Wilkes celebrates National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week

By ALLYSON HANNIGAN
News Writer

This week is National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week.

Wilkes University is recognizing the issues surrounding alcohol and its effects by hosting different events run by various student organizations on campus.

To start things off, on Sunday over 50 students participated in a 1.8 mile race from the Darte Center to Ralston Field.

The point of this was to stress college students' physical fitness.

On Monday, there was a promotional table in the lobby of the Stark Learning Center.

The theme was "Party Smart" advocating the idea of not misusing alcohol. Squeeze bottles, free coffee in free mugs and educational information was given out.

Tuesday night in Rumours, students from College Misericordia presented "Misericordia Loves Company."

Two skits were performed: one dealing with driving while intoxicated and relationships between men and women when drunk, and the other dealt with date rape.

Both skits were followed by audience interaction structured like a talk show.

After "mocktails," snack items and squeeze bottles were given out.

On Wednesday, 50 students participated in a white-out. These students represented those killed in alcohol related situations.

These victims had limited (see Alcohol, p. 4)

Heaman expected to recover successfully from his accident

By GINA M. TAGNANI
News Editor

Last Friday Dr. Robert Heaman, dean of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences, was exiting his car on Hazel Street when he saw a car coming at him.

He quickly shut his car door so that this approaching car wouldn't hit it, but after he shut the door the car was still heading right toward him.

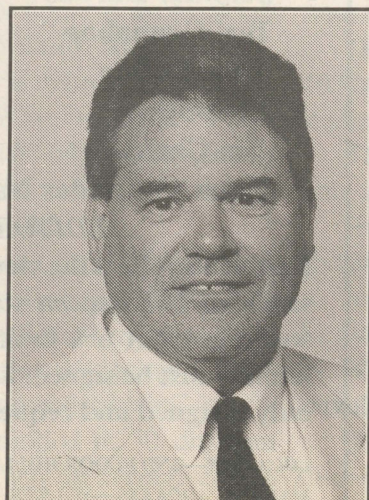

He attempted to jump over his hood to get out of the way but at the last second the car hit him.

Heaman suffered a dislocated hip and fractured femur bone in his right leg.

According to Dr. Michael Lennon, vice-president of Academic Affairs, Heaman was operated on yesterday to relocate his hip.

Heaman's doctor has confirmed that surgery was successful and that he expects Heaman on crutches in a few days.

No one can speculate as to when Heaman will return to the university.

"If he didn't jump out of the way he may not have been so lucky," said Lennon.

Cards can be sent to the General Hospital on North River Street in Wilkes-Barre.

Heaman's students should contact his wife, Dr. Patricia Heaman on the second floor in Kirby Hall or call her at extension #4538 for information on classes.

Editor's note: We at The Beacon would like to take this opportunity to bid Dr. Heaman a quick and healthy recovery.

AIDS Quilt coming to Wilkes

By MARLENE MATOSKY

News writer

"Remembering the Past to Guide the Future" is the theme of the week-long observance of AIDS awareness at Wilkes.

The NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt will be one of the many integral parts of this week.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt will be arriving Tuesday, November 30 and will remain on the Wilkes campus through Thursday, December 2.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt is composed of 600 three foot by six foot panels. Each panel commemorates the life of someone who has died from AIDS. Panels are made by friends, family members, and lovers of the victims.

As of April 5, 1993, the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt had 22,664 panels, weighed 30.1 tons with walkways that covered 14.6 tons, and had hosted 3,320,009 visitors.

Panels have been made for lesser known people as well as for more famous people.

They include: Peter Allen; Black and gay rights activist, Mel Boozer; fashion designer, Perry Ellis; fashion designer, Halston; lead singer of Queen, Freddie "Mercury" Bulsara; actor Anthony Perkins, Washington Redskins player Jerry Smith and AIDS activist Ryan White.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt began in San Francisco in June 1987 when Cleve Jones spray painted his friend Marvin Feldman's name onto a piece of cloth the size of a grave.

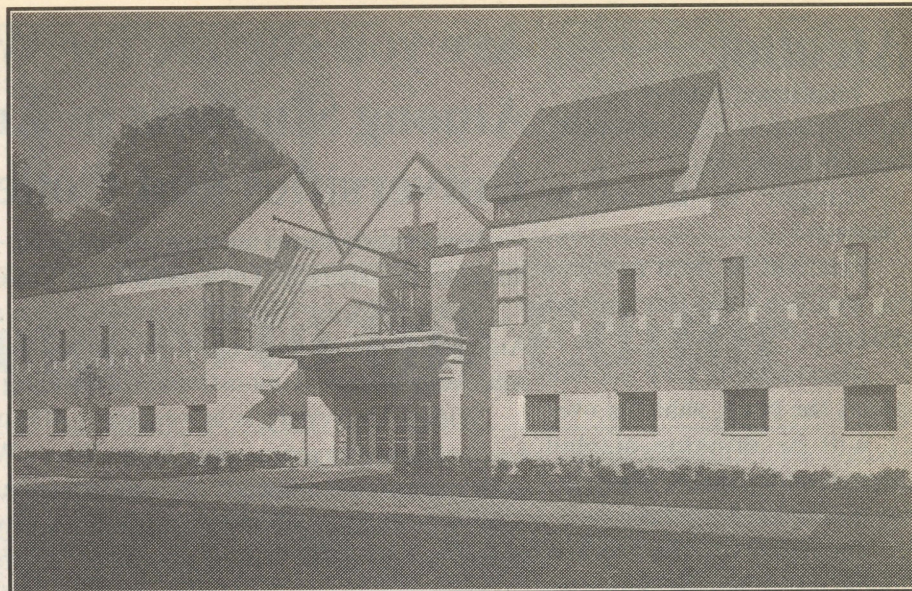

This was Jones' way of making people understand the overwhelming loss and frustration affecting him and many of his friends.

Soon after, thousands of people from across the U.S. and around the world expressed their emotions by creating homemade memorials from those they lost to AIDS.

The NAMES Project Foundation, the group in charge of the AIDS Memorial Quilt, displays portions of the Quilt worldwide in order to illustrate the enormity of the AIDS epidemic by showing the humanity behind the statistics, provide a positive and creative means of expression for those whose lives have been touched by the epidemic, and encouraging support for people living with the HIV infection or AIDS.

Any money raised from the Quilt display at Wilkes will be equally distributed to the Wyoming Valley AIDS Council and the Wyoming Valley Drug and Alcohol Service Incorporated.

This is just one activity during AIDS Awareness Week.

Marts Center dedicated

By GINA M. TAGNANI

News Editor

The main function of the Development Office is to raise money. The office decided that a good way to recognize the people who donated money to the university was to hang a plaque in their honor in different areas of the Marts Center.

Early in the campaign, the Development Office got a floor plan of the Marts Center and gave it to the donors with various minimum donations slated for each section of the building. The floor plan is complete and the areas have all been dedicated.

"It's a way for us to show how much we appreciate the gifts that we receive," said Tom Hadzor, vice-president of Development.

The Development Office intends to do this with the new buildings that are still in the planning stages and have already done so with Stark Learning Center, Evans Hall and the library.

Hadzor added that it is up to the students at Wilkes to carry on the tradition of helping the university after they graduate.

"Give back whatever you can. Whether it's $5 or volunteer services, it will all be needed and appreciated," said Hadzor.

Number of adult learners on campus is growing

By SANDY KENDIG & GINA M. TAGNANI

News Writer and News Editor

The office of Academic Student Services has recently completed a study of full and part-time adult students enrolled at Wilkes University for the fall of 1993.

There are 188 full-time adult learners; 101 are male and 87 are female. This figure is up from last spring when there were 133 full-time adults.

Although an adult learner is defined by the study as being 24 years or older, the average age of a full-time adult learner is 30. About 60.64% of the students enrolled are in their 20's; 29.8% in their 30's; 7.96% in their 40's and .53% in their 50's.

According to Dr. Paul Adams, Dean of Academic Student Services, the most popular major amongst the adult learners is psychology. Behind psychology is engineering and nursing. During the spring of 1993 business was the second most popular major.

The adult learners are enrolled in 30 different majors at the university and carry an average course load of slightly over 15 credits.

As indicated by the study, most adult learners have had previous college experience with an average of 58 credits brought in from other institutions.

Sixty-five percent of the full-time adult students are from Luzerne County, 18% are from Lackawanna County and the remaining 27% are from other counties.

The study also delved into the particulars of part-time students.

Out of the 576 part-time undergraduate students, 407 are 25 years or older. The average age of these students is 33 years.

The average course load of an undergraduate part-time adult student is almost six credits.

Home to 61% of the students is Luzerne County and 20% call Lackawanna County home.

Included in the part-time adult student study is the Keystone Weekender Program. This is a program run by Wilkes University to cater to the needs of the working students.

Of the 407 part-time, 118 adult undergraduate students are enrolled in the Weekender Program. Sixty-eight percent of the students are female, 31% are male and their average age is 35 years.

This study was compiled by Barbara King and is updated every semester by the office of Academic Student Services.

participation in our community throughout the day.

Tonight is karaoke in Rumours.

This will be used to stress that you can have fun without alcohol.

Also to show how alcohol affects the body, students over 21 will be drinking alcohol throughout the night while being monitored by police.

To finish off the week a double movie will be shown tomorrow. The movies are The Bodyguard and Rush.

Nomination forms are now available for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Since 1943, the Who's Who program has annually recognized American college students for their scholastic and community achievements and demonstrated outstanding leadership abilities.

Wilkes University is among the 1,400 universities and colleges nationwide represented in the Who's Who program. Since each institution is allowed only a certain amount of nominees each year, a committee of administration, faculty, and student body members will select Wilkes' nominees. The basic criteria that this committee will consider for nomination include:

1. Senior standing.
2. Minimum cumulative average of 2.0.
3. Active participation in college and community activities.
4. Evidence of potential leadership.

Anyone wishing to nominate themselves or another qualified senior can pick up a nomination form which can be found at the Security Desk in Stark Learning Center, Residence Life Office, and the Student Affairs office. These forms must be returned by November 1 to the Student Affairs Office.

Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Association creates awareness on campus

By PAUL JANESKI
Special to The Beacon

The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Association (L.G.B.A.) of Wilkes University has begun meeting for the 1993-94 school year.

L.G.B.A. was initially formed in the fall of 1991 as a support group for lesbian, gay and bisexual students, but we are now finding that the purpose of our organization is twofold: to provide support and to educate the student body about the diversity that exists in our community.

A university education is not just an assimilation of facts, principles, and skills as related to a student's respective field of study, but it is also a chance to be exposed to peoples of different color, ideals, religions, ethnicity, and sexual preference.

Through future educational activities we hope to create not just an awareness of diversity, but an acceptance of diversity. I would especially like to emphasize that our organization needs the support of all students who are interested in promoting tolerance and acceptance.

L.G.B.A. meets every Thursday at 11:00 in the basement of the Parish Hall at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, located on South Franklin Street behind Boscov's. Our campus Box Number is 1291.

EDITORIAL

This past Wednesday, approximately 30 Wilkes University students died. Actually, it was only a symbolic death. These Wilkes students were representing the thousands of students who die untimely deaths each year due to alcohol related accidents. Accidents that could easily be prevented.

As they painted their faces white, the students agreed not to speak (unless absolutely necessary) from the time they were arrested until 3 p.m. They also attached a sign to their shirts explaining what was going on. The signs read "I don't exist because of a drunk driving accident."

These students were met with shocked expressions, awed whispers and unfortunately rude comments. It is those people with the rude comments and snickers that I would like to address. The point of our demonstration was not to make you laugh but, to make you think. This was done to get you to realize that we are all mortal.

It doesn't matter who you are, if you get behind the wheel when you're drunk chances are you are not going to make it home alive. It is a very serious subject and if you think you can just laugh and blow it off, I think you should grow up.

Overall our point really hit home in many students. I was one of the white faces in the crowd and when it was all over my friend Stephanie Kramer said to me "you really scared me." This is the reaction we wanted because you should be scared.

You should be afraid of anyone who takes it upon themselves to drive while intoxicated. That person is not only endangering their own life but, the lives of others as well.

I am not trying to preach and I am not saying you shouldn't drink. What I am saying is that if you drink, please don't drive.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Did you ever go to the Wilkes University cafeteria with a gigantic appetite after a long, hard day of classes, look at the food, and then think to yourself, "Just exactly what is that?"

Well, if your answer is "yes," you're not alone. I sometimes feel the same way. I have nothing against the cafeteria, but sometimes the food it serves isn't always appealing to the senses of the sight and taste.

An alternative to forcing the undesirable down your throat would be to go to the SUB (a.k.a. The Snack Bar), located on the first floor of the Conyngham Student Center. The SUB provides a larger variety of food unlike the cafeteria. So you are bound to find something you like.

The SUB is open Monday through Friday, 7:30 to 10:30 a.m. for breakfast, 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for lunch, and 5:00 to 8:00 p.m. for dinner. Keep in mind that the Sub closes at 2:30 p.m. on Fridays.

So remember, the next time your mind poses the question, "Just exactly what is that?," you can answer wisely by telling yourself to eat at the Sub today.

Bernard Seeman

Dear Editor:

I once heard that a person's identity is defined by the sum of his actions. I can not identify with this because all of my life I have been repressing my actions to personify an image that is not me.

I have learned at an early age that my identity would not be accepted in everyday society and in my normal surroundings. The idea that identity can change is unknown to me because I have always known, in some way or another, that I was gay. Being gay is who I am, it is my life. But, is that really my identity or just one small part of it? Can my identity change within time or will I have a static personality and life? Different events in my life lead me to believe that I will always be gay and pressure will not change that.

When I look in the past, I can remember always having an attraction to men. At the time I wasn't sure if this was normal or not. I would look at the television and see the norm or heterosexual lives. It wasn't until I was about eleven that I began to realize that I was different from everyone else.

I began to look at the world in a different way and was always careful not to disclose my feelings to anyone. Later on, around the age of fifteen or sixteen, I began to hurt, not physically but emotionally.

I am now eighteen years old and I've come to a conclusion, I am not going to deny myself of an identity. I am gay and I am happy with myself. Here at Wilkes I found a group that is understanding of my feelings. I am comfortable knowing that there are others like me, my peers in particular, because they are the ones that can understand what I went through the most. You don't have to be alone!

Do not deny yourself of who you are just because you think that others will judge you. I know that it is not easy to discover who is "like you," but when you finally do, trust me when I say you will feel a feeling unknown before. That feeling is a comforting feeling and I guarantee that you will feel at home. I know I have and for that I thank you Charlie.

Dear Editor:

This letter is one that should have been printed in the last issue of The Beacon before the shortened summer break of 1993...

The issue which I have to bring up is the fact that Wilkes students in comparison to most local area colleges, had three less weeks of summer than everyone else. For example, in comparison to King's

-Wilkes' final exam took 3 days longer (9 days versus 6) and ended 2 weeks later

- Wilkes, instead of starting classes on a Monday for the Fall semester, starts classes the Wednesday before.

-Wilkes goes back to class a week later than King's after Christmas break

What does this equal. A staggering loss of three weeks worth of paychecks. We pay the same amount of money (if not more) for a college education and we get three weeks less worth of break! Why?

Perhaps it is to accommodate a faculty and staff pay raise. Though the administration can try to cover up everything with the intercession and other things., the fact remains: When you're at Wilkes, you're getting paid to be there those three extra weeks. When we, the students, are not at our summer jobs and are victims of poorly arranged scheduling, we are not getting paid!

One extra week of Christmas break should not snowball into a three week loss of summer break! I am not mentioning this merely for the sake of copying King's. I am mentioning this because if King's can get along with their classes with their scheduling methods, then we should do the same as well!

No Wilkes student wants to continue to be financially deprived by losing not only three weeks worth of paychecks, but also unemployment benefits!! You will be very hard-pressed to find that a Wilkes student in this day and age who can afford to sit on his butt the whole summer and not work to help pay for college expenses.

In addition to these three lost paychecks Wilkes students are not eligible for unemployment benefits. I tried. However, thanks to our administration and their scheduling prowess, we were only granted 14 weeks of summer when the minimum number of weeks one must work to collect unemployment is 16! So there you have it fellow students-At Wilkes, you get more of what you don't want and less of what you want for your money.

So while the faculty and staff of Wilkes enjoy their three extra weeks of paychecks and paid unemployment benefits we got:

- three lost weeks of summer rest and paychecks

-Denied access to much-needed unemployment benefits (we're financially high and dry and on our own for the next nine months thanks to you know who!)

Are we going to stand for this? I hope not! any student who values three weeks of pay checks and some financial help from the government during the Fall and Spring semesters should register their complaints to the Dean via the telephone, mail, or in person! Get involved! This is your money that the administration has taken from you! Stand up and be counted!

"You're Driving Me Crazy!"

By SEYMOUR BUTZ

The movie Driving Miss Daisy is a charming little flick in which the conflict appears to be over race. Upon closer examination, the conflict is once again male vs. female.

I know, you're stunned. A woman telling a man what to do? Or even worse, how to drive? No way, dude.

Yes, I know the you on a (or even day when State is on) a ride to the certain gentlemen, we all drill. Amanda call Sunday afternoon worse, this Saturday-Miami-Florida because she needs mall to procure superflu-need.

HE SAID

ous items. For the ladies : to buy more crap you don't

When you pick her up, the first thing she does is change the radio station to some Celene Dian garbage. When she's done with this, she will begin to critique every single move.

It's "You're going too fast," or "Would you hurry up; the stores close in 3 hours!" It's also at this point when you wish you could open Amanda's door and push her out of the moving vehicle. Or else take her for one of these Ted Kennedy rides where you go zippidy-do off a bridge and deal with accountability later. But I digress.....

For a real treat, have Amanda operate the vehicle, but never your vehicle. The first thing she will do is flip down the vanity mirror to view her lovely countenance, oh, about a million times. Why look at the road when I can look at myself? Good Attitude.

After avoiding a few thousand accidents, and successful cardiopulmonary resuscitation, you realize that you still must travel here with Amanda. My advice: use public transportation!

When Amanda and I had our weekly sit-down to discuss our bone of contention, she suggested the issue of driving. Someone has to do the thinking for this duo. Anyway, I thought of numerous phrases men use to describe women (e.g. driving me crazy, driving me to drink, etc.). Unfortunately for you, the reader, such clever humor has not shone through. To me, women are fine drivers. It's just the same as with other issues: keep your suggestions to yourself. Remember what HE SAID, gentlemen : women are why air bags were created.

By AMANDA HUGINKIS

Who's driving? It's one of those questions that have males and females argue right up until the minute the car is in motion, or maybe, until it stops. It seems neither sex wants to put their life in the hands of the other. (And after all of gender problems brought to light in this column, who would blame you?)

But driving means different things to the sexes. For females, driving is simply a means of getting from one place to another. (Ideally, from one mall to another. For males, though, driving is an experience, a chance to prove their manliness to a female who is in the passenger seat (or if guys had their way, in the back seat hanging on for dear life.

Take for example, a male's annoying tendency to pull up to a stoplight, glance over at the driver in the next lane, and then proceed to challenge the driver, if not to a race to the next stoplight. Just what purpose does this serve? Besides reinforcing the idea that men do really stupid things to prove that their still male and giving insurance companies a valid reason for charging their male drivers higher rates, not much.

Or better yet, how right refusal to ever ask for directions. Rather than doing the thing, which I guess is can't seem to grasp and asking for guys will lessly about a male's for directing sensibly why this comes directing drive around they're lost. Even worse, if Seymour's driving, he won't even let the female Amanda ask for directions. I have a feeling this stems from the fact that men usually don't have a clue anyway so being lost is a matter of habit. For females, this male quirk ranks right up there with not putting the lid down.

The real problem with this driving dilemma between the sexes is why guys usually get to get their gal in the car in the first place. Believe me, it's usually not to take her shopping. For some reason, younger guys like to turn the back seat of their car into their little bungalow of love. A piece of advice for such males, no girl I know likes the smell of cheap vinyl seats and Armor-all stimulating. So what she said to guys, keep your driving to the front seat.

Idle Chatter

By MICHAEL BUTCHKO
Columnist

The established format of this column appears to be a discussion of current and still poignant events. And the largest issue on everyone's mind is the issue of Somalia.

And how ironic. At a time when President Clinton is supposed to be stressing important domestic issues, the international scene commands top priority. The situation in Russia is being mentioned constantly, and the U.S. has a definite stance. We support Yeltsin in public, and privately we pray that someone stable remains in charge.

But what about Somalia? Our humanitarian mission is over. We have allowed food to get through to the hungry Somalis. So why are we still there?

If our current policy is to assassinate General Adid, we will be there for a while. And we still may never accomplish it. President Clinton had better make a decision. Fast. Before another dead American is dragged naked through the streets.

How about some chatter? Read any good Lambert Polls lately? If you have you see that Wilkes continues its drive toward the top. can you say "undefeated?"

I must confess: one of the most marvelous sounds in this world is Ernie Harwell doing play-by-play for CBS Radio. Harwell and Jim Hunter are broadcasting the Blue Jays, White Sox, and doing it to perfection.

How much better can baseball get? The Giants-Braves race is decided on the last day of the season. And people say it's boring? Not when Ernie's on the mike.

Back to Somalia: here's an analogy. If you call Domino's and they show up late do you shoot the delivery boy?

So as not to brake the stereotype of Americans as trigger happy war mongers, a local DJ said that the Somalis be careful or "we'll blow the sandtrap out of existence."

Lovely sentiment, don't you agree?

Speaking of sentiment, sincerest chatter goes out to Dr. Robert J. Heaman, Dean of the School of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences. Heaman sustained an injury this past weekend, and our wishes go to him for a speedy recovery.

That's all for now. We chat again next week.

Carlin gives Wilkes what they want

By CHRISTAIN BROWN

Features Writer

Well, it's over. All the publicity, the hype, the countless posters, announcements and plugs have all gone the way of the Dodo. For those who don't know already, I'm referring to George Carlin, comedian, and his stand up comedy performance held in the Marts Center last Sunday at 8:00 p.m..

Now, I love George Carlin as much as the next person, and I too felt the excitement as I stood in line at 6:30 outside the Marts Center, a line which by 7:00 stretched around the block. Each person was talking, laughing, and waiting anxiously for those doors to open and let everyone in in a mad dash for a good seat.

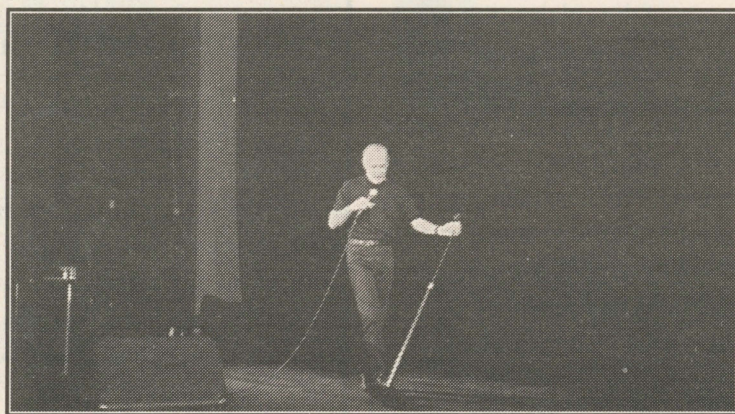

The words "please move to the right so people don't have to walk on the road" were repeated over and over again as Wilkes-Barre's finest did their best to control the crowd.

Then it finally happened, the doors opened. A cheer burst from the crowd's lips as people poured into the building.

Fortunate enough to find a front row seat, I sat on the right side, in front of the speakers. Not the best seat, but as anyone who has been to a rock concert can attest, not at all bad.

The show started promptly at 8:07 with an announcement

The first thing Blair did was shout into the mike making me question my seating choice.

It turned out Dennis Blair was hilarious. His mixture of political satire and musical knowledge were refreshing. He did everything from calling Clinton and Gore the see Carlin.

After Blair finished, a 10 minute intermission ensued. This gave us a chance to stretch, visit the bathrooms, or buy such items as Carlin t-shirts and tapes.

As before, the lights disappeared and Carlin ran onto stage, greeted by thunderous applause. It was finally here, the moment I'd waited for for weeks.

Carlin was on stage for 80 minutes and his comedy included such topics as abortion, things to do with sales clerks, things that piss him off, mysteries and common experiences that link people together, slams to religion (especially the Pope), his pets, baby boomers, his words that can't be said on television, and his list of alternate terms for male masturbation, numbering in the thirties. He even went so far as to wish death upon the venerable Mickey Mouse.

The impression one gets from listening to Carlin for an hour and 20 minutes is he is a man with a good grasp of how this country really works. He is a philosopher who interprets the inner workings of the human psyche, the country, and, on a broader scale, the world.

While avid Carlin fans could tell, roughly 80% of Carlin's material was used before. Even though this material is old, it is still applicable.

Carlin is a man that takes his humor to a realm seldom explored. While his humor amuses, it also teaches. Carlin does not encourage sitting idly and watching the world go by. He preaches to leave an imprint on society.

As he said on one of his previous specials, "we're only around for a little while, so let's take advantage, piss some people off, and leave an impression".

Carlin certainly leaves an impression, and is truly one of a kind.

As can be expected when you attend a Wilkes University theatre production, you are taken by the players into their world (read theatre.) The production of "Charley's Aunt" is no exception.

The show opened Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in the Theatre Lab. And what a show they put on. Upon entry, you are transported into Jack's room, a young British college man. Jack, played by freshman Tom Schurtz, is an ever frustrated man faced with the problem of being in love. His partner in crime, Charles, Dave LeBahn, sophomore, is a victim of the same. Together they try to find a way to engage their sweethearts, literally.

Enter Lord Fancourt Babberly, lovingly referred to as "Babbs," played by Bruce Christian, sophomore. This poor soul, "Babbs," gets suckered into Jack and Charles' scheme.

Alas, let us not forget Brassett, Tom Jarmiolowski, junior, whose job of trying to maintain order in this mess, becomes quite humorous.

The set of this production, a love child of Director/Designer Professor John Swanson. The set was incredible. The degree of reality was beyond belief as sets changed from Jack's room to the garden to a drawing room. In the two 15 minute intermissions the transformations occurred. The set changes were quick, orderly, organized and thorough. The production crew was on the ball.

The cast was also in good form. Tom Jarmiolowski took his small role as Brassett and turned it into a very humorous characterization of the arrogant but bored British butler. Bruce Christian, a/k/a "Babbs," a/k/a Charley's "Aunt," was a wonderful confused buddy thrown into a situation that grows to be out of his control. Senior Heather Petruzelli played her role of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez with just enough anal-retentiveness mixed with a touch of humor to pull this role off well. Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Eric Bailey, sophomore, played the concerned father of Jack, who has the miserable duty of trying to engage Charley's "Aunt" in marriage for "her" money, portrayed this role with the restraint a man in his position should have. Junior Joe Rasmus added humor as well with his out of control performance of Stephen Spettigue, the miserable money hungry uncle of Amy, and guardian of Kitty, played by freshmen Justine Caskey and Tara Schurtz respectively.

When the lights went down after curtain call at "Charley's Aunt," it is fair to say the audience walked out of the theatre feeling refreshed. This is a light show, full of humor and is enjoyable evening out (and free for Wilkes students.) So this weekend, when you are wondering what to do, impress your date, take him/her to the show. Maybe he/she will think you are a highly cultured-atristically minded person. After all, who has heard of the show "Charley's Aunt?" I personally think you should. The show runs Oct 7, 8, 9 at 8 p.m. in the Theatre Lab, CPA. For reservations call 831-4540.

National Hispanic Month celebrated at Wilkes

By LYNNMARIE ROSENCRANCE
Features Editor

Wilkes University and the VA Medical Center of Wilkes-Barre celebrated National Hispanic Month this year and had quite a turnout. Four events were scheduled featuring guest speakers, slides, a panel of speakers, music, dancing and foods from different Spanish speaking countries.

Dr. Victoria Jaen, a foreign language professor at Wilkes, and Mister Allen Zellner, Wilkes University Coordinator of Minority Affairs, organized the scheduled events.

The first event was a lecture entitled "Migrations and Immigrations, Who are we?" The lecture was given by Dr. Jaen. In this lecture she addressed the identity of Hispanics in America, as well as the political, social and psychological aspects that surround the immigration issue.

The second lecture was given by Dr. Juan Roig, MD, of the Department of Nuclear Medicine at the VA Hospital and Mister Robert Casterline, of the Group Travel Department at Martz, Inc. This lecture focused on Cuba, before and after the Socialist Revolution which empowered Fidel Castro. In this lecture, Mister Casterline relived his experiences of his travels in Cuba, the poverty, deprivation and repression of the people.

The third event was a panel of five individuals, some of whom are first generation American citizens and second generation American citizens. The board consisted of Godoleva Ayaldave, born in Mexico, Raymond Monzon, a Wilkes University student, Cuban but was born in the U.S., Conchi Valdes, born in Spain, Alberto Rodriguez, Cuban born in the U.S. and Huascar Castillo, born in the Dominican Republic, with Mister Allan Zellner as facilitator. The panel interacted with the audience through the question / answer presentation.

The final event was a Hispanic Food Festival, a celebration of food, dance, music and people. This event was the largest in attendance and capped the celebration on high spirits.

Dr. Victoria Jaen commented in an interview that the purpose of the celebration was to try to rid our community of the negative stereotypes placed on Hispanics. Along with the speakers, well established, successful, Hispanic businessmen and professionals attended these events. Dr. Jaen hopes that we can rid our community of ignorance and replace it with understanding.

Colonels travel to Juniata this weekend

WILKES-BARRE — The Wilkes University Colonels remained undefeated and became the lone team with a perfect record in the Middle Atlantic Conference (MAC) after beating Delaware Valley, 31-0, in front of 2500 fans on Saturday.

The Colonels are now 4-0, 2-0 in the MAC Freedom League, had been tied with FDU-Madison until the Jersey Devils lost 22-12 to Montclair State on Saturday night.

Wilkes will look to make it five straight when it faces Juniata on Saturday in Huntington with a kickoff set for 1:30 p.m. The Colonels are currently ranked third in the NCAA Division III South poll, fifth in the Lambert/Meadowlands poll, and 15th in the Don Hansen Football Gazette poll.

Wilkes once again had a super effort from the defense, limiting the Aggies to just 87 yards in total offense. For the year the Wilkes defense is ranked number one in the MAC giving up just 155.2 yards a game (74.0 rushing; 81.2 passing).

"We played a super game on defense," said Wilkes coach Joe DeMelfi. "We were able to get a lot of pressure on the quarterback and forced him to hurry his throws. It was a total team effort to limit them to just 87 yards."

The shutout, the second of the year for the Colonels, marks the first time since 1968 that the team has posted two shutouts in a season.

On defense the Colonels are led by Mike McCree with 42 tackles and Larry Trakes and Mark Buss with 31 tackles each. Trakes has five sacks and Buss two for the Colonels. Jake Cole has 25 tackles and seven sacks and three forced fumbles to rank fourth while Jason Feese has 24 tackles and two sacks.

In the secondary Joe Woodward has 13 tackles and Mike Modla has 11 tackles.

On offense, the Colonels are led by quarterback Boo Perry who is 60 of 105 for 897 yards with six touchdowns and four interceptions this year. Perry is now fourth all-time at Wilkes with 196 yards passing in just 12 career games.

When Perry goes back to pass his favorite receiver is Steve Endres who has 29 receptions for 443 yards and one touchdown to lead the MAC. Endres is now the all-time leader at Wilkes in receiving yards with 2209. He is now just 18 catches shy of breaking the receptions mark held by Anthony DiGrazia ('84-'87).

On the ground Jason Smith who rushed for 119 yards on Saturday and was named to the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Southern Division Honor Roll, leads the MAC in rushing with 362 yards (90.5 per game). He is now second all-time at Wilkes in rushing with 2314 yards and just 556 away from breaking Ted Yeager's ('68-'71) record of 2869.

Ryan Alston is second in both rushing and receiving for the Colonels with 104 yards on the ground and 13 receptions for 232 yards. Alston also has three touchdowns receiving and one touchdown on the ground.

The kicking game for the Colonels has improved with Joel O'Donnell hitting on 10-14 extra points and four of seven field goals, including a career long 40 yarder against Delaware Valley.

Looking ahead to Juniata, DeMelfi feels the team needs to stay focused.

"Just because Juniata is 0-4 does not mean a thing," said the fourth year coach. "They have been in all of their games and have been hurt by some turnovers. We cannot look past anyone because that's when you'll get beat."

"Our kids feel like they're on a mission right now and we, as a coaching staff, can't let them lose that focus," DeMelfi commented.

Juniata, coming off a 40-

12 loss to Widener on Saturday, is in the midst of a seven game losing streak dating back to last year.

Matt Baker and Matt Davidson are the two threats for the Indians with Baker having 20 receptions for 262 yards while Davidson has 14 catches for 193 yards and five touchdowns. Quarterback Wade Kurzinger is 48 of 122 for 591 yards with four touchdowns and seven interceptions.

On the ground Juniata led by Jim Roviello who has 193 yards and two touchdowns and Tom Dworshak who has 145 yards on the ground.

In MAC statistics the Indians are eighth against the Colonels, eighth against the Pennsylvania State, and eighth overall giving up 342 yards a game.

Last year Wilkes beat Juniata 13-6 last year with Aaron Wilk returning an interception 48 yards for a game winning score.

Yesterday, probably the greatest basketball player of all time decided to call it quits from the game of basketball.

The decision came as a shock to me and everyone in the sporting world because it came so unexpectedly. Why would a man at the top of his game just suddenly call it quits?

Tuesday night, when the story broke there were many different stories about why he was retiring. One station said that the media had forced him out because of his accused gambling problem last season. Another station reported it was a money issue, and he wanted to receive the kind of money the best player in sports should deserve.

Another issue in Jordan's life was the recent death of his father and some reports indicated that he could not cope without his father's guidance, which seemed like the most obvious reason.

After watching the press conference Wednesday morning, I found out that none of those issues were the reasons for his retirement. He stated that even if his father was alive today he would still walk away. Jordan then went on to say that the reason for his departure was that the desire to play just wasn't there anymore and that he had thoughts of retiring earlier enter his mind, but then he felt there was more for him accomplish.

Now there is nothing left for Jordan to prove. In his career he has won three MVP awards, seven consecutive scoring titles, two gold medals in the Olympics, the rookie of the year award, a National Championship in college, as well as NCAA player of the year.

Jordan has also done something that Larry Bird or Magic Johnson could not do, and that is win three consecutive NBA championships.

Jordan will be sadly missed by me and every other basketball fan not just because of the things he could do on the court, but what he did for the game itself and how he handled being the most popular athlete in the world.

At the press conference yesterday, he was asked if he would ever think about returning to the Bulls, he did not rule the possibility out, he just simply stated that if the desire was there to return, he would consider it.

People will speculate for years too come if Jordan made the right decision, and not that it really matters, but I think he made the right decision, because he's walking away at the top.

Well the major league baseball playoffs are here and I figured I might as well make a few predictions.

In the American League, the Blue Jay's experience will overcome Chicago's young guns. Toronto in five.

In the National League, even though I'm a die hard Phillies fan, I can't see anyone beating the Braves after the second half they've had. Braves in seven.

And in a rematch of last season's World Series, the Braves will finally come out on top in six games.

Also adding to effort was Samantha Smart with two kills and two blocks.

On Saturday, October 2, the Lady Colonels were on the road again at Marywood. The team was handed another loss on this outing (2-15, 10-15, 15-12, 7-15).

Colonels remain undefeated with 31-0 win over Del Val

By DAVID MCCABE
Sports Editor

The Wilkes University football team remained undefeated when they shutout Delaware Valley, 31-0, in front of a homecoming crowd of 2,500 fans.

The Colonels got on the board late in the first quarter when Jason Smith dove in from one yard out for Wilkes' first score. Kicker Joel O'Donnell's extra point attempt was good for a 7-0 lead after one period.

Late in the second period the Colonels would drive 68 yards in nine plays. The drive was capped off by quarterback Boo Perry's one yard touchdown run.

The Colonels would add three more when O'Donnell booted a 40 yard field goal with time running out in the first half for a 17-0 lead.

The second half was much of the same for the Colonels.

Arkenny Wade's one yard touchdown put the Colonels up 24-0, and early in the fourth quarter, Ryan Alston took a pass from Perry 23 yards for a touchdown, leading to the final 31-0 score.

The Colonel defense once again set the tone, allowing just 87 yards in total offense, including five sacks.

Leading the defense this week was Larry Trakes with six tackles and one sack. Trakes also forced and received a fumble.

Mike McCree and Jason Feese also had six tackles apiece, while Mark Buss and Chris Carr each had five tackles and a sack. Jake Cole added three tackles and 1.5 sacks.

The Colonel offense was led by running back Jason Smith who rushed for 119 yards and one touchdown on 25 carries. For his effort, Smith was named to the ECAC (Eastern College Athletic Conference) honor roll.

Perry had another solid performance, completing 13 of 20 passes for 157 yards and one touchdown.

Perry's favorite target was receiver Steve Endres who caught seven passes for 88 yards. Endres broke the Wilkes all-time receiving yardage mark with 2209 yards.

O'Donnell was perfect on the day, going 4-4 on PAT's and booting a career-best 40 yard goal.

The Colonels take their undefeated record on the road this weekend when they travel to Juniata to take on the Indians.

Women's soccer wins two in a row with win over Misericordia

By ERICA KRAMER
Sports Writer

The Wilkes University women's soccer team made history on Wednesday, September 29 when they defeated College Misericordia 2-1. This marked the first two game winning streak in the Wilkes women's soccer programs history.

The Lady Colonels were lead in their scoring attack by freshman sensation Jen Svelnys. Svelnys has been a consistent offensive threat to Wilkes' opponents.

Unfortunately, Coach Barrera's winning streak was short-lived. The Lady Colonels were handed a loss by a talented Drew club this past Saturday. Wilkes was again led by Svelnys who scored the only goal for her team in their 5-1 loss.

It seems the Lady Colonels luck, both good or bad, has been streaking in two s lately. After losing to Drew on Saturday, the Colonels were shut out by Scranton on Tuesday, October 4.

Veteran goalie Tanya Daigle and newcomer Michelle Shaffer have been holding their own in the goal on the defensive end.

Coach Barrera and his club will travel down the street to King's this afternoon in hopes of another victory to add to their 2-8 record. The matchup gets underway at 3:30 p.m.
