WILKES COLLEGE

STUDENT WEEKLY

Vol. XXVI, No. 26

WILKES COLLEGE, WILKES-BARRE, PENNSYLVANIA

FRIDAY, MAY 18, 1962

Walters Elected Chief Representative

Hoover Becomes President's Aide; Assumes Administrative Duties

On June 11 Mr. Arthur Hoover will become Administrative Assistant to the President. The position, vacated by Mr. Robert Morris (see Beacon, May 11) who will complete his study for advanced degrees in education and college administration, entails the additional responsibilities of Director of Student Activities, Administrator of the Student Loan Fund, Advisor to the Student Government, and Campus Civil Defense Director.

To carry out these responsibilities, Mr. Hoover, an instructor at the college for the past seven years, will limit his teaching duties to a single class in the Commerce and Finance Department.

A 1955 graduate of the college, Mr. Hoover served as president of the Student Government in his senior year. In his years as an instructor, he has taken an active interest in the problems and character of college men and women. He is an advisor to this year's senior class and for several years has been proctor of Butler Hall.

Mr. Hoover holds a master's degree in education and is associated with the Pennsylvania and National Education Associations. He is also a member of local, state, and national business organizations, is an official of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, and has served as an associate secretary of the Alumni Association.

Though new to his job at Chase Hall, Mr. Hoover nevertheless can make some generalizations about it. He feels, coincidental with his belief in the integrity of college men and women, that students might be given more responsibility, might take over some of the police-type duties of the Administration and, in general, have the ability to play a greater part in the administration of their own affairs.

At 29, Mr. Hoover has seen and been a part of much of the college growth of the past decade. As a student, teacher, and now as an administrator, he has earned the respect of faculty and student body alike. It is from this respect, and from the reputation he has earned as a responsible leader that Mr. Hoover hopes to derive the cooperation which will enable him to perform his new job successfully.

Cheerleaders Select Dyers as Captain; Fill Four Vacancies

Next year's cheering squad will feature four new cheerleaders and new captains, Mrs. Doris Saracino, advisor of the squad, recently announced.

Mr. John Reese, Mr. Robert Morris, Mrs. Saracino, faculty members, Miss Millie Gittins, proprietor of the College Book Store, and the nine cheerleaders have chosen Janet Ainsworth, Jerry Jean Baird, Mary Lou Searles, and Joan Pitney to fill vacancies which will be created in the squad by graduating seniors. They also selected four alternates: Rose Ann Hallet, Jo Signorelli, Charlene Nalbach, and Rachael Phillips. The new squad then selected Lorraine Dyers captain and Gail Roberts co-captain. The other cheerleaders are Jane Woolbert and Linda Paonessa.

The squad has already begun spring practice.

Michelini Takes Leave To Fill N.S.F. Post In Washington, D.C.

Kennedy prepares for invasion of Washington! — Caroline, that is. She had better, for it will be a full-fledged assault of tricycles, roller skates and other assorted top-secret weapons of combat launched by three pert foreign invaders named Michelle, Lisa, and Lucia. Incidentally, their last name is Michelini, and they happen to belong to one Dr. Francis Michelini, more commonly known around Stark Hall as "Dr. Mike".

Dr. Michelini's forthcoming trip to the nation's capital, with his wife, Anne Marie, and his three daughters, will be to assume the position of Assistant Program Director in the Institutes Section of the National Science Foundation. He has taken a one-year leave of absence from his position at Wilkes to make this possible.

"Dr. Mike's" first contact with the Foundation came as a result of various research activities being conducted at the college under N.S.F. support. His application for a position led to a review of his qualifications by several panels of N.S.F. personnel. Its ultimate acceptance brought distinction both to Dr. Michelini and to Wilkes College.

Specifically, Dr. Michelini's job as a member of the Institute will be to evaluate and approve programs designed to improve the competence of science teachers throughout the nation. The Institute accomplished this aim by providing summer institutes for instructors "to make it possible for in-service teachers of elementary and secondary schools and colleges to obtain additional instruction and become acquainted with new developments in science and mathematics."

The overall purpose of the National Science Foundation closely parallels that of the Institute. The statute under which the Foundation operates "authorizes and directs" N.S.F. progress of science; to advance the national health, prosperity, and welfare; to secure the national defense, and to accomplish other purposes." Its area of concern, as specified by law, is that of "the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and other sciences."

The Foundation's programs for education in the sciences are based primarily on: 1. the Nation's needs, both now and in the future; 2. encouraging initiative and imagination on the part of scientists, scientist-teachers, educational institutions, and scientific institutions in devising ways to improve education in the sciences; and 3. cooperation between those eminent in teaching and those eminent in science.

Roberts, DeAngelis, Burns Fill Positions In Student Government

James Walters, junior commerce and finance major with three years of experience as a Student Government representative, was elected president at last Monday's meeting.

His term of office will begin when Albert Kishel hands over the president's gavel at the annual banquet this Monday evening. Walters has been treasurer of the Student Government for the past two years. Last year he ran unopposed for this office.

Vice-president of next year's governing body is Gail Roberts. Other officers are Richard Burns, treasurer, and Cathy DeAngelis, secretary.

Miss Roberts is a sophomore sociology major. She has served on the Government for one year. During her term of office she was a member of the Policies, Publicity, Constitution, and Winter Carnival Committees, and was chairman of the Cinderella Ball Committee.

Richard Burns became a member of the Student Government last January after a special election. He has served on the Constitution and Cinderella Ball Committees. He is a sophomore commerce and finance major.

Miss DeAngelis, freshman biology major, ran unopposed for secretary and was elected by acclamation. She served as president of the freshman class this past year.

Lou Coopey, sophomore representative, was named chairman of the Calendar Committee. Further committees will be selected at the banquet on Monday which begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Carousel Motel.

The solons passed a motion to hold a special election before the end of the school year which would fill the position left vacant by the presidential election.

Other business at the meeting was held to a minimum. Michael Bianco introduced a new policy which the solons passed. It reads, "No major social activity will be held on an evening before a class day except where permission is granted by the Student Government."

The Government approved the constitution of the Women's Athletic Association. This organization is comprised of the Kickline, Cheerleaders, and Majorettes.

Edward Rogalski, chairman of the handbook committee, reported that minor changes will take place in next year's Student Handbook. Amendments to the constitution of the Student Government will be included, the informative sections of the book will be extended, and the outdated map in the centerfold of the handbook will be changed.

James Walters made his final report as treasurer. After expenses, appropriations, and income as of April 31, there is a balance of $3,308.47 in the treasury.

The representatives voted to pay as much of the $225 deficit for the cafeteria stereo equipment as possible without drawing on the Student Government Scholarship Fund.

Awards Assembly Fetes Students For Year's Service, Achievement

by Rose Ann Hallett

Dr. Eugene S. Farley conducted the annual Awards Day Assembly yesterday in the gymnasium. Awards were given to students who have excelled in these academic studies or in extra-curricular activities.

Mr. Francis J. Salley, faculty advisor to the Beacon, presented awards to the graduating staff members. Wayne W. Thomas received the award as graduating editor-in-chief of the publication, Cynthia A. Hagley for four years of service and serving as news editor in her senior year, George J. Tensa for the best record in his freshman chemistry courses. This year's award went to Howard Hughes.

Dr. Charles Reif, chairman of the Biology Department, presented biology awards to two senior biology majors, Rachael Altavilla and Murray Davis.

Mr. Arthur Hoover presented an award to Ann Znaniecki, the senior who has attained the best record in business education, and the ICG award went to Rick Rees as outstanding member of that organization.

Edward Yadzinski was presented the Band award for outstanding membership in the college band by Mr. Larry Weed, band director.

Nancy Tinklepaugh, representing the assembly committee, presented the award for the year's outstanding student assembly program to the Symphonic Band.

With Gratitude

The announcement that Mrs. Gertrude Doane, Dean of Women, will retire at the close of this semester brings back many pleasant memories of the great contribution made to the college by Mrs. Doane. Dean Doane began her assignment here in 1954 and in addition to serving as Dean of Women, she has also served as advisor to Theta Delta Rho and to the assembly committee.

Students at Wilkes have always been in close proximity with Mrs. Doane's office because all were welcome to come in and discuss serious personal problems, plan affairs, or merely pass a few moments of the day. All of us have become acquainted with her geniality and willingness to assist in any way possible.

We indeed owe a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Doane for her untiring, unselfish dedication to the college. It is a privilege and to her husband, Dr. John Doane, best wishes for every and o her husband, Dr. John Doane, best wishes for every possible happiness.

Identity of Eight-Year-Old 'Manuscript' Contributor Is Revealed

by Barbara A. Lore

Many readers of the current Manuscript were probably perplexed by the vague identification line—a contribution from an 8-year-old girl whose mother is a student—on the poem "The Love of the World."

The identity of this mystery writer can now be revealed. She is Sybil Fischman, 3rd grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fischman, 107 Maffett St., Wilkes-Barre, an extremely precocious child who has written a play, short story, and several other poems besides this one. Sybil wrote this poem as an anniversary present for her parents since she as the youngest child had no allowance with which to purchase a gift.

Dr. Philip Rizzo, advisor of the Manuscript, discovered the poem when Sybil's mother, a student in the Temple Graduate program, brought the poem into class to share it with a friend. Impressed with the quality of the verse, Dr. Rizzo suggested the possibility of having the verse printed in the Manuscript.

Sybil, who also enjoys reading poetry immensely, has been encouraged in her literary interests by her mother who is an instructor in the Wilkes-Barre City Schools Gifted Child Program, and has an inherent interest in creative writing, since she majored in Journalism at Penn State.

School Directors to Discuss Reorganization Act Tomorrow

Approximately 100 school directors from Luzerne, Lackawanna, Columbia, Bradford, Pike, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wayne, and Wyoming counties will meet here tomorrow to discuss the controversial School Reorganization Act. Passed by the 1961 General Assembly, this Act faces either implementation, amendment, or repeal at the Assembly's next session.

Mr. Louis Leger, regional director of the Pennsylvania State School Directors' Association, is the sponsor of the meeting.

The morning program will be mainly devoted to a panel discussion, moderated by the retired Superintendent of Bradford County Schools, J. Andrew Morrow. The panelists will be Mrs. Jeanette Riebmman, chairman of the House of Representatives' Education Committee, and E. S. Teter, Superintendent of Luzerne County Schools. The discussion will embrace the problems facing county school boards in implementing the provisions of the reorganization law. A round-table discussion and short business session will follow.

A panel composed of Mrs. Riebmman and the school superintendents of the represented counties will answer any questions which the directors may have in regard to the process of reorganization. Mr. Morrow will again moderate.

A lunch at the Commons is scheduled for noon.

The session will open with registration at 9:30 a.m. and adjourn at 2:45 p.m.

Letters to the Editor...

Dear Editor:

As the end of the year grows nearer with each tick of the clock I feel that the time has come to reflect on the "Spirit of Wilkes."

Complaints of apathy and lack of social life float around campus like a heavy cloud and those who complain most are those who do the least to dispel the gloom.

Wilkes is relatively an infant school and it is natural that a college such as ours would not have the traditions or the extravagant social functions that the ancient Ivy League is noted for. But we, the students of the present, have an opportunity that others do not have or can not ever hope to have. We can initiate the traditions of Wilkes and help to raise the college to new heights scholastically and socially.

A college should be more than a diploma factory. It is a way of life to which more should be given than is taken away. The years one spends in school should be period of growth, both mentally and socially. It is a time when attitudes change and develop and it boils down to one thing: Wilkes is what the students make it, and the success or failure of all activities depends on the attitude of the participants. Incidentally it does take participants to make any function possible.

I personally believe that Wilkes has come a long way in a short time and it need not take a back seat to any comparable institution. If some of you disagree with me, speak to students who attend other colleges. I have found many who are amazed at the number and type of social activities we have here.

I am proud to say I am from Wilkes and I am happy to have had the opportunity to serve as Chairman of the School Spirit Committee. It has meant many headaches but it was worth every pain.

I would like to thank the clubs, organizations, and individuals without whose help and cooperation the task would have been impossible.

In particular I wish to commend the regular and loyal members of the committee itself who gave much of their free time to insure the success of our many projects.

The recent Spring Weekend could not have taken place without the aid of Mr. William Jervis and his crew, Jerry Moffat and the Economics Club who handled the arrangements for the Outing, John Biga and the Radio Club who supplied the sound equipment, Mr. William Denion who helped in procuring the refreshments and food, and Mr. Robert Morris, Mr. Arthur Hoover, and Miss Millie Gittins who have served as advisors and chaperones for many of the year's activities. Thanks also to Mr. Robert DeYoung and Senor Jose Rebas who served as chaperones for Sunday's outing.

It should also be noted that many groups outside the school have contributed the use of equipment to us. A special thank you goes to the Wilkes-Barre Park Department, Major Webber of the National Guard, and the Wilkes-Barre Junior Chamber of Commerce who supplied the lights for the Carnival; the Sun Oil Company for the use of the pennants; and Dairy Dan Incorporated for the fine publicity.

In conclusion I say thanks again to everyone for everything. Let's keep Wilkes going in one direction — up!

Umla, Versatile Instrumentalist, Specializes in Church Music

by Gloria Zaludek

Walter Umla, a senior music education major specializing in organ and piano, made his musical debut at age two when he sang a solo for his church choir. Since then he has developed his love for music by studying violin, piano, and organ.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Umla of Mountaintop, he accounts for his deep interest in music by recalling, "Good music has always been a part of my home life." Walt's family enjoys not only listening to, but also playing, good music.

Walter Umla

Having studied violin and piano, Walt had never had lessons on the organ. But when, at the age of eleven, he was asked to play for a church service, he consented. He remained for eight years as organist for his church in Mountaintop.

His interest in church music has been augmented by his three-year position as director of music and as organist for the Westmoor Church of Christ in Kingston, and as organist at the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Wilkes-Barre.

A graduate of Fairview High School in Mountaintop where he was accompanist for the mixed chorus for three years, Walt has been extremely active in campus life at the College. As a freshman he was in the chorus for the Cue and Curtain production "Annie Get Your Gun." He has been accompanist for the Collegians and a member of the mixed chorus throughout his college years. He is a three-year member of the Oratorio Society, and for two years has sung with the Madrigal Singers. He is also assistant accompanist for the Orpheus Choral Society of Wyoming Valley.

Student teaching at Kingston High School and elementary schools has helped prepare Walt for a teaching career in the Wilkes-Barre city junior high schools. As he commented, "I have always had great respect for teachers and have enjoyed my experiences in student teaching. I look forward to the fall." Walt will teach vocal and general music in the city schools, and hopes to study for his master's degree in music education.

Studying organ and piano with Mr. Clifford E. Balshaw of the music department, Walt says that the aim of accomplished musicians is "not to play a selection as perfectly as possible, but rather to interpret the composer's ideas—to get these ideas across to the listener." Walt has seen many improvements on campus during his years here. He especially noted the conversion of Gies Hall from a building used by the various academic departments to one used exclusively by the music department.

He feels that the College definitely needs a fine arts building which will soon be erected. "Gies wasn't built as a music building. Although the music department has certainly adapted to its scanty facilities, a fine arts building with sound proof and acoustically built rooms will be invaluable to all who play and enjoy music."

Indeed sound carries. But Walt's playing should not be done in sound-proof rooms. It should resound throughout this area as a tribute to his fine creative abilities and to a family who has contributed much to the world of music.

Past, Present and Future

This writer, expecting to graduate from Wilkes in June, thought a little reminiscing and a bit of nostalgia of the good old days would be most appropriate.

Years ago, many were the times when we had to trek through the winter snow from the Gym to Conyngham in ten minutes. But our Alma Mater, knowing the remorse and grief that the students were going through, bought a Hall. The ten minute interval remains the same, but the student is able to keep warm in the freezing weather by working up a sweat racing to get from the Gym to Parrish.

Also in days of yore, for a fee of $1.00, the students were able to park their cars in two lots. The one near the Gym had a systematically set up plan, and not too many problems arose. The one adjacent to Gies was patterned after a checkerboard; make the wrong move, and your car is lost in the maze. Realizing the students' problem, the parking fee was raised to $6.00, and all lots have been thoroughly beautified and enlarged. The new Parrish Lot also serves as an additional source of income for the school, since fines are imposed for double parking. Of course, if the faculty tried to contain themselves in their own section, and not use the students' area, fines could be reduced.

Of course no recollection would be complete without mention of Chase Theater. Watching top-notch productions used to be a gymnastic "feat". At that time if your knee wasn't wedged up against your chin, it was pushing against someone's anterior section. But the conditions have been alleviated by placing chairs outside the building, and a portion of the audience can look through the windows.

But enough of the past, let's look towards the future: New modern buildings, with a higher modern tuition increase: larger student body, with the same number of parking facilities; a fraternity to which all the males automatically belong —, this means a "wet" campus, that is, one in which the sorority swims in tea, and the

Conyngham Building Presents Impressive Image of Campus

CONYNGHAM HALL

Visitors to the city of Wilkes-Barre and the Wilkes campus have often commented favorably on the beauty of the various college buildings. They are especially impressed by those buildings which front on South River Street and feel that the River Common, fronting on the dike across the street, forms a beautiful lawn for the campus.

Thus, this area provides the campus with the further feeling of traditional college roominess. In this atmosphere, especially during the fall and spring, the students can study, relax, and play friendly ball games.

The fact that the college was to have a campus that spread over a fairly extensive land area bounded by the dike seems confirmed by the second gift to the college. The gift was a building at the opposite end of the block from Chase Hall, our first building.

This large, imposing structure was donated to the school by Mrs. Bertha R. Conyngham in honor of her late husband, John, and was thus designated Conyngham Hall. There is a close parallel between the past histories of Conyngham and Chase Halls starting with the fact that Conyngham was originally built by Mr. Charles Parrish who, like Mr. Chase, was once prominent in the coal mining history of Wyoming Valley.

In addition, since it has been acquired by the college, Conyngham Hall also has been used for a variety of purposes. At one time it housed the Departments of Chemistry and Engineering as well as the Department of Commerce and Finance. Presently the building houses the Engineering, Language, and Mathematics Departments with history classes occasionally scheduled to meet there.

A further parallel to Chase Hall is the fact that the Conyngham property also contains a two-story building which formerly served as a garage. It is now being used as the home of the college's Art Department.

The next step in the college's expansion program was the presentation of a building that was in the same block as the other two but around the corner on West Northampton Street. This was the gift by Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Weckesser of their home which was used as the "Collegium Musicum."

This was the first of its kind in this part of the state and it was in this building that Professor Paul 'Pop' Gies conducted the Music Department. Later the building served for a time as the home of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Farley. Today, Weckesser Hall is being utilized as a women's dormitory.

For the next several years the further growth, physically, of the college was concentrated in this block. As a result of additional gifts, the school came into the possession of three more buildings in this area before 1950.

Two of these buildings were presented to the school by the members of the Board of Trustees and, again in keeping with its desire to identify itself with the past history of the community, the college named them after persons famous in the area's history.

The first of these buildings was named after Isaac Barre, a noted Englishman who was friendly to the cause of the American colonies at the time of the Revolutionary War. The college thus followed in the steps of those city fathers who had included Mr. Barre's name in the name of the city.

Barre Hall was first used for classrooms and faculty offices but is now being used as a men's dormitory as is the second building presented at this time by the Board of Trustees. This was the building next to Barre Hall and was named for the American officer, Zebulon Butler, a colonel commanding a group of patriots who were slain in the Wyoming Massacre.

It was, however, during the past decade that the greatest part of the college's physical plant expansion occurred. Next week, the latest aspects of this growth will be discussed with a major look to be given to the acquisition by the college of several large, modern structures.

The following representatives received awards: Al Kishel, president; Mike Bianco, vice-president; Ted Begun, secretary; Jim Walters, treasurer; Rick Rees, Frank Menaker, and Leona Baiera, Class of 1962; Bonnie Jenkins and Harvey Rosen, Class of 1963; Gail Roberts, Lou Coopey, Richard Burns, and Fred Smithson, lass of 1964; and Steve Paradise, Jo Signorelli, and Mary Lee Vannoy, Class of 1965.

Jerry Berk presented I.D. awards to Estelle Manos and Steve Schwartz as the outstanding female and male dormitory students who have contributed most to college life and to dormitory activities. Lorraine Dyers announced the

Hirschman Named to Top 'Manuscript' Post; Lore, Tobias to Assist

At a recent Manuscript meeting, Marc Hirschman, a junior psychology major, was elected editor-in-chief for the year 1962-63. Two sophomore English majors have been named as his associate editors, Barbara Lore and Harris Tobias.

Dolores Amir, a junior English major, was elevated to the position of secretary. Filling the positions of business manager and exchange editor will be Jack Hardie and Joyce Cavallini, both sophomore English majors. Steve Robertson, a junior political science major, and Martin Brennan, a freshman, have been named film editor and circulation manager, respectively.

Film To Be Shown

Ingmar Bergman's film, The Seventh Seal, will be the final attraction sponsored by the Manuscript Society this year. Mr. Bergman utilizes a scene such as a man risking death in a game of chess, to try to answer the question, "Is God valid and is death the end or just the beginning?" The title of the film is taken from a quote in the Book of Revelation.

Ingmar Bergman, the producer and director, won an Academy Award this year for the best foreign film, his production of Through A Glass Darkly. The stars of the latter film also appear in the lead roles in The Seventh

Recall to College Position Causes Longing for Quiet Life

According to Mrs. Gertrude Allen Doane, she will retire from her position as Dean of Women "for the second and last time." For those who were not here at the time, Mrs. Doane retired in 1959 after five and a half years of service to Wilkes. Concerning her return to Wilkes after a year and a half absence, Mrs. Doane remarked that "It was an unexpected year but a pleasant one. Now, my professional life has ended in all fairness to Wilkes College."

Mrs. Gertrude Doane

Seal, and this film will be shown tonight at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in Stark 116.

Since her return to the college, Mrs. Doane, with her charming and gracious personality, has given guidance and assistance to students with personal and academic problems. In addition to her duties as Dean of Women, she again assumed the position of faculty advisor to Theta Delta Rho and the assembly committee.

Upon completion of her duties at Wilkes, Mrs. Doane expects to spend the summer at her home in Idetown. She and her husband anticipate constant visits from their family. As Mrs. Doane stated, "I will have time to enjoy my grandchildren." Dr. and Mrs. Doane have eight grandchildren. After an eventful summer, Dr. and Mrs. Doane will spend the winter in Florida with their son.

While she is at home, Mrs. Doane will return to her interest in the bird sanctuary which enhances her backyard. Another hobby which delights her is the maintenance of the beautiful flowers surrounding her home.

"I will be able to renew friendships for which I have been unable to find time because of my full-time position here." Mrs. Doane added that "I will also have time to pick up the loose ends of my extra-curricular activities in the community." Her plans include her active participation in welfare work at the state and local levels.

Mrs. Doane was born in Mansfield, Pennsylvania and began her studies for a teaching career at Mansfield State Teachers College. After her graduation from Mansfield, she did advanced work at Emerson College, Boston, Massachusetts.

Mrs. Doane has been a prominent figure in welfare circles, serving as a member of the State Advisory Committee for the welfare of children in rural areas, a member of the Child Welfare Committee and the Planning Council of the Wyoming Valley Community Chest.

She was also a member of the Board of Public Assistance in Luzerne County, a member of the Executive Board of the Northeastern Heart Association, a member of the State Advisory Committee on Child Adoptions and president of the Children's Aid Society of Tioga County. Mrs. Doane is also past president of the Wyoming Valley Women's Club and the Pennsylvania State Medical Association's Women's Auxiliary.

The Doane family includes three sons, all doctors; a daughter, and eight grandchildren. During this past week, Mrs. Doane was feted at a TDR Senior Banquet. Barbara Pileggi, president of the Sorority, presented a token of appreciation to Mrs. Doane for the aid and support she has given to TDR. The present was an engraved sterling silver bowl.

Rachael Altavilla Named "Cindy"

RACHAEL ALTAVILLA

SPRING WEEKEND — Rachael Altavilla, a senior secondary education major, was crowned Cinderella at the Cinderella Ball last Friday night. The crowning of Miss Altavilla was the climax to the ball, which was the opening of festivities for Spring Weekend.

On the following night, Spring Carnival, sponsored by the School Spirit Committee, was held. Erwin Guetig won the male legs contest and was named "Cinderella". The final event of the weekend was an All-College outing which was held at Rocky Glen Park on Sunday. The Economics Club arranged this affair.

George Tensa presented the Athlete of the Year Award to James

Elaine Kozemchak awarded Sherry Downing and Carol Rousch charms for service as members of the Kickline.

Mr. Capin, accounting professor, presented the Weissman Award to Nick Alesandro, and the C.P.A. Award for receiving high grades in accounting and demonstrated qualities of leadership in other activities to Gerald Moffatt.

Dr. Hammer, chairman of the education department, presented the Education Award to Mary Ann Foley for outstanding service in that club.

Remarks by Dr. Farley closed the assembly.

Bud Menaker Gathers Athlete Nod With Impressive Court Victories

Although just having completed a losing season, the tennis team has had its share of players who occupy positions of stardom as in other Wilkes athletic endeavors. Captain Bud Menaker is one of these performers who deserves such a ranking. During his two-year career at Wilkes, Bud has been a consistent player who displayed superb conditioning and a good deal of skill.

A senior Political Science major, Bud compiled a 3-4 record in singles competition this season while logging a 4-3 mark with his partner Bill Klein in the doubles matches. These records include one exhibition match in addition to the regular MAC contests.

Bud Menaker

Bud is a native of Harrisburg where he starred for William Penn High School in tennis, captaining the team in his senior year. Before coming to Wilkes, Bud went to Pennsylvania Military College where he participated in varsity tennis in his freshman year.

At Wilkes, Bud played intramural basketball with no little proficiency and also clinched the intramural tennis championship last year. (This tournament was not held this year).

Bud resides in Warner Hall where he serves as dorm vice-president. He has also served ably on the Student Government this year.

In an interview with this reporter, Bud said that this year's team was capable of producing a winning season, but it was hampered by a lack of experience on the part of a few players. He stated that the team generally was in excellent condition, thanks to the expert training and coaching of Mr. Tom McFarland.

The team, Bud stated, was disappointed in their performance. They were provided with new facilities, including twenty thousand dollars in courts and excellent equipment, and the team feels that they failed to provide an adequate return on that investment.

We on the Beacon Sports Staff, however, feel that the team has not let Wilkes down, but has been a tribute to the Wilkes spirit. They played spirited tennis with a high regard to sportsmanship. Bud Menaker has been the foremost exponent of this type of play and we extend congratulations to this skilled and gentlemanly performer. We take pleasure in naming Bud "Athlete of the Week."

Golfers End Winning Season Today

Coach Welton Farrar's golfers will end another successful season this afternoon at Albright College. The Colonel duffers will be seeking to end the season on a happy note, and are expected to best the Albright team.

Last Monday, the Wilkes team placed thirteenth in a field of twenty-five teams in the Middle Atlantic Conference tournament which was held at the Fox Hill Country Club. Last week's "Athlete of the Week", John Occhiato, ended in a four-way tie for seventh place among the individual golfers, posting a 78-83 score. He made the best showing of all the regional golfers.

The Rutgers team, making its first and last appearance in the tournament, upset defending champion Bucknell by three strokes to win the conference crown.

Coach Don White's squad finished with a total of 647, paced by Mike Fleischman's 74-80-154. The Scarlet last week finished fourth in the New York area's Metropolitan tournament after a season of five wins and eight losses. In past years Rutgers has passed up the Middle Atlantic which normally conflicts with the New York tournament.

Rutgers is withdrawing from the conference at the end of this year. Moravian was third, Lehigh fourth and Delaware fifth in the 13th annual MAC tourney.

Individual medal honors went to Sandy Hutchison, Moravian sophomore, who shot a 72-0-152. Hutchison is the son of Saucon Valley Pro Ralph Hutchison.

Bucknell's Captain Curt Mull, a senior from Akron, Ohio, bogeyed two of the last three holes to finish one stroke behind Hutchison.

Drexel's Jack Leeney was deprived of a fourth place tie when a companion neglected to correct his scorecard, which showed 158 instead of 157. The card as turned in placed Leeney in a three-way tie for fifth.

Netmen Close Season With Victory Over Scranton, Bow to Moravian

Last Monday, Coach McFarland's Colonel tennis team closed out the season at Bethlehem, as they were blitzed by the Greyhounds of Moravian College in a 9-0 shutout. Coach Sam Kilpatrick's Greyhound squad outclassed the Colonels although five of the matches ran to three sets.

Moravian's five returnees from last year, led by No. 1 Merr Trumbore, were unbeatable and proved to be too experienced for the Wilkesmen. A sophomore, playing his first year of varsity tennis also came through with a winning performance for the Greyhounds.

Last Saturday's court action saw the Wilkes tennismen fashion a 9-0 victory over the Royals of Scranton University. Each of the Colonel starting six, Captain Bud Menaker, Gary Einhorn, Bill Klein, Gary Frank, Fred Smithson, and Owen Francis, won singles matches by decisive margins. Only Einhorn's match lasted three sets.

In the doubles events, Menaker and Klein won in three sets while Francis and Bill Douglas, and Smithson and Frank won in straight sets.

This contest marked the second win of the season for the Colonels. They ended the season with a 2-4 won-lost chart, which could have been reversed with a more fortunate run of luck. Three contests were rained out and the chances of Wilkes victories in each of these contests were good. One of the washed-out dates was with the Scranton team, which the Colonels trounced last Saturday. Two of the losses were by 5-4 margins and another was by a 6-3 count.

With only one senior, Bud Menaker, on the team, prospects for next season are definitely bright. Although this season proved to be one of frustration, it served to provide much-needed experience for the Wilkes team.

Colonels Close At Home Tomorrow; Alumni Wins Annual Varsity Clash

Colonel baseball will have its last homestand of the 1962 season tomorrow as the Blue and Gold diamondmen host a strong East Stroudsburg State College team. Action is scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m. with Joe Kruczek expected to be on the mound for the Colonels against John Polanchack of the Warriors.

Playing his last game for the Colonels will be Paul Aquilino. The sturdy left-fielder is a four-year veteran for the Dydomen and has played the three outfield positions as well as first base in these four campaigns. Aquilino is currently among the leading batsmen for the Colonels and has been hitting the ball well from the south side of the plate.

After tomorrow's home finale the diamondmen will travel to East Stroudsburg next Saturday for the season's ender with the Warriors.

Edge Scranton

A sacrifice fly by Paul Aquilino in the bottom of the 11th inning brought in Joe Kruczek with the winning margin on Monday as the Colonels edged out the Scranton Royals, 3-2. This was the second victory for the Wilkesmen over their Scranton counterparts in two outings.

The Colonels drew first blood in the opening inning by sending two runs scampering over home plate on singles by Tom Trosko and Aquilino and a two-run triple by Len Yankoski. The Royals scored single tallies in the sixth and eighth innings on singles by Kost, Koneski, and Cesare.

Both squads battled on even terms for the next three frames. In the bottom of the 11th Kruczek opened the frame with a walk, and stole second base. Trosko advanced the runner to third with a single and Aquilino, captain of the squad, sent the winning run across the plate with a well hit shot to deep center field.

Trosko swung the heavy bat for the Colonels, collecting three singles in five appearances at the plate, while Yankoski belted a two run triple. Kruczek, relieving Bob Fleming on the mound in the eighth inning, picked up his fourth victory of the season against a single setback.

ALUMNI ROAR

The stars of yesteryear left their canes and press clippings on the sidelines last Saturday as they took to the field in the second annual Alumni - Varsity baseball game. Instead of swinging their canes the "Old Timers" swung heavy bats to the tune of seven runs and eleven hits. The faded press clippings were replaced by bright new ones that told the tale of the Alumni capturing a 7-2 victory over their younger counterparts.

Action started early for the Alumni as they tallied twice in the opening stanza on a single by Ron Rescigno, a double by Jim Ferris, and a two run producing bingle by Ralph Hendershot. They scored again in the second inning on a double by Walt Folek and a single by Joe Sikora.

After a scoreless third inning, even though the Alumni loaded the bases and pulled off a neat double steal by Bob Sokol and Ferris, the stars of yesteryear sent two tallies across the plate on a fielder's choice by Ed Parsnick, a towering triple to deep centerfield by Sokol, and a single by Ferris. The Alumni ended their scoring in the ninth on a walk to Sikora, a double by Rescigno, and a single by Ferris.

The Varsity evaded a shutout in the bottom of the ninth by scoring twice with a double by Len Yankoski the big blow. Top hitters in the contest were Jim Ferris, Ron Rescigno, and Walt Folek of the Alumni.

Joe Sikora, the lanky alumnus from Plymouth, took the nod as winning pitcher with a brilliant seven hitter. Two fielding miscues by his infield in the ninth inning ended his bid for a shutout.

The stars of yesteryear well deserved the victory as they overcame many obstacles — often called midriff bulge — to play the game and as they left the field with a glove under the right arm, a smile on their face, and a bottle of rubbing alcohol under their left arm they vowed to make it two in a roll next year.

Gridders Conclude Spring Drills; Two Week Venture Is Successful

Wilkes College's football Colonels are nearing the end of a successful spring practice, Head Coach Roland Schmidt reports. Concluding drills will be held this afternoon at the hockey field after which the Blue and Gold grid candidates will exchange their gridiron armor for the blue books of finals.

For the past two weeks the gridders have been working out under newly-appointed coaches Schmidt, Goobic, and Spudis with the results of the spring drills showing the first-year experiment a highly-successful endeavor. Schmidt has high praise for enthusiasm of the squad as they worked to replace the excess poundage acquired during the winter with solid muscle.

In an interview with the Colonel mentor, this reporter learned that the 1962 football squad will continue to employ a basic T- and wing T- formation. Working out at the quarterback slot during the spring drills have been Bill Schwab, a letter-winner from last campaign; Don Brominski, a transfer from Dickinson; and Rich Dallan, a newcomer to the ranks. Schmidt noted that returning members of last year's squad have shaped up well in drills which have featured skull sessions and light-dummy workouts.

Returning letter-winners on the line, co-captains Bill Meneeley and Jerry Mohn, Bob Herman, Len Rishofski, Chuck Cherundolo, Ed Reese, Ron Mussleman, Roger McLaughlin, and Pete Winebrake, should give line coach Frank Spudis a formidable forward wall for the season. The quarterbacking chores will be ably handled by the three candidates mentioned in the preceding paragraph. The biggest problem facing the Colonels is the lack of "bulling backs."

Coach Schmidt stressed the necessity of high morale on the team in order to produce a winner. When confronted with a prediction for the fall season the first-year mentor replied, "We will do the best job we can. That is what I ask and expect of my team."

Training rules for the squad are few, loyalty and self-discipline. When the players realize that they must be in top physical condition to give their best, loyalty and self-discipline will set the individual rules. Each player must know "the team is only as strong as the slowest man getting back to the huddle."

When asked the most important element in winning football, Schmidt answered, "Mental stance—never estimate your opponent too high or too low but face them as an equal. Conditioning, know how to block, know who to block, and don't make mistakes complete the picture."

In talking with the new coach this reporter found the enthusiasm and determination to return winning football to Wilkes. If the team can respond with "the best they can" enthusiasm found in their mentor, Wilkes football will return to the top of the sports world.

Independent All-Stars Conquer Dorm and Faculty All-Star Teams

Last Friday afternoon the Independent League intramural softball all-stars bested the Dorm League all-star aggregation, 9-7, in an exciting contest, the outcome of which was not decided until the late innings.

Led by the staunch pitching of Evan Jenkins, the Independents banged out a string of singles to cap the victory. The game was strongly void of long-ball hitting and the defensive work of the Independents was excellent. The Gauchos placed five men on the all-star team while the Naughty Nine and Seagram's 7 added three and two players respectively, to the roster.

Although the Dorm League all-stars mounted an impressive offense, they were unable to push across the deciding tallies. Jenkins' excellent control quelled Dorm uprisings. Joe Gay picked up the loss.

On Sunday the victorious Independents met a team of faculty members at the all-college outing at Rock Glen Park and the faculty emerged from the contest on the short end of a 10-3 score.

Buddy Huntgarter was the winning pitcher. He was relieved in the sixth by Evan Jenkins who finished the game. Huntgarter also provided much of the offensive power for the all-stars as he crashed a home run and a single.

The faculty had its own stars in John Chwalek at second base, John Reese at short, Dean Ralston catching, and Dirk Budd on the mound. Mr. Capin, Bob Morris, and Francis Pinkowski also provided the cheering fans with a good share of thrills.

Roy Peters, Hayden Ferrence, Jack Tredinnick, Willie Brown, Joe Lukovitch, Carl Walp, Jerry Seckler, and Mike Elias rounded out the Independent lineup.

Bowling Tournament of Champions To Be Televised from Indiana

The finals of the $50,000 Tournament of Champions, which will be bowled at the AMF-equipped Play Bowl Lanes in Indianapolis, Indiana, will be seen coast-to-coast over the ABC-TV network on Sunday, May 20 from 5 p.m. until 6:30 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time.

The Tournament, the first of its kind, will be made up of a field of 25 bowlers. Every one of them is a champion in his own right, having won either a Professional Bowlers Association tourney or one of the top national titles. Such stars as Dick Weber, current "Bowler of the Year" who is the All-Star champion and has won more P.B.A. tourneys than any other bowler; Don Carter, World's winner; Fred Lening; Harry Smith; Glen Allison; Carmen Salvo; Vern Downing; George Howard; and many other great names of bowling will compete for the top prize of $15,000. The bowlers will begin the Tournament on Saturday, May 19 by rolling 24 games. Each bowler will roll against every other bowler. The 25th game will be a "position" game. Each bowler will bowl the man who immediately precedes him in scoring, thus second-place man bowls the first-place man, fourth against third, sixth against fifth and so on through the entire list.

In this round, as in the 24 preceding games, the bowler is credited with one point for each game he wins and one point for every 30 pins he knocks down.

The three top scorers meet on T.V. and the winner is determined by total pinfall for two games.

As with many bowling spectacles of the past, AMF will coproduce the "500" Festival Tournament of Champions.

STUDENT SKETCH

Schwartz Broadens Knowledge Through Varied Experiences

by Barbara A. Lore

Stephen Schwartz is a paradox. This tall, dark, somewhat reticent, yet somehow imposing senior English major is a sort of Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde combination but with no sinister implications.

The public side of Steve, which most casual observers accept, is that which he displays in his efficient management of the Manuscript, in his activities in Cue and Curtain, in his diligent efforts on dormitory projects, and in his outstanding scholastic achievements. These activities have earned him a place in Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges, a recommendation by the administration for the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, one of the most respected academic awards of the nation, and the George Elliot Award for the Outstanding Dormitory Student of the Year awarded to him yesterday.

Steve has carved a niche for himself at Wilkes since he transferred here three years ago from his suburban Bellerose, New York home because he wanted "a small school and a good English department." According to Steve, he has changed quite a bit since that time — a fact that can be partly attributed to the influence of Dr. Stanko Vujica, chairman of the Wilkes philosophy department, who opened up new vistas and caused Steve to question the validity of some of his most definite ideas. Although he feels that in some instances, scholastic standards are too low, perhaps because Wilkes is a community college, Steve acknowledges that he has found what he was seeking since the Wilkes English department is both stimulating and well-rounded.

His activities with the Cue and Curtain Society have been a source of much diversion and stimulation although not relaxation for he describes them as sometimes "quite nerve wracking." Although he has appeared on both sides of the footlights, as an actor in Duchess of Malfi and director of the American Dream, Steve speaks most enthusiastically about his directing experience. His concept of the director is "not of one behind the scenes but of one who is an integral part of the scene—who translates the play and defines the characters thereby forming a base for the actor to build on."

His choice of the American Dream as the vehicle for his experience in directing was motivated by his desire to introduce the "Theater of the Absurd" to the student body. "These avantgardists feel that twentieth century life has lost all meaning—that nothing is of value except physical experience, therefore they eliminate time and space from their works. Feeling that art is selected reality and must reflect the times, they conclude that traditional drama is out of place in our era." Steve, who agrees with this philosophy but doubts its justification as art still feels that this genre should at least be introduced to the student body, hence his selection of the American Dream by Edward Albee — a moderate example of this philosophy and a cutting satire on the American scene.

He also has some very definite ideas on his foster child — the Manuscript — to which he has been both a frequent contributor and editor-in-chief. Comparison with the literary magazines of about 50 other small colleges has led him to the conclusion that the Manuscript is one of the finest representations of student creative writings. But he is concerned about the dearth of student response to the plea for contributions. Response to the film program however has been much more gratifying — a fact which Steve sees as a favorable sign of reawakening intellectual interest.

This, then is the Stephen Schwartz most often seen — the Stephen Schwartz who has been awarded a fellowship to the University of Pennsylvania, where he will remain until he earns his Ph.D., who eventually hopes to teach, who feels that "literature is valuable because it is a repository of experience which can be drawn upon for successful living," and that "teaching can dispel the narrow-mindedness and prejudices I hate violently by introducing conflicts into a student's life," and who complains that "people tend to see life in dichotomies" and prescribes that "the value of a liberal education is that it captures subtle gradations between the two extremes."

But below the surface of this mature, serene, seemingly ultra-conservative individual lies another Steve Schwartz. This is the Steve one gleans from conversations with his roommates and assorted members of the "inner circle."

This is the Steve affectionately dubbed "Bermuda" Schwartz by his friends and awarded the degree of Doctor of Academic Fulfillment by the same friends, who with his unique version of the Schwartz Twist won the last twist contest at Barre Hall, who as a member of Electricians Union No. 3 helped construct the lights at New York's La Guardia Airport, and who as a representative of the outstanding prizes to be won at Barre's wheel of fortune at the Spring Carnival, jumped out of a large box holding a teddy bear.

And finally, this is the Stephen Schwartz who with his roommate Marc Hirschman, plans to work in Las Vegas this summer as a shill for a gambling house because "it will be both exciting and highly remunerative."

Herein lies the paradox of Stephen Schwartz — ample proof that this concept consciously employed so often in poetry to capture the interest of the reader is equally interesting when it occurs naturally in the realm of humanity.
