

Money's In, What Follows?

Because of the increased tuition assessment on the students for the forthcoming year, the Beacon decided to survey the students for their opinion as to what areas the additional funds should be utilized. The question presented to the students was: "If you were to have your choice, how would you like the school to spend your tuition?"

Donna Thomas — "We should have more modern classrooms. The dormitories should also be modernized but the same arrangement should be kept. Also, a wider curriculum should be initiated."

Leslie Stamer — As a dorm student, I naturally would think of the improvements and expansions needed in dormitory facilities. But more important, I think that the teachers' salaries should be supplemented. This would also provide more of an attraction to good teachers."

Ellen Wessel — "The best thing would be overall better classroom facilities. Stark Hall is fine for the science department but other departments deserve as much."

Joe Stallone — "Black socks, that's what we need. Seriously, funds should go towards the new library, then toward a new art building."

Dee Goodman — The money should be used for the equipment of a useful Student Union. The establishment of fraternities and the erection of fraternity houses would foster a better social life on campus."

Joe Brillinger — "The school should provide for adequately equipped facilities to enable students to listen to a variety of records. The system is used widely in several local colleges and libraries. It should be conveniently located, not stuck away in a corner of Gies Hall."

Peggy B. Havard — "More money should be allocated for political and controversial figures to broaden the horizons of the valley. It should also be used to make the campus "high camp." It should finance a senior trip to either the Poconos or St. Tropez. The money should also be used to buy back Martin Brennan for two more years."

Charles Petrillo — "What this school needs is a parkade with a swimming pool in the basement."

Bonnie Opella — "A well-equipped Student Union should be erected. The money should definitely be used for higher salaries for better teachers. Newer classroom buildings should be erected. A large dorm for women, comparable to the new men's dorm, is also needed on campus."

Bill Webb — "We should have a Student Union. The one thing being planned for next year is going to be ultra economy size but at least it's a good start."

Stephen J. Gaval — "Wilkes has constantly been expanding and complementing various facilities available to its students and the general public."

The Fine Arts Center has cultural presentations for both the students and the community, but one problem exists — when attending these functions, where does one park? We have a beautiful building but no parking space. What we definitely need is adequate parking facilities." Linda Sager — "I feel that we definitely need a new library."

Sharon Rosenthal — "Our library facilities are outdated. We should buy more new books."

Howard Weinberg — "We should be willing to pay for better instructors. The curriculum could also be improved by offering more and better courses. Finally, I would like to see a Student Union."

Barron Mkwaila — "A Student Union and new library are of vital importance. The diversion for day and dorm students would be very helpful."

Joel Thiele — "A proportion of the tuition from the students should be directed toward the establishment of funds to increase scholarships in proportion to the tuition increase."

Rite Now, Students Rejoice!

SG Reports New Officers, Amendments

by Vicki Tatz

Matt Fliss was elected Student Government president in the election last Friday. The remaining offices of Student Government were filled at a meeting this week. Al Saidman was elected vice-president; Joe Gatto, treasurer; Joan Kirschenbaum, recording secretary by acclamation; Sharon Daney, corresponding secretary by acclamation. Matt Fliss held a meeting of new members yesterday to discuss his philosophy of government and his plans for next year.

Student Government has passed two amendments to the constitution which will be voted on early next year. One changes the freshman class election for officers to early in the spring semester instead late in the fall. The other increases the quorum required for Student Government meetings.

Carl Siracuse and Dave Thomas gave a report to Student Government this week on the replies received from three colleges concerning student unions. Both of them, with the addition of Sharon Daney, will form a committee to work on plans for next year's student union. Student management of the union is recommended, as well as a constitution. They would like to see a lounge, television room, music room, and game room included. It is not certain yet whether the student union will be financed by Student Government or by the administration.

The Young Republicans were granted $125 for a conference May 6 and 7, which 13 members will attend. This money will be granted only if sufficient funds are available in the Intercollegiate Conference Fund.

Lettermen Shine

Today, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., the Wilkes Lettermen will be rubbing, polishing, and shining the shoes of our faculty and students for the minimum fee of 25 cents.

by Paula Eike

Spring Weekend is here, and activities will begin tonight at 9 p.m. in the Dorian Room of the Host Motel. Decorations for the Cinderella Ball will include table centerpieces of red, white, and pink pom-poms and carnations with white candles, and brandy snifters will be given as favors. Ray Barno and his orchestra will provide music for dancing until 1 a.m. Punch will be served.

The highlight of the evening will be the crowning of the Cinderella Queen, elected by the students from among the senior girls. The candidates are: Susan Evans, Marie Persic, Lois Petrillo, Rosemary Rush, Carol Ann Saidman, Vicki Tatz, Sharon Tormey, Janet Vanderhoff, Regina Watkins Wartella, and Beverly Wisloski. A first runner-up will also be announced, in case the queen cannot be present to crown next year's queen.

The crowning will take place at 11 p.m. Commentary will be given by Miss Charlotte Lord and Al Airola. The ten candidates will each carry a dozen pink roses, and the queen will be presented with a dozen red roses. Miss Jerri Baird, last year's Cinderella Queen, will be present and will crown this year's queen. The ten girls will be given silver charms as mementos of the ball, and the queen will also receive a bracelet. The candidates will also be given gifts donated by local merchants.

General chairmen are: Sharon Daney, Joe Gatto, and Judy Simonson. Committee chairmen are: Marc Levey and Joe Gatto, publicity; Tom Kelley, programs; Alice Fronduti and Mary Quinn, gifts; Paul Wender, tickets; Sharon Daney, Alicia Ramsey, and Irene Norkaitis, decorations; Jacqui Ruben, invitations; Judy Simonson, refreshments. Tickets for the Cinderella Ball are $3.50 per couple and may be purchased at the Bookstore.

The second event of Spring Weekend, the Intercollegiate Hootenanny, will be held in the gymnasium tomorrow night at 8 p.m. There will be 14 performances, three groups and eleven singles.

Two first prizes of $75 will be given, one for group and one for singles. One second and one third prize of $50 and $25 respectively will be given for either singles or groups.

Co-chairmen of the hootenanny are Matt Fliss and Jean Marie Chapasko. Tickets are 75¢ and can be purchased at the door.

Debate News

The final meeting of the Debate Society was held for the year. In accordance with the newly adopted constitution, the election of officers was held for the academic year 1966-67. Those officers elected were: Steve Shaiman, president; Daria Petyo, vice-president; Virginia Hahn, secretary; and Bill Cooper, treasurer.

IDC ELECTS YETTER TO TOP POST

Elections for Inter-Dormitory Council officers for the year, 1966-67, were held on Tuesday, May 3, in Stark 109. Elected to office were: Wayne Yetter, president; William Bush, vice-president; and Pam Eustis, secretary. Jim Mason was re-elected treasurer by acclamation. Both old and new I.D.C. members were eligible to vote, old members receiving two votes each if they had been re-elected to next year's council. All other members received one vote.

At this final meeting this year's president, Steve Van Dyck, read a presidential address which explained past projects of this year's I.D.C., which included: the support of the Greek orphan Zoes, the organization of skit night, the operation of refreshment stands in the gymnasium during athletic events, acting as waiters and chaperones at the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, giving a Christmas party for day and dorm students, creating and sponsoring little-brother, little-sister weekend, and organizing and taking part in Hampton weekend. The award for the outstanding dormitory student will be presented in the near future.

President Van Dyck stressed that I.D.C. gives the student a chance to take part in educational projects, adding that whether an event is a success or failure is not important. It is a memory. It is being able to look back at the event five years from now and seeing your mistakes and successes. "I.D.C. offers," states Van Dyck, "the student a chance to put ideas and thoughts into effect. It enables him to take a problem, originate an idea, translate that idea and implement a plan to see how the plan succeeds or fails." This, Van Dyck feels, is I.D.C.'s most important function.

The next I.D.C. meeting and the last meeting for this year will be conducted by newly elected president Wayne Yetter. Yetter, a senior biology major and a member of Hainna Hall, feels, "The year 1966-67 will mark the beginning of a great transitional period in the dormitory life of the College. The effects of the new dormitory are already being felt by almost every male dormitory student. The further separation of dorm and day students will have to be countered by combined efforts of I.D.C. and Student Government by conducting activities attractive to both groups. The Inter-Dormitory Council will have to play an even more important role in student life.

"Any transitional period is a period of problems. The problem of representation in the new dormitory is one such problem and has required an amendment to the I.D.C. constitution. Two representatives will now be elected from each wing on each floor of the new dormitory."

As president of I.D.C., Wayne Yetter stated, "It will be my purpose to guide the ambitions and efforts of the organization, to establish precedents in this transitional period which can be followed in the future. This is a formidable task, but with the cooperation and help of each I.D.C. representative, dormitory students and the student body in general, the year 1966-67 will be a year of accomplishment."

President Discusses Sr. Plans

The senior class held a special meeting this past Tuesday at the J.C.C. Charles Petrillo, president of the class, presented the proposals for the class gift and asked that any further suggestions be referred to a class officer before a final presentation and vote by the class at their last meeting on June 3. The senior officers and executive committee also invited the class to join with them in the setting up of a class fund to be financed by their future pledges as alumni of the College.

Dean Ralston spoke to the seniors concerning graduation activities. A list of year-end exercises and graduation information will be sent to each senior.

After outlining the importance of senior participation in the Library Fund-Raising Campaign, President Charles Petrillo closed the meeting with a motion and note concerning disposition of the class treasury.

Editorial

Letters to the Editor

Of Books And Money

The members of the student body have recently been asked to contribute to the Library Fund.

Requests for money from students usually elicit cries of disapproval from said students. "Don't they know that students are poor?" Why should I contribute if the library will not be completed until after I graduate?" Or the rebellious — "Why should I contribute? What has the College done for me?"

When these questions are considered individually, none of them contains any sound argument.

The letter of request states that the pledge may be remitted in two parts — one-half in the summer and one-half in the fall. With few exceptions, all students will have some form of summer employment. Surely it is not asking too much to set aside a small portion of these summer wages for the Library Fund.

The graduating senior may feel that he need not contribute to the Fund since he will not have any use for the completed facility. Certainly future students of the College ought to have all the advantages of a proper education in his time that the senior has now. Surely it is not asking too much to contribute a nominal sum to guarantee all the features of a sound education for future generations.

To ask what the College has done for you is to display one's ignorance. The College has given you the means to become a more responsible and a more knowledgeable adult. The College has introduced you to a wide variety of ideas in various fields which will give you a greater awareness of the world around you and which will also give you a sound basis for adjustment to this world. Materialistically speaking, the College has issued to you a passport to a superior financial future. In order to make these gifts available to many of us, the College has provided financial assistance. Surely it is not asking too much to show our appreciation for these favors by pledging to the Library Fund.

Yet, despite these valid reasons for student contributions, we fear that the student drive for the Library Fund will go the way of the United Fund and the Blood Drive. Nowhere.

It is probable that indifference, selfishness, and neglect will prevent the student from taking pen in hand and filling out his pledge card. In this case may we make a suggestion.

The senior class has voted to donate a portion of its Memorial Fund to the Library Fund. Perhaps the presidents of the three underclasses can discuss a similar plan of action. We doubt that anyone will argue the fact that contributions to the Library Fund are a much needed and a much appreciated gift at this time.

Of course, this suggestion does not preclude individual student donations. Individual and class contributions can only aid the campaign committee to realize its goal much sooner.

Student Attacks Outsiders; Upholds 'Lover Come Back'

Dear Editor:

I would like to ask 'Student from another College' who he was trying to impress by his letter appearing in last week's paper. In his comment about borrowing 'higher caliber pictures from one of the neighboring institutions', it seems quite obvious that he thinks Wilkes is not holding its own among area colleges and that the 'higher caliber picture' is not all that Wilkes should and could get from nearby institutions.

As far as his suggestion to replace the present change-of-pace type movie to an extension of classes, through lectures and purely educational films, he is thwarting the purpose of the movie. First, the purpose of the movie is to keep students on campus by offering them at no cost the same entertainment that they would go uptown to enjoy at a price.

Not that his suggestion for obtaining prominent individuals for lecturers was of value, but why take away an escape activity and replace it by something else to escape from. Perhaps this individual would just like to have Wilkes students roaming aimlessly around on Friday night in such depression that they have nothing else to turn to but a King's dance.

Secondly, our anonymous reformer says the incoming freshmen who attended the movie "are now under the impression that college life might be filled with "Lover, Come Back!"

If this is the case then how could he dare suggest showing 'Barabbas'. According to his naive opinion of the minds of the incoming freshmen, he could obviously foresee their disappointment when they find out that college life does not consist of sadistic violence carried out by a dirty mob following their twisted leader.

Oh the sheltered view of life this person must be subjected to at his present institution! Is it possible that he has been taught to put on airs and denounce such things whose only value is bringing a little happiness or relaxation into a hectic life? When a student denounces something like this, which was obviously an exception to the rule of strict education, I am sure he has fallen drastically short of the expectations of his college. So I therefore advise 'Student from another College' to step off his intellectual cloud and join the masses. As for his one-man reform show — well people in glass houses . . . and all that rot, you know.

Chere Supports Policy Of Non-Admittance

For the last 17 years the policy of the United States toward the Peoples Republic of China has been one of official non-recognition of the government and continuing attempts to prevent its admission to the United Nations. The question for us today is whether this policy is valid.

Before we can answer this question, it is necessary to understand the reasons for its inception. The reason for our non-recognition of the Communist government was the belief that the government of Chiang-Kai-Chek was the legitimate government of China and the hope for his eventual return. The expressed reason for our policy in regards to the United Nations was based on the continual aggression or threats of aggression which the Chinese aimed against her neighbors. But at no time has it been possible for any country to adopt a set policy toward another. The simple fact is that men and the situations in which they interact are in a state of flux. Nothing remains the same and this is especially true in the relations between the states in our world. With this thought constantly in our mind, we must examine the possibility of a change in our policy toward the Communist Chinese.

It is true that recognition of the Red Chinese government would strain our relations with the government of Chaing Kai-Chek. But that government now only governs the twelve million Chinese who inhabit the island of Taiwan. By no stretch of the imagination can this be called the true government of China, because it never had the support of a majority of the Chinese people.

While we find it difficult to admit the Chinese Communists did represent, after a fashion, the majority of the Chinese people, this does not mean that the majority of the Chinese believe in Communism. It means that they believe the Communists to be the only group capable of restoring peace and order to a China that had been burdened with civil and international war for more than 20 years. The more recognition of the fact that the Chinese Communists are the legal government of China does not imply abandonment of Taiwan — be cause before World War II Taiwan belonged to Japan; while some preliminary agreements had been reached to restore it to China, no formal agreement was ever reached. Therefore, while the Red Chinese may continue to state that theirs is the government of China they cannot claim Taiwan in spite of what they would have us believe. Thus we can legally recognize Red China and continue to support the government of Taiwan. This is what many of the Taiwanese would prefer because they have realized the futility of their old dream of a return to the mainland.

There are many reasons for the recognition of China. The two most important considerations would warrant a change in our Chinese policy are the ignorance of the Chinese leaders and the economic factor. The present leaders of China have shown and almost unbelievable ignorance of the outside world. They still talk, as they did in 1935, of a future day when the oppressed American masses will rise up and throw off the yoke of the Wall Street imperialistic capitalists. There are two main reasons for this ignorance: One is their belief in the doctrines of Marx interpreted by Lenin and Mao, which indirectly relate to the traditional Chinese belief that the middle-kingdom China and Chinese ways are superior to those of the rest of the world, and will therefore eventually dominate it. The second reason for this ignorance is the lack of contact. Most of China's present leaders beside Chou En-Lai, have not done any extensive traveling outside of China except for trips to Russia. Nor have they studied any other view of the outside world but that of Marx as expressed by Mao. What Mao has not realized is that the conditions extant in the time of Marx no longer exist, a fact which the leaders of the Soviet Union have obviously found true. The only way in which we can counteract this ignorance is by increased contact on all levels with the Chinese. But

Hail, Mizianty

Dear Editor:

We feel that Dr. Mizianty should be commended for initiating the extra-curricular seminar for biology 102 students who wished to further their knowledge and understanding of biology and its relationship to present day life.

Basic concepts in religion, philosophy and history have been touched upon, and, under his guidance, the inter-connection between biology and these subjects has become more real to us.

Dr. Mizianty has shown outstanding ability to bring alive a particular science and develop our appreciation of other sciences and disciplines.

We wish to express our thanks to him for giving of his time and knowledge, and we sincerely hope this experience may be continued next year.

Sincerely,

The Seminar Group

Bio Students Discuss Evolution At Seminar

by Carol Gass

Since the beginning of the semester, Dr. Thomas Mizianty has been holding informal seminars in the Stark conference room. Every other Friday about twenty enthusiastic biology students have met to discuss the implications of evolution. Extra reading material pertaining to the topics being discussed was assigned.

Dr. Mizianty began to teach biology 101-102 this year. He said, "I had organized discussion sections so that the students could relate biology to other fields, but I found that there were only a few students that actually participated week after week, and the discussions were not successful to the degree I expected." He organized the seminars at the request of several interested students.

At the final seminar of the semester, held last Friday, the topic discussed was "How Evolution Has Influenced Me." Many of the students felt that the study of evolution made them think and broadened their perspective. Some students found it difficult to reconcile evolution and the concept of an anthropomorphic Supreme Being. Others felt that the Deistic concept of a detached Creator who merely set the universe in motion could better be reconciled with the theory of evolution. The question was posed as to whether there could be a moral system not based on the Judeo-Christian tradition. A system, based entirely on a reality principle, with the basic axiom being human survival, was postulated. The seminary itself gave the students many new ideas. The students were asked their opinions of the seminar:

John Engle: "This is one of three groups that discuss various subjects. This is the most important part of college and the only way to ask questions and get any form of answers."

Sheryl Napoleon: "Aside from being stimulated, the seminar has made me more confused, but it has given me the comfort of knowing that I'm not the only one confused."

John Birkenhead: "This has been the most interesting, stimulating, thought-provoking course I have had and I hope I can attend more. I would like to see more participation by other faculty members."

Christopher Shaw: "The seminars have taken facts from the biology course and worked them into concepts. This should be the goal of education."

Carl Siracuse: "Not all students could participate in a seminar such as this, but for those of us who have volunteered, it has been invaluable and we wish there would be more in other courses."

Fliss States Policy For Coming Year

Dear Constituency:

I was heartened to see the number of votes cast in the presidential election. Sincerity is difficult to express, but I should like to thank you. I will assume the office of president and am interested in your reaction to my administration. Your disagreement will be welcomed since it is an indication of interest.

Student Government will be run as a tight ship. The question of purpose of clubs shall be reviewed thoroughly. Often they have proved to be parasitic in nature, serving no purpose other than perpetuating pleasure seeking through their shallow social activities. Those clubs whose activities do not meet with their purpose as stated in their constitution shall be plucked off the body of Student Government. There are of course worthy and valuable clubs to whom Student Government owes a debt of gratitude.

It will not be easy to establish my programs and coordinate the new Student Union, but with the help of the

by Joel Thiele

Cue and Curtain's production of Giradoux's satirical and ironic play, the Mad Woman of Chaillot demonstrates the ability of the Cue and Curtain players to rise above the material they are intent on communicating to their audience. Not that Giradoux's play is unexcellent, for it is an extremely brilliant satire against those men solely interested in capital gain, who violate the rights of others; however, the intended victims of these evil men unite under the woman of of Chaillot in order to prevent the attainment of the capitalists' desired ends. In short, the play is concerned with the conflict between the evil greed of the corporate capitalists and the simple good of the people. When the Parisienne vagabonds reveal their plight to the Countess Aurelia, Chaillot's mad woman, now awakened from her world of the past and sensitive to the realities of the present world, she is able to use all her facilities in foiling the plot of the dastardly capitalists.

Giradoux is devastating in his satire of the present order, for he states that life is controlled by the pimps, ("the pimps of the air"), those capitalists who demand payment after payment from man. The playwright strongly implies that these pandering businessmen make prostitutes of the formerly good and healthy things of life.

Liz Slaughter as the mad woman brought off, for the most part, an extremely successful evening of theatre. Her acting was simply magnificent, perfect, since she neither over nor underplayed her role. Her actions were perfectly tied, especially in that memorable scene in which she first makes her appearance on stage and uses her silk scarf to knock over the glasses of oil water being drunk by the prospector, the broker, the baron and the president.

Beverly Wislosky brilliantly conveyed to her audience her very own sense of the reality of her so-called imaginary friends. During the entire mock trial scene, her alienated stare from the rest of the proceedings on stage, her gestures, and her eye movements greatly contributed to the making of a masterful performance.

Hazel Hulsizer gave another very talented performance; we are not surprised for this is what we have come to expect from her. Both she and Margaret Klein as the other mad women were extremely effective in their handling of their characters' own special and particular types of insanity. Miss Klein was particularly good in the mock trial scene when the lady from La Concorde finally gets her chance to demonstrate her knowledge of legal proceedings, a knowledge she has gained by being the sister-in-law of a lawyer.

Jan Kubicki as the calculating, unscrupulous prospector, that agent of the wicked capitalists, mined the audience's unfavorable reaction to the character he portrayed. Kubicki quite effectively used his nose, a really beautiful job of makeup, while demonstrating his ability to sniff out oil. Oh, what a wicked villain!

David Frey in a cameo-role as the sewerman was quite picturesque in his sewerlike descriptions of Paris' underground pathways. He handled his humorous lines quite well.

However, Daniel Wertz as the rag-picker was not at times quite up to the standards of the above-discussed players since at certain points in the play he did not seem to carry his lines well if one considers the important part he had.

"But these don't have thumbs!"

Sheryl Napoleon, with her delightful fixing-up antics (pun intended), stole the show while she appeared on the verandah of the sidewalk while Messrs. Kubicki, Giannini and Russin plotted to take over the oil reserves. However, Giannini and Russin seemed at times to underplay their roles. And during the same scene Al Eddy's juggling aided in heightening the contrast between the serious and comical.

Liz Brennan gave a very convincing performance of a prostitute, although she never said a word to announce what she was. Lynn Mallory's soliloquy of innocence was a charming contrast to the characters portrayed by Miss Brennan and Miss Napoleon.

Bob Smith and Jim Gallagher as the policemen gave very good examples of extremely exaggerated and animated walking. Smith's remark that he had to give artificial respiration because of what the book said was very well delivered. Carroll Cobbs as the deaf and dumb man gesticulated his intended meanings quite realistically.

In general those portraying minor roles were quite sensitive, were quite able to put across their character portrayals. This means you, Steve Gavalala! You were funny!

The set designer is to be commended for his ability to capture the atmosphere of the two different acts. The realistic rather than abstract sidewalk cafe set was quite well suited to the mood of the first act. The cellar set with the well-timed pit operation fitted in quite well with the imprisonment of the functioning parts of the capitalist machine during the second act.

Casey Tours Campus

by Ellen Ramsey

As a part of his campaign in Luzerne County, Senator Robert Casey, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, was conducted on a tour of the college campus on April 28. Andrea Gallet, Ellen Ramsey, Vernie Shiposh and Stephen Gavalala, members of the College's branch of the Young Democrats, showed Mr. Casey various points of interest on our campus and discussed his platform.

Following this tour, Senator Casey held a press conference at the Hotel Sterling where he outlined his plans for Pennsylvania. Chief among these is his "Eight Point Program" for higher education featuring liberal scholarship grants, higher salaries for teachers at state colleges and systematic reduction of tuition.

Asked what problems he felt were most outstanding in northeastern Pennsylvania, Senator Casey stated that land and site reclamation, highway construction and supervision, and of course, better schools were top on his list.

The highlight of the press conference was when Senator Casey was presented with literature being distributed by Milton Schapp. Mr. Schapp is also seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and is backed by labor leaders, particularly in the Philadelphia area. Senator Casey, the organization supported candidate, replied: "I believe this is simply an attempt to avoid the fact that my opponent has no experience in public office. I would be happy to match my record with Mr. Schapp's."

Following the press conference, Senator Casey continued his tour of Wyoming Valley. The day culminated with a dinner party Thursday night at the Mayfair, sponsored by the Luzerne County Democratic Committee.

ESSC Hosts ICG Execs

Seventeen members of the College's chapter of the Inter-Collegiate Conference on Government recently attended a combined executive meeting and outing at East Stroudsburg State College. Representing the College on the executive council were Myrna Brodbeck, chairman; George Varklett, regional historian; and Stephen Gavalala. Composed of representatives of nine schools in northeastern Pennsylvania, the purpose of the executive council is to direct and co-ordinate the activities of the northeast region. Succeeding Andrea Gallet of the College as regional director is John Moses from King's College. At East Stroudsburg, plans were discussed for two of next year's executive meetings to be held at Cedar Crest and Lafayette Colleges prior to the annual State Convention in Harrisburg.

Manuscript Distributed

The 1966 Manuscript has been distributed to strategic locations today in order that students may receive their copies one week before final exams and in order that the staff may receive student comment on the content of the publication.

At the organization's recent meeting the following officers were elected. Edward McGinnis, an accounting major, was chosen editor. Hazel Hulsizer and Claire Sheridan won the elections for assistant editors. Allan Pelikian was elected film editor, and Leona Sokash is the new secretary.

The Wilkes College Art Department cordially invites the public to its sixth annual Art Fair, which is now taking place in Conyngham Annex. The Art Fair will be in progress until 9 p.m. tonight and from 10 a.m.

to 4 p.m. tomorrow. The title for this year's fair, "Perspective '66," was chosen to represent both the individual artist and the department's view of looking ahead to the future.

"Perspective '66" is under the direction of Mr. Chester Colson, chairman of the art department, and Mr. Anthony Evangelista, advisor to the art department.

On display at the Art Fair are original works in sculpture, paint, painting, ceramics, and jewelry done by art majors and by those taking advanced courses in art. As an extra added attraction the art department's student teachers are showing works done by area public school children.

Special demonstrations in water color, oil painting, ceramics, and jewelry will be given today from 10:00 to 12:00 in the morning and from 2:00 to 4:00 in the afternoon, and tomorrow from 10:00 to 12:00. Background music is being provided during the course of the fair.

Most of the works are for sale. Duplicates of graphic material can be obtained from the artist if the purchaser so desires. Anyone wishing to purchase a work should leave his name, address, and telephone number at the main desk.

HEARD FROM THE HERD

Several professors at Bucknell University expressed their view that large lecture sections result in only superficial learning. Large lecture sections make it necessary to give multiple choice tests which give an unrealistic estimate of a student's learning.

At Moravian College, next fall, a new program in non-Western Area Studies will be instituted. A two semester course in African civilization will be offered.

At Juniata College all seniors must complete a comprehensive exam which covers the four years of undergraduate work. The exam consists of a two part written exam totaling no more than seven hours and a one hour oral exam. The exam serves as an incentive to bring together into an integrated and intelligent whole the knowledge acquired in the several courses of his principle field of study.

A program at Princeton University this semester offers a new approach to the problems inherent in the grading system. This program allows a student to select one course outside his field of concentration to be graded simply on a pass or fail basis.

Students at Long Island University will have a motorcycle brigade equipped with walkie-talkies patrolling their campus.

the only way this increased contact can be achieved is by diplomatic recognition of China. Should the Chinese refuse to take advantage of the opportunities provided for contact, they would leave themselves open to a legitimate accusation of parochialism and may be blamed for any action we must undertake because even given the opportunity, they refused to try to understand our position.

Concerning the economic factor, trade with China would be more beneficial to us than to China. This is so because China has nothing which the United States wants or needs but the United States does have what China needs, mainly food. Since China has nothing to trade, they would be forced to pay for our goods in specie or dollars, which would greatly weaken China's economy. There is also the possibility that China could become dependent on America as her source of supply and would therefore be less willing to jeopardize that source by hostile action. The only way in which trade can be carried out is through the machinery which diplomatic recognition would create.

One of the many objections to American recognition is that the United States would lose face in Asian eyes by the apparent retreat from her traditional stand. I believe that, with proper preparation by our propaganda agencies, such an action could be interpreted as a move by a strong nation genuinely interested in creating an atmosphere of understanding and cooperation conducive to peace.

As to China's admittance to the United Nations, that is out of the question. China has stated her condition for entry into the United Nations. Acceptance of those terms would not only mean the hand-over of Taiwan to Red China but would also mean a fundamental change in the character of the organization.

With the above argument in mind, I firmly believe that it is in the best interest of the United States and of world peace for the United States to extend recognition to the People's Republic of China.

Hampton Exchange Completed

by Klaus Loquasto

During the last weekend of March, eleven Wilkes College students were the guests of Hampton Institute Hampton, Virginia. In fulfillment of this exchange program, the College played host to 13 Hampton students last weekend.

Activities for the weekend began shortly after the arrival of the Hampton students on Thursday afternoon. They were greeted by their respective former guests ("Sacks" as they call such students at Hampton). After a brief orientation and visit to the cafeteria, the Hamptonites spent the evening at a mixer. Friday's daytime program included a trip to a typical Wyoming Valley coal mine, and some exchange students spent the remainder of the day visiting classes with their hosts. Cue and Curtain's performance of The Mad Woman of Chaillot began the evening's entertainment, which included a College sponsored dance and an un-sponsored trip to the Red Rooster. The Virginians enjoyed the greater part of Saturday at Dr. Farley's farm in the picturesque village of Beaumont where they played various ballgames, cooked out, and afterwards sang around the campfire. The Europa Lounge was the scene of the dinner-dance which they attended that night. The night was capped by a farewell party. On Sunday morning, after attending optional religious services, the guests packed their suitcases marked "Mason-Dixon or bust" and departed.

This issue of the Beacon brings to the fore a steady athlete who has been chosen "Athlete of the Week." Net-man Tom Rokita's tennis has been one of the top individual contributions to the College's sports scene this year.

As a freshman last year, Rokita posted a sizzling 9-2 log. In preparation for this Friday's M.A.C. tournament, Rokita is in fine shape to better last year's seasonal record. His log at present is a lofty 7-1.

Last week Rokita added to his season's glories by downing, 7-5 and 6-3, a Muhlenberg opponent who had been undefeated until that time. Teamed with Dan Klem in doubles competition, this amazing duo has logged a 7-1 record in doubles.

A self-taught player, Rokita took up tennis five years ago. A native of Kingston, Rokita starred on the Kingston High School track field and earned two letters in the sport. At the College Rokita is a member of the Lettermen's Club, having earned letters in soccer and tennis in his freshman year.

SCCA Slates National Races At Cumberland

Cumberland, Maryland — When the starters flag falls for the first of the 14th Annual Cumberland Championship Sports Car Races, 350 licensed sports car drivers will begin competition in this National event scheduled on May 13, 14, and 15 at Cumberland's Municipal Airport.

These National races are co-sponsored by the Cumberland, Maryland, Lions Foundation and the Steel Cities Region of the Sports Car Club of America. To date over $300,000 has been earned by these events and the money has been used by the Lions Club in its "FIGHT FOR SIGHT" program and various local charities.

Behind the scenes will be some 1600 people — from Boy Scouts to pit crews, enthusiasts all — working together so that 50,000 spectators may enjoy a top racing program.

This year's races will again include the Edgar H. Vandergrift Memorial, which is the feature race in the Cumberland event. In addition, the 1966 races will honor the memory of Walt Hansgen who died on April 7 in France from injuries sustained in trial

Individuals Star On Spring Squads

by Bruce Henky

Tomorrow the Wilkes batmen host the invading Stevens "11." Stevens is a relatively weak team and the prospects look good for a Colonel victory. The Colonels are entering the tilt with a 3-7 log.

Coach Schmidt, however, feels that their record is no indication of the type of ball his men have been playing. He points out that the team is young and as yet has not acquired ideal unity and college baseball experience. Despite this, Schmidt considers the team to be a match for any club in the league. The defensive play is superior and the team batting is powerful despite a "mid-season slump." The team is a hustling club and as a result has been holding its own in recent contests despite an apparent lack of "clutch-hitting," according to the coach.

The loss of Joe Wiendl for the last three games has depleted the offensive battery and deadened the double-play combination. In addition, Coach Schmidt feels that the sub-normal officiating and inclement weather have played a part in the current league standings.

runs at Le Mans. Hansgen had negotiated the Cumberland curves for a national record of four wins and one runner-up. The seventh race on Sunday, May 15, will be the Walt E. Hansgen Memorial, a deserved tribute to a skilled and honored driver.

On Monday the Colonels travel to tangle with an unpredictable Ursinus squad. Next Wednesday Albright hosts the Wilkes baseballers. The following day Wilkes hosts Susquehanna, a team that registered two wins over the Colonels last year.

Tennis

The Wilkes tennismen host a visiting Scranton team tomorrow. Assistant Coach Rainey believes that the netmen "have a real good chance" to defeat their guests. The Moravian team, however, will be slightly harder to subdue on Monday. The team travels to Lehigh for the M.A.C. championship today and tomorrow. Rainey feels that the team as a whole will not fare too well, but individuals such as Tom Rokita and Dan Klem will place high in the final standings.

Golf

Today the Colonel duffers are at Scranton University participating in a match that Coach Farrar thinks is a toss-up. On Monday the golfers travel to Lehigh for the M.A.C.'s. Farrar believes that currently the Colonels are not a balanced team and therefore are not going to pose a threat to the M.A.C. crown held by LaSalle. Gettysburg, Susquehanna, and St. Joe's seem to be the strong contenders for the crown this year. Farrar, however, expects Perrego to capture an individual first.

Next Thursday the Colonels travel to face Elizabethtown and Lycoming at Lycoming. Lycoming beat the Colonels at Kirby Field earlier this year. Elizabethtown, however, may succumb to the Colonel putters.

Take your good time going home.

Fly half-fare on Eastern via Florida.

Florida swings in the spring — but it really swings in the summer. Lower off-season room rates are in effect. And Eastern will take you to Daytona or Ft. Lauderdale or even Miami for half-fare.

So take a detour and enjoy it on your way home. Or go home first and down to Florida later.

Just use your Eastern Youth ID card, or similar card from another airline. If you don't have such a card, it's a snap to get one — provided you're under 22 and can prove it. For the specifics, stop by a Travel Agent or any Eastern ticket office.

Once you have your card, you can get an Eastern Jet Coach seat for half-fare. You can't make an advance reservation. But if there's a seat available at departure time, you can fly to any Eastern destination within the continental U.S. Including Florida.

NETMEN Tom Rokita shows off his fine backhand which he has used to advantage in his matches thus far this season. Despite a dismal 1-6 record, the Colonels have displayed some fine individual play.

Netmen Snared In Two Outings

by Bill Bush

The Wilkes netmen traveled to Susquehanna University last Saturday to try to improve on their 1-4 record. The Colonels, however, bowed, 6-3, to their hosts.

Captain Tom Rokita kept up his fine showing by defeating Ludwig of Susquehanna to start the Colonels off on the right foot. The Susquehanna netmen proved to be too powerful for the Wilkes squad as Bent, Tiskorik, Meyers and Shelden lost in singles competition. Klem managed to defeat Morris of Susquehanna for the only other singles victory.

Rokita and Klem won in number one doubles position, but two and three were defeated by their Susquehanna opponents.

Results:

Singles — Rokita, W, defeated Ludwig, 6-1, 6-3; Bent, W, lost to Fisher,

6-1, 6-2; Klem, W, defeated Morris, 6-4, 6-4; Tiskorik, W, lost to Van Arsdale, 6-3, 6-3; Shelden, W, lost to Harris, 6-4, 6-0; Meyers, W, lost to Jones, 6-4, 6-3.

Doubles — Klem and Rokita, W, defeated Ludwig and Fischer, 6-4, 6-4; Tiskorik and Shelden, W, lost to Morris and Van Arsdale, 12-10, 6-2; Bent and Solomon, W, lost to Harris and Jones, 6-2, 6-0.

Last Monday the netmen bowed to Muhlenberg, 6-3, on their home court.

Tom Rokita and Dan Klem won in singles and doubles competition, but the remainder of the squad suffered defeat at the hands of the Muhlenberg netmen.

Results:

Singles — Rokita won, 6-4, 7-7; Bent lost, 6-4, 6-0; Klem won, 6-4, 6-4; Solomon lost, 6-4, 6-0; Shelden lost, 6-2, 6-3; Magagna lost, 6-2, 6-2.

Doubles — Rokita and Klem won, 6-4, 6-5; Bent and Magagna lost, 6-2, 6-2; Tiskorik and Shelden lost, 7-5, 7-5.

Tomorrow the Colonels host the netmen from the University of Scranton. They will try to better their record of 1-6, needless to say.

Batmen Witness Defeats In Last Four Contests

by Walt Narcum

The Colonel hardballers spent a disastrous week on the diamond, losing all four of their outings to bring their season's record to 3-7.

In a home contest held a week ago Wednesday, the Colonels were shut out 3-0 by Upsala.

The Colonels' pitching and defense held up fairly well, but they were ineffective at the plate. Fred Bauer was credited with his third loss.

Last Friday the Colonels picked up their fifth loss when they were outscored by Harper 4-2. Rich Klick put up a valiant mound effort but the Colonels were again outthit and he picked up his first loss of the season.

Juniata handed the Colonels their third loss in a row as Wilkes was again shut out 3-0. Wilkes was only able to come up with two hits, both of them singles. Bill Vetter and George Stults recorded the safeties. Pat Sweeney was credited with his first INDIAN BITES Juniata Indian Lance Shomo is forced to bite the dust as he dives head first to avoid the tag by Steve Kasba. Juniata went on to shut out the Colonels 3-0 and hand them their third straight loss. The batmen are 3-7 thus far this season.

Duffers Score Win, Bow, Tie For 2-5-1 Tally

by Bob Thompson

After suffering 4 setbacks, the Wilkes golfers hit their stride last Friday and downed East Stroudsburg State College 10-8 in a home performance at Irem Temple Country Club.

The top match found Warren Landis of the visitors defeating Bill Perrego on an extra hole after both fired 77 for 18. The next scorer was Dan Murray of Wilkes with a 78.

Results:

Landis (E) over Bill Perrego 2-1. Bob Brown (W) over Kerry Bauman 3-0. Dan Murray (W) over Marty Dwyer 2-1. Ken Huhn (E) over Bernie Vinovroski 2-1. Leo Rimer (E) over Mike Sharok 2½-½. Bill Kaylor (W) over Bob Spencer 2½-½.

On Saturday the Colonels finished on a good note, tying with Harpur 4½-4½. The reason for the low score was that a different scoring system was used. The MAC uses the Nassau system of scoring by which one point is awarded the winner of the front nine holes, one point for the back nine, and one point for total. In the Harpur contest one point was awarded only for the match. At the same time the four-somes competed among themselves. If both partners beat their counterparts then the hole was awarded to that team.

The tie was not played off because of the inclement weather.

Results:

Individual — Perrego won 1-0; Brown lost 1-0; Murray won 1-0; Vinovroski lost 1-0; Sharok lost 1-0; Farrar won 1-0. Better Ball: Perrego & Brown 1; Murray & Vinovroski ½; Sharok & Farrar 0.

On Monday the golfers of Coach Farrar continued their winning streak with an 11½-6½ victory over Muhlenberg at home. The duffers lost only two matches in posting their biggest victory margin of the season. Bernie Vinovroski pulled the big surprise of the game with a sizzling 76, despite a triple bogie on the thirteenth hole. Steve Farrar had his best match of the season on gaining all three points for the Wilkes cause.

Results:

Perrego won 2-1; Murray won 2-1; Brown lost 2½-½; Vinovroski won 3-0; Kaylor lost 1-2; Farrar won 3-0.

Finally on Tuesday the Colonels' winning streak was broken at Albright by a 10½-7½ margin. Their record now stands at 2-5-1. The Colonels now have seven contests remaining and the MAC tournament Monday at Lehigh. Bill Perrego will be out to better his showing in the last two MAC tournaments. In 1964 he finished fourth and in 1965 he finished sixth. Others who have qualified thus far to make the trip to Lehigh are Dan Murray and Bob Brown. Only four members of the team will compete.

loss. The second game of the double-header was rained out.

In an away game held this Monday the Colonels lost an extra inning tilt to Muhlenberg by an 8-7 score. The game was a high scoring affair with the score tied 7-7 at the end of 9 innings. Neither team was able to score until the bottom of the twelfth when Muhlenberg pushed across a run. Rich Klick did the mound honors until the eighth inning when Fred Bauer relieved him. The deciding run was scored against Bauer and he picked up his fourth loss.

Tomorrow afternoon at two the Colonels will host Stevens College in an attempt to improve their record.

INTRAMURALS With the coming of spring, the intramural softball teams swing into action. Shown above is some typical action going on at Kirby Park every day. The intramural teams wound up their schedules this past week.

Inclement Weather Delays IM Games

To the dismay of the College's softball fans, there were no intramural games last week because of inclement weather. The teams were, however, able to make up lost time by playing a number of games this past Monday and Tuesday.

On Monday the Ricky V's defeated the Forty-niners by forfeit. The Weasels downed the Oddballs also by forfeit. The Hustlers-Leftovers contest was the only game played that day. The Hustlers came out on top by a score of 8-4.

• NOTICE •

Attention wrestlers: A meeting will be held in the gymnasium immediately after assembly on Thursday, May 12. The meeting will be brief, but everyone is expected to attend.

On Tuesday the Dorm League made up the games that were rained out on the previous Wednesday. Butler Hall downed Hainna Hall, 15-11, and Ashley defeated Gore, 13-1. Warner Hall defeated the Y.M.C.A., 8-7 while Barre lost to Miner by forfeit.

As of this printing there are no team standings; however, we should be able to compile the standings for next week's issue.
