WHERE'S THE MUSTARD? — This past Saturday, October 6, 1979, the administration sponsored an All-College picnic at Ralston Field. The purpose of the picnic was to compensate for the free day that was removed from the fall semester.

The cafeteria was closed in order that more students would be encouraged to attend. No beer was served and there was a pie-eating contest that turned into a pie-throwing contest. A band had originally been planned to perform at the picnic but did not.

A large turn out was desired by the administration but it was felt that there was poor publicity for the event.

Homecoming Schedule

Thursday, October 11, 1979 — Homecoming weekend starts with the Bonfire at Ralston Field at 10 p.m. The band will be on hand along with the majorettes, strutters, and cheerleaders. The naming of the Homecoming Queen and her Court will be featured.

Increase In Freshmen Class Via Aggressive Recruiting

Using the most expensive recruiting program in the school's history, Wilkes College has increased its freshmen class enrollment by 22 percent over last year, despite the faltering enrollment nationally.

This year's recruiting schedule included recruiting students from greater distances, promotional material sent to the houses of high school graduates and a very successful Visitation Day. These implements helped to bolster the number of freshmen to 594 in comparison to 479 last year.

Although Wilkes invited only those students accepted by admissions to the Visitation Day happenings, Dr. Gerald Wuori, Dean of Admissions, said, "It was a very good day." Of the students in attendance that day, 80 percent of them enrolled at the school. Even with the lack of previous statistics with which to compare this figure, Dr. Wuori stated this is an extremely good percentage.

Because of the great distances many students had to travel, registration continued up until three days before classes started. With the enrollment of freshmen dorm students up over 100 percent, many problems were experienced by the housing office. Dr. Wuori stated that although there were numerous difficulties, everything turned out all right "...after the smoke cleared." He added, "We will insure good coordination between the two offices in the future."

When asked about the school's admissions procedure, Wuori said that Wilkes uses a modified version of the Rolling Admissions Policy, which allows for a greater selection of students possessing the qualities Wilkes is looking for.

These qualities are discovered through the Student Descriptive Questionnaire (SDQ) which a student may choose to complete during Student Achievement Test (SAT) testing. From the SDQ, Wilkes can determine how the personality, attitude, and career plans of the student will coincide with the school, in order for the educational process to be both beneficial and rewarding.

Commenting on the importance of SAT scoring, Wuori said that the selection of a student actually depends on four things; rank in class, SAT scoring, high school grade point average in English and Math, and over-all high school performance.

In comparison to the national SAT score for college bound students of 467 in Math and 427 in verbal, this year's freshman class has an average SAT verbal score of 461 with the average Math score at 503. Although average class rank was not available, Dr. Wuori mentioned that 75 percent of the class finished in the top two-fifths of their class, and 45 percent were in the top one-fifth upon high school graduation. However, these figures do not take into account the students in the "risk categories."

Students in the "risk categories" may have lower, if any, SAT scores and may also have had problems in various high school subjects. Explaining the acceptance of these students, Dr. Wuori stated that there must be something in the student's character that would justify admission. IN these "risk categories," Wuori continued, "We rely heavily on counselor recommendation." This is because Wilkes feels high school counselors have worked the longest with these students and know them the best.

During the year, a close watch is kept on these students and as far as Wuori can tell, no major problems have occurred. Their advisors are notified of the student's "risk" standing, and every effort is made to help these students if they experience difficulties.

Out of the total number of students in the freshman class, 416 are from the state of Pennsylvania. A great number are from as far away as

Florida and Maine. Overall, ten states comprise this year's class with a great number of foreign students as well.

Asked to comment on whether or not the administration is in the process of defining "quality," Dr. Wuori said, "I think it is a question that needs to be addressed by the college ..." and one that will definitely affect future admissions.

Next year, Wilkes will initiate a new transfer program which, coupled with the other recruiting procedures, will assure and equally if not better admissions campaign.

Destructive Acts On The Increase Around Campus

Vandalism is again plaguing the Wilkes campus according to reports made to Student Government at Monday night's meeting.

Mike Stapleton, IDC president, reported that the glass on the bulletin board outside Pickering Hall was shattered among other incidents. Damage to a just finished mural in Grissom House was also reported.

These acts were called "stupid" and "idiotic" by SG president Dave Blumfield who noted that the people who end up paying for these damages are the students. Blumfield and Stapleton are asking the student body to be aware of the problem and to report the names of people who are doing the damage.

Under fund requests, SG heard from two organizations. The Ice Hockey club is requesting $1,000 for its upcoming season and the Emergency Alert Team needs $477 for new equipment. These motions will be voted upon next week.

CC To Present Certificates To Queen And Court

Bill Lewis, President of Commuter Council, announced Monday night that CC will present three gift certificates to the Homecoming Queen and her two runner-up princesses during the Homecoming ~~half-time~~ at Ralston Field.

Also discussed were the recent acts of vandalism that occurred on campus during the week. Dave Blumfield, Student Government President, announced that the glass in the IDC-CC bulletin board was broken and that a recently painted mural in one of the residence halls was destroyed. Blum-field pointed out that these are serious offenses and that those responsible will be prosecuted. Anyone knowing anything about the vandalism is asked to contact SG, IDC or CC.

In other business, Commuter Council is further investigating the possibility of having a bus trip to New York the day before Thanksgiving. CC is also considering sponsoring a trip to Washington or a baseball trip to Philadelphia next semester.

In the eyes of CC the Halloween Party is progressing well, even though there was a slight controversy over the selection of the band. Finally, there is one senior vacancy on the council to be filled. Interested seniors are asked to contact the CC office in Weckesser Hall.

New Director at Upward Bound

"I like working with young people. If I could, I'd like to serve more students and make the community better aware of the services so more kids could benefit." This is what Anne Graham had to say when asked about her newly appointed position as director in the Upward Bound project.

Graham has been associated with the project for one and a half years before accepting the director's position last June. According to her, the new responsibilities she will encounter will be a challenge.

Project Upward Bound is a federally funded remedial and motivational program for the disadvantaged high school students. It provides once a week remedial evening instruction, tutoring, experiences in decision making, counseling, and career and college exposure.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the program may get in contact with Mrs. Graham on the second floor of Ross Hall or call 824-4651 extension 382.

The fourth annual Science Expo will be held on Saturday, October 27, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Stark Learning Center, according to Dr. Les Turoczi, Expo '79 coordinator.

This expo includes displays from the Chemistry, Biology, Physics, Psychology, Math and Computer Science, Engineering, Earth and Environmental Science, Nursing, and Health Science departments.

A great many of the displays are student originated with faculty assistance. Dr. Turoczi stated, "The college has a lot to be proud of and this show is the perfect opportunity to display the accomplishments of the students and faculty."

Dr. Turoczi has extended an open invitation to high school juniors and seniors in Luzerne and Lackawanna County public and private schools. He feels this is a good opportunity for these students to meet Wilkes students and faculty, and to see displays, exhibits, demonstrations and "hands on" experiences.

He continued that a show such as this one helps supplement the guidance given in high schools, especially to students who are not exactly sure what areas science encompasses and what career opportunities are available to them in these fields.

Last year's show attracted 180 guests. Dr. Turoczi feels the exceptionally large freshman class is due in part to the success of that science expo.

The agenda for the science day includes an ushered tour of Stark Learning Center in the morning. This gives high school students a chance to see all of the departments and what each one has to offer.

At one o'clock, there will be an optional luncheon at the cafeteria, at a cost of $1. After lunch, the guests will be allowed to visit the department or displays which interested them the most.

Dr. Turoczi would like to extend an invitation to administration, faculty, staff and students to attend the expo during the afternoon hours and see the departments and their exhibits.

Anyone having questions or comments should contact Dr. Les Turoczi at the Biology Department or at extension 314.

Wilkes-Kings Presents 'Caesar and Cleopatra' Art Program Among Best; Variety Of Courses Offered

Next week Wilkes and Kings colleges will present George Bernard Shaw's play "Caesar and Cleopatra," at the Dorothy Dickson Darte Center for the Performing Arts. This production will be the first of four college productions planned for the upcoming school year.

"Caesar and Cleopatra" also marks this year's first joint theater production between Kings and Wilkes. Like last year's joint effort, "Three Sisters," this production will offer the two schools a chance to showcase the talents of their students and staff.

The play is being directed by Gerry Godwin from King's College. Godwin is an actor himself as well as a director. He has directed some shows at Kings, including last year's "A Flea in Her Ear." When asked why he chose "Caesar and Cleopatra" this year he says he chose it because of Shaw's reputation, the fact that it is one of his more popular works, and because he likes the play.

Godwin likes working in the Wilkes theater, which is one of the better college theaters around. It is his wish to do this production in such a way as to do justice to Shaw's play.

The scenic designer for the production is Klaus Holm. Mr. Holm has a list of credentials including many Broadway shows and a number of road shows. He has been with the Wilkes theater since 1970 and has designed most of the shows. His job for this show is to design a set which will give the audience a feeling of old Egypt.

The man who is responsible for supervising the set building is Brother Jim from King's College. He and his crew will make Mr. Holm's designs a reality. Each piece of the stage setting must be built as sturdy as possible so the actors can move about on it without fear of it collapsing. Brother Jim is also designing the lighting for the production.

Crews for running and building the show have been chosen from both King's and Wilkes. Building for the show started about three to four weeks ago. Most of the building is being done in the evenings and on weekends. The crews are functioning well together and as such the work on the sets is progressing rapidly and smoothly.

The play itself is very intense at points. It has little basis in historical fact. Playing the title roles will be Karen Shonk of King's as Cleopatra, and Paul Kerrigan from Wilkes as Caesar. These two students head a very strong cast.

The performances of the play will be; Thursday, Oct. 18 a special high school showing at 7:30 pm; Friday Oct. 19 and Saturday Oct. 20 at 8:00 pm; and Sunday Oct. 21 a 2:00 matinee performance. Each Wilkes student is allowed two free tickets. There will be a one dollar charge for each additional ticket.

The production has been given a great deal of time and effort under the supervision of some very qualified people. It promises to fulfill its main function of entertainment.

Bill Turcan

"The art department has a good, solid fine arts program with excellent staff members and students," according to Mr. William H. Sterling, Art Department Chairman. In fact, Mr. Sterling emphasizes that the facilities here at Wilkes are as good as or better than some graduate schools.

The foundation of the art department is based on two things; preparing students for future careers in arts, crafts, and education; and making students aware of what's going on in art aesthetically. Mr. Sterling feels that this awareness of art and its ideas is as important as the manual abilities of the student.

Presently, the department offers a wide variety of art courses ranging from Color Design I and Drawing and Composition, to advanced level courses including areas of art education and history. A fine arts curriculum is featured, which stresses drawing, painting and sculpting rather than a commercial arts curriculum. These broad foundations may lead students towards other career options besides teaching. Mr. Sterling stated, "Not too many make a living as actual artists. Instead, they turn to fields such as decorating, advertising, or commercial arts."

The art department is not accredited because the National Association of Schools of Art who does the accrediting, does not credit colleges or universities.

Some changes have taken place in the art department over the past few years. Recent updating included changing the core requirements and adding courses, which makes things more flexible for the student. For instance there are now informal student critiques in which all students participate. Another addition is the required sophomore review. This review, which is done by faculty members, helps the student become more aware of his abilities.

Seven faculty members make up the teaching staff, six of which teach full-time. Since there are currently fifty art majors, the faculty-student ratio is very good. The staff can work directly with the students and promise what they offer. Mr. Sterling believes this is one of the strengths of the department.

Of the fifty art majors, thirteen are new students, including seven freshman and six transfer students. Mr. Sterling feels they are all committed to art. This enrollment is about even with last year's, with the peak of enrollment being in the early 70's. Some former students who are living off their art work are; Mark Cohen, an internationally known photographer; John Carsman, a painter who will be presenting a one-man show at the Eberhart Museum in New York; and Joe Stallone, who is known for his ceramic sculpting. Another student designs the displays at Hess's in the Wyoming Valley Mall, and one owns a printing firm.

Mr. Sterling thinks the exhibitions now on display in the Sordoni Art Gallery are a good indication that many alumni are still involved in art as a profession. "The exhibits show a fairly good cross section of arts," he stated, "and I hope everyone can get a chance to see the work of the alumni."

Plans for future changes in the department are in progress. Mr. Sterling said they may be adding courses that will be of more help for career preparation, such as advertising and graphic design.

As for the future of the art department, Mr. Sterling holds a fairly optimistic outlook. He stated that interest in art, as in anything else, is in cycles. Interest in art will increase in a few years.

Foul Weather Closing Policy Announced

All members of the college community should be aware of our policy with regard to the closing of the college due to inclement weather.

Normally, the college will not be closed because of bad or threatening weather. With substantially more than half of our students living on campus, or in close proximity, every effort will be made to continue operations. This does not mean that students, faculty, or staff will be expected to risk life or limb if conditions do not permit safe access to the college.

When a decision is made to suspend operations at the college, radio stations will be notified prior to 7 a.m. or, in the case of evening classes, prior to 3 p.m.

IDC Discusses Homecoming; Halloween Party Finalized

Interdormitory Council President Mike Stapleton and Student Government President Dave Blumfield strongly urged all IDC members to attend the events scheduled for Homecoming Weekend. Both presidents stressed that Homecoming should be exciting this year, with the addition of a parade through downtown Wilkes-Barre, which will include seven floats built by various student groups.

The Halloween Party Committee is in the process of finalizing its plans for October 26. The committee has not yet decided on the price of tickets, but it is definite that those who wear a costume will pay less to get in. The band for the party will be "Chance."

Stapleton mentioned the blackout that occurred last Monday night, and asked which dorms did not have an emergency lighting system. It was discovered that Hollenback has no such system at all. Several dorms in Pickering Hall have emergency lighting, but the light bulbs are either missing or burned out.

Two cases of vandalism in the past week were reported. On Sunday morning between 4 a.m. and 7 a.m., paint was splashed over the walls of Grissom House. No one has yet determined who is responsible for the damage. It was also

What Happened?

The All-College picnic held this past Saturday at Ralston Field was a nice gesture on the part of the administration to compensate for the free day the students lost in this semester. There is, however, much student discontent concerning the way the picnic turned out.

In the first place, no beer was allowed. This is fine, but several faculty members who did attend brought and consumed their own beer.

Secondly, there was the problem of who was supposed to organize the party. The administration initiated the idea and paid the costs but did little planning. It was left for the students to organize, and at short notice. There was no band, no pep rally, and the only activity that followed through turned out to be a free-for-all instead of a pie-eating contest.

It has also been reported that the cost of the picnic came to about $2,000. Since dinner in the cafeteria for dorm students was cancelled in order that they attend the picnic, there should have been very few costs if any. It was already included in their room and board.

We are not all ungrateful and we do appreciate the intentions behind it. This picnic turned out to be a prime example of a lack of communication and organization.

Letter Policy

Letters to the editor are welcomed from all interested parties. Letters MUST be typed neatly and submitted by the Sunday before publication at one o'clock. A box has been placed in the library for this purpose and letters may also be delivered to The Beacon office, room 27, Parrish Hall.

All letters MUST be signed IN INK, but names will be withheld upon request. Editorial discretion will be used in all cases, especially where questionable language is used, all letters will be typed as written, without corrections (except for the preceeding case), and the views expressed in letters are NOT the views of The Beacon.

NOTICE

Please be advised that Tuesday, Nov. 20, 1979 will follow the Friday class schedule. Due to the omission of a Friday at the end of the semester and an "extra" Tuesday in the calendar, this adjustment must be made.

United Campaign

Moves Closer

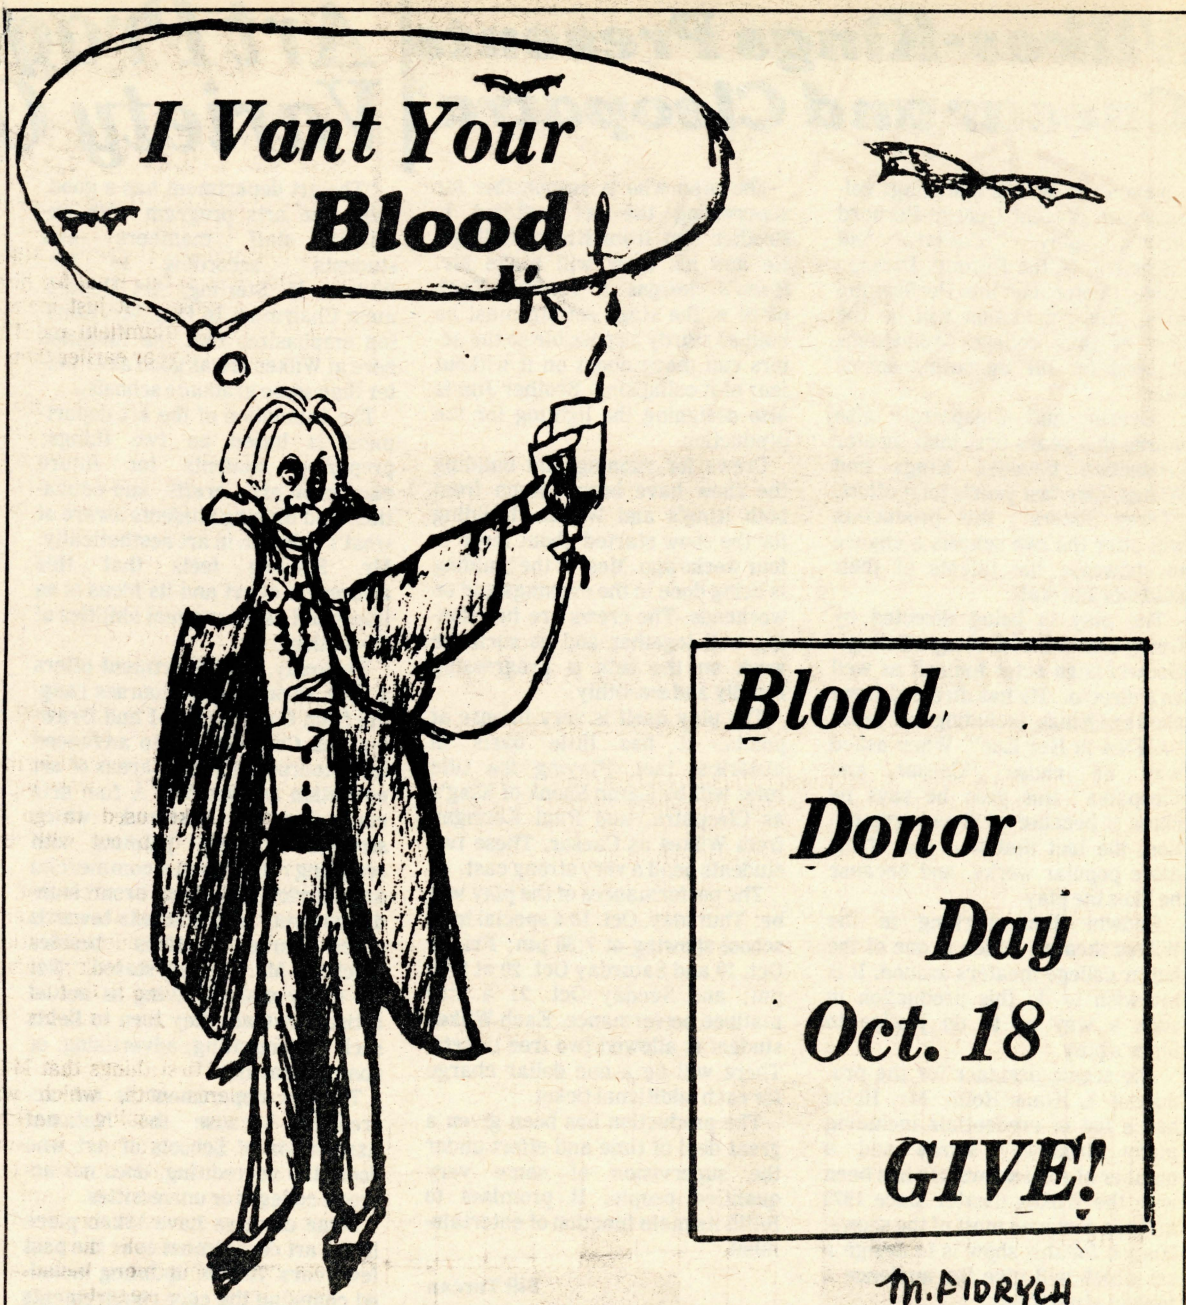

To Set Goal

The United Way Campaign on campus is moving closer to the goal of $10,500, according to Dr. Robert Ogren, Chairman of the campaign.

As of Friday, October 5, Dr. Ogren has received $3,525.60 in contributions. This is 33.6 percent of the goal. Of the 292 people asked to participate, 80 have responded, setting cooperation at 27.4 percent.

Dr. Ogren stated that this year's returns are not as high as last year at this time in the campaign. Despite this, he continued that the drive is progressing well.

He concluded that the those with pledge cards still out should return them to him at the Biology Department as soon as possible.

Dissatisfied Tuition Payer Upset With College Picnic

To the Editor:

What's all this I hear about an All-College Picnic? Like Rosanne Rosana Danna says, this is a hot issue, I was an active member to work on this committee. I found many drawbacks with the picnic. The excitement at the picnic was something to be desired. The pie eating (or throwing) contest was the highlight of the day. The administration sponsored the event instead of a free day. If the students had a say in the matter, they'd choose the free day. The publicity and organization was not up to par. Maybe one percent of the commuters showed...where was publicity for them? The attendance was amazingly small, by students, faculty, and administration. The administration put up almost $2,000 for the event (food). Why was all that money used when the majority of the food was already paid for by the dormies? The picnic only served the purpose to make dorm students walk over to Ralston Field for dinner!!!!!! The administration and faculty didn't do anything for the picnic. The students ran the whole affair. If it wasn't for the students, the picnic would have never gotten off the ground. Why didn't the Deans allow alcohol to be served to the students, when the faculty was openly consuming large amounts of beer? The Constitution plainly states no alcohol will be served at Ralston Field, unless the Council of Deans approves it. Many other factors point to the elimination of All-College Picnics in place of a free-day. An All-College Picnic can be very successful if it benefits the students and not the Administration. Just watch for Homecoming's Field Day and my point will be understood.

Thank you

A dissatisfied tuition payer.

Who wrote the movie review on "The Seduction of Joe Tynan"? I very much enjoyed reading it and thought the style was excellent, intuitive and refreshing compared to the majority of reviews and critiques of movies I've usually read elsewhere. Men Of Grissom Draw Together

After Damage

To the Editor: Concerning the Mid-night Artist(s):

We, the men of Grissom House, would like to personally thank you for the creative abstraction that you painted very early Sunday morning. Although we feel that our version was a little more tasteful, we appreciate your concern for the beautification of our dorm. We're sure that the many hours of hard work and talent provided by the men of Grissom House doesn't compare to the unique job that you did in the few minutes that you had to perform your task. We would just like you to know that you really did not do anything to destroy our unity. In fact, without knowing it, you brought us closer together as a dorm by unifying us in common cause. We may have lost a day of study and-or a chance to relax but, you'll be happy to know that the dorm is once again clean-only faintly exhibiting the scars of your artistic hand. There is one difference, though, it's not something that you will find on our walls or on our bulletin board, it is however, written in each one of us as we stand as one and say:

THANK YOU

Stapleton Sees Cooperation Between IDC and CC

Mike Stapleton is the first junior in a while to be elected president of Inter-Dormitory Council. Mike feels that it is not unusual for him not to be a senior, "it just means that they (Dave Blumfield and Bill Lewis) get out a year earlier than I do."

Another unusual fact is that for a second year in a row the candidate for IDC president has run unopposed. Mike feels that it could be a lack of interest but he really isn't sure why more people don't enter the race. When asked how he felt running unopposed Mike replied, "It takes all the fun out of it when there is no competition and it makes you wonder why no one else wanted to run."

Mike originally got interested in the council when he was a freshman. Gary Toczykowski, former I.D.C. president, was his R.A. and Mike used to go to meetings and help out with the council's activities.

Mike feels that as president he has to be aware of the problems with students and administration. "I have to be able to look at things from both sides, and to find out the problems and the answers to them."

One of the first things that Mike had problems with, which was slight, was issuing parking stickers. The problem is very similar to Commuter Council's problem. "It's relatively hard to decide who gets a space and who doesn't. For example, nursing majors need them more because of their clinical," Mike states.

Blood Donor Day Planned Thurs.

"Giving blood isn't as traumatic as most people believe it is. The procedure is simple, and there are many attendants there to help donors. Besides, the life you save may will be your own," stated Steve Demko, chairman of the upcoming blood drive. Sponsored by the Human Services Committee, it will be held on October 18, in the gym from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Demko hopes to receive full participation from everyone associated with the college, including freshman, commuters and faculty. Last year, 227 showed up to give blood. If this year's turnout is as large as expected, the school will meet its goal of 225 pints of blood. This will be an increase of 5 percent over last year's yield of 202 pints.

Donors will receive more than a blood donor card (which is useful if you need a transfusion after an accident) and the satisfaction of helping someone. The dorm or club which contributes the most pints of blood will receive a trophy from the Human Services Committee.

There are other ways to help besides giving blood. First, passing the word around about the drive is the most effective way to insure a large turnout. Get your friends interested. Second, you can volunteer your assistance on October 18, and help the Red Cross nurses or the patients. Those interested can contact Steve Demko at Roosevelt Hall.

Dave Stahl

Another minor problem that Mike has encountered is that some dormitory representatives are not showing up at meetings. "In some dorms two or three people show up whereas other dorms have not even elected their representatives as of

This year there also seems to be more cooperation between Inter-Dormitory Council and Commuter Council. Mike explains, "This year for the Halloween Party, there have already been two meetings to plan the party and both councils are yet," Mike further explains. He feels that this lack of interest is very hard to deal with. Some of the projects that Mike has been working on and set up committees for are Co-ed Housing, and a new party policy.

Mike thinks that the co-ed housing would be beneficial to all those involved. "The people want it. The survey taken last year indicated that 87 percent of the students are for this type of living arrangement."

working very well together." He hopes that this situation continues throughout the year and that all the joint projects between CC and IDC are successful.

IDC's advisors, Paul Adams and Jean Reiter, are new this year. Mike feels that they have an excellent working relationship and that they have helped him very much. "I'm very happy to be working with them."

Author, Poet & Playwright On Campus This Semester

Last week, we took a look at the department of Language and Literature's Writer In Residence Program. We explained how the program works and a little about its history. Now we will take a closer look at the writer, poet and short story writer Mark Halliday.

Mr. Halliday was born Feb. 28, 1949, in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He received his first degree from Brown University in 1971, in Human Studies, an interdisciplinary program including literature, philosophy, and psychobiography.

IN 1976, Mark earned a MA from Brown in Creative Writing. Currently he has one year of work towards a Ph.D. in English at Brandeis University.

His work experience varies from being a copy-boy for Time Magazine to a waiter in France to being a high school English teacher and teacher of disturbed children. He also spent several summers as a tennis instructor.

The list of his publications is extensive. He has been published in such magazines as "The New Yorker," "The North American Review," and "American Heritage." Over seventy poems of his have been printed in more than fifty periodicals. He has also done two full-length plays and more than sixty book reviews.

Mark also has four as-yet-unpublished novels and two book-length collections of poetry.

He has additional editorial and theater experience as well. At Brown he served as co-editor of Hellcoal Press for two years, and also had roles in ten student theatrical productions. He co-founded and acted in the Rhode Island Feminist Theater, and starred in a play which was presented at Lincoln Center in New York in 1974. Mr. Halliday was also chief editor of the Providence Review, a literary monthly he and two of his colleagues founded.

Mark is on campus on Mondays and Tuesdays when he teaches a creative writing class. He lives in the Boston area and commutes to campus.

Dr. Kaska, chairman of the Language and Literature department, is very pleased to have Mark as writer-in-residence. He is a young writer on his way up, and it is hoped that both he and the college will benefit from the experience.

"A New Beginning" Slated as Theme For 1979-1980 Amnicola Edition

The 1979-80 yearbook staff has a rather unique situation this year. A brand new decade is being ushered in and they would like to do it justice.

Mary Giblin, Editor-in-Chief, looks at it this way, "We have a lot of new members on the staff this year and they are all eager to work towards making this year's yearbook one of the best." She also adds, "We want to break the old traditional mold of past years. We will be trying to make this book look different yet exciting."

The theme of this year's book will be, "A New Beginning," representing the start of the '80's. Chris Rielly and other art students will be designing the cover of the book.

As part of their new approach, the yearbook will be offering keys to the dorm and club that submits the most original group pictures.

Joining Mary Giblin on the yearbook staff are: Lisa Ashbaugh, special assistant to the editor-in-chief; Ilene Tinkleman, assistant editor; Bob Gaetano, photography editor; and Maggie Bunnell, business manager.

One area that leaves the Amnicola staff less than satisfied is the lack of commuter students working on the book. "We have about fifteen people working for us at the mo-

Emergency Alert Team On Call 24 Hours A Day

There you are standing in the cold winter night watching your friend rolling in pain after slipping on the ice. Your adrenaline soars, you start to panic wondering what to do. Questions flash through your mind. What if something is broken? Should he be moved? Where can I get help?

The questions concerning the injury should be answered by a doctor, but the question of where to get help can be answered right on campus. Since 1974, the Emergency Alert Team has been in operation. It provides quick emergency treatment and transportation to anyone on campus twenty-four hours a day.

According to Mark Chichak, captain of the team, almost every night they are needed. "We have seven squads that cover the campus on a rotating basis. The team is most needed during the night when other services are closed."

There are about forty members on the team and the majority of them are trained in either basic first aid or emergency medical training. The team is outfitted with the basic emergency equipment.

This year however they are running low on supplies.

In addition to the emergency service they provide, the Emergency Alert Team also sponsors demonstrations and courses in the Heimlich hug, CPR, sports taping, and basic first aid. These demonstrations are open to any student who wishes to attend and are free of charge.

Although the team is now operating at full strength, they are constantly looking for new members. Mark comments, "We need a lot of support. We don't get paid for anything we do; it's all voluntary. For anyone interested in working with the team, we will supply all the training needed."

Mostly, the team is composed of dorm students, but there are several commuter students on the squad. Membership on the team is not restricted to any particular major either. All that is needed is one course in first aid, and the desire to perform a valuable service.

The team lends itself to many community affairs as well as to the campus, including events held in the Kingston Armory, walk-a-thons, sports events, and blood donor days.

One surprising fact associated with the Emergency Alert Team is that, except for its initial year, they have not had to request money from the Student Government. This will not be the case this year.

Due to low levels of needed supplies and deteriorating equipment the team will be asking for funds from Student Government. If granted, the funds will go towards medical supplies, such as oxygen, a stretcher, backboard, and poison kits.

How do you get in touch with the Emergency Alert Team when you need them? Either call the college switchboard and they will relay your call to the squad leader on duty, or get in touch with a RA in any of the dorms and they will be able to contact the E.A.T.

So, in times of an emergency, don't panic. Remember the Emergency Alert Team is just a phone call away. Take a deep sigh and relax.

M.B.A. - A Popular Choice Among Graduate Students

Why are recent college graduates, bankers, engineers, and accountants all coming back to college? It's not always because they love studying and going to class. No, the real reason most of them are back are because of the advantages a graduate degree can offer them. On particular field of graduate study, the Masters of Business Administration (M.B.A.) is a popular choice of incoming graduate students. The commercial and financial areas are offering increased opportunities not only to Bachelor degree holders but also to those who have received their Masters. In 1978, the largest number of masters degrees awarded at Wilkes were in Business Administration, almost twice the number of any other graduate program here at the school.

According to Dr. Howard Williams, acting chairman of the Commerce and Finance Department, the effort one puts into studying on the graduate level will soon pay off. As Dr. Williams pointed out, "Not only are opportunities greater for the M.B.A., but starting salaries are generally $3,000 to $4,000 higher. Usually, the M.B.A. will also be placed immediately into the middle management of the company." According to the magazine, MBA Executive, "more jobs were offered to 1978 M.B.A. graduates in accounting (17.6 per cent), commercial banking (14.2 per cent) and electronic data processing (9.7 per cent) than in any other fields." The highest starting salaries, however, were those in the management consulting field, receiving $23,000 a year. The lowest starting salary in 1978, with an M.B.A., was in the accounting field at $17,000. Overall, according to this same report 75 per cent of all M.B.A. graduates started at salaries of $17,200 or more.

The Masters of Business Administration program at Wilkes is designed to give concentrated study in the entire business field while allowing the graduate student to specialize in one of four course areas. To first enter the program you must have the following prerequisite courses: 1 year of accounting, 1 semester of business law, 1 year of economic principles, 1 semester of statistics, 1 semester of managerial finance, 1 semester of money and banking and 1 semester of marketing. After completing the required prerequisites, the graduate student must complete 30 credit hours. These 30 hours are broken into 15 hours of core requirements and 15 hours in a specialization, which can be either Marketing, Managerial Science, Labor, Accounting or Finance. The student can pick one or two specializations.

In the core requirements of fifteen hours, the student must take three courses, Management Science, Managerial Statistics and Managerial Economics. The remaining six credits in the core consist of two courses the student chooses from four possibilities. The student can pick from Managerial Accounting, Labor - Management Economics, Business and Society and Management Information, and a computer science course. The remaining 15 credits are made up of courses in the four specialization areas.

A new program being proposed is the five-year M.B.A. degree. In this program the student, during the undergraduate years, can major in any field, but would take his electives in the business curriculum. Thus, by the time he receives his bachelor's degree he would have all the prerequisites completed for his M.B.A. He could then complete his graduate degree in the next year.

Another option which is available to the graduate student is the Graduate Assistant Program. The graduate assistant is employed at Wilkes while completing his degree. He works either in areas of economics, accounting, or business administration, helping the professors by supervising laboratory periods, proctoring tests or by doing research related to his field. Another option which is available is being a dormitory counselor to undergraduates. In both of these programs, the graduate student receives salary which may include a tuition or housing waiver.

The prospective graduate student must consider are whether he wants to receive both undergraduate and graduate degrees from the same school. He must also consider whether on-the-job experience is important before entering an M.B.A. program.

The M.B.A. degree is definitely worth considering, no matter what a student's undergraduate major. The benefits of higher entry level positions and better starting salaries are obvious. Prospective M.B.A.'s, however, must also consider that many personal demands may be placed on them in the future.

Those wishing more information can contact the Director of Graduate Studies, John F. Meyers, or any member of the Commerce and Finance faculty.

Chapter Of COPUS Started On Campus

A Chapter of COPUS, the Coalition of Private Colleges and Universities, an organization based in Washington, D.C. which lobbies in Congress on issues affecting students, was formed on campus recently.

Pennsylvania does not have a state chapter although several other states do. Three colleges in Pennsylvania including Wilkes, University of Pennsylvania, and Carnegie Mellon University have chapters. Attempts are being made to form a state chapter to lobby for state funds in Harrisburg.

COPUS serves students by acting as an additional source of financial aid, getting students registered to vote, and rallying students together to act as one voice. According to Dave Blumfield, Student Government President, "It's an organization that gives political power to the students".

Last November Blumfield and John Senatore, 1978-1979 SG treasurer, went to Harrisburg to obtain information about COPUS. This past summer, the idea for starting a chapter was approved.

An office was set up on the second floor of Weckesser Hall in the old IDC office. Peter Just was selected as chapter director, while Joe Knox and Tom Farley were selected as assistant directors. They are hoping to get a budget from Student Government.

A conference for colleges of Northeastern Pennsylvania to be held here is planned. The purpose of the conference will be to try to get the other colleges to form new chapters. Director Just emphasized

Hist. Career Day On October 17

The History Department will sponsor a career day on Wednesday, October 17, 1979 at 2:00 p.m. in room 30 (third floor) of Franklin Hall.

The career day is for history majors and anyone else interested. Dr. James Rodechko, chairman of the history department, stressed that students don't have to be history majors to attend the career day.

The purpose of the event is to discuss available career options. Suggestions will be made as to what electives students should take and which direction they should follow to help with career planning.

Dr. Rodechko, John Ralston and John Meyers will be at the career day. Ralston will discuss some facilities on campus including the placement office and careers library. Meyers will talk about things students should consider if they are thinking about graduate school. Careers of some alumni will be included in the discussion. Rodechko stated, "The gist of it (Career Day) is that we will try to suggest that there are a lot of options besides teaching."

that the functions of COPUS are lobbying and research and showing students how to get financial aid. He added, "It allows people to go to school where they want without worrying about financial aid". Blumfield pointed out that COPUS is not intended to replace the financial aid office; but rather to assist them. He suggested that students should watch for articles on COPUS coming out in Newsweek and Time Magazine.

COPUS will have a meeting today in SLC 424 at noon for any interested students.

Kinney Picked For Position As Editor

The American Forensic Association has selected Dr. Bradford Kinney of the speech division for the position of contributing editor of the organization's professional journal for the academic year.

The American Forensic Association is the largest organization in the speech and communications field, second only to the parent organization the Speech Communication Association of America. The A.F.A.'s journal is published for professional use in high schools, colleges and universities throughout the United States and Europe.

Dr. Kinney's selection brings further recognition to the college's developing speech and communications program. Beginning his seventh year at Wilkes, he has brought the speech-debate team from relative obscurity to national recognition. The college is now considered the 10th best speech-forensic school in the nation by the National Pi Kappa Delta Honorary Forensic Society for the first time since the 1950's.

Dr. Kinney's other activities include being the immediate past president of the Pennsylvania Forensic Association, which represents all colleges and universities in the state that have speech and communication programs, and the Director of Broadcasting Services for WCLH radio station.

Computer Capacity Increased To Meet The Growing Demand

The computer field is growing at Wilkes, and so is the computer center. About two years ago Wilkes replaced the old computer with a new one. Since the installation of this new equipment, the computer center has increased in usefulness and efficiency.

As of last semester there were a few problems with the computer such as slow response time. Response time refers to the amount of time it takes the computer to respond to the operator. Dave Williams, head of the computer Commission; who share the computer's time as well.

Over the past year there has been a heavy increase in the number of people using the computer facilities. The administration is now using the computer for more functions than in the past. This is also true of the student population, who seem to have taken a greater interest in it. Much of this is due to the relatively new computer science major offered at Wilkes and the addition of computer science to the core requirements of many ma-courses. He believes that many students have become interested in knowing the basics of computers due to the fact that we all have to deal with computers in our daily lives; for example, phone bills, college records, etc. This interest in computers could stem from a realization that they are important in today's society and they are here to stay.

The high response to the computer science major at Wilkes can be attributed to the fact that Wilkes people have first priority on the computer. This explains why many students from other colleges are transferring to the Wilkes program. According to Dr. Wong, the faculty and students use the computer on a first-come-first-serve basis. This does not mean that the terminals are not crowded at times. During the early afternoon the computer is at peak usage. "We find that some students come in early in the morning to use the computer when they have it almost to themselves," Dr. Wong states.

The college is doing everything to make the computer more easily accessible to everyone at Wilkes. Three new terminals have been added to the second floor of Stark.

The computer field at Wilkes is still experiencing a small amount of growing pains however. The equipment is good and the interest in the field is increasing. Therefore, it seems that Wilkes has a good start toward a solid computer science major, while at the same time it is offering excellent computer facilities to help the college function efficiently.

Bill Turcan

MEETING GREATER DEMANDS — Pictured is the college's computer located on the fourth floor of Stark Learning Center. With updating done over the summer, the computer will be serving students more efficiently and effectively this year.

center, says that the response time was not really that long, but that it seemed so to someone who has high expectations of what computers can do. "The fact is many people expect too much sophistication in computers," Williams states.

During this past summer the problems in the computer have been straightened out. Also, the internal memory capacity of the computer has been quadrupled. These improvements make the computer a more efficient tool for the upcoming school year.

The new computer offers plenty of file storage and has a greater capacity than it did last year. The computer is used on a time sharing basis in which every operator uses a fraction of the computers time and memory to accomplish his task. There are also link-ups to Wyoming Seminary, Hanover High School, Dallas High School and The Luzerne County Youth Services jors.

Dr. Wong, Dept. Chairman of Math and Computer Science, says that there are at least sixty new students in the computer science major. However, it is not only the computer science majors who are using the computer, but students from other majors as well. Dr. Wong sees that more people are taking the low level computer

Wilkes Booters Still Winless; Host Scranton University Sat.

The Wilkes College soccer team of Coach Ernesto Lopez once again had lady luck against them this past week as they dropped a 4-2 decision to Baptist Bible College for their fifth straight defeat without a win in 1979. The Colonels did hold a 2-1 advantage at halftime in the game at Ralston Field, but could not hold on for victory.

There was relatively no action in the first half until the 36 minute mark. It was at this point in the game when Wilkes number one offensive threat Dung Chi Duong (Zumi) tallied on a penalty kick to give the Blue and Gold the lead at 1-0. This advantage was short-lived thanks to the foot of Bible's Steve Kasagurin, who tallied a goal only 15 seconds after Zumi's initial score and the game was knotted at 1-1. Irv Pyung powered Wilkes to the halftime edge with a beautifully-executed scissors kick with just over four minutes remaining to play in the period. Zumi and Irv are two of the most graceful booters in the area.

The last half of the game completely belonged to Bible as B.B.C. scored four times while Wilkes was shutout. The first goal came with 31 minutes left in the contest and tied the game at 2-2. Coach Lopez and Zumi received warnings from the referee for unsportsmanlike conduct after the score. Four minutes later, the Wilkes booters missed a golden opportunity to take the lead when Zumi made a picture perfect pass to Mike Karns, but the go-ahead shot at the open goal was missed. Karns is coming back from an injury a week ago which almost ended the season for him. Bible used goals by Nelson and Depina to take the 4-2 decision.

A major factor in the loss to Bible was injuries. Starting goalie Dave "Dyno" Reynolds was sidelined with a knee injury sustained in a previous game. Front lineman Carlos Ribeiro was injured early in the second half, forcing him out of action for the rest of the day. The loss of these two key players was greatly felt by the team. The game was played under adverse conditions as only one referee showed up for the contest. B.B.C. questioned many of his calls, but the ref WAS correct on all of them. The second half was played with two officials as our own Dr. Sours of the math department donated his services. That's the spirit!

Two bright spots in the game for Wilkes was the play of Irv Pyung and Scott Rudolph. If these two players continue to play this way for the rest of the season, opponents better look out. Final stats showed Wilkes had been outshot in the game by a whopping 450 percent.

If the booters are to have any chance at all in their future matches, they will have to get the offense going and change that statistic. On Saturday, the Blue and Gold dropped a 5-1 decision to Moravian College in Bethlehem. Zumi again had the only goal for Wilkes.

Yesterday, the booters met Juniata at home and this Saturday they will help celebrate Homecoming by entertaining the nationally ranked team of Scranton University.

between the WHITE lines

by Eddie White

After last week's column, I'm worn out, so here are some nuts and bolts:

How do you like that Wilkes cross country team? They're now 7-2 and are the winningest fall sports team at Wilkes. Hats off to new coach Ron Righter and assistant Steve Justice and to that very dedicated team that now, finally has the school behind them. Run On... who's smiling most about the team's running success? None other than Wilkes PR director George Pawlusch, who is the founder of the sport here. It was not too long ago that Wilkes cross country was having winless seasons, but now that the team is enjoying success, no one is having a ball more than George... if Righter carries this success over to the basketball program, look out King's and Scranton... watching J.J. Walker on the sidelines at a Wilkes football game (he's one of the stickmen) reminds us of Harold Carmichael of the Eagles... Wilkes just got two new young swimming coaches for this season — Bob Greenwald and Bob Lewis, who show a great knowledge of the sport and are very enthusiastic, we'll have more on them next week... Nick Golowich is having a fine year for the Wilkes soccermen, who are still looking for their initial win of the 1979 campaign. Coach Ernesto Lopez is working with a young crew which has been hurt recently by injuries but you have to admire their spirit, kick on!... don't tell Gay Meyers that a tie is like kissing your sister, her team has had its share of ties this season... former Wilkes women's tennis star Reenie Corbett was seen cheering on this year's edition at a recent home match... have to admire Rolie Schmidt, who is the same when his team is 0-8 and when their 8-0. The veteran mentor is a class guy... we don't know who's to fault, but Cliff Jones was ignored in Saturday's football game at Bloom. Cliff has the best hands on the team and he'll be the first to tell you he's no speed-merchant, but the man can catch and isn't that what's it all about... another thing we could not figure out was that Carmen LoPresto did not carry the ball the entire second half, what's going on here?... Dave Korba is only three away from tying the Wilkes career interception mark and he has one-year eligibility remaining... attention college basketball fans, if you have not heard already, King's College lost All-Everything center Ken Casey, who transferred to Bloom State. Don't start thinking romp yet. They still have Jim Shea, who's very under-rated and with Ed Donohue at the helm, the Monarchs will be there at the end. Donohue is one of the finest coaches in Division III... our other basketball rival Scranton University will be back in the saddle again this season with the return of All-American center Irv Johnson... also expected to aid the Royal attack is a freshman forward Tom "Cobra" Kosin, who has been impressive in pre-season drills... Dec. 6, mark down that date and get to the Wilkes Gym in late November because Oregon State is coming to town to wrestle Wilkes that night and the gym should be packed to South Main Street, another grappling biggie is Feb. 5 when the Nit-wit-ney Lions of Penn State come to Colonel-land to take on Coach John Reese's charges... how do you like them Lions this season in football only 3-2, their shouting "Joe Must Go" in State College, it's about time they woke up... Matt Millen getting a raw deal there... Pirates sail, but Birds fly, that's why we like Earl (best manager in the game) Weaver's troops in the World Series. The O's have the best pitching staff in the bigs and the greatest fans in the world... Willie Stargell is our pick for MVP in the National League — he's the man that makes them go and Ken Singleton should receive MVP honors in the AL and O's Mike Flanagan should get Cy Young in that league while the Cubs Bruce Sutter should receive the NL's Cy Young award... best college basketball team this upcoming winter — DePaul again — where's all the Indiana State fans? and best women's team — Mt. St. Mary's of Emmitsburg, MD... which is Division II and is coached by none other than former NBA star Freddie "Mad-dog" Carter.

Richter's Runners On Rampage: Hold Best Fall Record At 7-2

The Wilkes cross country team, on the way to their best season ever, upped their record to 7-2 by splitting the two meets they ran last week.

Ed Eppler

On Wednesday, the Colonels lost a tough 26-31 decision to Lebanon Valley. Coach Richter said, "It was an improvement over last year when we were nearly shutout." A shutout in cross country is when the winning team has 15 points. On Saturday the thinclads bounced back to upend Moravian 24-35.

In the Wednesday meet, Lebanon Valley runners, Bill Casey and Lee Pelton, tied for first at 28:05. Wilkes' Ken Pascoe copped third with 28:35. Pascoe was followed by Danny Thomas and Ed Eppler who tied for fourth with times of 28:54. Other Colonel finishers were Lou Mucciolo 8th at 29:18, Roger Davis 12th at 30:00, Ed Cunningham 13th at 30:12, John Supinski, Ken Waters, Kevin Cavanaugh, and Bob Feldman. Also finishing was Marie Eisvert who Richter says is "the only girl on the team and is as good as any girl in the area."

On Saturday against Moravian, Ken Pascoe continued to be the Colonels' top runner by finishing first with 27:02. Moravian's Donn and Esposito tied for second at 27:29. An improving Ed Eppler placed fourth with 27:46. Eppler was then followed by teammates Dan Thomas and Lou Mucciolo with times of 28:01 and 28:13 respectively. Ed Cunningham, who is coming back from an injury that kept him out most of last season, continued his gutsy running by finishing 8th at 29:14. John Supinski and Don Patrick rounded out the Colonel finishers with a 9th and 10th respectively.

Ron Richter's runners were to meet Albright yesterday at home then travel to meet Mansfield State on Saturday.

Stickwomen Tie Bloom State; Host Marywood Today at 4

A very aggressive Delaware Valley field hockey team took to the turf on Tuesday with the hopes of upsetting Wilkes, the defending MAC champs. The lady Colonels just completed a very tough three match week and came out very sluggish. The Aggies, according to coach Gay Meyers, are always "up" for the Wilkes match. In the end it was Wilkes 1 and Delaware Valley 0.

It wasn't easy, however. Wilkes had outshot Delaware Valley 35 to 12 but passed the ball around the circle too much rather than taking the good shots on goal. The only score of the match occurred in the first half on a beautiful drive from the corner by Jerry Ann Smith on an assist from Mary Jo Frail. Both girls are co-captains this year.

Overall, the Colonelettes played a slow, hesitant game. "We had better skill than Delaware Valley, but we forgot to think and committed too many mental errors", stated Meyers. Wilkes MAC record is now 2-0-1, good enough for first place. In the three MAC games, Wilkes freshman goalie Rose Shanahan has been credited with 19 saves without allowing a score.

It seemed like a different Wilkes team on Thursday than the one on Tuesday as the ladies tied a Division II powerhouse, the Bloomsburg State College Huskies. Again, Coach Meyers had new faces in the lineup. Senior Lee Ann Earl got her first start of the year at goalie and was credited with ten saves, two while under tremendous Huskie pressure. Also receiving her first starting assignment was freshman Carol Martin from Interboro High School at fullback.

Another freshman, Michelle Weiss recorded her first career goal on an assist from Smith. The match though belonged to the defenses. Bloom State outshot Wilkes and continuously kept the Colonels with their backs to the goal. The final ten minutes of the hard fought match was all Wilkes. A few noted observers added that Wilkes had much more spark left in them than did the powerful Huskies. They rushed BSC's goal countless times, but great defensive plays by the Lady Huskies kept Wilkes from scoring. "This was one of the best played matches I've ever seen since I've been at Wilkes. If we continue to play like this in the Lycoming match it will be a wipe out," stated Coach Meyers. "The fan support was also great. I saw many new faces in the crowd and all pulling for a Wilkes victory. I want to thank those fans that were there and hope they keep up the support."

This week's schedule finds the Wilkes women at Lycoming on Tuesday and today they play Marywood at home in an NPWIAA match at 4:00. The Colonelettes record now stands at 2-1-3. A quick look at the stats shows the co-captains, Frail and Smith, are tied for the team lead in assists with 5 apiece.

BOWLING RESULTS

The American Conference of the Wilkes College Mixed League has turned into a genuine free-for-all as a result of last Friday's action. As of now, Bud's (2-1 vs. the Mother Brothers) and Poky's (1-2 vs. the 752 Crew) are tied for the top spot, but the first five teams are separated by a margin of just two games as the Vets Club (via forfeit) and the Crew were able to jump back into title contention.

In the National Conference, Lisa Hughes' 189-503 kept the Assorted Nuts in first place by a game over The Pack (Jeff Gavlick 199-535) as those two head for a showdown in two weeks. No teams can be counted out in the NBC, as the BS'ers, in sixth place, are only five games back, so both races seem certain to go down to the wire, heading to the play-offs on December 7th.

Others: John Moffatt 483, Rod Wyffels 201-500, Karl Blight 203-555, Leo Orlandini 191-455, Martha Lasco 155, Robbie Bale 420.

Standings:

| American Conference | |
|---------------------------|-----|
| Bud's Compressor & Supply | 9-3 |
| Poky's | 9-3 |

| Mother Brothers | 8-4 |

Gridders In TV "Horror Show"; Look For Big Win Sat. at Home

Last week it was, what a defense! This week, it's, what a nightmare! Last Saturday's 27-3 drubbing of the Wilkes Colonels by Bloomsburg State was nothing but one gigantic nightmare — where nothing would go right for the Colonels.

After taking a 3-0 lead on a 37-yard field goal by Tony "Toes" Tavella in the first quarter of the televised game, the Wilkesmen went down hill, which included inept passing, inadequate rushing, faulty line play, fumbles, an interception, and just about anything else that could go wrong with a football team.

The Huskies' All-American candidate and pro prospect Mike Morucci ran wild Saturday gaining 193 yards on the ground and scoring all three touchdowns in the game.

54 yards on nine carries, but was only four for 13 for 44 yards through the air. Wilson was injured late in the game and it is not known whether he'll be ready for the FDU game. His replacement Tom Cywinski didn't fare too well either, as he missed on all eight passes he attempted and rushed for minus yardage. Whoever calls signals this week should enjoy a fine outing because picking apart the FDU secondary is as easy as picking a winner in a one horse race.

Bright spots on Saturday included running backs Sean O'Dea (10-40) and Paul Kotulak (4-34), but where was All-MAC tailback Carmen LoPresto, Wilkes' bread and butter man. "Homer" was held to only 19 yards rushing on nine carries and did not touch the ball in the second half. Is this any way to run an offense? You bet it isn't! Colonel fans sat on their hands the whole second period wondering where the hell Homer was. Somebody better wake up and get more life into that offense.

Another Colonel who was overlooked on Saturday was receiver Cliff Jones. Jones, not the fastest man on the team by far, but he does have the best pair of hands on the club and catches anything thrown his way. Cliff was like a fan in the stands Saturday as passes were thrown to almost everyone but him. Rob Irwin, who along with Morucci, drew some ten NFL scouts on Saturday, had two catches for 26 yards to lead the Wilkes receiving crew.

The Colonel defense was again victimised by offensive mistakes by Wilkes. The only "big play" against the "D" came on Morucci's first TD of 47 yards. Ed Mollahan and Rick Krawetz played super defense as did linebackers Jim Martin, Mike Patrick, Glenn Colvin and John Frappolli.

Joe Shurites, a starting defensive back at the beginning of the year was injured a few weeks back and will miss the entire season. Shurites's injury hurt Wilkes on Saturday as Bloom picked on his replacements — Donn Nicholas and Mike Gould for some key yardage through the air.

Make no mistake about it, there are a lot of problems with the team. We bring this out now because after this Saturday's game all will look like it is back in order. But anything can straighten itself out against FDU. Wait until the following weekend when the Blue and Gold travel to Reading to meet Albright College — that will be a real test.

GRID BITS ... not only was the team bad on Saturday so were the majorettes, strutters and cheerleaders, they get a 2.0 ... Bloom's marching band was very impressive, maybe we should try marching ... great to see Wilkes grad and former Alumni office worker Marianne Montague at the Bloom game; she's now a honcho with the Huskies administration ... one of the top tacklers Saturday was Dave Korba, a defensive back — that fact tells the kind of problems the "D" had with Morucci, a sure NFL draft pick this year.

Netwomen Getting Better!

Last Tuesday, the tennis Colonelettes were again defeated in their return match against the Royalettes of Scranton. However, in singles the overall scores were comparable to or greater than those gained in the preceding match with Scranton.

Judy Bellas gave a repeat performance in her second encounter with Scranton, finishing again at 6-1, 6-1. Rose McMahon who was defeated 6-1, 6-0 in her first encounter with Scranton, played a stronger game in her second attempt finishing at 6-0, 6-3. Beth Keyworth who was also defeated 6-1, 6-0 in her first endeavor, came back with a little more hustle this time and finished at 6-1, 6-3. Cindy Yagloski who fell 6-2, 6-1 in her first match really took her opponent by surprise as she went full steam ahead, taking 7 games from her opponent. Cindy finished at 7-6, 6-1 and again provided a highlight in the competition.

Unfortunately it was not a very good day for doubles. Peg Mascelli and Jean Garner lost 6-2, 6-1 and Lisa Warden and Ann Pastorella were defeated 6-1, 6-2.

The ladies were not quite as successful in the endeavors against Bloomsburg. The Lady Huskies showed little mercy as they stomped all over the Blue and Gold emerging with a 12-0 victory.

Last Saturday the ladies faced Baptist Bible. In singles Judy Bellas, Cindy Yagloski, Peg Mascelli and Wendy Rother were defeated 6-2, 6-3 6-4, 6-2 6-3, 6-1 6-1, 6-2 respectively.

Ann Pastorella took the second victory of the season for the Colonelettes. Things were a bit slow for Ann in the beginning as she lost the first set but came back in the second and third sets to take the match 4-6, 6-1, 6-4. In doubles, Bible forfeited both matches for a final 4-3 victory over Wilkes.

Today, the ladies of Coach Lew Partridge will host Marywood College at 3:30 at Ralston Courts. The ladies will then meet King's College on the 16th.

Sue Loveitt

Mike Wilson in action.

Tom McKenna added three conversions and field goals of 30 and 46 yards to bolster the Bloom attack which gave them their second consecutive victory after three opening losses.

Wilkes, now 2-2 overall and 2-1 in the Middle Atlantic Conference, will host a terrible Madison FDU team this week in a league game at Ralston Field to help celebrate Homecoming. As the song goes, the devil went down to Georgia, not to Madison, N.J. There's no fire in them there hills!

Intramural

When it rains, it pours! Boy, does Wilkes intramural head Dave Kaschak know that. Last week, he had two games scheduled each on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and all the match-ups were rained out.

"Every time we try to get a game started, it rains," explained the likeable Kaschak. He jokingly added, "What we need is an astrodome to play these games in."

At press time, only two games had been played in the league, with the STUDS winning both, downing the United Dives 12-6 and shutting out the once-powerful Chickenhawks 7-0. THE BEACON will print the upcoming week's schedule starting with this issue and Kaschak hopes this will eliminate any forfeits.
