearly and to utilize his logic in understanding the ideas presented to him. He can then apply these ideas to his life, having learned from the experiences and thoughts of the great thinkers of the past as well as of the

In summary, the purpose of the humanities division at Wilkes is to impart cultural knowledge to the student in such a manner that the liberal education which he receives will aid his future living, so that he may be an intelligent and active citizen of the country in which he lives.

THE SCIENCES

Science in its broadest sense is synonymous with learning; in its stricter definition it is a branch of systematized knowledge considered as a distinct field of investigation and study, a field concerned with observation and classification of facts, especially as related to the physical world.

The beginnings of science were found in man's slow and unconscious observation of natural occurrences. Only when considerable progress was made in the ordering of knowledge did man begin to seek causes for phenomena and attempt to discover connections between them. Science, then, has been representative of the growth and enlargement of human knowledge.

At Wilkes the sciences embrace such diverse fields as biology, chemistry, physics, engineering, and psychology. Through biology and chemistry man learns of the workings of his body, through physics and engineering he builds a better material life for himself, while through psychology he attempts to discover the workings of his mind.

Here at the College, the science departments have concerned themselves not merely with purely academic considerations, but also with technical projects designed to better the community and to aid in the advancement of man's knowledge as a whole. The biology department, for example, has engaged within recent years in programs of experimentation involving cancerous tissue — a contribution, though if even in a small way, to the scope of man's knowledge in this field.

Study and experiment, theory and practice, academic research, practical aid to humanity—these are the contributions of science to life. Since no field of man's investigation can be totally separated from another, science, whether represented by the student, the teacher, or the professional investigator, endeavors to add to the fund of knowledge by which man attempts to improve himself and his world.

This, then, is the place of science, broad or exact, not only here at Wilkes, but wherever man wonders about the world around him. Here at Wilkes, the science departments attempt to answer some of his questions.

THE Social Sciences

The Social Sciences deal with the elements of human society and with the relations and institutions involved in man's existence as a member of an organized group. Their beginnings can be traced to the most ancient of written histories, the records of Babylonia, Egypt, Judea, and Greece.

The individual departments within the Social Science Division at Wilkes provide the essential background in this field for all students besides enabling the incoming student to select a vocation from a wide field ranging from nursing education to retail merchandising and including such other departments as elementary and secondary education, economics, history, sociology, business administration, secretarial studies, and accounting.

Within this division the student receives not only classroom instruction, but also an opportunity to take part in related extracurricular activities. The departments maintain clubs through which the students may take part in outside projects concerning their area of study. In addition, they give practical experience to their students, such as the accounting and selling internships sponsored by the accounting and retail merchandising departments as on-the-job training while the students are still in school.

Other outside activities which are of benefit to both the College and the community are also encouraged. The History Club has given a series of lectures by foreign students to help the people of the College to better understand the ways of other countries. The Education Club is very active in the Anthracite Institute for the Development of Schools, a scientific organization which is interested in introducing the newest and best teaching methods to our schools. The commerce and finance department takes surveys at the request of local businessmen, such as recording the traffic passing a particular point in order to predict business conditions.

By these and other studies and activities, the Social Science Division enables its students to take their place in the world prepared for their vocations by both factual knowledge and practical experience.

The Library

The Wilkes College Library, located in the beautiful building of Kirby Hall, contains over 35,000 books, 500 different titles of periodicals, and several hundred pamphlets. The library also has several special collections which include original manuscripts dating from the 13th and 14th centuries, autographed books, material on local history and coal, and books on Poland and in the Polish language.

The library staff handles Visual Aids equipment, schedules the time and showing of movies for classes, and trains students to operate the film projector.

The staff consists of four full-time members: Mrs. Nada Vujica, head Librarian; Mr. George Ermel, Circulation and Reference Librarian; Mr. Warren French, Cataloging and Reference Librarian; and Frances Hopkins, Secretary. With the aid of about 18 student assistants, the staff maintains library hours 70 hours a week, throughout holidays and vacations.

Each semester the staff offers two hours of orientation instruction to new students in the efficient use of the library, enabling them to become aware of the location and proper use of a treasure of books.

The Guidance Center, located in Hollenback Hall, renders a great deal of assistance to veterans, graduates, and students who are attending Wilkes at the present time.

Veterans may receive counseling and advice as to their aptitudes and abilities by filing an application with the Veterans Administration. All students entering Wilkes must take aptitude tests, and these are administered at the Guidance Center. Then, too, many local industries, banks, and hospitals require testing of prospective employees; and individuals who are uncertain as to what vocation to follow can also take a battery of tests which will help them to decide on the basis of interests and abilities what field to enter. This is all work of the Guidance Center.

The Placement Office, one of the most important parts of the Center to Wilkes' students, helps graduates who are interested in securing employment and students who desire part-time positions. Each year many business firms visit the campus to interview the senior students as a result of the careful planning of Mr. John Chwalek, Placement Director.

NUMMENANCE

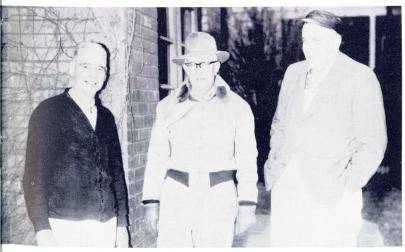

The college maintenance crew has an important task — seeing that the physical beauty of the campus is kept up at all times. Throughout the four seasons of the year, the crew has the responsibility of caring for the 29 buildings and numerous walks and lawns at Wilkes.

Mr. William Jervis, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, heads a staff of eight full-time employees and eleven student assistants. The group has various duties — sweeping sidewalks, raking leaves, caring for flower beds, shoveling snow, painting, and repairing. In addition, the staff handles the maintenance of all buildings by tending furnaces, removing ashes, and buffing floors. The beautiful appearance of the campus is proof of the well-executed job.

Evening school

The college's Evening Division is an out-standing example of Wilkes' contributions to the community. Its primary purpose is to aid in furthering the higher education of those unable to attend day school because of a lack of time or because of their hours of employment.

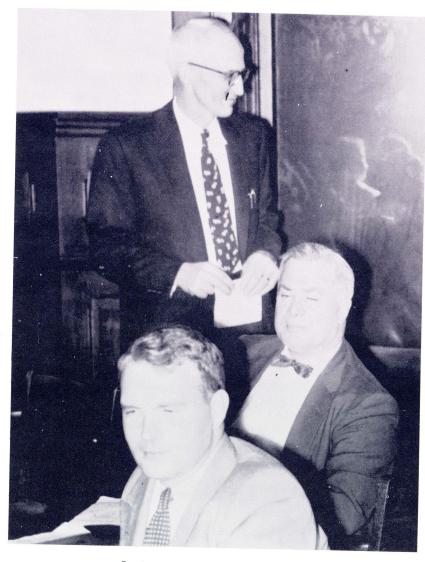

The present enrollment of the Evening Division is approximately 650 students. These consist mainly of undergraduates seeking a college degree, which they could not obtain without the facilities Wilkes offers them. By attending evening classes, they can earn their degrees while maintaining their jobs.

Most courses offered in the Evening Division of the College closely parallel those of Wilkes' day school students. On the other hand, the Evening School also seeks to give opportunities to those who would broaden their knowledge or increase their skill, and those not seeking degrees may still enjoy the advantages of the College's practical training.

Under the direction of Mr. Stanley Wasileski, the Evening Division has become an important aspect of the College program and demonstrates the close relation between the College and the community.

On Monday evening, June 6, 1955, 148 seniors received degrees at the eighth annual commencement exercises held at the Wilkes College gymnasium. The graduates assembled on the lawn in the rear of Kirby Hall and marched to the gym in a body led by Dr. Eugene S. Farley. Fred M. Hechinger, educational editor of The New York Herald Tribune, was the principle speaker.

Esther Goldman received the highest honors, graduating summa cum laude, while Richard Kent and Dale Warmouth took second honors, graduating magna cum laude. Those who graduated cum laude were J. Warren Blaker, Mary E. Fitzgerald, Morris Hollander, Arthur J. Hoover, Judith Hopkins, Joshua Kaufman, Helen Koelsch, and Ellen Witiak.

Seven graduates who received awards were: Arthur J. Hoover, Business Education Award and Outstanding Graduate of the Year Award; John D. Curtis, L. J. Van Laeys Journalism Medal; William C. The Class of '59 began their first year at Wilkes College adorned with dinks, banners, name cards, and garters. For the first few weeks, between trying to find the various campus buildings and also trying to get our schedules straightened out, we were truly a group of "Frustrated Frosh." But our year was only beginning.

Following a spirited campaign, the class, the biggest in Wilkes history, elected Bob Thomas as President, John Saba as Vice President, Toni Scureman as Secretary, and Bob Payne as Treasurer. The first thing that the officers did was to set up a Freshman Council which would discuss important matters before bringing them up in class meetings. The class advisors, Dr. Reif and

Dr. Thatcher, were present at the weekly meetings to aid the Council in settling difficult problems.

Our first class project, moving the Bookstore to its new location in Harding Hall, was a wonderful success. Accompanied by the College Band, the Frosh made their first contribution to the campus, when given an opportunity to work together with one goal in mind.

Since entering Wilkes, the Class of '59, through sponsoring numerous campus affairs, has become an active, well-organized part of the student body.

More than, Grounds!

The dictionary defines a campus as "the grounds of a college within its main enclosure." However, to Betty and Joe the campus is more than simply the grounds. It is the people found there, the fun in their company, everything around which their lives revolve.

The governing body of the campus is the Student Council. This democratic self-government gives the student the responsibility for all decisions made by the Council, for the Council represents him and reflects his views.

Campus publications reflect the student also. The Beacon, campus newspaper, voices the opinions of students, besides conveying news of interest to all. The Manuscript, annual magazine of Wilkes, presents some of the best literary efforts of the students; while the Amnicola, College annual, reviews the year's activities:

Campus events help to draw the students closer together. The weekly assemblies, the annual Winter Carnival, and Homecoming give students a chance to enjoy each other's company as well as that of alumni. Also, campus meeting-places bring together students and faculty, who can be found at almost any time during the school day chatting together in the bookstore or the cafeteria. The dormitories offer similar meeting-places for students who live on campus.

Surely Betty and Joe are right in believing that a campus is more than simply grounds.

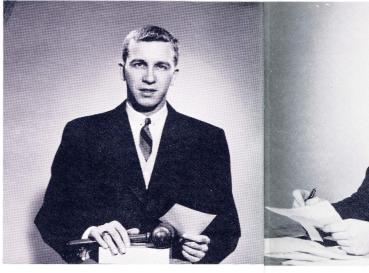

Campus Personalities

The students who have been selected for recognition as outstanding personalities represent all facets of campus life. They have been the dynamic forces behind stage productions, athletic teams, student government, and campus publications.

Through capable leadership in their years at Wilkes, these seniors have made life more stimulating and enjoyable for us all.

The efforts of these people have done much toward helping Wilkes to grow on all levels of endeavor. They have helped to promote the good will that exists between the college and the community.

It is with extreme pleasure that we honor these campus personalities. We honor them with the feeling of a debt of gratitude for the many contributions they have made to us during their stay at Wilkes.

The Student Council, the central governing body of students at Wilkes; finished the school year with a successful record of student government and social activities. This year's council was truly representative of all sections of the campus, bringing together student leaders from every department at Wilkes. Along with their usual activities, the Council also acted as a co-ordinating group between the administration and the student body, with council members attending a number of Administrative Council meetings.

Greater unity in direction of student activities was achieved by this year's council by organizing all club, class, and activity presidents. This group aided in co-ordinating student activities and eliminating conflicts in the social calendar.

A new Student Body Scholarship was initiated by the Student Council by using the surplus funds in the Student Activity Fund at the end of each school year. The scholarship will be awarded by a committee of Council members and the Administrative Council to a member of the student body.

Traditional Council activities were received with great enthusiasm by the students. The Freshmen's Get Acquainted Party, and the Cinderella Ball proved again to be the highlights of the social calendar, while the Winter Carnival attracted a large crowd of students at El Pocono Dude Ranch. The Thanksgiving All-College Dance set a new attendance record, with over 1,000 students and guests from colleges throughout the state. It proved to be the most successful dance held in recent years.

ASSEMBLIES

The Student Assembly Committee is composed of students from the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes. The main objective of the committee is to find, organize, and present interesting, informative, and entertaining programs each Tuesday morning throughout the school year. The committee tries to give the students a large variety of programs. In the past they have presented lecturers, both local and national, musical groups, and panel discussion groups. Much emphasis is also placed on active student participation in the assembly programs. Various student activities and numerous clubs on campus presented interesting programs during the year.

The staff of MANUSCRIPT, the Wilkes College literary magazine, has this year undertaken to maintain high literary standards and to stimulate interest by publishing stories and articles expressing many points of view. In order to accomplish this objective, the staff has made every effort to encourage student writing by providing the opportunity for constructive criticism and serious revision of work offered for publication. The base of student participation in MANU-SCRIPT affairs has been broadened, and strict impartiality in selecting material has been guaranteed.

BEACON COMPLETES 20TH YEAR OF PUBLICATION

In 1936 the Bucknell BEACON started publication when the school was a junior college. From its origin until 1947, the paper was of standard size, but in that year it changed to the tabloid form.

This year's BEACON has leaned toward a conservative editorial policy, while retaining some of the more progressive methods introduced last year in the physical presentation of news. A popular innovation is a column by George Elliot, Dean of Men at the College.

The BEACON has attempted to serve its readers by working on the parking problem with city officials and presenting the news at and about the College.

The Class of 1958 entered its Sophomore year with a flourish of activity. The first item to come up was elections. The following officers assumed leadership of the class, David Vann as President, Sam Puma as Vice President, Janice Schuster as Secretary, and Edmund Kotula as Treasurer. The four student council officers elected were Sam Lowe, Clifford Brothers, John Scandale and Virginia Brehm.

The class again adopted the Council system, that assumed the responsibility of Freshman hazing. The progressive hazing program which contained several innovations from programs, was terminated at the Freshman-Sophomore sponsored Halloween Ball.

An idea which was initiated last year was continued with success, this year. The selling of Chrysanthemums at the "Homecoming" football game. This, too, helped to increase our treasury.

We, then sponsored a Wilkes College "Beard and Mustache Month" climaxed by a dance based on this theme. This project proved to be a tremendous success and many have asked that it be continued as an annual affair.

We, the class of '58, are now looking in to the future, planning new and unique projects.

Peace through Fellowship

Betty and Joe find campus activities one of the most engaging facets of college life. Related activities are supplied to meet the needs and interests of every student — science major, music major, and education major alike.

In these activities, the student often finds himself in new situations or among people he doesn't know or knows only slightly. He soon learns that strangers can become fast friends and that new situations are not so insurmountable as they may at first seem.

Perhaps the most important effect of activities on the student is the promotion of fellowship. Betty and Joe discover that everyone has something in common; they are all human. Because of this, all have their own particular likes and dislikes; all have their own ideas, beliefs, mannerisms, and idiosyncracies. Once this fact is realized and accepted, it becomes relatively easy to accept all men for what they are, not what one would like them to be or what one believes they should be.

By working hand in hand with people who have similar interests, Betty and Joe become tolerant of others' views and aware of their feelings. This phase of fellowship is very important in a world such as ours, where people of all races and creeds must live together and work together. Such fellowship as is bred through campus activities is necessary for peace in our world and for peace within ourselves.

Theta Delta Rho

The Theta Delta Rho Sorority of Wilkes College continued its traditional program of social and service activities during 1955-56. These officers served as leaders for the organization: Bernice Thomas, President; Geri Kolotelo, Vice President; Peggy Stevens, Secretary; Margaret Smith, Treasurer; Jessie Roderick, Social Chairman. Mrs. Doane acted as faculty advisor.

Open to all women on campus, the sorority greatly increased in number and strength. The very successful affairs held throughout the year were of three types: those open only to members, those held for new students and for high school seniors, and the all college affairs.

Proceeds from the money-making events constituted a service fund. This year, the recipient of the annual T.D.R. scholarship was a freshman, Miss Lois Betner. During the Christmas season, gifts were distributed to local hospitals.

Also included in the program of the organization is volunteer work, such as helping conduct city-wide drives and aiding in college sponsored affairs.

LEHELMEN

Under the capable leadership of Howard Gross, the Lettermen's Club has had another successful year.

The club which is a service organization, must earn funds to finance its extensive program. To obtain this goal, the club sponsors an annual raffle and shoe-shine day, providing not only funds, but proves to be an asset to campus life.

The Christmas Formal is the biggest event on Campus each year. Glen Carey, served as General Chairman for the second year, and Jarrel Cashmere as the chairman of decorations. The success of this dance has equaled if not surpassed any of the Club's previous dances. This was proved by the fact that the attendance was almost double what it has been at past Christmas Formals.

It must be kept in mind that school spirit is necessary to the well rounded student. Therefore, the club inaugurated Booster Days for the Basketball, Soccer, and Wrestling teams. All three days proved to be successful.

The April Showers Ball, under the chairmanship of Joe Wilk, proved to be another bright feather in the Letterman's cap.

The Lettermen's Club only succeeds because of the combined efforts of the club. No decisions are rendered by one or two members but every problem, no matter how small, is discussed within the club and then voted upon. It is for this reason that the success of the Lettermen's Club is not due to a select few but to each and every member.

The fact that Cue 'n Curtain has outgrown the facilities of Chase Theater is further proof of the growth of the college.

Putting on plays fulfills its obligation as a theater. But the real value lies in the integrity of its performances. It can never outgrow that responsibility.

Last April at the gymnasium, two studentdirected plays were presented on a double bill. William Crowder directed and acted in O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," and Howard Ennis directed and performed in Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion."

This season Cue 'n Curtain produced exerpts from "The Forefathers," in conjunction with the centennary celebration of the birth of the Polish poet-playwright, Adam Mickiewicz. The Women's Club for the Polish Room at Wilkes College sponsored the event and donated the proceeds to the college. Performers were college students, alumni, and community actors.

Also in the fall, Cue 'n Curtain audiences saw the hilarious farce, "Nothing But the Truth." Dress rehearsals were held with the Wyoming Valley Philharmonic orchestra practicing in the lobby, stage crews painting flats on the floor of the gym, the light crew tying cable to the rafters, wrestlers exercising on the mats, and the basketball team completing a practice session . . . DEFATE

This year, as in the past, the Wilkes College Debating Society has produced one of the finest teams in the country. During the 1954-1955 season, the squad captured such tournaments as the Princeton Novice, the Johns Hopkins, the Notre Dame, the District 7, and the Bucknell Invitation. These, however, were mere stepping stones to the team's greatest achievement — that of placing second in the nation at West Point last year. The team attended a total of 10 tournaments and won 70 debates out of 95, one of the most impressive records in collegiate debating.

Although hurt by the graduation of the two men who comprised last year's two-man team, Nick Flannery and James Neveras, this year's team did a fine job. The team this year consisted of Jesse Choper, John Bucholtz, Fred Roberts, Virginia Brehm, Tom Lally, Seymour Holtzman, and Bruce Warshall.

This year's two-man team was Jesse Choper and John Bucholtz. They placed third at the Johns Hopkins Tournament where Choper was selected as the third best speaker. Choper built up a fine record for himself winning an average of three out of every four debates.

The Debating Society is certainly one of the most active organizations on campus. The team travelled hundreds of miles to attend the various tournaments. In addition, the team also presents a number of programs for Rotary Clubs, Kiwanis, and Church groups throughout the community.

Education

The Education Club, which for four years has been affiliated with the Future Teachers of America Chapters throughout the nation, is one of the most active groups on campus.

The club holds meetings three times monthly. Various topics related to the Education Profession are discussed by club members, by speakers in the field, and by films depicting our schools and their problems. Other special projects are also carried on by the club members, such as establishing F.T.A. clubs within the local high schools.

Last year, Wilkes sent delegates to the State Convention of F.T.A. members, and this year it has been influential in beginning an F.T.A. Chapter composed of representatives from the colleges in the Northeastern Convention District of Pennsylvania.

The Club's purposes are furthering the recruiting of young people for the Teaching Profession and stimulating future teachers to learn more of their profession. Working with the F.T.A. and Wilkes' Education Department, the club accomplishes these things.

The newly organized Wilkes College HISTORY CLUB has quickly achieved recognition on campus

Under the leadership of George Silewski, President, and Dr. Harold Thatcher, advisor, a series of question-and-answer periods were held. Important historic sites were visited and a speaker from the Israeli Office of Information in New York was sponsored. The Club joined the social whirl by presenting a square dance in its first function as host to the college men and women.

The INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB was organized to acquaint its constituents with the workings of the political world. In achieving this end, the group traveled to Harrisburg each April to participate in a mock convention sponsored by the Intercollegiate Conference on Government.

In addition, various other regional conferences are attended each year. The club has also contributed to campus social life by sponsoring successful dances during the year.

First row: F. Bielenda, N. Turtel, D. Murray, G. Silewski, C. Michael, P. Tracy. Second row: Dr. Thatcher, D. Heltzel, L. Dombrosky, C. Freedman, J. Alcorn, Y. Koo, A. Kazimi.

The Biological Society of Wilkes College is open to all students interested in biology.

This year, the club has been engaged in many educational and social activities. The Society has heard guest speakers from Wyoming Valley; and members of the faculty have addressed the Society, speaking on timely and interesting topics. Films to help broaden the students' knowledge in biology and to show the relationship of biology to other fields have been presented.

Members of the Society are eagerly beginning two research projects, one in conjunction with Dr. Sheldon Cohen and another with the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital.

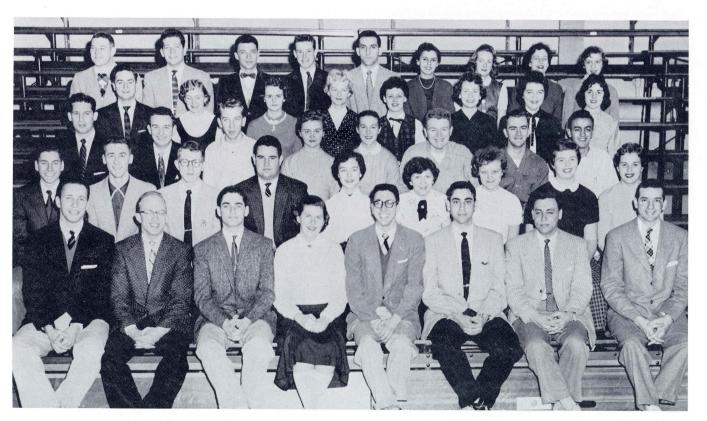

In April, many club members attended the Eastern College Science Conference at which they presented an original research paper.

Socially the Society has sponsored two successful dances, two wiener roasts, and its annual Christmas Party.

Mary Mattey and Monica Utrias prepare an exhibit for the annual Science Show.

The Chemistry Club, an educational and social organization of the college, is open to all interested in the advancement of chemistry. Associated with the American Chemical Society as a Student Affiliate Chapter, it is also an active member of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Chemistry Society.

The social events of the Club include its Fall and Spring Farmer Dances, an outing, and an annual Christmas party. A banquet held by one of the member colleges climaxes the activities of the Intercollegiate Chemistry Society.

Perhaps the largest undertaking of the Club during the school year is the Annual Science Show at Wilkes College. Here, the members construct and demonstrate to local high school students the various apparatuses used in chemistry. An annual field trip is also scheduled to some large chemical plant so that the students may see the industry at first hand. Representatives of the organization participate in the Eastern All-College Science Conference which is held in the Spring.

Engueering

The Engineering Club was recently reorganized by the Freshman Engineers and the club advisors, Mr. Hall, Mr. Heltzel, and Mr. Thomas, in order that it might better fulfill its aim of the past 22 years — the promoting of greater interest in engineering and the providing of social functions for its members.

One of the main activities undertaken by the Club is an annual Science Show, which is given in cooperation with the Biology and Chemistry Departments. In November, the Club also competes in the annual alumni Homecoming activities by decorating the upper section of Conyngham Hall.

The "Reindeer Stomp" and a sport dance held in February, two of the Club's many social activities, proved to be very successful. Other events on the calendar included a tour of an industrial plant in New Jersey and a demonstration of a Solar Battery given by a representative of the Bell Telephone Company.

With the aid of the advisors and the united support of all the members, the Engineering Club enjoyed a very successful year.

Fourth row: Ben O'Million, John Kotch, Larry Pugh, John Chick, John Federovick, Thomas Lane, Earl Bahl.

The primary function of the ECONOMICS CLUB is the sponsorship of field trips to various business concerns. Local trips were made, including one to Stegmaier's Brewery. Making a few longer trips, the club went to Wilmington, Delaware to tour the Dupont Company's plants and to New York City, where they visited the Chase Manhattan Bank and the New York Stock Exchange.

The club closed its very successful year with its annual outing.

The main purpose of the SOCIETY FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT is to create an understanding of all phases of business life. The club acts as a supplement to the actual classroom studies in the field of business through its program of guest speakers, panel discussions, attendance of Senior Chapter meetings, and field trips.

S.A.M. gives its members an opportunity to correlate theory with practical knowledge gained throughout club functions.

The PRESS CLUB, a new organization on campus begun only this year, has been very successful. Its purpose is to teach members something about radio, television, and newspaper work, thus giving them a basic knowledge in these fields for their futures.

Among its activities were tours of WBRE-TV and Wilkes-Barre Publishing Co., both of which were interesting and rewarding. Also, Tom Moran, editor of the Independent, spoke to the club members.

The PSYCHOLOGY-SOCIOLOGY CLUB, which is still in the formative stages, has drawn up and ratified a constitution, besides being active on campus.

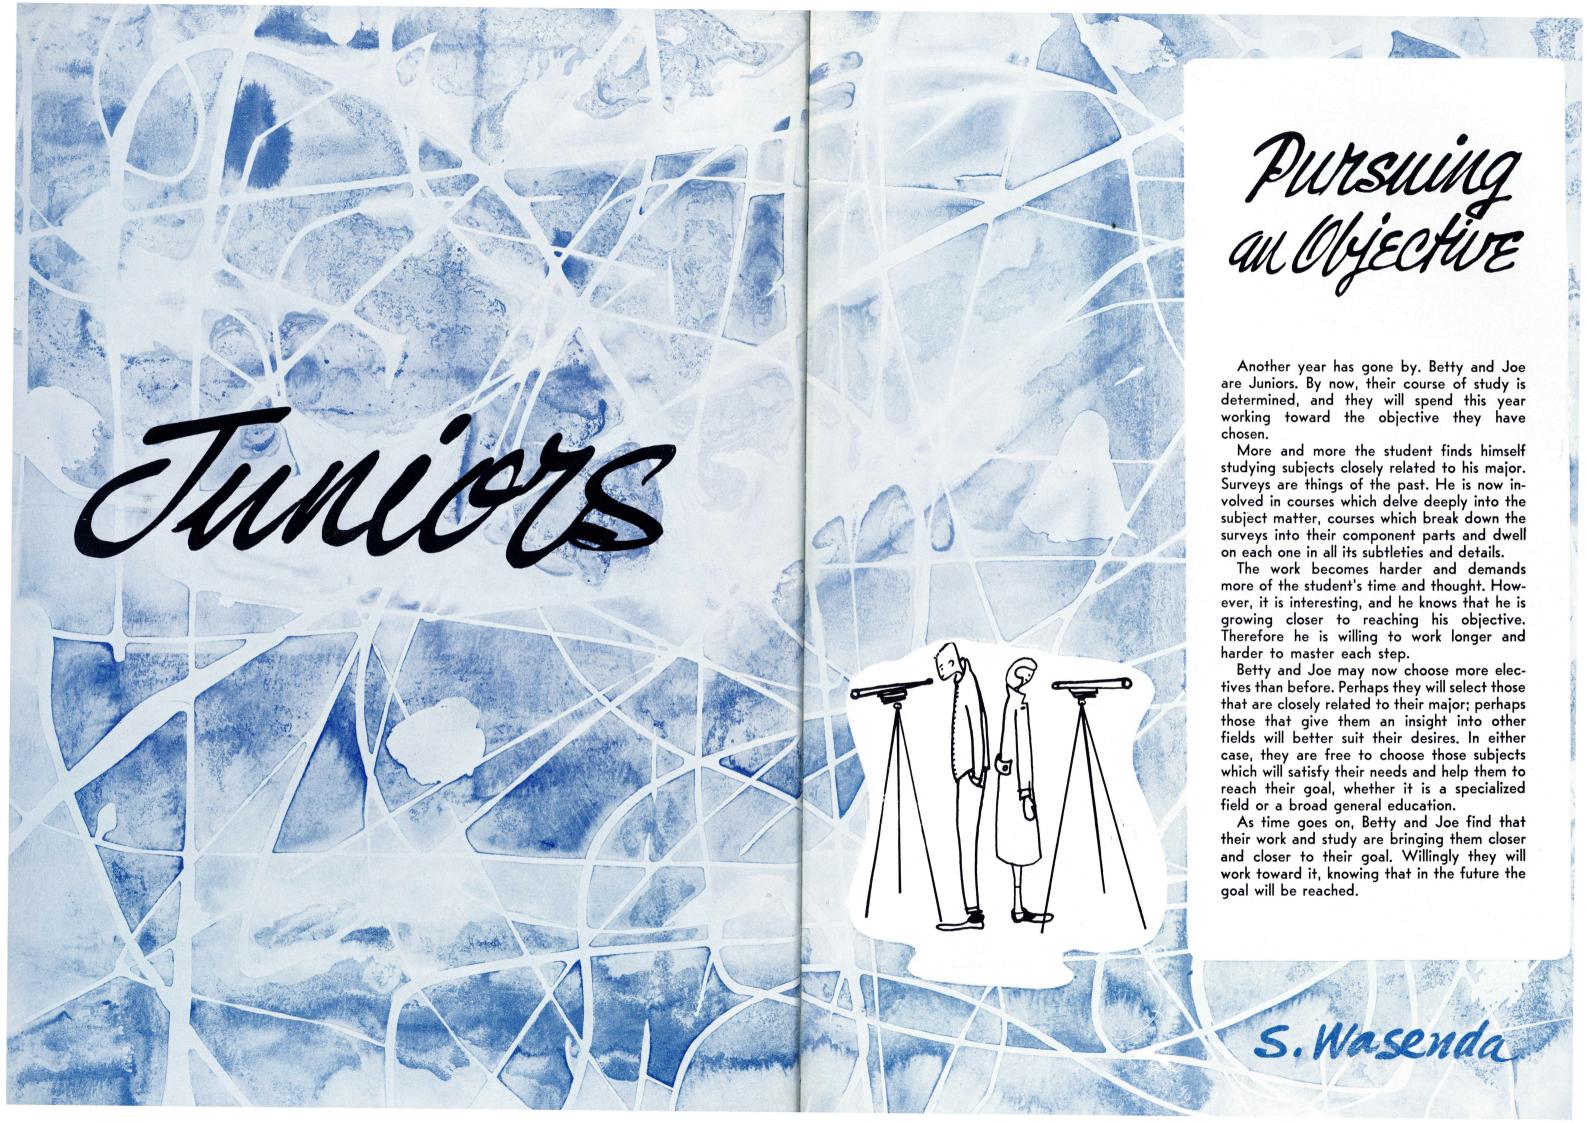

Under the leadership of Dave Fischi and the guidance of Dr. Symonolewicz and Mr. Riley, the club has managed to arrange seminars with personalities in the social-psychology field. To supplement their discussion activities, the club arranges periodic field trips to local and state mental institutions.

The Junior Class began the school year 1955-56 with a step in the right direction by electing their competent officers: President, Larry Amdur; Vice President, Bill Farish; Treasurer, John Coates; and Secretary, Phyllis Walsh. Those representing the Class in the Student Council were Nancy Morris, Don Reynolds, Les Weiner, and Larry Amdur.

The Class helped begin the social whirl at Wilkes by sponsoring a sport dance. Their next affair, called "Carnival Time," was also a success and provided one of the most fun-filled evenings on the College Calendar. Throughout the year, the Class of 1957 maintained its social standing on campus with such affairs as its Class ice-skating party, its swimming party and the Class outing.

Many members of the Class of 1957 proved themselves in campus activities, such as Jesse Choper and John Bucholtz in debating, Nancy Morris in the Student Council; Les Weiner as Dorm-President of Ashley Hall; and Jim Miller and Larry Amdur in Cue 'n Curtain. Not to be denied in athletic circles either, Bill Farish, Neil Dadurka, John Bresnahan, and Don Reynolds were mainstays on their respective teams.

The Class of 1957 can now look ahead to its Senior Year with expectation while looking back to its Junior Year with pride.

Practice for Co-operation

Although the athletic program at Wilkes is not stressed as it is in some schools, sports still play an important part of Betty's and Joe's lives. A broad program of sports, both intramural and intermural, is provided so that all students have the chance to participate.

Through taking part in the games, the student cultivates a spirit of teamwork and cooperation. He learns to think of the team as a whole and to play for the benefit of the team, instead of thinking only of himself and what he can do to stand out. Each player is part of a working unit which, to run smoothly, depends on the cooperation of every member. Without teamwork, there is no team. Instead there is only a group of players with nothing to integrate them, nothing to make them play together.

Sports also give the student a sense of sportsmanship and fair play. He comes to understand that the most important part of the game is not winning, but rather playing to the best of his ability for the benefit of the team. He must win or lose like a sportsman.

The student should carry this spirit into his everyday life. Teamwork and fair play are essential elements in any society. People must live and work together. Nowhere can this sense of cooperation and fair play become so much a part of the student as in sports.

Under the leadership of head coach Russ Picton and assistant coach Joe Trosko, the gridders took the field with thirteen returning lettermen in what looked to be a successful season. Due to the loss of many key players, the Colonels never quite came up to expectations.

The gridders had five returning seniors, four of them members of the forward wall. Joe Wilk and Cliff Brautigan were the Colonels' top tackles. Glenn Carey operated from the center post while acting as captain. Also in his last year of play was Bob Masonis, outstanding defensive guard. The only backfield member in his final season was Howie Gross, who proved to be the sharp-shooting passer needed for the gridders' attack. The team was rounded out by 25 underclassmen.

In unveiling their new "T" formation attack, the Colonels were hampered by costly fumbles which helped Lebanon Valley to a smashing 41 to 6 victory. Dick Wozniak climaxed the only touchdown drive of the gridders with a sweeping play around right end for the score.

In the second game of the season, the Colonels were defeated by a 12-7 score at the hands of an aggressive Ithaca eleven. In the opening minutes, speedster Ronnie Rescigno

Third row: Joe Reese, Don McFadden, Andy Dovin, Russ Knies, Jarrell Cashmere, Paul Smith, Bill Farish, Gil Gregory, Don Straub, Bill Simenovich.

The Colonels suffered their third defeat — this time to Bloomsburg — in a sea of mud. Putting together touchdowns in the second and third periods, the Huskies won the Anthracite Football Trophy presented each year to the winner of the area rivalry.

In the only win of the season, the Colonels, paced by Ronnie Rescigno, Howie Gross, and Dick Wozniak, scored an 18-6 victory over Trenton State Teachers at Trenton.

The most costly loss of the season for the Colonels was inflicted by a powerful Maryland State team. The gridders suffered in the win column and in physical damage which hampered them for the remainder of the season. Against Hofstra the Colonels again came out on the short end of a 13-7 score.

The Homecoming Game with Bridgeport ended in a scoreless tie. The Colonels pushed across a pair of touchdowns which were both voided by penalties. In the last game of the season, a strong Moravian squad downed Wilkes 47-0.

The Blue and Gold closed out the season with six losses, one victory, and one tie.

Soccer

Even a flood of bad breaks couldn't keep the 1955 soccer team from a third straight winning season. After a slow start, the Blue and Gold booters went on to a season of five wins, three ties and three losses. In their first major league schedule, the Colonels amassed the most wins in the school's history.

The booters were sorely hit before the season even started when star halfback Ahmad Kazimi was sidelined for the season by illness. The backfield then lost Dave Polley in mid-season after he had played the best game of his career against Hofstra, Wilkes' first win.

After losing to Rider, 3-2, and Lafayette, 1-0, Carl Van Dyke pulled the hat trick by scoring every Wilkes goal in the 3-2 win over Hofstra. Another bad break caused a 0-0 tie with Muhlenberg as both teams were literally blown off the field before the half by a heavy rain and wind storm.

The big game of the year followed a few days later at Philadelphia where the Colonels and Temple sloshed through a driving rainstorm. Temple, runners-up for the National Championship in 1954, won 3-1. Van Dyke got his sixth goal of the year against the Owls.

With only one win to show for five tilts, the booters then went on a binge to rip off the next six without a loss. They played what was probably their finest game of the year, against Elizabethtown, 3-1. This tilt marked the first time a Wilkes soccer squad played under the lights. Captain Parker Petrilak was brilliant in the goal.

Bucknell scored a goal a minute before the end of the second overtime period to tie the booters 2-2 in the next game. George Batterson came off the bench to add another win for the Colonels with a final score of 3-2. Hank Deibel had the other two tallies. Petrilak starred again.

Jim Ferris racked up his first goal of the year while Giordano was getting his third as Wilkes won its third of the year, 2-1 over Trenton State Teachers College.

time tie, 2-2 in the last home tilt of the season. Giordano scored his fourth, and Younsu Koo banged home his first goal of the year.

The final contest of the season saw the Colonels coast to a 3-2 triumph over Philadelphia Textile. Jim Ferris made his last game a great one by scoring two long goals. Giordano got his sixth.

Ten seniors paced this year's fine team to its record accomplishments. They were: Younsu Koo, Carl Van Dyke, Fred Boote, Hank Deibel, Sam Shugar, Glenn Phethean, Joe Popple, Captain Parker Petrilak, George Batterson, and Jim Ferris.

At the end of the season, freshman star Nick Giordano was given honorable mention to the Tri-State Team. Younsu Koo, who came all the way from Seoul, South Korea, to attend Wilkes, was named the outstanding soccer player of the year at the annual sports banquet. While Koo was hampered by a bad leg, his defensive play and ball handling were outstanding throughout the year.

Eddie Davis, a court star and three-letterman while at Wilkes, returned to the sports scene of his alma mater this year by moving into the basketball coaching position vacated by his former tutor, George Ralston. The former athlete's first club compiled a record of 11 wins against 14 losses. However, a quick glance at the slate does not tell the whole story of his initial season at Wilkes.

After winning the opener in fine style at home against Ithaca by an 87 to 72 tally, the Blue and Gold courtmen dropped their next four games to Bloomsburg, Rider, Yeshiva, and Moravian on a disasterous four-game road trip which put the squad deep in the hole early in the season. Bloom soundly beat the locals, but the remaining three were by less than ten points.

Only too glad to see the surroundings of their home floor, the Colonels got back into the winning column by downing stubborn Susquehanna by a 72 to 70 score. To wind up their action before the Christmas recess, Wilkes entered the Sampson Air Force Base Tournament and came in third by beating defending champion Hosika by a 70 to 62 score, after dropping another close one to Hartwick by a 70 to 66 score.

After the holiday layoff the Blue and Gold continued to be plagued on the road and dropped close tilts inside the ten-point margin to Ithaca and Hartwick. Ithaca avenged an early season beating at the hands of the Colonels while Hartwick repeated a win inflicted on the local courtmen in the Sampson Tourney.

Then the Davis charges returned home and continued their mastery on their court by winning over Newark College of Rutgers by a 65 to 55 score. However, in their following home game with Lycoming, the Colonels suffered their first defeat at home by a 91 to 79 score.

Scranton and Elizabethtown then handed the courtmen defeats; but they bounded back by beating Bridgeport by an 82 to 76 margin. The Colonels then lost three consecutive games to Mansfield, Lafayette, and Lebanon Valley.

The bright spot of the season was an impressive victory over Bloomsburg to avenge an early season, 85 to 60 whipping. In following games

Carl and George go up for one.

Lycoming took the Colonels, but Wilkes came back to defeat Harper 99 to 76. The results of the last few games of the season were: Wilkes 54, Hofstra 81; Wilkes 89, Mansfield 72; Wilkes 71, East Stroudsburg 75; and Wilkes 81, Philadelphia Pharmacy 58.

For the most part this year's edition of the Colonel courtmen lacked height. George Morgan, 6-4 center, and John Bresnahan, 6-2 forward, were the extent of the height for the Blue and Gold. Pint-sized 5-8 Jim Ferris, dynamo for the club, along with smoothy Carl Van Dyke and easy-going Joe Jablonski rounded out the starting five.

Wrestling

The Wilkes wrestling season this year was the best the team has ever had. John Reese's grapplers went on to establish some of the highest records ever set by a Wilkes team.

Ending the season with a 28-8 victory over Brooklyn Polytech, the matmen set a nine-win record for the season by defeating Hofstra, 20-13; Lafayette, 17-11; (the only defeat of the season for Lafayette, which later took the Mid-Atlantic States' Championship) Ithaca, 15-13; Stroudsburg, 37-3; Kings' Point, 21-3; Muhlenburg, 22-6; Swarthmore, 29-3; C. C. N. Y., 24-10.

The team's one loss, protested, was to Bloomsburg, 15-17.

Reese's grapplers averaged some 21 points per contest during the entire season, ended up with 190 points, the highest ever made by a Wilkes team, and they also had a string of six consecutive wins, which was another unmatched accomplishment.

Even personal records went out the window this season as Bob Masonis, Don Reynolds, and Dave Thomas tied with eight victories apiece. Masonis went on to garner the highest total of individual points, added up 39, while Reynolds and Thomas kept close behind with 35 and 33 respectively.

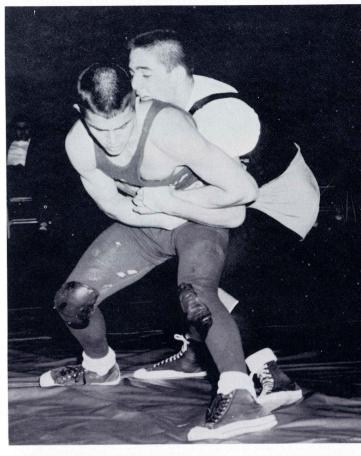

This season was the last for two of Reese's proteges, Masonis and Sam Shugar. Masonis, cocaptain this year with Reynolds, wrestled in the heavyweight class, while Shugar, starting late, was undefeated in his three bouts.

Open Wrestling Championships

The Twenty-fourth annual Open Wrestling Tournament, held at the Wilkes gym during the Christmas vacation, brought nation-wide publicity and recognition for the College.

The Open Championships, dubbed by sports writers "The Rose Bowl of Wrestling," attracted entrants from various points across the country, such as New England, Tennessee, Michigan, and Oklahoma. About forty team were represented. Among some of the returning teams were Lehigh, Cornell, and Lafayette, while some of the newer contestants were Annapolis, Bowling Green of Kentucky, and the University of Pennsylvania.

University of Pittsburgh regained the first place team title it held in 1953, shunting the defending champion, University of Michigan, into second place. Pitt's victory was something in the form of vengeance for last year, since Michigan nosed out Pitt to win in 1954.

National press coverage of the championships came when "Sports Illustrated" carried pages of photographic stories of the event. Proof of the efficiency of the College's sponsorship of the contest came with the decision of the National Olympic Wrestling Committee to have Wilkes hold the Regional Wrestling tryouts here. This news and the success of the tournament has led many to refer to the area as "The Wrestling Capitol of the East."

Baseball

Coach Bob Partridge's last season before leaving Wilkes to accept another teaching position was a rebuilding campaign ending with four victories. The team was built around outfielder Jim Ferris, pitcher Mel McNew, and infielder-outfielder Dick Kachinosky, the only members from last year.

Freshmen comprised most of the remainder of the roster with Moe Batterson returning from the service to be of help in the bull pen. Switchhitting .309 placed him second behind McNew who belted .312. Freshman Ronnie Rescigno led the club in fielding with .996 while playing a steady game at shortstop. Joe Parsnik at third, Mike Goobic at second, and Bob Mioduski at first rounded out the rest of the infield. John Hessler, Vince Groblewski, and Sam Shugar alternated in

Another pleasant surprise was freshman Bob Sokol who moved into the catcher's slot when the position was left vacant by graduation. By season's end he was a fine receiver.

Rounding out the first-year crop was Ed Birn-baum who saved many a disaster with his left-handed "junk" in relief. The mound staff lacked another starter, and the burden fell too often on the strong right arm of McNew.

The Colonels took the measure of Lebanon Valley, Lycoming, East Stroudsburg, and Bloomsburg. On the other side of the ledger, they dropped single defeats at the hands of Albright, Bloomsburg, Susquehanna, Moravian, East Stroudsburg, and Rider. Twin losses were inflicted on the Blue and Gold by Cortland and Ithaca.

In the annual Alumni game, Rescigno hit a last-inning "grand-slam" homerun off well-known fast-baller George Ralston to give the '55 team a 16 to 15 victory.

It seems only yesterday that we joined together as Freshmen and started the struggle toward our individual as well as our mutual goals. Without a doubt, the most noteworthy feature of our years together has been the realization that a true sense of community has been shared by students and faculty.

We have had our moments of joy, and our share of sorrow. The football games, the dances, and the plays will exist only as memories. Interwoven with these memories is the significant attainment of knowledge. Without knowledge there cannot be open mindedness for which the world pleads. Knowledge is also the foundation for sound judgement — judgement that each man must make as he seeks to discern falseness from reality.

We must begin now to dedicate our minds and our hearts to the ideals of service to mankind, ideals which we have learned through associations with the instructors here at Wilkes. We are truly thankful for their guidance and companionship over the years.

We are now ready to face new challenges and new opportunities. Our quest into an unknown future can be made more confidently if we heed the inscription by the steps of the Archives Building in Washington which states "What is Past is Prologue."

WHY YOUNG MEN and WOMEN SHOULD CONSIDER RETAILING

BEFORE CHOOSING A CAREER

Every year at this time, young men and women get serious about this question: what next?

Yes, after four years of school, after texts and theories, bull-sessions and books: what next?

Where to find the job which will be good enough for a life-time?

Out of all the phases of American life, which is the right one for me? Where can I find this blend of ingredients: freedom to express thoughts and ideas; a chance to learn and grow; an opportunity to work with people in a vital, ever-changing basic industry?

LOOK TO RETAILING . . . LOOK TO DEPARTMENT STORES!

Giants of modern distribution, they serve their communities diligently, tirelessly, efficiently. Proud products of the American System, they believe that profits are created through service and that community service is the result of the activities of many people, working together, thinking together, building together.

POMEROY'S is such a department store.

Our training program could be the first step to a great career for you.

If you would like to work with people who believe in their future, in the future of Wyoming Valley and in the future of their country . . . if you are willing to learn . . . if you have an open mind and are willing to think for yourself . . . if you recognize the need of a good day's work for a good day's pay . . .

then we think you would like to talk to us

^{*}Pomeroy's, a Wyoming Valley Institution since 1860 is a Member of the World's Greatest Department Store Family.

Among Pomeroy's affiliates are such fine stores as Jordan Marsh (Boston), Bon Marche (Seattle), Gertz (Jamaica, Long Island), Stern's (New York City), Joske's of Texas (San Antonio and Huston), Donaldson's (Minneapolis) and over 70 other stores from coast to coast.

Looking Ahead In This Sesqui-Centennial Year . . .

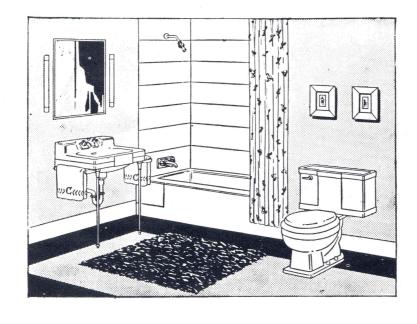

As Wilkes-Barre celebrates its 150th year of growth and progress, Fowler, Dick and Walker, The Boston Store looks ahead to take its place in a fast-growing industrial center in Northeastern Pennsylvania, in a community that is still undergoing far-reaching changes. Underlying it all is expert civic and community planning that reaches into every corner of our daily living. This great store, from its first opening in 1879, took the first step in the progress of an organization built in serving the public with the finest quality merchandise, plus convenient shopping services that now include a modern restaurant and parking facilities. It is a vivid portrayal of this store's possibilities in the years to come.
