J. C. Cagers To Battle Hershey Five

Proceeds of Bucknell-Hershey Game For Valley Polio Fund; Game At City YMCA

Bucknell University Junior College cage team will play host to Hershey Undergraduate Center quintet tomorrow night in the YMCA in a benefit contest for the Wyoming Valley Infantile Paralysis Fund drive.

This will be the first time that the junior college will meet the visiting Hershey team this season. Hershey, it is reported, has a top-notch ball club and has been giving most of the other schools in the Pennsylvania Junior College plenty of trouble in previous contests.

Arrangements for turning the proceeds of tomorrow's night game over to the Infantile Paralysis Fund were completed during the week by George Ralston with Bob Patton, Sports Editor of the Wilkes-Barre Record and chairman of the drive.

The usual custom of admitting Bucknell students on their passes will not be in effect Saturday night. For the benefit contest all attending will pay the usual student or adult admissions.

Ralston has expressed the hope that the junior college cagers will be able to turn the tables on the visiting Hershey team. Having run into some bad luck during past contests, the junior college five will be pointing towards winning most of the contests remaining on its schedule.

The junior college team will be depending upon such veterans of last year's squad as Bill Johns, Joe Swartwood, and Bill Zukauský to provide the local quintet with the needed scoring power to top the visiting cage team.

Some of the other men who will, undoubtedly, help the junior college club are Harry Black, Joe Pinola, Joe Savitz, and Danny Gilroy. All of these men are new on the squad, but in past contests have proven that they are exceptionally valuable to the quintet.

NOMINEES

The following people were nominated for election to class offices on the Student Council:

Freshmen—T. Check, F. Connors, C. Davis, F. Farrell, J. Hudak, J. Kanner, E. Krute, J. Kusharcik, R. Lowery, W. Perkowski, P. Richards, J. Savitz, and J. Spanos.

Sophomore—H. Anderson, J. Burak, E. Burtsavage, R. Carey, G. Davis, C. Jones, J. Korper, J. Litchman, N. Konchuba, J. Rauscher, and N. Williams.

Juniors—T. Evans, N. Goldberg, M. McHale, W. Myers, J. Riley, S. Roth, C. Templeton, R. Williams, R. Zukauský.

Thespians Ready To Present New Play On Feb. 21

After several months of planning, casting and intensive rehearsal, the Thespians, campus dramatics organization, has been able to make definite arrangements for its forthcoming production, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." The play, which dramatizes several incidents in the life of the poet Robert Browning and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett, will be presented on Friday, February 21, in the college theatre.

Mr. Alfred Groh, former Thespian and featured player in the Wilkes-Barre Little Theater presently offering, "Night Must Fall", is director of "The Barretts." While on campus, Mr. Groh was president of the Thespians and star of several productions, among them "Gammer Gurton's Needle" and Moliere's "Le Misanthrope." At Syracuse University, where he received his bachelor's degree, Mr. Groh was prominently associated with the Boar's Head, collegiate theatrical group.

With technical schedule and rehearsals progressing according to plan, the production promises to be one of the best which the Thespians have offered within several semesters.

The first American company to produce "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" was that of Catherine Cornell under the management of her husband, Guthrie McClintock. Because the play is of English origin, Miss Cornell has held all producing rights, and it has been only recently that it has been released for amateur presentation. The Thespians are one of the first of college dramatic groups to produce the play in the United States. Several years ago the drama was seen in the movies with Frederic March and Norma Shearer in the starring roles.

All students are urged to attend and support one of the cultural activities of the college. A student pass is all that is necessary for admission. The Thespians announce that any person who is interested in taking an active part in the production of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" is welcome to attend production

J. C. Grapplers To Open Season Against Cornell

By J. SULLIVAN

The Bucknell Junior College grapplers will take to the road tomorrow morning and head for Ithaca, N. Y., where they will square off against the freshman squad of Cornell University. This event will mark the official institution of wrestling at Bucknell.

Wrestling practice got under way on Monday, January 13 at the St. Stephen's gymnasium on Franklin Street. Twenty aspirants were on hand to answer the call which was a long time coming because of the difficulty in arranging for a site to conduct regular practice sessions. Many of the present squad have had previous experience with various high schools in Wyoming Valley, and those who lack experience had the opportunity of achieving a two-fold goal by learning the fine points of the grappling game and by helping their fellow team members brush up for the impending mat contests.

Coach Cromwell Thomas, who held the Southern Conference title while attending Washington and Lee University, has expressed deep satisfaction with his present roster. He has assumed a non-committal attitude in regard to the official list of candidates most likely to see service against Cornell. Thomas has stressed the point that there is strong competition in several of the weight classes, and that he may hold back on his eight-man selection until just prior to the weighing-in ceremony scheduled for 1:30 tomorrow afternoon. The first bout will begin at 6:30.

The mat contests will be conducted in accordance with the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Each school will be responsible for eight entries, and the decisions in all matches will be based on the 1947 National Collegiate Point System. The weight classes as specified by the NCAA are: 121, 128, 136, 145, 155, 165, 175, heavyweight (unlimited).

Bucknell is slated to face F. & M. on February 1 at the local YMCA. This meet will give the home town fans an opportunity to see the junior college's first official mat team in action against a strong Lancaster outfit. On February 15, the locals will be Jersey bound when they take on the matmen from Princeton University. Bucknell University and Wyoming Seminary are scheduled to oppose Coach Thomas' squad later in the season, with the inclusion of several other schools now under consideration.

Betta Gamma Chi To Hold Dance Valentine's Day

The female side of the Bucknell University Junior College Student body is about to loosen its purse strings. This eye-opening phenomenon will take place February 14, when Beta Gamma Chi, the girls' sorority of this college will sponsor a semi-formal dance in the Irem Temple Country Club.

Going all out in this splurge of the feminine capital, the girls of this institution have engaged one of the best orchestras in the valley, Jack Melton and his music makers. Tickets will be $1.20 per couple.

The last Women's Day Dance was held during the Spring Semester of 1946 and was a great success; but Bucknell's Daisy Maes are determined to outdo themselves for this occasion.

Chairmen of committees for the dance are: Tickets, Dolores Seitzhek; Decorations, Faith Davis; Publicity, Miriam Golightly; Chaperons, June Marshall; Invitations, Gloria Paczkowski.

BEACON MEETING

Beacon Staff will meet Tuesday at 4:00 P. M., in Kirby 107. All members must be present for assignments.

Spanish Club May Take Air Trip To Havana, Cuba

An unprecedented event in education at Bucknell Junior College is being planned by Miss Martha Silseth and the students of the Spanish classes who are planning a plane trip to Havana during the Easter season.

Emphasizing that plans are still in the tentative stage, Miss Silseth announced that arrangements are under way for a one week tour of the cultural life in the Cuban capital. If plans proceed according to schedule Pan-American Airways will transport the students from the Forty-Fort airport to Havana, stopping enroute at Miami, Florida. A C-54 will probably transport the group. The $150 price of the trip will be exceptionally reasonable, considering that this amount will defray all Announcement has been made of the appointment of Mrs. Charles Henderson, wife of Charles Henderson, instructor in the Music Department, as Dean of Women at Bucknell Junior College. Mrs. Henderson will join the faculty with the start of the spring term on February 12. Her home town is Endicott, New York, but she has spent considerable time in Wyoming Valley as a member of the staff of the local YWCA.

Mrs. Henderson is a graduate of Tusculum College at Greenville, Tennessee. She received her Master of Arts degree in history and social studies from Syracuse University. For several years, prior to her coming to Wilkes-Barre, she taught in the New York State schools.

Following this period of teaching, Mrs. Henderson was appointed to a position on the staff of the Wilkes-Barre YWCA. Among her duties at the local center were the organization of activities programs and the counselling of young girls who belong to the Girl Reserves. One of Mrs. Henderson's positions was Director of Girl Reserves.

As Dean of Women, Mrs. Henderson will come in close contact with the girls who are in residence at the dormitory and with the larger group of women who comprise the daytime students. With her previous experience in counselling and in planning activities, Mrs. Henderson will be able to offer valuable assistance to the student council and the women's sorority in their social and governing programs. In addition to her position as Dean of Women, Mrs. Henderson will also serve as an instructor in history.

expenses involved in transportation, hotel accommodations, and meals.

On Tuesday, January 21, a large group of students met with Miss Silseth to discuss further plans for the event. On Tuesday, January 23, another meeting will be held in Chase 209 at 12 o'clock, at which time additional plans for the trip will be arranged. Everyone who is interested in making the trip is invited to attend.

It is interesting to note that Pan-American Airways has made this offer only to students of Bucknell College. Such an event has no parallel in the history of this college, the advantages of the opportunity which has been extended are obvious. A trip of this nature will be a memorable one.

Activities And The Inactive

For some time we have tried to discover the reasons for the apathy toward the school's activities on the part of many students. After talking to many students, and after having arrived at some very definite conclusions, we decided to check our findings by submitting our problem to the Student Poll. The results of the sampling of opinion, included in another section of this issue, coincide with the feelings at which we had previously arrived.

Let's look at some of the answers in the poll. The fact that many students have been entering here with the intention of later transferring to another school, has without doubt left them with little desire to participate in activities. At one time this attitude was understandable, because BUJC was only a two year college. Now, however, with the third year an actuality and the fourth year definitely scheduled for the fall, this lack of interest should be felt only by that comparatively small group who intend to transfer in order to specialize intensively in a particular field. Others who intend to remain here and who have given both time and effort to build up the social side of the college should see that the program continues on the up-grade and does not decline.

While this institution was suffering from lack of students there was an understandable reason as to why the social program was not too successful. However, at the present time Bucknell Junior College has the largest student enrollment in its history. Therefore, it is only logical to believe that the social program, as well as the school spirit, should also increase.

Cafeteria Problem

There has been much comment concerning the way milk is dispensed in the cafeteria. Nearly everyone agrees that there would be less confusion if the milk could be dispensed in another manner other than over the counter. It could be said, conservatively, that approximately fifty percent of the students using the cafeteria purchase only milk. If it is at all feasible, a separate section for dispensing milk to those who intend to buy only milk would alleviate the present congestion.

At present something equivalent to a Times-Square traffic jam ensues, and the cashier, like the policeman, is left confused and bewildered. The resultant slowing up of the line isn't fair to the person who purchases his lunch in the cafeteria and must fight his way to the cash register.

Let it be understood that we are not indulging in carpentering criticism. Our intent is to help clear up the confusion. We are making a plea to those who may have a good suggestion in mind. If you have a good idea, let it be known! Talk to Mrs. Brennan about it, or write up your idea and leave it in the Beacon office. Through co-operation of this sort we can make our college a smooth-working organization—an example of what can be accomplished by using democratic methods.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

At long last the lethargic student body (or more correctly, a portion of it) has gathered to present nominations for the new Student Council. And once again the campaign posters, bearing a varied assortment of promises, are being plastered around the school. Some of these promises are sound while others seem to have been made by "tongue-in-cheek" candidates.

Publicity campaigns singing the praises of an individual accomplish nothing unless those individuals are really and truly capable of assuming the responsibilities of a Student Council position.

Students! when voting, do not be influenced by personal feelings, favoritism or flamboyant posters! Rather, let rational thinking be your guide.

J. C. Cagers Come Out Of Slump With Recent Win

The Bucknell basketball team, after continuing its losing streak by dropping games to Susquehanna University and to the Pottsville Undergraduate Center, finally broke into the win column by defeating Wyoming Seminary. The Bucknellians, however, seemed to lack the spark needed to produce victories, but looked better in these games than they had previously.

The cagers of the Pottsville Undergraduate center got revenge by defeating the Bucknell JC team, 58-43, in a game played at Pottsville. The Bisons defeated the Pottsville team by 25-22 the first time the teams met this season, and for a while it looked as though they might do it again.

Bucknell journeyed to Susquehanna University and found that institution a bit too tough to handle. Last year's edition of the JC team beat Susquehanna easily, but Susquehanna, considerably strengthened over last year's squad, won out this time, 65-41.

In a game marked by loose ball-handling by both teams, Bucknell defeated the Wyoming Seminary team, 41-33. Both teams missed out on many scoring opportunities because of erratic passing and what appeared to be a reluctance to shoot. This unwillingness to let fly at the basket, in evidence at most of Bucknell's game this season, resulted in its scoring only three points during the entire third quarter.

Joe Swartwood and Bill Johns stood out in the Bucknell offense, with 13 and eight points respectively, Bufalino, with thirteen points, and Simons, with twelve, featured for Sem.

Michigan State Offers Awards

George Ralston, Dean of Men, announces that he has received information regarding a number of scholarships, graduate assistantships, and fellowships which are being offered by Michigan State College for the academic year 1947-48. Fields of study include Bacteriology and Public Health, Business Administration, Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, Education, English, History, Music, Social Service, Sociology, Speech and Dramatics, and Zoology, in addition to many many others.

A number of scholarships which pay $450 for the academic year are available for undergraduate students. Further information concerning the scholarships may be obtained from the Dean of Men.

Pre-Medical Club Plans Trip Feb. 14

An informative lecture describing the newest surgical suturing technique was given to the Pre-Medical Society on Friday evening, January 3, in Conyngham Annex. Several of the staff of the Singer Sewing Machine Company succeeded in portraying a graphic picture of the technique used by surgeons in suturing incisions.

The suturing instrument is of a radical design, being at least six inches long with a detachable curved needle. A spool holding the thread is constructed so that it keeps the suture taut at all times. Since the needle is movable, the surgeon can sew at any possible angle hundreds of intricate knots, depending upon the type of incision.

Among the other features of the instrument are its adaptability for either right or left hand and its universal use in all fields of surgery. It is unique inasmuch as it can be sterilized as one compact unit.

The lecture was supplemented by motion pictures of an intellectual nature, following which the students were given an opportunity to manipulate the instrument.

All students interested in making the annual trip to Philadelphia with the society should contact Edward Burtsavage, president. The trip will be made on February 14.

MEN'S FASHIONS

Green seems to be a favorite with Bucknell men. Have you noticed Reed Lowery's green and brown check jacket or Bob Talariski's pea-green socks?

We're Kelley green with envy over those brilliant sweaters of Bud Nelson and Tom Moran.

Joe Hudak, unable to get something green, has substituted red, pink and yellow. A yellow and black plaid wool tie on a bright red wool shirt or a blush-pink shirt topped by a darker pink corduroy jacket are Joe's favorite outfits.

Something practical are the sweater vests. These substitute vests are warmth and color to any man's wardrobe. We saw a neat blue one on Jay Rauscher.

The big mystery around the campus is who was the fellow who had the courage to wear orange socks? No one seems to know, but we saw them . . . Honest.

The newest thing in jackets are bold-check wool ones similar to plaid shirts in style but much heavier. Ernie James has been sporting a red and black one; Sheldon Morrison's is green and black. Some style!

EXCHANGE . . .

If, after thirteen weeks in B U J C, you still find it a bit difficult to know a lower frosh from a junior, don't be discouraged. The Decaturian, one of our exchange papers, submits its own time table of differentiations. Of course, you must realize that only after numerous years of listening could such a chart be compiled. Anyway, here's the way the Milliken students tell their classmates apart:

Freshman: "Meet you in the lounge — for a game of bridge."

Sophomore: "Meet you in the Mill — Shall we play bridge or gossip?"

Junior: "Meet you at Pat's River Inn — by the Wabash Bridge."

Senior: "Meet you at the library — at the Dictionaries."

Is there a missing link in your family? Would you like to have your second cousin's brother-in-law investigated? Then take your problem to Waters and Hender-shot, Inc., Conyngham Hall. Results are guaranteed. In fact, they already have an arm-long list of dissatisfied customers. Life histories are supplied at a very reasonable rate.

Won't somebody buy MacNeal's "practically new" black dress shoes so he can take that sign off the bulletin board? "Honest Doug" is at the end of his rope, (Shoestring, that is).

The toboggan party at the Country Club came off with a bang. Ellie and George made a very efficient welcome committee and the gang had a big time. Flora Lopko and Joe Hinzay just couldn't seem to find two chairs together but Hal Lawrence and Stan Gorgas were a little more active.

Confusion special, overheard in the girls' lounge: "Wait a minute — which Jack are you talking about now?"

If you're puzzled over frozen milk, consult Hank Anderson. He's worked out a new law concerning the melting of ice that sounds like something out of "Duffy's Tavern."

What mean those soft words exchanged by "Peaches" Kaftan and "Chuckles" Pringle over the cafeteria counter? Only one sugar to a customer, please!

Orchids to Normie Goodman for his valiant efforts at beard growing. You've got to admire his determination.

Seen around campus: Anthony Hodiak, promising new freshman, and upper classman, June Persing; Louise Dodson, the tall gal, with an unknown number of unknown men (maybe she uses Pond's); John Stark and Ruth Richards with Bobby Morris and Judy Bartlebaugh beating a path to the cafeteria.

FASHION HIGHLIGHTS

Gertie Glamour is back again with more highlights in the world of fashions. Having stopped, looked, and listened, and admired the Bucknell co-eds for about a week, all we can say is that Santa Claus was mighty nice to some of them.

For instance, take a peek at the numerous good-looking belts worn by the girls. There is Peaches Kaftan's red leather belt with two buckles; Louise Dodson's similar one with a bow for a buckle; Carolyn Jones' and Helen Krufka's red leather ones, each with one buckle; and Lydia Blancodini's black patent belt with two buckles — all of the belts as wide as a dainty waist will permit.

When it came to blouses, we couldn't help noticing Jean Hughes' exclusive model. It's black silk with a high pointed collar, cap sleeves, and button-down-the-back. What's more, all over the front are painted white cigarettes with red sequins as the lighted ends and smoke curling lazily up from them. It's quite the thing. Martha Hoyle has a black silk one, too, with light green birds-in-flight painted on it. Then there's Charlotte Najaka's wide striped blue and white blouse which ties at the neck. Not a blouse but nevertheless attractive is Evelyn Penaligon's blue and white plaid wool shirt. It just matches her eyes.

A woman's dress, so we hear, should be long enough to cover the subject and short enough to be interesting. We noticed three which exactly fit these qualifications — Louise Dodson's white gabardine dress with gold buttons; Del Woynoski's grey flannel dress with which she wears a wide tan leather belt; and Joan Wylie's aqua dress with black stripes and a wide black patent leather belt.

Something in the "different" class is Naomi Hons' jerkin suit. It's a green skirt and a jerkin with a green back and a grey front upon which are applied felt flowers. Something stylish in handbags is Bev Broadt's red alligator purse and wallet to match. Another novelty is the so-called twin outfits worn by Carolyn Jones and yours truly one day last week — red, green, and white

FINAL REGISTRATION

The Registrar's Office announces that final registration for the February to June term will be held during the week of January 27 to 31 in Chase Reception Room. Miss Louise Brennan will be present to assist the students who are registering. It is emphasized that all students must register during this period. No student will be admitted to class until he has completed registration.

plaid skirts, white sweaters, white socks, and loafers.

Alice Dew, Lil Clark, and Ann Chiponis are well prepared for cold weather, Alice wearing a shaggy brown coat with large brown buttons and a brown velvet collar, Lil in her green coat with the grey persian lamb lining, and Ann fitting nicely into a green and white striped, belted coat.

We've always admired black skirts and sweaters as an outfit, and the other day we saw Nan Richards wearing just that, her only jewelry a string of pearls.

We also noticed Flo Kunen looking collegiate in her light blue boxy sweater and sporting her famous yellow coat; Irene Wienkowski setting the style in a black draped (draped, that is) skirt and a very smart white blouse; Lorraine Gritsavage receiving compliments on her jumper with the large plaid; and Rhuea Williams doing the same wearing her hand-knitted white socks with the angora tops.

Flossie Crump walked into class looking very business-like in a grey checked suit with a white scarf tucked in and a small pin in the center of it (the scarf, I mean), and Pinky Wilkes looked really "hep" wearing that famous fuschia suit and aqua silk jersey blouse.

And so comes the end. Any suggestions on what we've missed in the line of fashions will be appreciated. In the meantime, girls, if you're looking for new clothes, here's wishing you good hunting. We've heard they're hard to get.

STUDENT POLL

Question: Why are Bucknell Students apathetic toward their school?

DOLORES SEITCHEK — There aren't enough outstanding activities to hold the interests of the students.

PEACHES KAFTON — They find that they can enjoy themselves much more outside of school because of the lack of social activities.

ELEANOR KRYGER — I feel that the student activities are not publicized enough to warrant a large attendance.

MYRL STEELE — The majority of students live away from school and have their main interests in outside activities.

JOE HUDAK — Mainly because the school is not yet a four-year institution. After it becomes one the student body is more likely to center its interest around it.

HERB LEVY — Since most of the students are local they retain interest in high schools.

JOE MARION — There is a lack of drive for sports, and the proper facilities for activities are lacking.

ANN HAVIR — (Special Student) — We're not notified long enough in advance to assure a large attendance.

NED MCGHEE — We all need a leader and as yet none has come forth to lead us.

DOLORES GALE — The students are here only to study. That's all.

DONALD WALP — There's no center of attraction to keep all the students here. Too many of the students live at home.

Feelzwell Joins Faculty

Herkimer V. (V for Victim [of what has yet to be determined]) Feelzwell, newly appointed instructor in exterior decorating, when interviewed by the Beacon reporter said he finds the indigenous fauna of the campus most fascinating. Mr. Feelzwell is a former pupil of Prof. C. Lose Shaver at Nickem Junior Barber College. Herkimer Feelzwell admitted in the cutest of bashful manners that he never graduated from Nickem because he was a gay young blade and took too many cuts. In order to save face the faculty asked him to take his mug elsewhere.

When asked what extracurricular activity he would sponsor on the campus Mr. Feelzwell revealed that he had been trying to promote a whisker-growing contest among the male faculty members. "Why should the Thespians have all the fun?" he asked with his usual bashful aplomb. "But what difficulty I'm having in getting entrants!" Then he told our reporter all of his troubles.

Pop Gies' chief problem is in getting his whiskers off each day, not in getting them on. Pop claims that Bach didn't wear a beard so why should he?

V. B. Hall, iron man of physics, believes he is at present doing his bit. Mr. Hall's soup strainer is a blue ribbon specimen and his 1948 project includes a goatee, but until the blueprints are completed for that, he'll have no time for amateur productions. Mr. Feelzwell claims that Professor Hall can really produce when he just lets things grow.

Mr. Richards and Dock Reif say that growing hair on their faces is the least of their worries. "We have much higher aspirations", they told Mr. Feelzwell in mournful harmony when approached to enter the contest. Doctor Ward of the genetics department says that Mr. Richards' mother was undoubtedly frightened by a billiard ball but that it is difficult to account for Doc Reif.

Mr. Disque was invited to enter the contest but he contended that since he grew a beard several years ago when he had a Thespian role he should be disqualified as a professional. Said he, "Ich spreche ja doch nur durch meinen Bart."

Dr. Donnelly and Mr. Williams hold that if anyone should be disqualified it is Mr. Symonolewicz, judging from the hoary tonsorial decorations on his lecture jokes.

Henry Steinmann who has been very eager to enter the proposed contest may be permitted to do so but there are those who doubt if Mr. Steinmann's rosy cheeks, blooming in the vigor of youth, have yet been kissed by the razor's edge.

Mr. Feelzwell approached others of the faculty with equally discouraging results. Mr. Wasilewski's entire output of whiskers is already committed to the Hazard Wire Works. Mr. Hartmann's insurance policy forbids his growing a beard; the fire risk with his pipe is too great for any underwriter to write under. Dean Raiston expressed his willingness to cooperate but recalled with a sad shake of his head how he was penalized in the 1936 football contest between North Carolina and Duke.

Full flowing beards were the collegiate rage in those days and "Georgie Porgie", as our Dean was known when he was the terror of the gridiron, was penalized fifty yards for trying the old "hidden ball" trick by using his beard to conceal the pigskin. Cromwell Thomas alone fevored a contest enthusiastically. "After the judging we'll shear all the whiskers and use them to stuff wrestling mats," said he.

The Beacon extends Mr. Feelzwell a hearty welcome to the campus and wishes him success in his work. However the Beacon feels it should warn the students that anyone who has a brush with Mr. Feelzwell will soon find himself worked up into a fine lather.

Ed. Note. "Well said: that was laid on with a trowel." (As you Like It, Act I, Scene II, 1. 97)

Authorship of the above tour de force is disclaimed by all members of the editorial, reportorial, business, and circulation staffs of this newspaper. Faculty members who have been accustomed to complain about the efforts in whimsy which have occasionally been submitted to the Beacon by student reporters are hereby cautioned against making unduly severe comments regarding the "Feelzwell" article. One never knows when he may be criticizing a colleague to his face.

Hons Pringle Evans Conklin

This week's Who's Who column is devoted to acquainting the student body with the cheerful people who serve them in the school cafeteria.

NAOMI HONS is a native of Shavertown, and is a sophomore at BUJC. Naomi's motto is "Smile and the world smiles with you", and she certainly practices this motto. Naomi enjoys a good discussion anytime. Her favorite color is green and she wears a lot of it. Her favorite songs are "Dream" and Harry James' "Stardust". Although she likes all sports, her favorite is basketball. Naomi prefers men with curly auburn hair and dimples. However, if they are good conversationalists and have a good sense of humor, it doesn't matter what color hair they have. Naomi's ambition is to become a good Commercial teacher and to travel.

SPORTS BEACON

By MORAN

The great event finally took place — Bucknell's quintet broke a six-game losing streak last Saturday evening in the YMCA when it defeated, by an eight-point margin, the quintet representing Wyoming Seminary.

While the second win of the season for the Junior Bisons was not the biggest thing that ever happened to collegiate basketball, it proved that the Bucknell quintet is still capable of and interested in winning ball games.

It was announced during the week that Bucknell Junior College cage team would be among the other junior college quintets in the state eligible for entrance in the Pennsylvania Junior College Basketball Tournament, slated to commence sometime in the early part of March.

The interesting thing about this tournament is that the season's record of a competing team has no bearing on its standing in the tournament. All the teams registered will enter the play-offs and the junior college championship team will be determined in this manner.

Last year's Bucknell quintet, coached by Jimmy Campbell, was a mighty good squad and had the privilege of going all the way up to the finals before running into trouble.

This is all much too much for one issue. First of all the basketball team wins a game and now the wrestling team is holding practice. What will happen next? For about three issues we've been watching our illustrious typewriter pound out something like, "Wrestling will start soon," and look what happened — it did.

We dropped around to see the squad several times and it looks mighty good. The experience is centered among the men in the upper weight divisions. However most of the men in the lower weight brackets will be more than holding their own when the season really gets under way.

Our guess, despite the fact that John Q. Murphy, sports editor of the King's Crown, hates to see people make predictions, is that Bucknell's matmen will bring home a fairly good slice of the final score when it finishes with Cornell's Frosh grapplers tomorrow night at Ithaca.

BEACONETTES — Orchids to the Ralstonmen for taking old Lady Bad Luck over the coals. Let's hope that this breaks the jinx and gives the boys a chance to win most of the remaining contests. From the Rumor Factory comes the word that this institution's 1947 football team will play either the Army or Navy Plebes. The contest will be held in Baltimore, according to our informant. . . . Bob Waters and George "Pickles" Lewis, both members of the grappling squad, are having a nightly race to the scales to see which one has lost more weight. The members of the baseball team received their gold miniature awards. According to the Athletic Department the letters for the members of the team will arrive within the next few days. Incidentally, isn't it about time the unbeaten 1946 football team received some kind of awards for its services during the grid season? Along those same lines we might suggest that the newly organized Bucknell Junior College Lettermen's Club hold monthly meetings. It's about time the club was sponsoring another affair since it seems that this is the only way that it will ever raise enough to get the members of the club sweaters. . . . It is reported that the mats, recently purchased for the wrestling team, cost somewhere around $1,100. . . . Does anyone still want to know where all the money goes? Some just can't be convinced that it costs the school money to run athletics.

German Club Sponsors Party

The German Club held a Christmas party at the boys' dormitory two days before Christmas. Merriment was spread by the playing of German games and the singing of German songs. During the course of the entertainment, Santa Claus appeared, presenting Mr. Elwod Disque, professor of German, with a very beautiful album of the opera Aida, which was purchased by the German students as a tribute to Mr. Disque.

After the entertainment, refreshments, consisting of special Christmas cookies of unusual colors and designs were served. Following the refreshments there was dancing in which everyone participated. Near the end of the evening an impromptu song fest was begun. This was one of the most enjoyable events of the evening. The party ended at midnight.

At the last meeting of the German Club, the following officers were elected: president, Carl Dudeck; vice-president, Benny Antonchak; secretary, Frances Wentzel; treasurer, Shirley Rees.
