

Chicken Lays a Rotten Egg

The Inauguration ceremony is history. The reception was lovely. And many dorm students became sick. Some vomited.

Why? Because they said they ate food they shouldn't have eaten. Why? Because they paid for it. Why? Because they live on campus and pay for room and board.

Due to the reception in the cafeteria, dorm students were served dinner in the Student Union Building. The temporary service did not inconvenience students, but the food did.

As I walked to dinner, students warned me not to eat the food. They said the chicken was cold, "hard as a rock," uncooked and a host of other unpleasant descriptions.

I had to try it for myself. I didn't have much choice; I had no pocket money.

They were right. The chicken was everything they said it was, and more. Blood dripped from some pieces while others were still frozen.

It was so poorly prepared that I cooked, not recooked, the chicken myself.

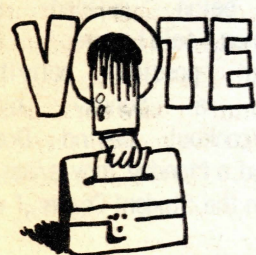

I feel sorry for those who didn't or couldn't. The men in Pickering Hall, for example, have no cooking facilities.

Many students refused to eat the chicken. Those who did eat it paid the price. Many got sick, some vomited.

The Student Union Building serves meals to both commuters and college employees daily. They apparently have ample cooking facilities. If the facility cannot handle situations similar to Sunday's dinner, then alternative measures should have been taken.

As dorm students, we have a right to 20 cooked meals a week, regardless of the social activities happening on campus. To borrow from a television commercial, "We have a right to chicken done right."

If you will excuse me now, I'm feeling sick.

Reelections for IRHC President and officers will take place this Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Stark Lobby and from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in Pickering Hall. Also, anyone interested in being Parliamentarian of Student Government for next year is asked to get in touch with Eric Chase for details.

Student Likes Reagan, Chides Editor

To The Editor:

In response to the editorial in the April 2nd issue of the Beacon, I would like to state that the main point--that voters should be aware of their responsibility when electing officials--is valid, although the argument supporting your urge for responsibility is weak and laced with ineffectiveness.

It is a wonderfully sweet notion that government should support social programs "such as education," to the optimal level desired in this country, but you must realize the ever-present need for defense in order to maintain the existing balance of power in the world, and thereby secure peace.

You oversimplify the complexities of government when you say that "Reagan expects the American people to accept federal budget cuts... so he can spend more money on bombs." There are concrete and viable reasons why the President acts as he does, advised by many of the most intelligent and experienced people in America today.

Your editorial blankly refuses to acknowledge his effectiveness in office--his landslide re-election in 1984 is indicative of our nation's faith in his ideas and programs.

His opponent, Walter Mondale, committed political suicide when he identified his campaign with "malaise," as well as when he announced his intention to raise taxes. His lack of charisma was singularly unappealing to an American public hungry for vitality.

You state that, as voters, we "have a responsibility to look beyond the images," but our entire technological society is based upon images, and, while it is true that the issues should be the most important concern in the political arena, it is the image of the politician--his appearance, manner, speech, expression, and ability to communicate ideas--that is pervasive in a time when television is the major mode of communication.

Walter Mondale presented an image that America did not want to see, and, as a result, was unable to gain effective support for his policies. He is "a wimp" because he failed to see the political corner he was backing himself into, not because of his physical characteristics, as you imply in your editorial.

It is true that President Reagan needs to reevaluate some of his proposed budget cuts, especially in federally subsidized student aid, if he hopes to maintain his popularity. To say, however, as you do, that he "[speaks] for the self-interests of a small minority" is obviously ridiculous in the face of the November election.

You urge students not to "vote for fools," perhaps implying that some of the candidates for Student Government fall into this category? I, too, encourage students to attend the forums on Tuesday, April 9th, and Wednesday, April 10th to hear the proposed ideas of the candidates, but I also ask this: please, do not attend these programs in the hopes of finding "fools," as the Beacon editor may do, but rather remain openminded and receptive to new ideas.

We're Embarrassed

As students who attended President Breiseth's Inauguration, we feel compelled to respond to the comments made on behalf of the faculty and administration by the Dean of Academic Affairs.

Below is a copy of the speech delivered by Dean Hartdagen.

"I am grateful for the opportunity to bring greetings to President Breiseth from the faculty and administration.

Individually and collectively, we have benefited most from your presence at the college. And we have responded enthusiastically to your leadership style which has infused all of us with energy and optimism.

It was Will Rogers who said, Even if you [sic] are on the right track, we will get run over if we just sit there."

In many ways this could serve as a commentary on Wilkes during the 1980s.

We were on the right track, and if not exactly sitting, we were at best plodding along, looking over our shoulders, and listening to a whistle which was getting louder and louder.

What we needed was a Chris Breiseth to breathe life into dry bones, to administer adrenalin, to get the juices flowing again.

We are still on the right track, but now we can see our destination, and we have built a head of steam that will get us there on schedule.

President Breiseth brought to us an ability to discern what is vital in the Wilkes tradition and what is encrustation that must be chipped away to allow oxygen to reach the brain and to restore health and vigor to a body which was languishing.

Lines of communication were opened immediately throughout the campus. And the messages which began to flow were supportive, positive, enthusiastic, and optimistic.

In a few short months, it was easy to detect a new spirit and a heightened morale.

Faculty and administrators responded eagerly to the participatory style of the new president.

It was the perfect climate in which to launch a major effort involving all the constituencies of Wilkes, to redefine the mission of the college and to produce a plan which would allow faculty to relate to mission through periodic peer evaluation in a supportive and developmental context.

Wilkes has become an exciting place to be in 1985. And I predict that the excitement will continue.

I do not believe that the honeymoon is over. I believe we have found a dynamic president who offers precisely what is needed to lead Wilkes College into the 21st century.

True, he has some weaknesses. He is often at a loss for words, and his compulsion to always be precisely on time for meetings is disturbing.

But these small problems we can overlook in return for the gift we have received.

Chris, the faculty and administration welcome you to Wilkes College, congratulate you on this special occasion, and extend our very best wishes for a long and productive tenure as president."

Although the Dean's remarks were supposedly representative of the views of the faculty and administration, they also reflected on Wilkes College as a whole.

Frankly, we were embarrassed.

President Breiseth's Inauguration ceremony was meant to be a celebration. While we certainly share Dean Hartdagen's view that President Breiseth's style has "infused all of us with energy and optimism," we were offended by his later reference to the condition of Wilkes College under the Capin administration.

Many of us have spent at least half of our Wilkes careers under President Capin. We see his administration not as one which was "at best plodding along," but rather as one which provided much-needed stability for this college during a time of economic upheaval.

While we also share Dean Hartdagen's apparent enthusiasm for the new administration, we feel that his comments about the "languishing" body of a past Wilkes College were inappropriate at a time of celebration.

"Enthusiasm," "optimism," "new spirit" and "heightened morale" are most definitely a product of President Breiseth's administration. But they are also the inevitable products of change.

We agree that "Wilkes has become an exciting place to be in 1985." We agree that the "excitement will continue." But we won't forget, as our Special Inauguration Issue illustrated, that this promising forecast is the direct result of the work and dedication of Wilkes' three previous presidents.

As does the Dean, we extend our very best wishes to Dr. Breiseth for a long and productive tenure as president.

Student Finds Little Help

To the Editor:

Graduation is only a month away, and I am among a minority of seniors who will have a job upon graduation. After a long search with almost no help from Career Services, I found a job.

Finding a job may have been easier if I had a place to go for information, but the only information I received from Career Services was a book with the names of companies throughout the country.

A teacher told me that I wouldn't find much information at Career Services. The teacher said my best bet would be to go to a phone book for names and addresses.

This information was of no help to me, and it won't be to anyone else looking for a job. I also wouldn't have had this much trouble if I were at Kings, Bucknell, Scranton, and a number of other schools.

These schools have the same recruiting area that Wilkes has (including Philadelphia, New York, and Washington). But these schools have about 25 companies, 12 which are national, coming to review Business, Economics, and Marketing students.

The electrical, material, and chemical engineers have many interview opportunities in each of their many subdivisions. Accounting majors at each of these schools interview with at least 6 of the Big 8, 5 other national firms, and about 10 regional and national firms.

Education and English majors also have career opportunities at these schools. They have several interviews in their fields. If their career services office writes to a company who isn't able to come for an interview but is still interested in looking at these students, they inform the students and try to set up office interviews. Many of these schools also help juniors find summer jobs that may lead to full time positions.

For many seniors, Career Services is nothing more than a place to hold references, and sometimes to help prepare resumes.

I visited the office 10 times last semester and never had anyone offer to help. When I asked for more information than the book I was given, I was rudely told to look through a pile of papers.

I'm looking for a job, and it is Career Services' job to try to help me. It should at least try to help, not put down students' resumes like it has done to several of my friends.

The teachers try to help students, and they even try to recruit companies. And they politely offer ways to help with resumes. They don't have the time to do Career Services' job, too.

Name withheld.

Student Dislikes Calendar

To the Editor:

I am addressing this letter to the 16 students who signed the letter to the editor concerning the Men and Women of Wilkes calendars.

I would like to address a few points in your letter. You asked why Wilkes should be any less open to change than Rutgers, Lafayette and Penn State. Change is inevitable, but on a campus the size of Wilkes (several 10,000's smaller in population), change must be in moderation to the size of the college. Change can fail on a large campus with hardly any effects. This is not so for Wilkes. Wilkes is not Rutgers, Lafayette and Penn State. Stop trying to make it something that it's not. If you want a college like Rutgers, Lafayette or Penn State, transfer there!

Another point I would like to comment on is the fact that you claim that the people on the calendars are a true cross section of the campus population. If these people are a true cross section, why are they all supposedly good looking? Why should Wilkes' cross section be only good looking people? Is the football player the best player, or is the dean's list student the smartest student on campus? I doubt it. Let's get a true cross section, not just a string of pretty faces. Why not find the best, the brightest and even a pretty face, but let's not have 24 pretty faces?

I recently viewed an episode of the Phil Donahue Show in which his guests were physically marred or handicapped after birth. I wish all 16 of you who signed the letter could have seen the show. You would have realized that flaunting your looks is cruel and rude. Just because God created you the way you are, you have no right to represent this college as "The Men and Women of Wilkes."

I feel very sorry for you self-gratifying people. I think you (16) are out to increase your egos and pat yourselves on the back. If some of you were ever physically marred sometime in your life, I feel some of your lives would be over. You live for your looks and that is pitiful. I have no respect for those of you who live for your looks.

Am I to understand that because I am not as attractive as you (16) that I am not a "Man or Woman of Wilkes?" I suggest you rethink your statements and take a look at yourselves. You appear to be shallow people. Beauty is skin deep, so I guess you are shallow people.

An Unattractive Wilkes Co-ed

Elections

the quote from the SG constitution is taken out of context. The committee voted that the question of endorsement applies only to an SG president endorsing another candidate for SG president.

Cress Shillers, the other candidate for IRHC president and captain of the tennis team, was unable to attend the forum due to a previously scheduled tennis match in Williamsport. Shelly Urban, current SG president, read Shillers' prepared statement at the forum.

Yesterday afternoon, Kramer, in an attempt to re-contest the SG election, protested to both Dean Hoover and President Breiseth that according to Article VII, Section I, Item F of the SG constitution, Eric Chase was never eligible to be nominated for the office of president.

Item F reads: "The nominee must be at least a sophomore representative and have served at least one term."

Chase is currently a freshman, but has served the required one term. According to Kramer, although Chase was elected to be a sophomore rep at a meeting held on Thursday, March 28, he had already been nominated for SG president on March 25.

Kramer said that she was made aware of this rule yesterday. This rule is listed in the Handbook.

According to Lisa Berkoski, co-chairman of the Elections Committee, it is too late to contest on this point. The Campaign and Election Rules state, "If any candidate wishes to contest an election, he or she must do so before noon of the day following the election."

Berkoski said that if this point had been included in the letter, it would have been considered by the committee.

"Too much of the SG constitution is open to personal interpretation," said Kramer. "My goal is to make students more aware of the ambiguity in the constitution."

Bob Gunderson agreed that there is a problem. "The contestment did open our eyes to a lot of things that deserve attention," he said.

Eric Chase was sworn in as the new SG president at last night's regular SG meeting.

Student Government also elected the following officers for the 1985-86 year:

Vice-president - Caryl Goldsmith

Corresponding Secretary - Michaelene Coffee

Treasurer - Stacey Toslosky

Reelections for IRHC president and officers will take place this Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Stark Lobby and from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in Pickering Hall. Only resident students may vote.

ROOM SELECTION PROCEDURES FOR 1985-86 ACADEMIC YEAR

The room selection process for the 1985-86 academic year will be held April 16-19. All students participating in room selection must have a 1985-86 housing contract on file at the Residence Life Office and must have paid the $50 deposit prior to Monday, April 15. Contracts have already been sent to your campus address. You must complete two copies of the contract and send each of them to the Finance Office with your $50 room deposit. The Finance Office will collect the $50 room deposit and both copies of the housing contract. The housing contracts will be forwarded to the RLO for final approval. The RLO will then return to you a signed copy of the housing contract along with your room confirmation during the summer.

IN-HOUSE ROOM SELECTION - Each house or hall should schedule a room selection meeting during the period of April 16-17. This meeting should be a combined effort of the hall president and the Resident Assistant. All results of the in-house room selection must be reported to the RLO by 8:30 a.m. on Thursday, April 18. All residence halls will follow the guidelines of the room selection procedure designated by the RLO.

Students wishing to remain in their current residence halls for the 1985-86 academic year will participate in the in-house room selection procedure. The following priorities will be observed in the order in which they are listed:

1. A student currently living in a room has first choice on retaining that room.
2. Residents within a building with the longest period of time living in that residence hall have the next highest selection status.
3. When the residents within a building have equal time in the residence hall, anticipated credits earned by the end of the spring 1985 semester will determine precedence. Transfer students will select at the end of their class year.
  - 1st choice - 90 credits or over
  - 2nd choice - 60 credits or over
  - 3rd choice - 30 credits or over
  - 4th choice - fewer than 30 credits

Any anticipated changes in room selection which may occur during the summer must be indicated on the floor plan submitted to the RLO. This should include roommate changes, next-in-line for singles, etc. If there are no changes indicated on the floor plan, the RLO will assign spaces as necessary.

Students who have lived in Barre (men), Chapman, Dana, Miner 4th, Sterling (women), Sterling Inn Towne and Sturdevant will have their time spent at these facilities count as time spent in their current residence halls. Former residents of these facilities who have relocated again since their initial move from the aforementioned closed facilities will forfeit this privilege.

RESIDENT STUDENTS REQUESTING TRANSFER FROM THEIR CURRENT RESIDENCE HALLS for the 1985-86 academic year will participate in a lottery on Thursday, April 18. Students may report to the RLO between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to obtain a lottery number. Separate lotteries will be held for each class year.

Women participating in this lottery will report to the RLO on Thursday, April 25 at 9:45 p.m. Men participating in this lottery will report on Wednesday, April 24: juniors at 9:30 p.m.; sophomores at 10:15 p.m.; and freshmen at 10:45 p.m.

MISCELLANEOUS

- Sterling Hall and Evans 1 will continue to be 24-hour suite halls.
- An upperclassman's room should be designated as a storage room for the summer. The room must be occupied by returning upperclassmen only.
- All room selections will be subject to approval by the RLO
- Students are encouraged to consult with one of the RLO directors if they have any questions.
- Miner 4 will be converted to a male residence hall
- Barre 3 will be converted to a female residence hall.

Library Presents Film Lecture

The Eugene Sheddon Farley Library will sponsor its first lecture on film on Wednesday, April 17, at 7 p.m., in SLC room 101. Dr. Robert F. Gross, Assistant Professor of Theater Arts, Cornell University will discuss the film Les Enfants Terribles (The Strange Ones). The film is French with subtitles and will be shown after the lecture. It will be shown in the Library Media Room and also on April 16 at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this free event. For more information call David Schappert at 824-4651 or ext. 240.

At Wilkes College? Believe It or Not!

Mild Mannered Music Student Doubles as Beauty Queen

by Gail Steidler

There's something special about Mary Beth Zuvich.

She has an air of sophistication and confidence about her that is quickly detectable. This combination, along with her musical talent, has helped her to capture the title of Miss Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Mary Beth is currently a senior music major at Wilkes College. Her class schedule, along with her daily quest for perfection, is demanding, yet it is something Mary Beth has chosen to do, even if it did mean "going against the advice of others."

Before entering college, Mary Beth was presented with a difficult decision. If she were to major in music, it would most likely require additional training after college, which of course means more money. (Although she is on a scholarship at Wilkes for clarinet and voice, there is no promise of future scholarships.)

"The alternative route," said Mary Beth, "would have been to major in business or accounting." This would have allowed her to find work directly out of college and in turn would present less of a financial burden.

But Mary Beth chose the first route because it is something she truly wants to pursue. This choice put significant financial pressure on her, yet she was, and still is, determined to work her way through the temporary roadblock.

Mary Beth immediately sought ways in which she could lessen the financial burden. She looked into numerous scholarships and was introduced to the idea of competing for Miss Northeastern Pennsylvania. A friend who was also attending Wilkes and planning to compete for the title mentioned to Mary Beth she thought she would have a chance.

At first, Mary Beth was skeptical about the idea. She said it had a lot to do with the image she had of beauty pageants. All too often beauty pageants are looked upon negatively due to the nature of the contest. However, Mary Beth discovered that the Miss Northeastern Pennsylvania pageant emphasized talent and that the final decision rested heavily on the judge's interviews with the contestants. This is entirely different from a competition such as Miss U.S.A., which, according to Mary Beth, bases its decision on the swimsuit competition. In fact, the swimsuit category accounts for 50 percent of the final decision, and the competition doesn't even incorporate a talent category.

Mary Beth kept the idea of competing in the back of her mind as she continued with her musical training. It was in her sophomore year, after noticing an advertisement for the competition in the Beacon, that suddenly the thought of competing became realistic.

Because the pageant emphasized talent, Mary Beth decided to display her musical ability and her voice training. The pageant also included evening and swimwear divisions, both of which would account for 25 percent of the judge's decision.

Before the actual competition, there were preliminary competitions. Mary Beth breezed through this aspect of the pageant with no problems. When the competition rolled around, Mary Beth had perfected everything she had been working on. She placed first in the talent competition and first in the swimsuit competition. These top finishes, along with what Mary Beth felt were successful interviews with the judges, won her the title of Miss Northeastern Pennsylvania.

She could have stopped there, but she realizes she has the potential and talent to pursue even more prestigious titles. On July 15, Mary Beth will again compete, this time for the title of Miss Pennsylvania.

Mary Beth is presently preparing for the preliminaries of Miss Pennsylvania. Balancing schoolwork, practice and the pressure is tough, but she thinks she is handling it well. It's actually no wonder. Mary Beth has always been involved in numerous activities throughout high school and college. It's become second nature.

During high school in her hometown of Steelton, PA, Mary Beth participated in the chorus, band and "every musical play there was."

The month of July will be quite a busy month for Mary Beth. Her schedule includes a day of orientation or a "get acquainted" day with the other contestants and a week of rehearsals for the opening and closing numbers. Even after this week of continual rehearsals, the slate will almost be wiped clean as only ten finalists will be chosen for the actual competition.

When asked how the competition has changed her, Mary Beth said, "The competition has benefited me, but I can't say it's changed me." She continued, "A pageant should be about learning and giving yourself to others. It allows you to breathe. You give what you can and then give even more again with the space you've opened up."

Mary Beth's philosophy has brought her a long way. She deserves the title of Miss Northeastern Pennsylvania and is working hard to attain the title of Miss Pennsylvania. The support is behind her, the challenge in front of her, and the ability within her.

WEEKEND FORECAST

Aries (March 21-April 19) Great weekend ahead. This weekend is great because you will begin to chop away at the huge pile of assignments and readings you've been neglecting up to this point. If you don't start this weekend, the rest of your weekends this semester will be spent face down in your textbooks. ****

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Boring weekend ahead. Don't let it bring you down because you could use a boring weekend to get your head together. Try to organize yourself so the last few weeks aren't extra tough on you. **

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Superb weekend on its way! Great things will happen this weekend because you deserve it. You've been doing your work and trying to keep ahead so you deserve to do something for yourself this weekend. You may meet someone who will have a very good influence on your life. *****

Cancer (June 23-July 23) Pretty good weekend ahead. It won't be great, but it won't be bad either. Give your loved one reasons to believe your claims. You've got to show your loved one that you truly care. Words are never enough. Your actions are very important, and so is not going back on your word. Work on building trust because right now it seems to be a bit shaky. ****

Sagittarius (November 22-December 21) This weekend should be a nice balance of schoolwork and partying. Use the rights to socialize but keep the days for some good, hard work. *****

Capricorn (December 22-January 19) Beat weekend ahead. Not too many things go right this weekend. Be careful of what you say around others because people have a way of turning things around to make you look bad. Try to get some work done so you can relax in these last few weeks. *

Aquarius (January 20-February 18) Amazing weekend coming straight at you. No way to avoid superior times this weekend. Friday is a blast, only to be outdone by Saturday. Sunday proves to be just as great because you take it upon yourself to get organized for the trying times ahead. *****

Pisces (February 19-March 20) Great weekend ahead. Friday is a little slow, but the pace picks up when Saturday rolls around. Saturday should hold some nice surprises for you, and you may even be treated to a visit from a very welcome friend. *****

Leo (July 23-August 22) Rowdy weekend ahead. You are going to spend this weekend partying your head off. Try to keep some sense of your control because if you lose yourself, you've lost everything. So just keep your head even in the rowdiest of situations. If you don't, you may wake up with a huge headache on Monday. *****

Virgo (August 23-September 22) Work-filled weekend coming at you. My, oh my, how those assignments have piled up. And guess what? Now you've got to fight your way through that massive paper pile. Good luck! *

Libra (September 23-October 22) Nice, quiet weekend ahead. It will be a miracle if you can get through this weekend without fighting with your loved one, but try. All this fighting is taking its toll not only on your relationship but also on your state of mind. Clear up all those things that are so often fought about so you can cruise the rest of the way until May 19. ****

Scorpio (October 23-November 21) Use this weekend to study your head off. It's that time of the year again that you have to start doing what you supposedly are here for. No more partying, no more socializing, just pure, uninterrupted studying. Take time out to organize yourself before you start. It'll make everything a lot easier. **

Another Anxiety Causing Part of College?

Confusing Room Selection Made Less Confusing

by Kathy Hyde

All college students are frequently plagued by mind-boggling questions concerning their futures.

Will I graduate on time?

Will I get a job?

Will I default on my student loan?

Among these is the annually recurring question faced by those students who choose to live on campus: "Where the hell am I going to live next year?"

This question is conveniently resolved every spring by a process which the Residence Life Office has appropriately termed "Room Selection."

Sounds pretty fundamental. Everyone just 'selects rooms' as the name implies, right?

If only it were that simple.

In an effort to make room selection as fair as is humanly possible to all those eager dorm students (about 800, all of whom want to move into the same 10 rooms), the process has snowballed into one of the most complicated endeavors known to mankind. Well, at least it seems that way to RA's, students and housing directors.

It is baffling. So, most confused students naturally go to their RA's to clear up their problems:

Student: "Hi. I have a small question about room selection.

RA: "Sure, come on in."

Student: "Okay, here goes. I want to live in 217 next year and I want Betty to be my roommate, but Joann wants to live there with Andrea, but I've lived here longer than Joann, even if she is a junior and I'm only a sophomore. So what happens if Andrea and Betty pick in the lottery and Betty gets a and I will want to room together. Well?"

RA: Oh my God! I completely

YOU'RE THE R.A., WHY CAN'T I ROOM WITH JEFF?

better number? Can she take the room and have me as her roommate? Or will Joann have first shot at it because she's older and has seniority in the dorm? . . . Oh yeah, and what happens if I pick in the lottery to get a room in another dorm? If I get the room I want in Weiss Hall, will I still have my room here as a back-up in case I decide over the summer not to move in there because of the roaches, or will I lose my room and have to go there? And . . . can I put my name on the list as an alternate for 225, even if I do get 217? Because if I find out that Betty really was with Rick last Saturday night there is absolutely no way I can live with her next year and then Eileen forgot. . . I have an Econ test. . . Right now! . . . I'll clear this up for you later on. No problem!"

This explains why the sight of a panic-stricken RA making a mad dash for the housing office is none too rare these days.

If you are among the bewildered, don't throw in the towel and go apartment hunting just yet. This might help:

There actually is a logical sequence involved in the procedure. First of all, room selection is divided into two phases. "In-House" selection is for those who either want to move to a different room in the same dorm or keep their own room. "Out-House" selection (which, despite the name, has nothing to do with choosing a latrine), is for those who want to move into some other residence hall.

This process will take place at a dorm meeting some night approximately one week before Out-House selection. Things to remember:

-If you want to keep your room--it's yours. (You can even leave the meeting now if you want. Better yet, tell the RA beforehand and don't show up at all.)

The order of picking rooms is determined in the following sequence according to seniority:

-The person with the most living time in the dorm goes first and so on.

-If several people have equal seniority, the next criterion is accumulated credits (that means seniors before juniors, etc.).

-If several people have equal seniority and equal credits, they pick numbers from a hat and choose accordingly.

Hint: Even if you should want to move to another dorm, you should participate in In-House selection and get a back-up room in case you get a rotten number in the Out-House lottery.

Out-House Selection

One day will be designated for the lottery, another for the actual selection of rooms. On the day of the lottery, students must go to the residence life office and pick a number, which will be officially recorded by Becky process. But just think about the incoming ones--it's pretty scary.

There are just a few more specifics that help complicate this procedure:

Roommates: If a person either stays in his room or picks a room in the lottery, he has first choice over the identity of his roommate. (So make friends with an upperclassman who picks a good number).

-If you pick a room and don't know who you want for a roommate, someone will be "assigned" to you over the summer. Remember, anything can happen in this situation, so do your best to avoid it.

Alternates: If you don't get the room you want in either In-House or Out-House selection, you can be an alternate for the room. Picking for alternate rooms follows the same order as regular room selection: seniority, credits or lottery number. If the room you want becomes available over the summer, the first alternate has priority over the second alternate, and so on.

DID YOU GET A GOOD NUMBER?

IS 1,357,689th GOOD?

IT'S NOT WORTH IT! YOU'LL GET THE ROOM YOU WANT NEXT YEAR!

There. That wasn't so bad, was it?

Note: Betty, Joann, Eileen and Andrea decided to live at home and commute to a local college, and their RA will be seeking counseling at the Luzerne County Center for the Treatment of Nervous Disorders.

Battle, the R.L.O. secretary. There are actually four separate lotteries. Juniors pick numbers from the junior hat, sophomores from the sophomore hat, etc.

On the selection day, juniors (seniors-to-be) will choose rooms first, sophomores next, etc. As you may have noticed, freshmen (sophomores-to-be), don't seem to fare too well in the

Golfers Lose 439-450

Wilkes golfers lost to Moravian College 439-450 in a collegiate golf match last Thursday at Bethlehem Municipal golf course.

Wilkes captain Jeff Tokach took medalist honors with a 79.

Alos participating for Wilkes were Brian Cahill, Jeff Balmer, Jay Rubino, Gerry Galinus, Bob Noll and Jim Ralson.

The next match for the Colonels will be Thursday, April 23, at East Stroudsburg University.

Shallers Is Lone Winner For Wilkes in the Juniata Match

by Janee Eyerman

The Wilkes women's tennis team dropped two matches last week, losing 7-2 to Lycoming College and 8-1 to Juniata College.

Nancy Wendorf and Jennifer Briscoe were the only winners for Wilkes in the Lycoming match.

Wendorf beat Veerland 6-7, 6-4, 7-5, while Briscoe beat German 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Cress Shallers dropped her match to Lycoming's Arpter 6-2, 6-3, and Wilkes' Jackie Brown was upended by Kessle 6-4, 6-0.

Annette Winski and Natalie Sodano also dropped their singles matches 6-4, 6-1 and 6-0, 6-1.

In doubles action, Wendorf and Brown teamed up to play Bruno and Eden but lost their match 6-1, 7-5.

The team of Briscoe and Shallers also dropped its match, losing 2-6, 3-6, 6-4 to Veerland and German.

The final doubles match of the day featured Sodano and Leslie Krammer for Wilkes and Schrenk and Burgher for Lycoming. Lycoming won the match 6-3, 6-1.

The women didn't have much better luck with the ladies from Juniata College.

Shallers was the lone winner for the Lady Colonels, beating Detwiler 6-2, 1-6 and 7-5 in the singles matches.

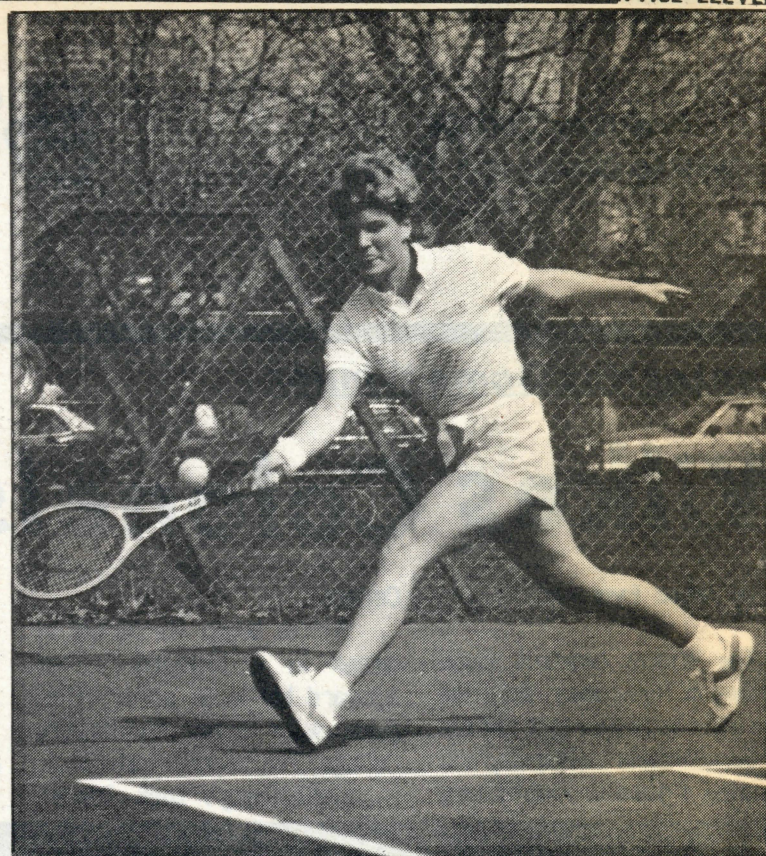

Wendorf and Briscoe lost their matches to Egolf and Krall, 6-4, 6-4 and 6-0, 6-2.

Winski and Sodano lost their singles matches against King and Beck.

In the doubles matches, Briscoe and Shallers lost to Egolf and Rose 6-0, 6-3. Wendorf and Brown were defeated 7-5, 6-3 by Drall and Detwiler.

Sodano and Krammer rounded out the day's action, dropping their match 6-0, 6-2 to King and Beck.

The Lady Colonels are now 1-3 overall and 1-2 in the MAC. They face Baptist Bible Wednesday at Artillery Park.

Nancy Wendorf dropped her match 6-4, 6-4 in Saturday's match against Juniata. Wilkes lost the match 8-1.

Lady Colonels Are Ranked Fourth in the Mid-East Region

by Janee Eyerman

As of last Tuesday the Wilkes women's softball team was ranked fourth in the latest Mid-East Region softball poll, and the Lady Colonels still might be after sweeping a double header with Messiah College and splitting a double header with Susquehanna University.

The women swept their doubleheader 7-1 and 2-0 against Messiah last week in Kirby Park.

Freshman Erika Oswald displayed her batting form in Saturday's double header with Susquehanna University. Wilkes split the double header, 3-4, 4-3.

Freshman Erika Oswald was the winning pitcher in both games. She allowed only three hits and no runs, pitching 12 of 14 innings in the double header.

Oswald pitched five innings of no-hit ball in the first game.

Lisa Gigliello homered and Mitch Zawoiski tripled for Wilkes in the first game. Teammate Karen Galli added two singles and had three RBIs.

In the second game, Cheryl Guarna had a single and an RBI for the Lady Colonels.

The women split their double header with Susquehanna University by identical scores of 4-3.

Wilkes' Sharon Domzalski led Wilkes' win in the second game when she hit a two-run RBI double in the first inning.

Winning pitcher Erika Oswald went the distance for Wilkes, pitching all 14 innings of the day.

Wilkes coach Nancy Roberts said she was disappointed in the defensive play in the first game but was glad to see the team was determined to come back to win the second game.

The three wins and one loss leave the Lady Colonels 6-4 overall and 4-2 in the MAC.

Wilkes plays host to Marywood College today at 3 p.m. for a double header.

Who Will Be the Best in the NL?

Who will be cream of the NL crop? Peter Pascarelli, a writer for the Philadelphia Inquirer, made his predictions in this past Sunday's Philadelphia Inquirer. Listed below are his predictions. What are yours?

Most Valuable Player -- It almost always depends on how a player's club fares, but here are three favorites: the Mets' Darryl Strawberry, who, with Gary Carter around, is protected in the lineup and insulated from media attention and who should really blossom; the Phils' Juan Samuel, and the Braves' Bruce Sutter, who right now looks unhittable.

Cy Young Award -- Look no farther than the Mets' Dwight Gooden, even if he still doesn't hold runners on, as demonstrated when Joaquin Andugar, of all people, stole a base on him on opening day.

Top rookie (non pitcher) -- Be patient with his inexperience around first, because the Phils' John Russell is the player. Shawon Dunston? He might be under too strong a microscope in Chicago to be a factor this year.

Top late-arriving rookie -- Last year, Jeff Stone,

Dan Gladden, Terry Pendleton and others began the year in the minors. Look this season for two names to surface in key roles -- St. Louis outfielder Vince Coleman and San Diego pitcher Ed Wojna, a former Phils farmhand.

Batting champion -- Go with a proven product, defending champion Tony Gwynn of the Padres.

Home-run champion -- Another proven product, the Braves' Dale Murphy.

First manager to be fired -- With each passing day, Whitey Herzog's days in St. Louis appear to be fewer. But he's adopted a "what, me worry?" attitude. "If they fire me, then I'll just be the highest-paid fisherman in the country," said Herzog, who has two years remaining on a $200,000-a-year contract.

Suprise all-star -- You hear many knowledgeable baseball people talk about Stone in connection with things like batting titles. The same people rave about Cincinnati's Eric Davis, who could quickly become a dominant player.

Is he right or wrong?

Wanzor Hits Game Winner

Wilkes Colonels Split Doubleheaders

by Janee Eyerman

The Wilkes baseball squad won two of five games, splitting twin bills with Albright College and Susquehanna University and dropping a game to Muhlenberg College.

Wilkes began its string of games in a blizzard. That blizzard led to an error-filled game with rival Muhlenberg College. The Colonels lost 15-5.

Muhlenberg's Dick Dieter, batting out of the eighth position, dropped bomb after bomb on the Colonels' defense. Dieter went 4-5 for the day.

The Mules jumped out to an early 9-0 lead after seven innings and added six more in the seventh to shut the Colonels out for good.

Wilkes' Jack Delfino provided the bright spot for the day, smashing a home run deep into right field.

The first game of the Wilkes-Albright double header was captured by Albright College 8-2, but Wilkes won the second 12-11 on Frank Wanzor's RBI single.

With the score tied 11-11 in the seventh inning, Wanzor hit a long single to center field to score Nelson Cantor with the winning run.

Tony Caladie, Jack Delfino and Joe Ranielli each hit home runs in the second game for Wilkes.

Wilkes scored its only runs of the opener when Dave Kerdesky singled for a RBI and later scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of Ed Domzalski.

A split double header with Delaware Valley College rounded out the Colonels' week. Wilkes won the opener 15-7 and dropped the nightcap 4-7 in the seventh inning.

The Colonels had a 6-2 lead in the opener heading into the visitors' fifth. Delaware Valley's Dave Norgoski hit a solo home run while teammate Scott Kinetz tripled to score two more runs. Delaware Valley finished the inning by scoring two more runs to take the lead 7-6.

Wilkes' Domzalski exploded in the bottom of the fifth, hitting a three-run homerun after bases loaded back-to-back singles by Cantor and Kerdesky. Wilkes regained a 13-7 lead.

Two more runs were walked home for the Colonels in the sixth inning to give them the win.

Wilkes saw a 4-3 lead disappear in the seventh inning of the nightcap. After battling back in the sixth, relief pitcher Don Shaw gave up four runs off three hits to hand Delaware Valley the win.

Delaware Valley pitcher Rembarding struck out the side in the seventh and earned the win, 7-4.

Tomorrow the Colonels travel to Scranton to take on MAC rival Scranton University in a double header at 1 p.m.

Senior Ed Domzalski dove head first for the bag after getting caught off base on a pop fly. Domzalski was safe, and Wilkes defeated Delaware Valley, 15-7.

Booters Go Southward

by Janee Eyerman

Part of the Wilkes College soccer team headed south this past weekend to participate in the Eighth Annual Virginia Tech Spring Soccer Tournament.

Wilkes was one of four Division III schools attending. Eight Division I schools, including West Virginia University, Virginia Tech and George Washington University, also attended.

The Colonels played three games during their stay in Virginia but came up empty in the win column.

"We unfortunately got divided up into a division with two of the top 10 teams in Division I," head coach Phil Wingert said. "We were just outclassed."

In round one Wilkes faced Radford University from Virginia and lost 4-0. "We were playing against kids who are good enough to get paid to play soccer. We never had a chance," Wingert said.

The Colonels were slightly more successful in the offensive department in round two. The luck of the draw pitted them against Division I William and Mary College. Sophomore Jeff Wertz scored Wilkes' lone goal from a John Pursell pass.

The Wilkes defense was penetrated too often for that lone goal to stand up. The Colonels dropped the game 9-1.

In the final round of the weekend, the Colonels faced James Madison University and kept the score close, losing 1-0.

"James Madison was a much better opponent for us. They are more on the level of our ability, and that made for a better game," Wingert said.

Don Engle and Paul Nardone combined efforts to win their doubles match to help Wilkes to its 7-2 win over Baptist Bible.

The Wilkes men's tennis team plays today at home against Scranton University. The match begins at 3:00 in Artillery Park.
