

To The Victor Go The Memories

by Mary Quinn

Highlighting the overwhelming victory of the Wilkes football team over Ursinus was the crowning of Cathy DeAngelis as Homecoming queen for 1964 by Dr. Eugene S. Farley at halftime. Queen Cathy and princesses Mary Russin and Josephine Signorelli Russin were honored with a kiss from Dr. Farley and congratulations from the capacity crowd that attended the game. Miss DeAngelis received a gift certificate from Student Government, a charm bracelet from the Beacon staff, and a rose bouquet from the classes of '65, '66, and '67.

Presentations of the awards for the outstanding dormitory and organizational Homecoming displays were then made by Len Mulcahy, president of the Alumni Association. An alumni committee consisting of five members chose the winning displays for their respective categories.

For the second consecutive year, Weckesser Hall won the trophy for the best women's dormitory display, and capped the title of the best over-all display with their appropriate theme "Cubweb the Bears." This intricate rope-web, covering the entire front lawn of Weckesser Hall, had "caught" the miniature Ursinus football players. The colorful "Big Wilkes" Colonel, built by the men of Dennison Hall, won the best men's dormitory award. The three-story Colonel choked an Ursinus Bear in one hand and a Lycoming Warrior in the other. The Education Club received the best organizational display award. The title of their display was "Cage the Bears," and appeared next to the College Library on South Street.

The award for the best-decorated car in the parade, which was also chosen by the alumni committee, went to Simon Russin. Accompanying and also complementing the decorated cars were the colorful antique cars, which were engaged through the efforts of John Lore, general chairman of Homecoming, who carefully executed every aspect of the Homecoming activities.

Queen Cathy then selected the winners of the Annual Lettermen's Scholarship Raffle. Following the presentations, the kickline and the majorettes, accompanied by the College Band, displayed their special Homecoming routines.

The bonfire on Friday night was a great success, due to the combined efforts of Jerri Jean Baird, Diane Alfaro, and their committees. Saturday evening's activities included a dinner-dance for undergraduates, arranged by Grace Jones, Charlotte Wetzel, and Marshall Evans, and decorated by Sylvia Dysleski. The alumni, on the other hand, were entertained in the Alexander Room of the Host Motel.

Sophs Plan Day-Dorm Weekend

by Irene M. Norkaitis

The sophomore class, under the direction of Hermon George, is sponsoring a Day-Dorm Weekend to strengthen the relationship between the day student and the dorm student. It will give the day student a chance to experience life on campus, and the dorm student will have the opportunity to be part of a family for a day.

This project originated last year when George, candidate for president of the freshman class, used the idea for such a weekend as a major campaign issue. Although he was defeated in the election, a Day-Dorm Committee consisting of five day students and five dorm students, with George as chairman, was appointed. Because the spring semester was nearly completed, the project was postponed until this semester.

Now that the fall semester has started, the committee has arranged for all interested sophomore day students to spend the weekend of October 30-31 in the dormitories. Following dinner in the Commons, the students may attend the Manuscript film, The Little World of Don Camillo, which will be presented in Stark 116, and the entertainment which has been planned to follow the film. Saturday morning will be reserved for much-needed sleep missed the night before or for doing chores in the dorm. After lunch in the Commons, the football game featuring Juniata vs. Wilkes will be next on the agenda. This weekend, which will cost $1.63 per student, will officially end at 4 p.m.

N D S L Applications Now Being Accepted

Students wishing to apply for the National Defense Student Loan to be used during the spring semester should contact Arthur Hoover in Chase Hall. Application deadline is December 1.

The primary and most essential consideration of an applicant's eligibility for a National Defense Student Loan is that he be in need of the requested loan to complete his course of study and that he maintain an average of 2.0.

The following weekend of November 7, the dorm students will spend the day at the day student's home. The treat of the evening will be a home-cooked meal.

Although co-operation from the day students has been very good, the dorm students are more reluctant about signing for the weekend. George has asked for as many sophomore dorm students as possible to participate.

MAILEY ADDRESSES FACULTY

Thornton Sisters Entertain Tonight

The Junius Society and the Radio Club have completed their plans for a four-hour dance to be held in the gym tonight from 8 p.m. to 12 p.m.

Harvey Wishtart and Arlene Siano, co-chairmen of the affair, have announced that the Thornton Sisters will provide the music for an evening of dancing pleasure.

The Thornton Sisters, an instrumental and vocal group, have previously appeared in Brooklyn night clubs and at Ithaca and Cornell Universities.

Tickets will be on sale at the door for one dollar.

The first faculty seminar of this year will be held this evening at 7:45 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge (located behind Weckesser Hall): Dr. Hugo V. Mailey, chairman of the political science department, will discuss "American Elections: Elections or Chicanery." Dr. Stanko M. Vujica, chairman of the philosophy department, will act as moderator. All faculty and administration and their families and friends are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Johnson Victory Predicted By Poll

President Lyndon Johnson amassed an impressive victory over Senator Barry Goldwater during the recent political poll conducted by the Inter-collegiate Conference on Government. Johnson gleaned 69 percent of the total vote cast as compared with 22 percent for Goldwater and nine percent remaining non-committal. To carry this a bit further, for any political buffs, an analysis of the percentages of Republicans, Democrats, and Independents voting for each of the candidates will be given. Ninety-two percent of the Democrats voted for Johnson, four percent for Goldwater, and three percent remained noncommittal. Goldwater captured 47 percent of the Republican vote, Johnson 40 percent and the remaining 13 percent remained noncommittal. The Independents cast 70 percent of their votes for Johnson, ten percent for Goldwater, and 20 percent non-committal.

Results of the other balloting revealed a close vote in both the Pennsylvania Senatorial race and the Wilkes-Barre area representative race. Miss Genevieve Blatt received 41 percent of the vote as compared with Hugh Scott's 59 percent. Brockman squeezed through with a 54 to 46 victory over his opponent O'Brien.

In the New York Senatorial race Robert Kennedy eased to a two to one victory over incumbent Senator Kenneth Keating, defeating him 63 percent to 37 percent.

A breakdown of the campus into political parties produced approximately 47 percent Democrats, 38 percent Republicans, and 15 percent Independents.

The results are tabulated, but only time will tell how the College voters compare with the national voting scene.

A further evaluation of the presidential candidates, as seen through the eyes of Wilkes students, can be secured by consulting the Beacon survey of the students presidential preference, located on page two.

BEACON SENDS REPRESENTATIVES TO CHICAGO PRESS CONFERENCE

by Sheryl Napoleon

Wednesday evening four members of the Beacon staff travelled to Chicago to attend the Associated Collegiate Press Conference. The Conrad Hilton Hotel will play host to the four Wilkes representatives, Alis Pucilowski, Linda Edwards, Ruth Partilla, and David Stout, in addition to the convention's other delegates.

SG PLANS HOOT FOR TOMORROW

An intercollegiate hootenanny will be held Saturday night in the gym, sponsored by the Five College Council. The hootenanny will last from 9 to 12 p.m.; there will be a charge of twenty-five cents. This will be a non-competition event.

The business of the convention began with the Convocation last night at 7:30. Today the delegates will attend meetings where they will discuss such items as layouts and reporting in depth. Max Schulman's appearance as guest speaker at tomorrow's banquet will climax the three-day scholastic publication workshop.

The Beacon believes that the enthusiasm generated by conventions of this nature benefits the newspaper more than any text book on journalism could possibly do. Says Ruth Partilla, co-copy editor of the Beacon, "Although this will be my first opportunity to attend such a convention, I feel that the knowledge gained there will help make the Beacon better than it already is."

Highlights and pictures of the convention will appear in the next issue of the Beacon.

ROYALTY TAKES TO THE FIELD

Homecoming queen Cathy DeAngelis and her court were presented with flowers at their crowning, which took place last Saturday during halftime of the victorious football game against Ursinus.

Well Done

Too often individuals are hesitant to put forth any effort in assisting with a project because they do not feel that their efforts will be recognized. And it may well be that we will not receive individual recognition, but the sooner we realize the importance of group, rather than individual effort, the sooner we will be assured of success in all undertakings.

This group effort idea was, we are sure, instrumental in the success of Homecoming Weekend, one of the most significant weekends of the College year. Not only were individuals willing to work together, but organizations also contributed their time and energies to insure the success of this project. To these individuals goes the long overdue credit to which they are entitled, and in extending this credit, it is our hope that others will assume the attitude exemplified by these students.

"This situation is perfectly ridiculous. I love her. She loves me. Her husband is mature enough to know how to handle these things. My wife should know me by now. That still doesn't tell me, though, how I'm going to sign my name to the register, what with my father-in-law standing next to me . . ."

BARRY'S HAT IN RING; DONKEY'S EATING IT

With the advent of the coming election, the Beacon decided to conduct a survey to find out which of the two candidates the students favored and the reasons for their choice. Of the thirty-one students interviewed, seventeen supported Johnson, while the remainder were divided between Goldwater and Lodge, the latter being a suggested third candidate.

Joyce Adamcheski, "I don't think either is my idea of a presidential candidate, but I prefer Johnson. Goldwater is indefinite in his position in too many matters."

Brad Stegmaier, "If people are smart they will write in Henry Cabot Lodge."

Mark Wagner, "I'm for Goldwater. He has good policies about foreign aid, about the United Nations, and about bringing war to North Vietnam."

Carl Worthington, "Goldwater is a dangerous dream."

Anne Northrup, "I'm for Goldwater, but I'm sure Johnson will win because he is using the Kennedy name and is imploring the sympathy of the ignorant masses."

Chuck Freed, "Johnson is doing a good job now. Goldwater's views on foreign policy will endanger American positions abroad and will only lead to war."

Molly Hopkins, "Johnson is the better man. He knows his own mind. When he makes a statement, he doesn't retract it and say he is misunderstood. He has proven to be an able leader since he took office."

Carol Okrasinski, "I'm not really for Johnson, but I don't think Goldwater will get it because of his ideas about civil rights; nor will he get many Negro votes."

Barbara Walters, "Goldwater shows irresponsibility in the face of some statements made recently about NATO and civil rights."

Matt Fliss, "Politics is a three-ring circus, and from where I'm sitting, I can only see one ring clearly, the one with the donkey."

Bill Zegarski, "I don't like either candidate, but if I had to vote it would be for Johnson. I don't like Goldwater's policies on the UN, integration, social security, or government decentralization. The government should be decentralized to a point, but we have already reached that point; most of the power should rest in the central government. Johnson doesn't actually appeal to me, but he is the better man."

Ron Czajkowski, "I believe Barry Goldwater should be President because I feel that he is the only man who can insure our constitutional rights against the increasing federal power. I like him because he will act to help stamp out Communism, not to appease it, as the Democrats have done recently. He is a man with good, sound, 'honest' ideas, who will lead the nation out of the economic and social problems that erupt."

Kathy Kressin, "I'm for Johnson; Goldwater is too far out, too extreme. I don't advocate bombing Vietnam to stop the crisis there. That's not the way to stop war."

Frank Walter, "I'm pro-Johnson. I'm not for Goldwater because he favors the policy of allowing many people to have the use of nuclear weapons. However, he would be good for the country in that his ideas are different from the extremely liberal views we have had over the past thirty years."

Ron Serfoss, "I am for Goldwater because he is the only candidate we have had in quite a while, Republican or Democrat, who has the basic American principles of individual achievement and attainment which will reverse the present trend toward socialism."

Joanie Kirchenbaum, "Johnson is power-hungry; but Goldwater wouldn't know what to do when he got in; he's too reactionary."

Judy Rock, "I think the country needs a politician, but Goldwater has no tact. Mainly, in times like these, Johnson is just the politician we need."

John Karpiak, "I am for Johnson, mainly because I was in the service, and I don't like Goldwater's tactics. He doesn't make up his mind and keep it that way. He should stay committed and not change his mind."

Dianne Ceccoli, "I am in favor of Johnson. If Goldwater ever got into office I think we'd be at war, according to what he is saying now. He seems quite radical and doesn't think before he talks."

Tony Rapp, "I am strictly against Goldwater, but I dislike Johnson as a President. It is not a case of whom I would vote for, but of whom I would not vote for. The whole election seems to be the kind in which one would vote for the lesser of two evils."

Stephen Faulls, "I favor Johnson. I would like to see the nation as it is and stay with those in power. I am against Goldwater because of his past record in the Senate and that of his running mate, Miller, as an absentee member. He is mentally unstable and has had two mental breakdowns, according to his wife. Johnson is a good political leader; Goldwater fails in this aspect."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Beacon Slanted

Dear Editor:

Just one question — how soon can we expect the Beacon to endorse President Johnson? It would seem, from your columns, to be almost imminent.

I have been following your fatuous Campaign Comment, and have come to the conclusion that it surely must be completely tongue-in-cheek; no intelligent student could possibly come to the same inane conclusions that your 'political' writers do.

As a transfer student, I find it most discouraging to find that the Beacon is dedicated to mis-representing the views of this campus; or does it presume that there are only Liberal-Democrats at Wilkes? There are many who would take great offense at such a presumption.

When will the other side (Republican) be represented in your newspaper? That is the least you owe this campus — an opportunity to read some of the 'rights' about the Republican campaign (now that your reporters have told us what is wrong with it) in an intelligent, forthright manner. Or is the Beacon just another cheap tabloid dedicated to journalistic injustice?

Sincerely,
Craig J. Young

Oodles of Efforts

Dear Editor:

Last week the Seventeenth Annual Homecoming took place on the College campus. This event could not have been conducted as successfully as it was without the efforts of many individuals who aided in the organization of Homecoming activities. Jerri Baird did a great job in the organization and co-ordination of the Friday night activities, the bonfire, and the dance afterwards. Dianne Alfaro, serving on the Student Activities Committee, also deserves much credit for her contributions to Homecoming. Further, those in charge of the Undergraduate Dinner Dance, co-chairmen Charlotte Wetzel and Grace Jones, assisted by Cathy Turanski and Marshall Evans, deserve commendation for their efforts. Also, Simon Russin should be recognized for all he did to make Homecoming a success.

Sincerely,
John M. Lore
Homecoming Chairman

Thank Y' all

Dear Editor:

We, the co-chairmen of the Undergraduate Dinner Dance committee, would like to take this opportunity to express our deepest gratitude for all the cooperation which we received from our committees, Student Government, and the Beacon. We would not even attempt to list the countless names of those who were so eager to help us in the planning and arranging of this affair. Thank you again.

Professor's Study of Integration Accountants Conduct Scrub Party Leads Her To Existentialism Attitude Stressed; CS Tests Tomorrow

by Barbara Simms

Well-traveled, well-educated, and well-adjusted — these words describe Miss Marene Olson, attractive new sociology and anthropology teacher.

Miss Olson, a native of Carbondale (Illinois, not Pennsylvania), has traveled all over the world. Her first trip abroad was during her junior year in high school. At this time her father was selected to go to the Philippine Islands as a member of the Stanford University team to establish teacher programs in industrial arts in Southeast Asia.

When asked how she reacted to this move, Miss Olson said, "I didn't want to go, but when the time came to return home, I didn't want to come back." She found the people very warm and sincere and open. While she was there she learned to speak Visayan, the language of the particular island on which her family lived. She became so attached to this melodious language that, after her return to the United States, she had a hard time speaking English again.

After her stay in the Philippines, Miss Olson toured the Orient with her brother; three summers ago she visited Europe and Africa with her mother. She didn't see the usual attractions because "I don't like tourist things, and American tourists have a horrible reputation around the world."

Miss Olson received her Bachelor of Arts degree in sociology from Hiram College, Hiram, Ohio, and went on to earn her Master's degree at Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, where her father is chairman of the industrial arts department. While at Kent, she maintained a 3.7 average, was a graduate assistant in the sociology department, and initiated a student chapter of the N.A.A.C.P. She also participated ed in a Negro youth tutoring program designed to combat the high school drop-out problem. (She has recently been accepted by the New York University to study for her doctorate.)

Interest In Integration

In the Philippines Miss Olson became interested in the integration problem; she later developed this interest more fully while in college. "When I lived in the Philippines," she said, "it was hard to make friends with the people for the first couple of weeks, because they kept asking, 'How can you like us if you hate the Negro?' It was hard to convince them that all Americans don't hate Negroes." She believes that "... intermarriage is the true test of integration." Miss Olson stated the following as the basis of the integration problem: "One of the greatest tragedies of this world, especially in the United States, is that we don't (or maybe we can't) see people as persons — we see them as units of race categories, religious categories, or social class categories. If one is 'colorblind' for example, people ask, 'What's the matter with him?' Here, I think, lies a terrific challenge to college youth. The college atmosphere is usually a pretty liberal place — a place where persons can be put back into their homo sapiens shells."

Her study of integration has led to an interest in existentialism, with the idea that all people exist as individual persons. She believes that, although an unhappy meaning is usually attached to existentialism, it does not necessarily have to be so. Miss Olson's goal in life is "to exist," in the existentialist meaning of the word, a goal at which she is succeeding very well.

Of her students she said, with a laugh, "I love my children. I call them my children probably because we're so far from each other in age. It's fun."

At the recent Senior Employment Seminar Mr. John Chwalek stressed attitude toward work as a major factor in the interview for employment. It is the placement officer's feeling that the academic record has been achieved. Therefore, seniors seeking employment must now make a self-evaluation; they should be looking for an opportunity.

Mr. Chwalek explained that company and school representatives conducting interviews on campus seek more than academic achievement. Interviewers look for people willing to give of themselves — not afraid to give more than they may receive in return. Representatives look for the student's attitude toward family, religion, school, and community. Many look for people who will contribute to the community as well as the company or school.

Mr. Chwalek also announced that the Federal Civil Service Exams will be given in Stark 116 tomorrow morning at 8:30. The placement officer has made special arrangements for this exam to be given on campus. The student has a choice as to which exam he will take, usually according to his major. Those who have not obtained an application in the placement office may register tomorrow at the exam.

In order to help finance its many projects, the Accounting Club is holding a car wash in the Parrish Parking lot tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. The price for a car wash will be 89 cents, which includes cleaning of white walls and vacuuming of the interior.

Among the club's proposed activities are tours of regional manufacturing concerns. The following club members are making arrangements for various tours: William Mainwaring, Stegmaier Brewing Company; Carl Worthington, Corning Glassworks; and Jack Barnes, Eberhard Faber.

Plans are also underway for the club's annual trip to New York City, where the club will visit a number of the world's largest accounting firms. The purpose of this trip will be to give the accounting students an insight into the functions performed by these firms.

COLONELS SNAP LOSING STREAK; Colonel Booters

URSINUS VICTIM OF 42-13 ROUT Near Mid-point; Hofstra Tomorrow

by Russ Ward

The Colonels snapped their three game losing streak by defeating Ursinus College, 42-13, in the Homecoming game at the Wilkes Athletic Field, Saturday.

Ursinus took the opening kickoff and returned the ball to the 27. On the first play from scrimmage Ursinus bobbled the ball and Ralph Hender-shot pounced on it for the Colonels. It took only eight plays for the Wilkesmen to score with Gary Popovich blasting through the center of the Ursinus line for the six pointer. Len Rishkofski split the uprights for the seventh point.

On the kickoff Ursinus fumbled again; this time Jim Drager recovered the ball for the Colonels. The threat ended, however, when the Wilkesmen gave up the ball on downs. Midway in the second quarter the Colonels moved down to the Ursinus 15. Paul Purta took the handoff from Tom Trosko, momentarily fumbled, picked it up, and raced for the goal line. The PAT was wide.

In the second half Wilkes exploded for 21 points. Ed Comstock broke through off tackle and powered his way 55 yards for a TD. Ursinus scored on a 94 yard touchdown run through the Wilkes defenders by Jim Degenhardt. The extra point was no good. Wilkes next score came with quarterback Tom Trosko cutting over end to tally. Ted Travis-Bey fired a pass to Ron Grohowski for the two point conversion.

The Bears scored their last TD on a pass from Quinn to Degenhardt. The Colonels scored on their next two drives with Paul Purta smashing in from the 16 and Ted Travis-Bey faked his way through the Bears to end the scoring for the Colonels. Purta kicked both extra points.

The Wilkesmen had phenomenal success in their ground game. Eighty-seven plays were run from scrimmage for a net total of 419 as opposed to the Bears 47. The Colonels got 27 first downs to the visitors 8. Two Bears passes were intercepted by Ted Travis-Bey and Joe Roszko. The Colonels were forced to punt only three times for an average of 37.7 yards.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

Butler Hall won a hard fought struggle over Miner Hall in the dormitory division of the intramural football league by a score of 7-0. The game was decided in the 2nd quarter on a long touchdown pass from Bill Tinney to Dennis Quigley. The extra point was added by Pete Galderman.

Leon Obrzut and John Cavallini each scored twice as the Roadrunners trampled the Transfers 40-0 in the Independent Division.

Teams are asked to check their schedules for next week's games.

Nearing the halfway mark of the season, the Wilkes booters are winless. Last Saturday the Lycoming Warriors turned up a 4-2 margin to down the Colonels. The Colonels MAC log is now 0-5, with 7 games remaining.

Wilkes succumbed to Lycoming in the last quarter, much in the same pattern of past games. Early in the 1st quarter Lycoming scored in a fast play. Wilkes evened it in the 2nd as the Colonels scored on a goal by Bob Eurich. The score stood 1-1 at the half.

The 2nd half began to the Colonels' advantage when Rich Beck countered on a quick play. The Warriors came back with a goal making it 2-2 at the end of the 3rd quarter.

The last stanza proved to be ill-fated for the Colonels. Lycoming countered twice, taking advantage of the Colonels slacking rein. Lycoming held the margin until the final gun.

Rain made a hazard of the playing field and curbed many Colonels goal attempts. The field is slanted and has a pitched mound at one end. This, along with the mud, made playing difficult.

The Colonels will have to fight hard to even their record season.

Muhlenberg was host to the Colonels last Wednesday (the score was not available for this issue). Tomorrow the Flying Dutchmen of Hofstra host Wilkes. Both Muhlenberg and Hofstra were lower in the standing last season than was Wilkes, so the Colonels may pick up a few wins.

Wrestlers to Begin

Wrestling practice will officially begin on Monday in the gym. All boys interested in participating on this year's team are asked to report to the gym at 4 p.m.

Coach John Reese announced that the season will get underway a week earlier this year, due to a 12 match schedule, the longest ever at the College. The team will travel to Princeton on November 28 for a practice meet with the Tigers, after which the Colonels meet Army and R.I.T. in a triangular meet at West Point on December 4 and 5 to open the regular season.

Swimming Notice

Prospective members of the swimming team met this week after assembly with Coach Ken Young and received instructions for the forthcoming season. Anyone who missed this meeting should contact Mr. Young at the Y.M.C.A.

All members of the team will meet during the assembly hour October 29 at 11:00 in the Y.M.C.A. for a preliminary swimming practice. Members of the team who attend the swim practice will be excused from assembly.

Basketball Notice

Students interested in joining the basketball team are informed that some of the members are currently engaging in informal workout sessions at the gym from 4-5:30. The season gets underway on November 2.

COLLEGE FORECAST

by DAVID DUGAN

Some weeks it doesn't pay to be a forecaster, and last week was one of them. All season I have tottered on the edge of "Upset Gulch," and now I finally fallen into it completely. Shamefully I report that I picked only 8 right out of 19 games. My season total now stands at 53 right and 26 wrong for a .673 percentage.

Here is a sample of what happened. Texas, unbeaten in 15 games, lost to Arkansas by 1 point. Unbeaten Michigan lost to Purdue by 1 point. Oklahoma and North Carolina were also 1 point victims. Such highly ranked teams as Army, Southern Cal, Michigan St., and North Carolina St. fell prey to my old nemesis Mr. Upset.

After 5 weeks, here is a sectional look at the top college leaders:

EAST — Princeton leads the Ivy League, and Syracuse is the top independent.

SOUTH — Duke tops the A.C.C., with L.S.U. and Alabama acting as co-leaders of the Southeastern Conference. The top independents are unbeaten Florida St. and Georgia Tech.

SOUTHWEST — Arkansas heads the Southwest Conference.

MIDWEST — Ohio St. leads the Big 10, Nebraska commands the Big 8, and the top independent is unbeaten Notre Dame.

FAR WEST — Southern Cal is first in the Big 6, with Washington and California in hot pursuit.

Major clashes this week:

Jim Clark of Scotland, 1963 world champion sports car driver for Formula I cars, lost all hopes of winning the championship in 1964 at the United States Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, New York, on Oct. 4.

The Formula I machine consists of a cigar sloped body, with a rear mounted engine developing about 200 H.P. The car can't exceed a weight limit of 1000 pounds.

On the Friday and Saturday preceding the race, practices were held to determine positions on the starting grid. Clark had the fastest lap time, gaining the pole position in the front row.

The race course is a tear shaped, hilly and paved track 2.3 miles long with many curves. The race is 253 miles or 110 laps.

On the first lap John Surtees, driving a Ferrari, shot into lead only to have Clark, driving a Lotus, take over on the twelfth lap. Clark set a terrific pace until the 44 lap when his car began having ignition trouble. Graham Hill in a BRM took the lead on the 45 lap and kept it until the end, finishing about thirty seconds ahead of Surtees.

Clark had changed cars with his teammate, Mike Spence, also driving a Lotus and was still running third near the end when his second car of the day faltered and he was forced into the pits to stay.

Out of a field of nineteen cars starting, eight cars finished.

Graham Hill added nine points to his thirty-two points giving him forty-one, thus confirming for the championship. Surtees is second with thirty-four and Clark remains with thirty points. There is only the Mexican Grand Prix left and even if Clark did win, Hill would still have more points.
