A PSALM OF PRAISE

In Commemoration of the 50th Anniversary of Wilkes College 1933-1983

I celebrate the education of the mind
That, even when it knows, with certainty,
What conclusions it will find,
Takes constant delight
In proving to itself
That it is wrong or it is right.

The important thing is knowing
That the mind cannot be set
Or predetermined in its judgment —
Not ever, not now, not yet.
And to stretch the mind's dimension
And to seek surprise
Is to take the journey
That leads us to be wise.

Wilkes College holds to its mission
In this its 50th year,
Still open to all ideas
Wherever they appear,
Its spirit sound and active,
Its voice compassionate and clear,
Still facing challenges
Without prejudice or fear.

imspiration

Through the years, Wilkes College has helped to supply America with its most precious resource — mindpower. In its fifty year history, this institution has provided instruction and guidance to young people who are becoming our leaders and our hope for tomorrow.

The River Commons

"The story of a college cannot be told in terms of brick and mortar."

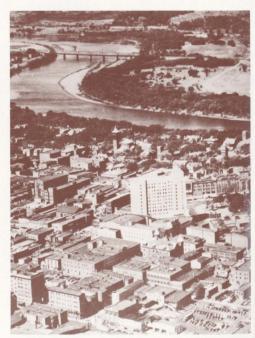

In September of 1933 Bucknell Junior College, the forerunner of Wilkes College, accepted its first students. Classes started on September 14 in the third floor of a rented building at 29 W. Northampton Street. In this building students demonstrated that young people of ambition and ability would take advantage of the new opportunity offered by the opening of a local college.

The realization of a dream proved significant for Wilkes' progress over the past 50 years.

Softly rolling hills along the banks of the Susquehanna River describes the scenic beauty surrounding Wilkes College. The college itself is comprised of many different buildings ranging from old mansions to modern facilities.

The story of a college cannot be told in terms of brick and mortar. The real story lies in the lives it has moulded, and in the achievement of those it has served. So long as any who have attended it are alive, or so long as their influence is felt, the story of the college continues to unfold itself.

Weckesser Hall

In its first decade, friends of Bucknell Junior College had provided it with fine surroundings, and had laid a foundation for future growth.

In 1937 Chase and Conyngham Halls became "the campus." Weckesser Hall became part of the campus when it was designated as a residence for the Farley family. The freshmen of 1937 listened to inspirational thoughts from Dr. Farley's welcome to the class of 1941. He said:

"Year by year students come and go, but always friendships remain to enrich the lives of all of us who work together at Bucknell . . . Perhaps because we are a new and growing college, an added zest comes to our endeavors."

"Emphasis was not all academic . . . the college life of the beginning student was well-rounded."

As the college was growing physically, it was also expanding course offerings and extracurricular activities. Dr. Farley was well aware of the college's top-level faculty members and wrote that "a large portion (faculty) were dedicated teachers who were convinced that the Junior College could and should play a central part in planning for the economic and social renaissance of the region."

The emphasis was not all academic. There were many extra-curricular activities so that the college life of the beginning student was well-rounded. A few activities included Debating, Dramatics, Economics, German and Biology Clubs; and the Bison (newspaper.) In sports there were teams in basketball, boxing, football and tennis.

Chase Theatre was the location of theatrical productions. The theatre was originally a carriage house behind Chase Hall and was converted into a playhouse in 1938.

Charter Day

On June 26, 1947 Gilbert McClintock, chairman of the Board of Trustees, accepted the charter for Wilkes College. The following November, Dr. Eugene S. Farley was inaugurated as the first president of Wilkes, having served as director of Bucknell Junior College for eleven years.

In Dr. Farley's Charter Day speech he stated:

"Because the foundations of the College have been soundly laid; because the ideals for which it stands are right, we can all look forward to continued growth and extended service. At the same time, we must constantly strive to strengthen our work so that each graduate will render a greater service and in his small circle will exert influence for understanding, goodwill, and intelligent action."

"To assist students in their search for truth . . ."

In his commencement address of 1951, Dr. Farley expressed thoughts about the college as a unique learning experience for both students and faculty. At that time he stated:

"It was no accident that the college has prospered in the midst of adversity. Its ideals were right. It sought to establish high scholastic standards, to assist students in their search for truth and to cultivate an understanding of the problems that confront us."

Dr. Farley came to Wilkes Barre because he believed he had an opportunity to be of service. In the beginning there were those who did not think the growing college could survive.

period of rapid change and growth for Wilkes College.

Within the first nine months of 1964 two events of particular significance to the future of the College had been noted. In January the Graduate and Research wings of Stark Hall were completed, and in August ground was broken for the Center for the Performing Arts. In October 1965, the Center for the Performing Arts became a reality and helped to balance the advance in the sciences with a comparable advance in the arts. Its excellent facilities provided the College and the community an opportunity to participate in creative activities that broaden interests and enrich lives.

Because of an increasing number of requests for admission to Wilkes from students living outside the community, construction of a new dormitory and dining hall began in 1965.

Three years later, ground was broken for a new library. Built in 1968, this facility was named in honor of the College's President, Eugene Farley. The commemorative plaque appropriately reads:

"New policies emerged ... and traditions relating to student life were redefined."

What were the students like during the '60's? For years the College had encouraged students to question, to criticize, to test, and to search for new meanings and new solutions. This was a period when students realized it was necessary to apply knowledge and to live effectively. It meant having freedom to fail, to make mistakes and to recover; to work within a broad framework of regulations that protect the rights of others.

During this period emerged some of the finest student leadership known to Wilkes College. Most of the present policies are the result of the active leaders of the '60's. In 1968 the Student Life Committee was established. New policies emerged and traditions relating to student life were redefined.

Robert S. Capin was inaugurated as the third president of Wilkes College on October 24, 1976.

Under president Capin's leadership the College reestablished its operations with successive balanced budgets, refined and expanded its curricula, enhanced its fundraising abilities and renovated much of the physical plant. At the end of the decade the College made plans for construction of a new residence facility which opened in August 1982.

At its fiftieth anniversary the College reflects the marks of a mature and sound academic institution. In his convocation address on September 24, 1982, president Capin stated:

"And without the dream that motivated men and women in this community to pledge their support and their spirit, the college could never have succeeded. I acknowledge the special sacrifices made over the years by trustees, faculty, administrators, staff, and by the parents and families of men and women who studied at Wilkes and who have, in turn, assisted others in their quest for personal betterment. From the very beginning, those who were drawn to the College recognized that the community could not grow and prosper if it did not release and nurture the great resources of the human mind and spirit."

The 1982 Wilkes College Field Hockey team, coached by Gay Meyers, had a very successful season. They attained an overall record of 8-4-3 and a league record of 2-0-1. The team's captains were seniors Diane Hall and Sharon Martenson. Dedication, hard work and indidivual skill improvements were a major factor attributing to the team's overall record.

The team tied for 13th place in the standings. In the NCAA polls the team was ranked 16th or 17th in the country all season. Their final regional ranking was 3rd of 23 in Pennsylvania.

Not only was the team recognized as a group, but individuals also attained special recognition. Diane Hall received offensive MVP for the team as well as MAC All-Star; 1st team northern division. In the Susquehanna Field Hockey Association she received second team honors. She was also placed on the 3rd team of the Mideast Sectional Selection. Diane also holds the record for the most goals and assists in a career ('79-'82) at 42.

Getting into the playoffs and beating FDU-Madison for the first time were the greatest moments for the team. Greg Hychko was named the MVP. APARTMENTS

umderstamding

They are always there to offer guidance and inspiration to the students throughout the years. This is the spirit of the Wilkes College faculty and administration. They provide mindpower
— the energy that lights the way to our future.

Throughout this past academic session, you and your classmates have participated in, sponsored, and created special events celebrating the 50th Anniversary of our institution. During this period, we reviewed our past, made many decisions which helped us strengthen our present, and took a close look at ourselves with recommendations for the future. As a class, you have not only helped us create and celebrate our past, but you are accepting the special challenge as alumni to help us forge ahead in the next half century.

I am grateful that I had the opportunity to meet with many of you personally over the years and will certainly miss that relationship in the future. Although we will not have daily contact, I do invite you to visit with us often and refrain from becoming strangers to your alma mater.

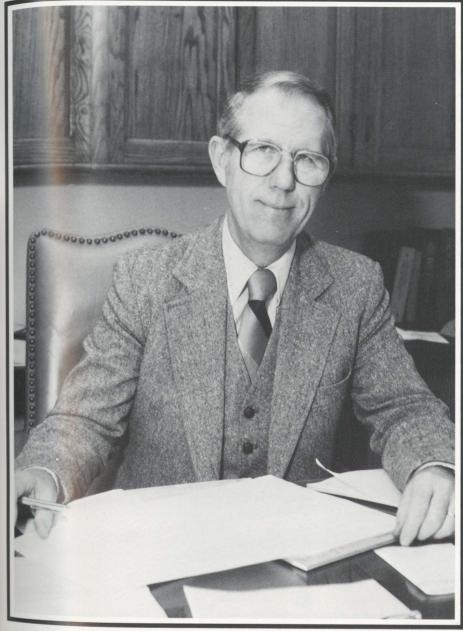

Use whatever knowledge you have gained here to benefit yourself and mankind. In the words of John Tyndall: "Knowledge once gained casts a faint light beyond its own immediate boundaries. There is no discovery so limited as not to illuminate something beyond itself."

I wish you only the best in the years ahead and will always value your true friendships.

Sincerely,

Robert S. Capin

I got you George!

It's a big joke for us!

GRADUATION REHEARSAL

Can't wait to get home!

I need some reading material!

It's not really her!

You thrill me to death!

This is the pits!

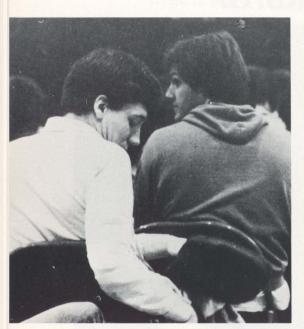

GRADUATION MAY 22, 1983

Wilkes, our Alma Mater,
We pledge our hearts to thee,
Honor, faith, and courage,
Truth and loyalty.
In our work and in our
pleasure,
Guide us as a friend;
We shall always love thee,
Loyal to the end.

Thou shalt lead us onward In search of finer things. May we find the wisdom That thy spirit brings. May our deeds of love and service Ever swell thy fame — Wilkes, we stand to greet thee! Glory to thy name.

WHO'S WHO

Each year, Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities recognizes students from approximately 800 institutions.

In making their selections, College Nomination Committees consider the student's scholarship participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the school, and future promise.

The organization awards each member a certificate of recognition and provides a placement service to assist members seeking employment, scholarships, or fellowships.

Pictured on the following pages are those from Wilkes College who have attained this honor.

The spirit that is Wilkes College is not just contained within the physical boundaries of our campus. It reaches out beyond this to our alumni and into the community of which Wilkes is a part. Through their support during these fifty years, this institution has continued to grow.

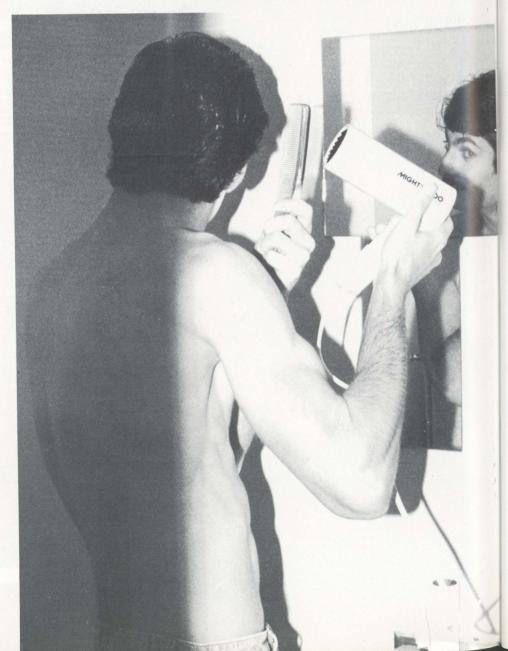

Home, Sweet Home

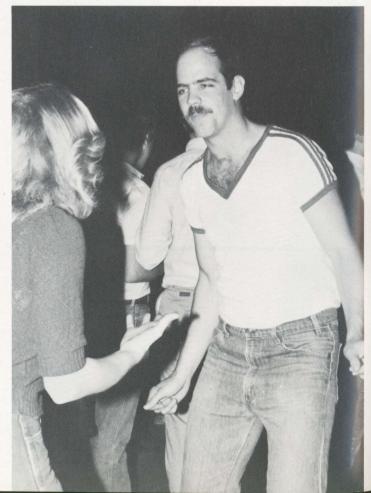

Transitory Habitation — What is temporary housing? Some might call it a filing cabinet for excess freshmen. Those who've been there call it a place where . . .

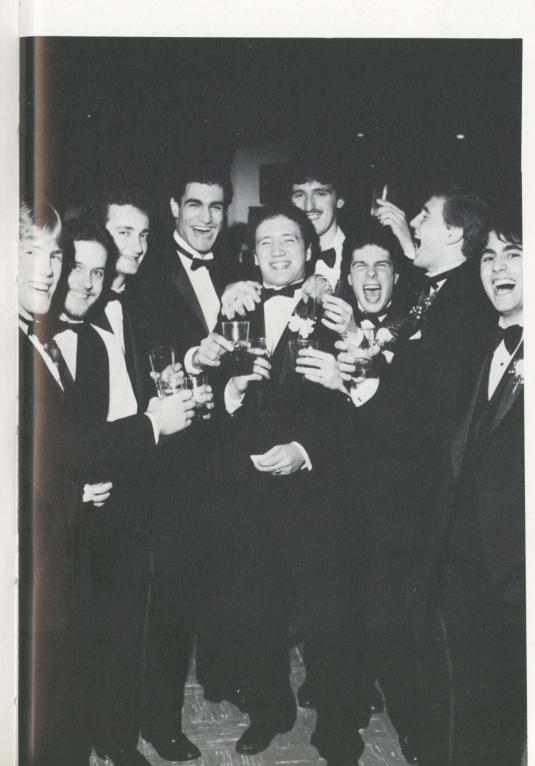

- ... no matter how many keys you have, someone's always locked out.
- ... roommate hassles increase exponentially.
- ... the popcorn popper never stops.
 ... the phone doesn't rest and the phone bill keeps the company smiling.
- ... you order out for pizza every night.
- ... as soon as all your friends know your address and phone it
- ... as soon as you feel comfortable with your room and floormates, housing moves you to a different building with a total stranger.
- ... you dream about what you'll do when you get out, but fight back the tears when you do.

Do What You Want...

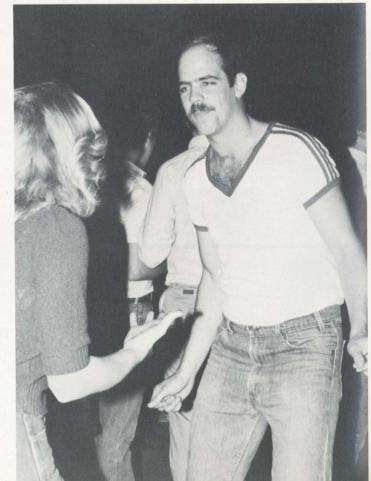

Do What You Want...

Phone Bill $$$, Tutition $$$, Groceries $$$, and ...

Money. It seems a perennial dilemma for college students. There are always choices on how, where and what to spend money on.

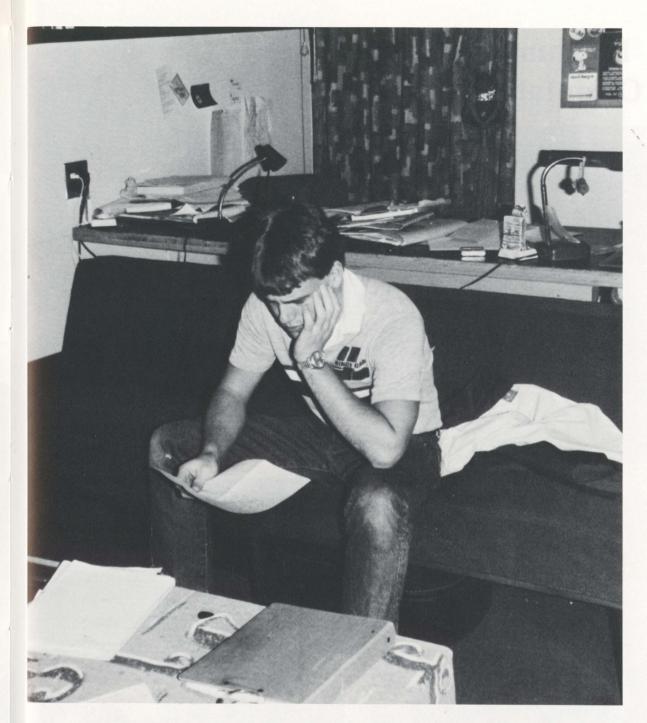

With the recent budget cuts, however, worries like these are fast becoming a luxury. Students are now worried about such things as how to buy books, where to get money for housing and how to remain a student.

How are students dealing with these financial troubles?

Well, for Wilkes students, Reagonomics has taken its toll in a most painful area, their social lives. Many men have found it difficult to wine and dine the ladies as they have before. Senior, Terry Shemo, commented that, "With less money I'm eating out less and taking more trips to the caf lately."

If you're like most dorm students then having less to spend on those 'extras' makes hitting the books an easier task!

Come on Along...

All-Nighters...

What Could Be Worse?!

So, you missed a deadline. You've got a mid-term the next morning, but you just started studying and it's 9 p.m.! Does this sound familiar or are you one of the lucky ones who starts reading those chapters ahead of time? If you're like most of us you cram the night before in a secluded corner with ten cups of coffee, a carton of cigs and now and then a breath of fresh air.

The all-nighter - where does it begin? Well, the first thing to do is get psyched about the whole situation. Then, find a place where you can 'hibernate' at least for a few hours. You have to take into consideration the 'munchies' and the breaks. The break-time syndrome — it's that time when your eyes are slowly closing and you've just had enough! The break is planned for a 'couple' of minutes but usually lasts for an hour, or two, or three . . .

The clock strikes 11:45 and you're just about to crack open the books. The librarian is ready to lock up but where do you go? There's Stark with all the rooms you want. Or, you can get back to the dorm. You know what happens - order a pizza, go to the Carey for a few or fall asleep in the lounge! You can't win, just be warned — the all-nighter really exists!!

... Take It Easy!

Trick or Treat?!

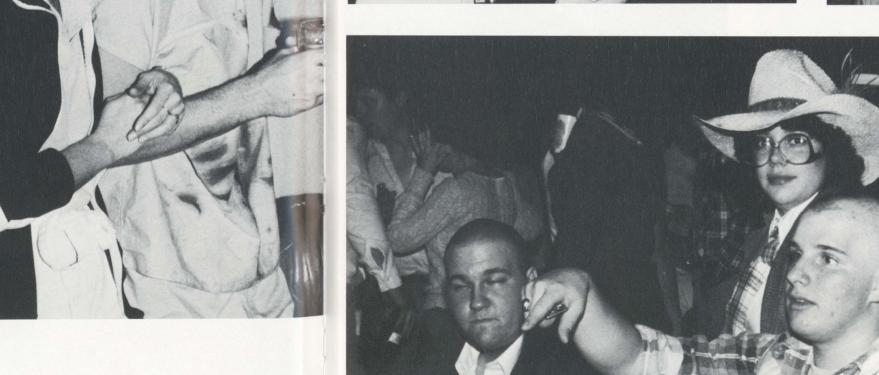

Say Cheese!

Homecoming '83

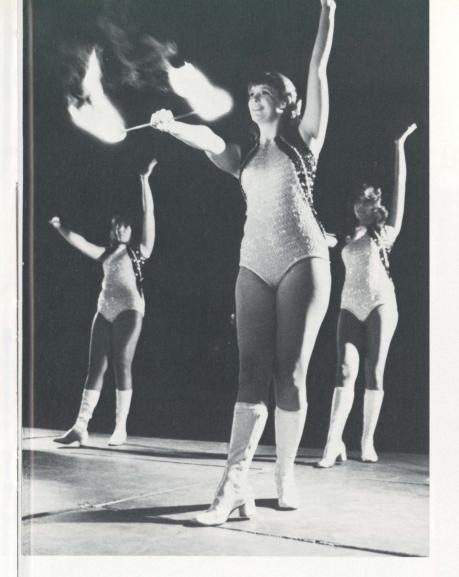

A time for memories, reunions, g-time no-sees and plenty of hugs. Imni, parents and underclassmen e together, again, during mecoming Weekend. There is a cial feeling when alumni come ck to visit the campus. They want know who is still here and who is, and who will be crowned king diqueen.

The home football and soccer nes were only a part of what went. The alumni dinner and derclassmen dinner dances were 'highlights' of the weekend. Terry emo and Greg Marshall — King d Queen for Wilkes College 1982 mecoming Weekend.

The Cavern

Joining the ranks of space cadet, space captain, or even space colonel takes the skill of a true challenger of "Gorf." Gorf annihilates, destroys and literally makes a daring defender bite the dust. If all of this is a little over your head, then it's time for you to take a visit to the Cavern. It's fully equipped with the latest in electronic technology, the computer games.

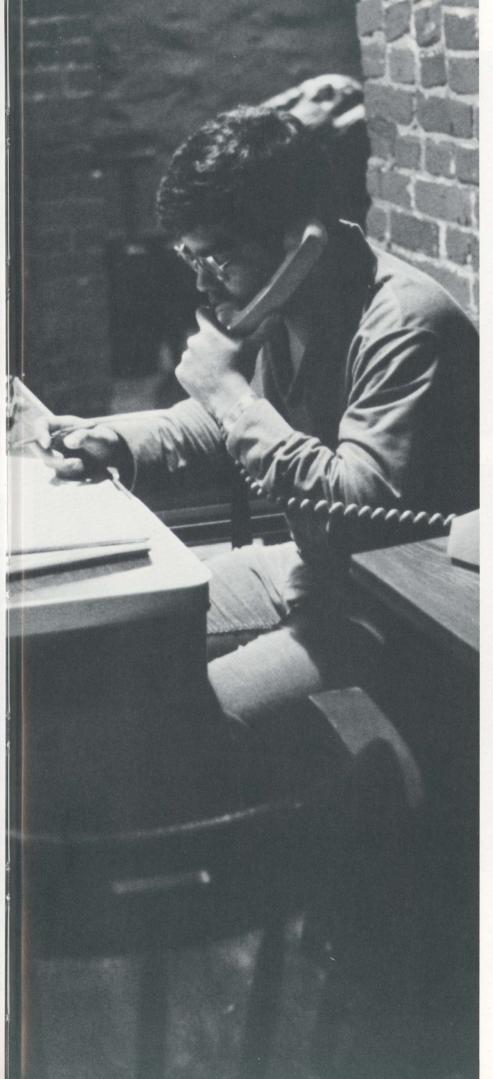

bite the dust. If all of this is a little over your head, then it's time for you to take a visit to the Cavern. It's fully equipped with the latest in electronic technology, the computer games.

Most of these games call for skill in the art of keeping cool. At all times composure must be kept in order to remember that it's only a machine. Sharp intuition, quick reflexes and a pocket full of quarters soon make for championship players.
