

The Man of Honor

The world's salvation
From paralyzing doubt
Is the man of honor
Whose mind reaches out
To explore itself
In a new source
And advance its margins
Beyond their present course.

The world of doubt
Will be changed, as it can,
Not by the rhetoric
But by the man.

'Thrust' Announces Campaign's Hopes

"Nothing begets success like success; and we plan to conduct this campaign until all the money has been raised." These are the words of Bruce Freeman, employer of Marts & Lundy, Inc., who are in charge of the fund-raising aspect of the Wilkes Forward Thrust program.

Mr. Freeman, in an interview concerning the campaign's current success, claimed that things were coming along well. "We have over $585,000 committed so far. The faculty pledges account for $48,000 of this, and we have private contributions of $107,000."

The success of the project, Mr. Freeman says, may stem from the fact the Wilkes campaign was formulated only after careful study of similar projects. The past campaigns were then combined and adjusted to fit the College's needs.

The campaign is covering 40 geographical areas in the U.S., and is scheduled to run into the 1970-71 academic year, if necessary. "Although we're doing well now," Mr. Freeman said, "we're hoping the alumni response will be more generous than it has been in the past. A campaign like this depends a lot on private gifts, and the first question which new sources of funds always asks is: 'What are your alumni doing?'"

Because many people are not able to give their contribution in one lump sum, a "Share Plan" has been instituted. According to this plan, a pledge is paid off in a series of payments scattered over three years. "We've found from experience that this is a good technique," said Mr. Freeman. "It's a way of suggesting a budget rather than demanding money right out of the pocket. We expect to receive a large response to it."

As matters stand now, the College expects to begin construction of the new Stark Complex in June, 1970.

"The six buildings facing River Street will be torn down immediately after the semester ends," said Mr. Freeman. "If we have enough funds, we'll keep building until we're finished. If not, the construction will be done in two sections."

"There is a pressing need for the new facilities, and we hope to get the complex built as soon as possible."

NOTICE

Thomas J. Cardillo, editor of the 1970 Amnicola, requests that any senior who has not yet made an appointment for his or her yearbook portrait do so immediately at the Lazarus Photo Studio.

All pictures must be taken by January 13, 1970 in order to be included in the 1970 yearbook.

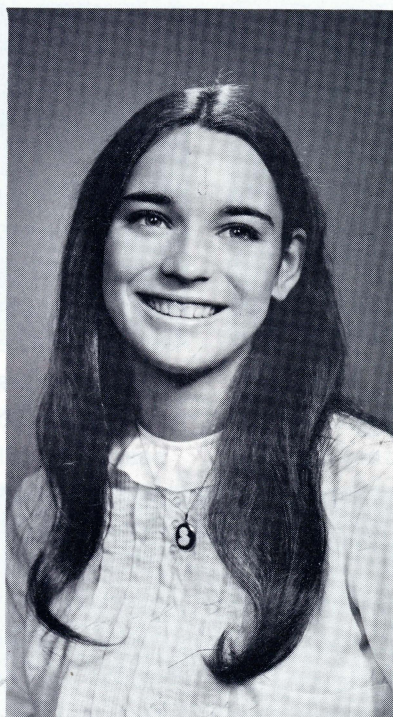

Donoho, Klaproth Co-Editors; Enlarged Editorial Board Named

A revision of the editorial staff of The Beacon is scheduled to occur with the first issue of the new semester. The changes in staff have been recommended and approved by the Student Publication's Committee headed by Dr. Stanley Kay, in keeping with last year's practice.

In a departure from the customary system, co-editors have been named for the student newspaper. Two junior coeds, Sally Donoho and Maureen Klaproth, will be in this position.

Sally Donoho

Maureen Klaproth

Serving under the two women will be a new staff of editors including: Marlene Augustine, news editor; Mary Kazmierczak, copy editor; Pete Herbst, sports editor; George Pagliaro, exchange editor; Joan Cole, business manager; Mary Covine, assistant news editor; Hedy Wrightson, assistant copy editor; and Ronnie Lustig, assistant business manager.

The appointments consist of one senior, five juniors, and four sophomores. The changeover in editors is consistent with a practice established last January when Charles Lengle assumed the position following Chris Sulat.

Miss Donoho, a psychology major from Chelmsford, Mass., has previously served the Beacon in the positions of copy editor and assistant managing editor. A resident of Sterling Hall, Sally serves as both an IDC and SG representative and was recently appointed to the Student Publications Committee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Donoho and plans to attend graduate school after graduation.

Miss Klaproth is an English major and has served previously as news editor, managing editor and columnist for the Beacon. A resident of Emerson Hall, Maureen is the daughter of Mr. James J. Klaproth and Mrs. Edward N. Wright of Mechanicsburg, Pa. In the past she has been active in Young Democrats, orientation programs, Cue 'n Curtain committees and the YMCA tutoring program. Following graduation she plans a journalism career.

Miss Augustine has served previously as exchange editor and reporter for the newspaper. An active member of the Cue 'n Curtain and a past member of Young Democrats, Marlene is a junior English major. A resident of Slocum Hall, she plans to do free-lance writing after graduation.

Miss Kazmierczak, a junior English major, will fill the position of copy editor. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kazmierczak of Youngstown, Ohio, she resides on

Winter Carnival Queen Selection January 8th

The slated activities for the annual Winter Carnival have been announced by Rick Newman, the Social Events Chairman for the affair.

The day's activities will commence with skiing at Camelback, a winter resort in the Poconos. Chartered buses will take students to and from the lodge. These buses will leave Chase Hall approximately 9 a.m. Thursday, January 22. In addition, students will be able to enjoy reduced rates at the ski lodge through a plan arranged by the Ski Club.

Culminating the day's activities at the ski lodge, a party will be held at the Brothers Four Restaurant on the Dallas Highway. Music will be provided for dining and dancing by the "We Two." To highlight the day's activities, the Queen and her court will be crowned by the Chairman of Social Events, Rick Newman.

Student Government will sponsor the election for this year's Winter Carnival Queen. Elections will be held on January 8 in the Commons from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and then in the lounge of the New Men's Dorm. Winter Carnival Queen elections are open to all junior girls.

Fund Requests Defeated By A.C.

Due to increased expenditures for fire and theft insurance and the need for a security police force, Student Government was denied its request for $4,900 by the Administrative Council Tuesday, December 9.

Representing Student Government at the meeting were Dan Kopen, President; Jay Goldstein, Vice-President; and Bill Kaye, Treasurer. Had the money been allotted to Student Government, it would have been turned over to The Beacon, The Amnicola, The Manuscript, and Student Government Special Projects.

Dr. Eugene S. Farley mentioned that even though there was a surplus of $7,000 to $32,000, it could not be given to Student Government because of increased insurance rates and money that must be given for the Security Police Force that was developed this year. The insurance policies for the school expire on February 14 and, the rates are expected to go up at this time.

After the budget was discussed, Dan Kopen presented the Council with the Curfew Review proposal. The Council will review the proposal and discussion will begin on December 23.

JOY TO THE WORLD...

"'Tis the season to be jolly," an old familiar lyric, nevertheless, a thought worth considering. In times of an immoral war, lack of drug control, inconsistency in legal procedures, sky-rocketing inflation, and a question over proper channels — a pause to be taken, a time to remember that — 'Tis the season to be jolly.

"It came upon the midnight clear," and now it is time to clear our minds and perspectives and decide the relevance of what is and what is not important. As a new year unfolds, time marches on and each individual must march along so as not to be swept up with insignificance.

"O come, all ye faithful," be faithful to a cause — be grateful to others. The Beacon staff at this time would like to show its gratitude to parents and families by dedicating this issue to them. Again, as the new year evolves one should be reminded to stand behind the causes he has fought for and the principles he believes.

"God rest you merry gentlemen," as the year closes. It is time to look back and learn to remember to not take things for granted. Much has been accomplished this year through patience and perseverance. An Activity Fee and Student Representation on Faculty Committees to name two, and proposals for Open Housing and No Curfews still pending. But, rest should not be idle. There is always time for understanding and individuality and involvement.

"Oh, star of wonder," what will the new year bring? Perhaps more changes, more revisions, more freedoms. Perhaps, even more important, understanding and communications between groups. Even compassion and a respect for the individuality of personal wishes might occur. Nevertheless, a year with hope and promise for those who are willing to be patient and humble.

And, TO ALL A GOOD NIGHT!

THE SPIRIT OF THE SEASON

Christmas has been a bit different on Campus this year. There has seemed to be a new and special atmosphere pervading the wintry air. Look around and see how Wilkes students who are living away from home have become thoroughly caught up in the holiday spirit. Festive lights, greens, wreaths, and trees decorate nearly every dormitory — put up during long hours of work, following long hours of preparation. Yet, we doubt there were complaints, even though such preparations had to be done between the million of papers and tests profs consistently bestow during the last week or so before a vacation.

All of this working together exemplifies the spirit of the season. And not only students have worked together, but more than one housemother has put aside hours of her own time making cookies and cakes, helping plan parties, and making stockings and tree ornaments.

The President of the College demonstrated his Christmas spirit by donating many, many trees to dorms. Though we doubt he expects thanks for his generosity, we feel he deserves the appreciation of the recipients of his gifts.

There are some who prefer to remain anonymous during the season, but in doing this they display the true spirit of giving — the wish to make the receivers happy, not the wish to garner thanks and praise. To our favorite "St. Nicks," whose anonymity we shall preserve in deference to their expressed wishes, we offer a sincere thank you for making this Christmas season at Wilkes truly filled with fun and certainly the best we have ever enjoyed.

There are so many more people to be thanked — those chairmen of the Christmas formal who opened the holiday party season on such a festive note; the cafeteria staff and IDC who planned the always beautiful Christmas dinner; IDC (again) which put so much time into the party on Wednesday night — and it was a perfect way to bring everyone together for a last holiday bash; the music department that provided us with several concerts presenting the music of the season; the workmen who put up trees and wreaths all over the Campus; and the cleaning ladies who did not seem to mind picking up the mess we left from all of our celebrating.

If we have forgotten any person or group who deserves our gratitude, we ask their forgiveness. And to all those named — we wish the merriest of holidays, and much peace and happiness in the new year.

Greetings From Ed Manda

Dear Friends,

May I wish you a merry Christmas and good luck and best wishes for the coming year.

My memories of you are very fresh and I hope we shall meet again in good times. Here in Zambia like in America I am having a very worthwhile time.

Yours always,
Edwin K. Manda

Annette Evans Dead; Loyal Wilkes Friend

Miss Annette Evans, a close friend of Wilkes, died recently in the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital. As a long-time member of the board of trustees, Miss Evans contributed a major portion to the development of the college by devoting time, talent and financial aid.

However, Miss Evans did not restrict her activities to the college. She has left behind traditions and was the founder of artistic projects for the community.

She conceived the idea of a Fine Arts Fiesta, and, after a decade of devotion to the project, placed it in new hands. She saw the fruits of an idea and through acting in an emeritus capacity, she still was there for guidance and aid.

Miss Evans was one of those who "never grow old." While traveling with the Jitney Players, a professional group of college students, she wrote, directed, and produced numerous plays and entertainments for various organizations. Then, after a year of tours, she returned to the community to found the Little Theatre, and served as its executive director for many years.

Miss Evans was born in Wilkes-Barre March 27, 1893, graduated from the former Wilkes-Barre Institute and Bryn Mawr College. During World War I she served in the Wyoming Valley Motor Corps of American Red Cross. She later did free-lance newspaper work and professional publicity for local charities and organizations. During this period she worked in Wyoming Historical and Geological Society on a statewide Indian survey which led to the formation of the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology.

In 1957, Miss Evans was named a Distinguished Daughter of Pennsylvania in recognition of her public service in the arts and history and unique service to central Pennsylvania.

Annette Evans was involved in more things than can be mentioned here. She was involved in such different causes as being president of Tri-School Alumni Association of Wyoming Seminary Day School to being a board member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The work she most efficiently accomplished and, Miss Evans herself, will be missed in civic and cultural circles in the community, but she has left behind much for others to carry on. And here at Wilkes, we will miss a true and generous friend.

Our First Snow!

Snow!

There's a chime in the glitter of the snow.
There's a song of the frost, there's a whistle of the ice.
In the breeze there's a gentle blow.
The sun — it's lost. Winter is nice.

The birds have a wanting to fly,
I can hear their cry.
The wings have a sound.

The winter has snow piled on high,
All is white on the ground,
All is white in the sky.

Dorms Celebrate...

Parties To!

IDC Leaders Criticize Gap In Credibility

The regular IDC meeting was held December 9. Vice-President Bill Kaye presided over the meeting, the normal business of which consisted of announcements and discussions concerning the All-College Christmas Party, IDC Christmas dinner, concession dates, and reports from IDC committees. Plans were also formulated for Little Brother-Sister weekend and Incoming Freshman Weekend.

A question was raised by one representative as to the current status of the IDC proposals now under consideration by the Administrative Council and the Council of Deans. These include the open-house visitation program and a review of womens curfews. President Drew Gubanich offered both a report and an opinion on the progress to date.

He expressed his most vehement displeasure with those members of the student body who consistently make the job of explaining and negotiating these proposals much more difficult than it need be. "The students' continuing exhibition of a lack of patience, and their insistence upon believing campus rumors about the progress of these proposals can serve only to delay the decision that has already taken too long," Gubanich also made it quite clear that he and Kaye are dismayed over the credibility gap that exists between the dorm students and the IDC officers who represent them. Gubanich continued, "Students with questions should ask their IDC representatives to get the facts, rather than accept unqualified statements."

Vice-President Kaye then informed the council members that the proposals were being given careful consideration and would be continually discussed throughout the Christmas vacation. Kaye continued with a comment directed to the representatives, "You think you are frustrated; how do you think Drew and I feel after putting in long hours of discussion with individual students, each dean, and the Council of Deans?"

Bill continued: "It's unfair that the Council of Deans, and particularly Dean Ralston, are continually criticized for their lack of action when it has been these people, and especially the Dean who have 'bent over backwards' to get these proposals a fair hearing." Next followed a combination of statements where Drew and Bill explained that it was up to the IDC representatives from each dorm to stop being "pencil-pushing secretaries" and start taking the information given them and delivering it on a first-hand basis to dormitory students.

REPORTER AT LARGE

I read an interesting article in Ladies' Home Journal recently. I confess right now that I am plagiarizing the idea. The writer made up her Dream Guest List for her Dream Party.

Now, as the holiday season descends upon us, I decided it might be fun to give a Dream Christmas Party. (It's much less work just to dream up parties!)

First I made up the guest list. I figured Dad would yell if I brought more than 12 people into our apartment, even if he did fit in 30 last New Year's Eve! Besides, a small guest list leads to more stimulating conversation . . .

Maureen Klaproth

I ended up with Paul Newman, Bob Considine, Ingrid Bergman, John Lindsay, Moshe Dayan, Walter Cronkite, Neil Armstrong, Bill Cosby, Spiro Agnew, David Frost, and my roommate. (Nancy was hurt that I nearly neglected her. So I crossed Dick Burton off my list since he never invited me to any of his soirees anyway! Besides, Nancy offered to serve the hors d'oeuvres.)

Naturally, everyone accepted my invitation to the party of the year. I knew they would. I instructed my family to stay upstairs and watch TV in the bedroom so they wouldn't ruin my party. Daddy took out a loan at the bank so I could pick up a chic little Givinchy hostess ensemble.

Nancy and I decided to make everything ourselves to save money on the caterers. All afternoon we slaved in the kitchen making the canapés, preparing a casserole and putting together an exotic flaming dessert.

I figured I'd just come out and tell the guests they could choose between ginger ale and Coke because I'm not 21 and those crabby people at the State Store didn't understand about my party.

When the doorbell rang I braced myself and said, "Don't get shook now, Maureen. After all, they fell over themselves to come to your party. They're just people."

I flung open the door in my best Loretta Young manner, and . . . blew my cool! There stood Paul Newman. His eyes are blue. I stared. He walked in and looked around. He turned and smiled, "I parked my VW next to the pool. Okay?"

Just then Nancy bounced out and started talking about tinted blue contacts. He seemed offended so she said, "You were great in 'Easy Rider.'" Paul sat down and glared.

But there wasn't time to brood about the bad beginning. The guests started coming quickly. Spiro came with two Secret Service agents—so I told Nancy to set extra places fast. The agents started frisking the guests.

Then in my merriest voice I announced that everyone could help trim the tree. Paul Newman glared. Moshe Dayan glared. I whispered weakly, "It's really a Channukah tree," and handed them bagels.

I asked Spiro to sit on the coffee table since a columnist had recently called him "the best conversation piece in Washington." I saw Walter Cronkite approaching him. I put myself between them and asked Walter, "How's Eric Sevareid these days?"

As the guests busied themselves with the tree I took the opportunity to talk to my hero, Bill Cosby. Everything I said he answered. "Right!"

Then I found Neil Armstrong stepping slowly down the stairs mumbling "One small step for man . . ." He proudly displayed a rock from my brother Jamie's precious stone collection.

John Lindsay kept picking up the stray tinsel, shouting "Give a damn." I asked him not to get upset about a little litter. He gave a speech to the assemblage on pollution.

Bob Considine found my portable typewriter. I leaned over his shoulder. It read, "Dateline, Mechanicsburg, Pa. Under the glistening lights of a mediocre Christmas tree . . ."

I called the guests to dinner. Nancy animatedly entertained them with a running dialogue on the irrelevancy of college education and described her last whirl through Ithaca. The jetsetters sat spellbound. Suddenly she yelled, "Don't move!"

Ingrid Bergman found the blue contact under the stereo. I sent the guests into the living room with their after-dinner Cokes. Nan and I did the dishes. When I finished I walked into the living room and found David Frost interviewing my sister, Mindy.

"I've always wanted to be a commercial artist," she was saying in a Lee Radziwill voice. "But I've become so celebrated since I've been written up in the Wilkes College Beacon that I think I'll skip that scene and try acting."

David asked another question in his crisp English accent. Mindy coolly answered, "Oh, Maureen is okay as a sister and all, but her writing has definitely reached its capacity."

I grabbed her candy cigarette and said, "It's past your bedtime. Cinderella! Where is everybody?"

Mindy shook hands with David and replied, "They all went upstairs to watch TV in the bedroom with Daddy."

Matmen Blank K-Town, C.W. Post

Grapplers Gain 6 Straight Pins For 46-0 Rout

by Joel Fischman

The Gold Horde are well on their way in improving last year's 14-1 record as they ran their unbeaten streak to five matches by blanking Kutztown State College, 38-0, and demolishing C. W. Post, 46-0. It was their ninth straight win stretching over from last season.

Enroute to both Colonel victories, the matmen put together eight decisions, six of which were consecutive against Kutztown, and 10 pins. Against C. W. Post, Coach John Reese's charges took six of those pins in a row, followed by a decision.

Tomorrow the Colonels put the season string on the line as they face their toughest opposition to date in N.Y. Maritime. Last season the Wilkesmen edged Maritime, 12-16, here at Wilkes. Coach Reese commented, "They have a full team returning from last year so this meet should be the toughest of the season." The action takes place at Fort Schuyler, New York.

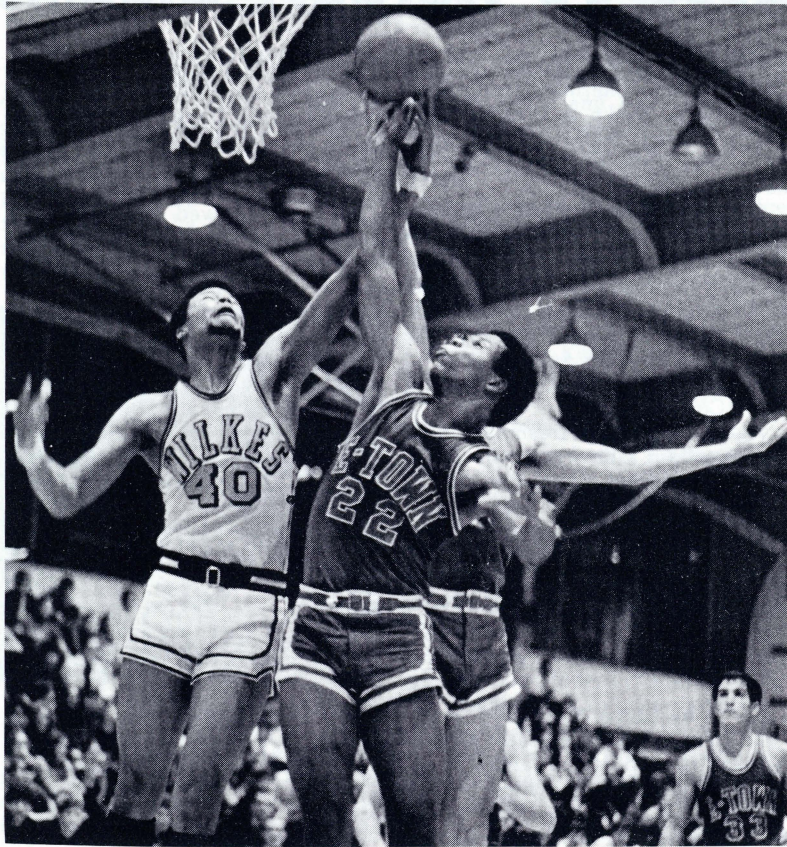

Ron Fritts, 190 pounder, headlined both victories as he totally dominated his matches and pinned his opponent from Kutztown in 18 seconds and against Post he turned the trick in 25 seconds.

Freshman Jay McGinley got things rolling for Wilkes against K-town with an impressive 5-0 decision. Andy Matviak followed suit as he took an 11-6 decision.

John Marfia deviated from his teammates by registering a pin in the second period. Tom Morris then took a lop-sided 18-3 decision against his foe from Kutztown.

Brian Lott provided a little excitement as he just managed to hold on to an 11-10 decision. Then Al Bellner took the mat with a quick pin in mind. With only 1:22 gone in the first period, "Snake" got his pin.

EXTRA EFFORT. Forward captain Herb Kemp gives that extra effort to snag rebound from E-Town players. Colonels lost, 97-82.

Rich Ceccoli followed Willets in the win column as his opponent was disqualified for stalling. Referee Robert Davis ended the bout with 1:58 remaining. Leo Roan climaxed the victory by shutting out his K-town adversary, 6-0.

Enter C. W. Post, Saturday, December 13. Exit C. W. Post, on the very short end of a 46-0 trouncing. Never has a team dominated a wrestling meet as the Colonel grapplers did that evening. They accumulated seven pins, six coming consecutively.

Jay McGinley opened this meet against Post by taking an 8-2 decision. Andy Matviak captured his 34th lifetime win by pinning Al Gonzolaz. Fellow captain John Marfia captured his fifth pin of the season by taking down Mike Ware in the first period. Tom Morris pinned Pete Martin in the second period.

Dennis Verzera made his initial appearance of the season against Post after recovering from an illness and his first bout was a success. Verzera outmoved, outraced, and out-thought his foe from Post and pinned him in the final period.

Then "Snake" made his appearance and picked up his fifth straight pin in the 158-pound class against Don Mores. Gerry Willets followed with another pin, the sixth in a row for the Colonels.

Rich Ceccoli broke the pin streak but kept the shut-out intact to take an 11-0 decision. Ron Fritts go the final pin of the evening as his opponent hardly had time to breathe before the ref raised his hand. Leo Roan finished the evening as he won by forfeit.

The Jayvees, coached by Ted Toluba and led by Al Favata, Ed Rupard, Bill Lukridge, and Tom Grant, won their matches against Kutztown by a 22-8 margin. They compiled two pins and four decisions enroute to their victory.

Cagers Go 1 For 3 Enroute To 3-3 Card

by Rick Bigelow

The Wilkes College Colonels beat Drew University 94-43 Saturday night after losing to Philadelphia Pharmacy, 81-76 Tuesday night and dropping a 97-82 decision to Elizabethtown the following evening. The Colonels are now 3-3 on the season and 1-2 in the MAC.

Tuesday night, the surprisingly tough Pharmacy team jumped out to an early lead and held on to lead by 7 at the half, 35-28. In the second half, the pace of the game quickened and the Wilkesmen outscored their opponents by two points, but were unable to close the gap sufficiently and the result was a five point loss.

Wally Umbach led the Colonel attack with 28 points, his career high, coming mostly on his patented jumpers from 20 feet out. Rich Davis had 15 and Jay Reimel just missed doubles with 9 points.

Wednesday night, the Colonels faced the tough Elizabethtown Blue Jays. The Colonels greeted the visitors with a full court press at the beginning of the game and jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead on two goals by Rich Davis and a jumper by Frank Jannuzzi. With 16:10 showing on the clock, Jay Reimel sank a foul shot to give the Colonels a 9-4 lead. Wilkes did not score again for the next three minutes and in the interim, the outside shooting of Wil Richardson and Charlie Mock enabled the Jays to score 10 straight points and to take the lead which they never relinquished. Both teams traded baskets for the remainder of the half until with 1 second left, Richardson sank a 25 footer to give the Jays an 11 point lead at the half, 47-36.

The second half found the Colonels forced to play catchup ball. The well-disciplined E-towners never blew their cool and remained ahead by at least 10 points throughout the first 7 1/2 minutes of the second half. With 12:40 left on the clock, the Colonels again resorted to their zone press. The visitors had no trouble with the press and consistently found themselves three on one against Rich Davis, the Wilkes safety man. With 7:24 left in the game, Mock hit a 25 footer to give E-town its largest lead of the night, 82-61.

Shortly thereafter, Sophomore guard Terry Jones entered the game and the Colonels went into a man-to-man press. Jones and Reimel sparked a strong Colonel comeback which enabled the Blue and Gold to cut the lead coming within 8 points of the visitors at the 2:30 mark, 84-76. The visitors then scored two quick goals and led by 12. From that point on, they went into a freeze. The Colonels were forced to foul to regain possession of the ball. E-town converted several key one and one situations and went on to win 97-82.

Wally Umbach again led the scoring with 26 points on 12 of 22 from the floor and 2-4 from the foul line. Rich Davis had 14, Herb Kemp and Jay Reimel had 12 each. Frank Jannuzzi was the 5th starter in doubles with 10.

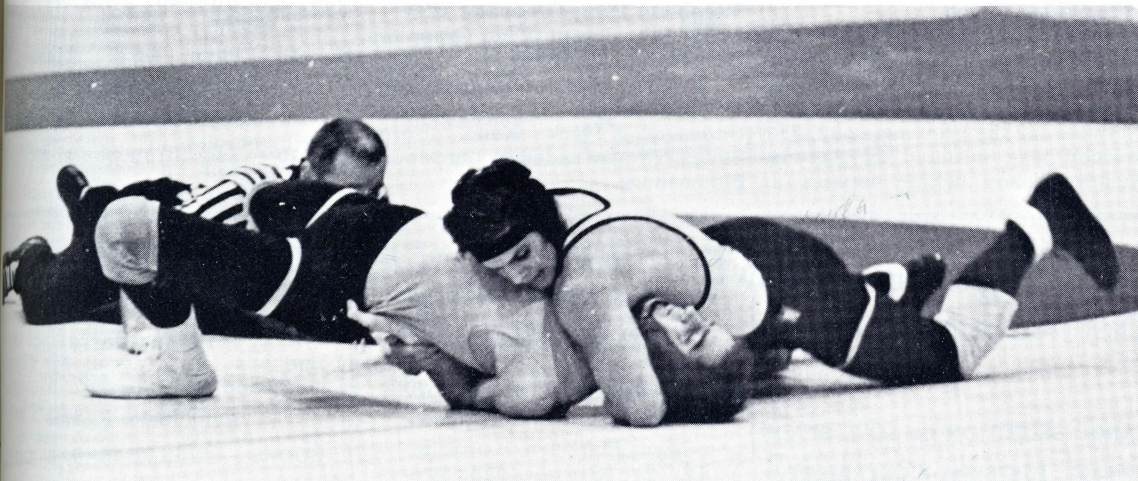

Saturday night, the Colonels completely overwhelmed visiting Drew University. The Colonels never trailed in the MAC game as they evened their season's record at 3-3.

The highlight of the evening occurred with a little over 19 minutes left in the second half as Jay Reimel passed to Herb Kemp at the top of the key. Kemp proceeded to sink a 25 foot jumper to register the 1000th point of his illustrious career at the College. The game was halted and Herb was presented with the game ball as the fans gave him a standing ovation.

Coach Rainey substituted freely in an attempt to keep the score respectable and consequently all the Colonels saw a great deal of action.

Wally Umbach led the Wilkes scoring with 21 points hitting on 9 of 15 from the field and 3 of 4 from the foul line. Rich Davis

Alex Hannum, recently appointed coach of the San Diego Rockets in The National Basketball Association, commented, "You can't win in this league unless you have a bald-headed coach and a bearded center." The Colonel hoopmen don't have a bald coach, to the happiness of coach Ron Rainey, nor do they have a bearded center. But they do possess a bearded forward.

Herb Kemp is the player in reference. In last week's game against Drew, Herb cracked the 1,000-point margin by hitting a 20-foot jumper hoopsters commented in due fashion, "It's nice to have, but I've got to get moving, get off this slow start." Compared to past seasons this is a slow start for the 6-3 forward.

pulled down 257 rebounds.

As he said, this season is beginning slowly. Against Drew he scored 13 points to bring his total to 48 points. But if anybody pushes himself to improve, it's Herb.

Equally important to his scoring, Herb's presence on the court does wonders for his teammates and strikes fear into opposing players. Center Rich Davis said, "It's good to know Herb can clear the boards in case I'm out of position. He's great."

Many times an opposing player driving from the baseline will stop his drive when he sees this imposing, bearded figure blocking his path. That quality and the others mentioned here are the reasons Herb was selected to captain Coach Rainey's squad this year. He takes the position seriously: "I'll have to set the example by doing, not talking this year." Herb doesn't talk that much on the court but he does a lot.

The grapplers of Coach Reese have currently won nine straight matches and one must wonder how good they really are. Their latest match, rather a mismatch, saw the matmen walk over C. W. Post 46-0. They recorded seven pins, six of them coming consecutively. In the previous match, the matmen shut-out Kutztown.

It seems this year 190 pounder Ron Fritts has developed a matphobia. He just can't stay on the mat for longer than a few seconds. It all started last year against Lycoming when he pinned his man in 14 seconds. It's evident the phobia has recurred this season. Ron pinned his opponent in 18 seconds against Kutztown, which was the second fastest pin in Wilkes history. (Naturally, Ron holds the record for the fastest pin.) Then last Saturday against Post he pinned Ed Schmidt in 25 seconds. He works up more of a sweat in practice than at the meets.

With the entire wrestling team wrestling so brilliantly, you don't know where to start. However, the most logical place is the coach. For years, Athletic Director John Reese has produced stand-out teams, but this year he just might out-do himself. The coach is a very modest man who doesn't hesitate to shy away from attention. But his actions speak for themselves and the school should be grateful and appreciative of his abilities. Besides being a member of the rules committee for the NCAA, the coach was recently appointed a member of the coaching committee for the United States Olympic teams.

There seems to be some perversion of justice here in America when a person convicted of evading the draft is allowed to run around the country for years appealing the case on the grounds he is a minister while trying to resume his boxing occupation. Cassius Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he was called before being dismissed from the Black Muslims, is now trying desperately to arrange a bout with Joe Frazier.

Rightly so, Americans are speaking up to prevent this. The fight was scheduled for Orlando, Florida but Florida Governor Claude Kirk asked promoter Ron Gorton to call off the fight because of large public sentiment against the fight.

They couldn't be more correct. Any society that allows a convicted citizen to roam the country free and at the same time speaking out against that country is definitely crazy. If anybody is to be a hero, it better not be Cassius Clay.

There was some negative transformation of Clay ever since he won the world heavyweight title from Sonny Liston in Miami Beach. From then on he became a tool of the Black Muslims and a symbol of hate. His poems about the round he'd knock out his opponent were no longer to be heard. He became vindictive and vicious.

If anything, we must sympathize, feel sorry for him being brainwashed by that hate group. He certainly isn't to be idolized.

Stats for guard Wally Umbach this week are 75 points, converting 35 shots from 58, 17 rebounds and 15 assists.

Swimmers Drop Initial Two Meets; Lose To Harpur, Bloomsburg State

by Steve Jones

The Colonel mermen, trying desperately to shake a losing streak which began last year, dropped their first two encounters of the new season.

On Dec. 9, Coach Robert Corba's charges dropped a 61-34 decision to Harpur College and two new school records in a meet which featured some excellent diving by Colonel Doug Krinke. Last Saturday the aquamen lost their second meet in as many encounters to Bloomsburg State College, 64-31.

Against Harpur, freshman Rich Marchant set a new mark in the 50 meter freestyle in a 24.3 time. The 400 medley time was also broken by Owen Lavery, Dave Kaufman, Skip Fazio, and Jim McDonald. The four turned in a 3:56 time to chip four seconds off the old record.

The team showed good spirit and potential against Harpur and was supported by a good turnout of students. Top point-getters for the Colonels were Marchant, Lavery, Salsburg, and Krinke. The scoring went like this:

200 butterfly — Marchant, 2nd; 200 freestyle-Salsburg, 3rd; 50 freestyle-Marchant, 1st (record time of 24.3), Fazio, 3rd; 200 individual medly-Lavery, 3rd; diving-Krinke, 1st, Fazio, 3rd; 100 freestyle-Chip Eaton, 2nd; 200 backstroke-Krinke, 3rd 500 freestyle-Salsburg, 1st (6:27.4), McDonald, 2nd; 200 breaststroke-Lavery, 1st (2:45.8).

In the diving portion of the meet, Krinke earned a 5.5 from each judge on his final drive. Six points is the highest a diver can attain.

Last Saturday the Huskies from Bloomsburg invaded the Y and set back Corba's men, 64-31. The bulk of the Colonel scoring was accomplished by second and third-place finishes.

The meet opened with Salsburg and McDonald taking second and third, respectively in the 200 freestyle. Marchant took second in the 50 freestyle and was followed by Lavery and Kaufman, who finished 2, 3 in the 200 individual medly. Krinke then took second place in the diving competition.

The 200 butterfly saw the Colonels take their first number one finish of the afternoon. Marchant got it and was followed by Kaufman who took third. Eaton and Fazio finished 2, 3 in the 100 freestyle. Krinke and Sebacy followed with another 2, 3 finish in the 200 backstroke.

The meet was concluded on a 3rd place note as Salsburg and Lavery each took third in the 50 freestyle and 200 breaststroke, respectively.

The Colonels hope to break into the win column Saturday, January 10 when they travel to East Stroudsburg. Both the coach and team hope the fan support they've received continues throughout the season.

Bowl Game Predictions

by Steve Newman

SUN BOWL

El Paso, Texas: Georgia, 5-4-1, vs. Nebraska, 8-2-0. The Bulldogs of Vince Dooley have won only one game and one wonders what they are doing at a bowl. Defense Dooley's biggest problem.

The Cornhuskers under Bob Devaney have lost only to Southern and Missouri. Nebraska by 14.

TANGERINE BOWL

Orlando, Florida: Davidson, 7-3, vs. Toledo, 10-0. Toledo finished with a superior record. Both teams improved greatly over last year's finishes. Toledo by 10.

GATOR BOWL

Jacksonville, Florida; Tennessee, 4-1, vs. Florida, 8-1-1.

Doug Dickey's Volunteers have a two-year record of 17-2-1. They are a consistent club with a wide-open passing attack. The Gators lost only once this year and could provide an upset. Florida by 7.

PEACH BOWL

Atlanta, Georgia: South Carolina, 3-1, vs. West Virginia, 9-1.

The Fighting Gamecocks of Paul Hackett faced three major college teams this year and lost all three. Defense is the club's Achilles' heel. The Mountaineers' lone loss came at the hands of undefeated Penn State while they have beaten Syracuse and Kentucky. West Virginia by 7.

ROSE BOWL

Pasadena, California: Southern California, 9-0-1, vs. Michigan, 8-2.

John McKay's Trojans are becoming permanent hosts at the Rose Bowl, having played there the last two years. This year their only blemish was a tie with Notre Dame. The game rests on QB Jimmy Jones. The Wolverines got to the Rose Bowl by upsetting Ohio State, which goes to show you what a team can do on any given day. However, they are inconsistent. It will be a rough game no matter what the outcome. USC by 7.

ORANGE BOWL

Miami, Florida: Missouri, 9-1, vs. Penn State, 10-0. The Tigers of Dan Devine have faced top-notch competition all year and aren't about to be blown off the field by Penn State. But the Lions are out to prove to President Nixon and the folks who the number one team really is. They also have the longest undefeated win streak in the country on the line. The QB, Chuck Burkhardt, is neither a good passer nor a runner but he is a proven winner. Penn State by 10.

COTTON BOWL

Dallas, Texas: Notre Dame, 8-1-1, vs. Texas, 10-0. The Fighting Irish of Ara Parseghian are making their first bowl appearance in their history. If sophomore quarterback Joe Theissman gets the time, he can pick apart the Texas defense. Darrell Royal's Long Horns are ranked No. 1 in the country and America's best losers. Their attack centers around QB James Street and halfback Ted Koy running the option. Notre Dame has its work cut out for it. As the mayor of Dublin would say... Notre Dame by 2.

SUGAR BOWL

New Orleans, Louisiana: Mississippi, 7-3, vs. Arkansas, 9-1.

John Paught's rebels are led by the amazing Archie Manning. He hasn't shave more than twice a week but he sure can fling a football. Arkansas outplayed and out-gamed Texas in its lone loss. The Razorbacks of Frank Broyles should be able to hold off Manning, until they build up a huge lead. Arkansas by 14.

Center Rich Davis Strengthens Team

by Stan Pearlman

Part of the reason for the Colonel cage team's poor start at the beginning of last season was due to the absence of this year's starting center, Rich Davis. This year with Davis in since the initial contest of the campaign, the Raineymen have run up a 3-3 record, with two of three wins earned on the road.

Rich Davis

Davis has been impressive in the opening outings of the campaign as he has managed to hit the scoring column for double figures in all but one of the Colonel's games.

Another added plus to having Davis in the lineup, centers around the fact that with him in the game, some of the pressure is taken off of Herb Kemp and Bob Ockenfuss. Consequently, the Colonels now have better all-around board strength than in the past.

To show what Davis' presence under the boards means to the cage squad, in the six games he has played this year he has managed to haul down a total of eighty-five rebounds for an average of fourteen a game. With Kemp also averaging close to fourteen rebounds a game, the Colonels have greater board strength than in past years.

Davis learned the fundamentals of the cage sport under the direction of one of the area's leading cage mentors, Joe Evan. During his high school career, he was a member of the Wyoming Valley All-Scholastic team, and 2nd team All-State.

Currently Davis is a business Administration student planning to enter private industry upon graduation from school in 1971.

Right now, however, he and his teammates are concentrating on improving their 13-11 record of last season. With Davis back in the lineup, the picture is bright for a new season won and lost record for the Colonel squad.

Bill reiterated that "it has become very clear and obvious that proposals will receive proper attention only if they are presented through the channels recognized as 'official' by the administration." Earlier this semester, November 20, Student Government President Dan Kopen made a similar policy-setting statement when he said that Student Government and the IDC are the best available means of effecting change on this campus.

Additionally, Drew told the IDC representatives that it is their responsibility to make sure that the dorm students know what is going on. He concluded his commentary on the subject by informing the representatives that they were expected to be aware of their dorms' general opinions on campus issues.

Dean Arthur Hoover, an IDC advisor, reminded the council it "is very easy to demand a quick reply." He cautioned the students, however, that such a reply "cannot be expected to be indicative of the careful consideration needed to reach a sound decision on these matters." He encouraged the members to give their officers full support, and he indicated to the council that Drew and Bill have been working very hard to process the proposals in a fair way.

Bob Vignoli, chairman of the IDC Food Committee, reminded the students that the Food Committee meets every Thursday afternoon with Mr. Denion in the cafeteria. Any student subscribing to the meal plan is welcome to attend these sessions. Mr. Denion will also discuss privately with any qualified student topics pertinent to the food situation. Kaye then told the Council that it does little good to complaints should register them during the same meal from which the complaint about the poor food service a week after the meal has been served. Students with complaints should register them during the same meal from which the complaint originates. Mr. Denion has repeatedly told the IDC officers that this helps to prevent other students from encountering similar difficulties. Conversely, this also assists the food service.

The meeting was adjourned and then Drew and Bill gave their own opinions, "off the record." Bill: "For as trying and frustrating as these long periods of waiting are, these continued discussions are the only means by which we have any hope of getting the proposals through." Drew agreed with Bill, and confided that he was "sick and tired of the drawn-out procedures," but nonetheless he admitted that he and Bill were convinced that "the present method in which approval of the proposals were being sought is the best possible method that IDC has to work with."

Staff Changes

Campus in Ashley Hall. Mary previously served as news editor of the paper. She has been active on orientation committees, in Cue 'n Curtain and the YMCA tutoring program. She plans a career teaching English in secondary schools.

Pete Herbst, a sophomore psychology major, will retain his position of sports editor. The son of Mr. and Mrs. David Herbst of Metuchen, N.J., Pete has been active as a freshman representative to SG and participated in varsity lacrosse. After graduate school he plans a career in clinical psychology.

Miss Cole, the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Cole of Wilkes-Barre, remains in the position of business manager. Ruth is a senior business major, who plans to teach after doing post-graduate work. She has been active previously on the business staff, the YMCA tutorial program and freshman orientation.

George Pagliaro assumes the role of exchange editor following previous work as a staff reporter. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pagliaro of Old Bridge, N.J., he is a sophomore English major who plans to teach on a secondary level. He is a resident of Warner Wing in the New Men's Dorm.

Miss Covine, a sophomore resident of Sterling Hall, will act as an assistant to the news editor. A history major, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Covine of Dover, N.J. Mary plans to attend graduate school following graduation.

Miss Wrightson is a sophomore biology major from Nicholson, Pa. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wrightson, she will assist the copy editor this semester. A resident of Sterling Hall, she plans to attend graduate school.

Ronnie Lustig, a junior business administration major, will continue serving in his role as assistant business manager in charge of advertising. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lustig of Orlando, Fla., Ronnie resides in the YMCA, and plans to enter the business field following graduation.

and Dave Kurosky were tied for second honors in the scoring race with 14 points each. Bob Ockenfuss and Herb Kemp had 13 points each. Davis and Kemp led in rebounds with 11 apiece while Jay Reimel had 10 assists.

The Colonels are at home tonight against Susquehanna and travel to Scranton tomorrow to do battle with the Scranton U. Royals. Coach Larry Kendig's freshman team swings back into action tonight at 6:30. The freshmen have a 1-2 record.
