"Reflections": to reflect is to mirror; to reflect is to ponder; two meanings. And yet certainly this word entered human vocabulary with only its visual connotation; Man depended first upon his eyes by which to know his world. Man's was essentially a conceptual world of optic translation. Philosophy, however, soon came to "reflect" as to whether the mind loses or gains in this translation, asking if images visually perceived were not merely reflections of the mind itself. Ultimately, this reflection on reflection reduces both meanings again to a single essence.

This is exactly the germ of an ancient Teutonic myth, the Doppelganger, or the Double. Here is presented the idea that each of us somewhere in this world of forms and meanings, has a duplicate existence, a twin, each twin living a separate life, yet both lives being identical. This myth postulates the tragedy that when one meets one's double, as one sometime may, one dies. The mythical meaning is not difficult to define; like much of tragedy, this is finally a myth of resurrection. With the knowledge of the existence, in the immediate presence, of the Double, the Doppelganger, comes a certain wisdom, a realization of the nature of Self, the awareness of a dual nature that is single, two images of one reality. When the mythical figures come face to face, both images gain this wisdom of their single being. Two images fade, or die, and become the original of which both were formerly and merely reflections. In death a new man is born, a spiritually whole man.

In translation from the mythical this wholeness becomes the goal of education. Few students attain this spiritual level, yet it would be the rare member of a college graduating class who has not intellectually undergone the death and rebirth of the Double myth. The end of education is the confrontation of the self within; successful or not it involves the enlightening exploration of a vast territory; the student, like Tennyson's Ulysses, becomes a part of all that he has met. The Wilkes College Administration holds one of the marks of an educated man to be that "he seeks truth, for without truth there can be no understanding." The student who succeeds in this search will "reflect" in both meanings of the word: he will reflect within, to ponder upon his wisdom gained; he will reflect without, to mirror his achievement. He gives new life to society and new being to Self.

Pages to follow contain faces and names; they remember excitement and the fellowship in activity of a single college year. Occasionally, however, in a chance word or in a photograph, will be revealed some insight to the underlying theme of this Amnicola and the theme of education itself. It is hoped that the student or the graduate whenever he pages through this book will live again his years of college and his first years of education, reflecting upon both themes of this introduction, and those of his personal "Reflections."

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

TO THE CLASS OF 1964

As we part company in this June of 1964, I find myself hoping that during your four years of college, you will have established intellectual foundations upon which your future lives can be erected.

With the passing of years, you will find that the attitudes that you have developed towards learning may be more important than the facts you have learned. Because our available knowledge doubles every ten years, we are required to keep abreast of developments or lose touch with emerging conditions and current thought.

In the light of these developments, it is evident that what you will learn in the future will be far more important than all you have thus far learned. You will find, however, that your early education will better enable you to comprehend the meaning and significance of all that transpires in your world.

Twenty-five years from now, the value of your education will be judged by your maturity and by the contributions that you are then making to your profession, your business, your family, and your society.

It is my hope that with the passing of the years, your four years at Wilkes will seem to increase in value. This, I believe, will be true if you are prepared to meet with confidence the challenges with which you will be confronted.

My warmest wishes for the future go with you.

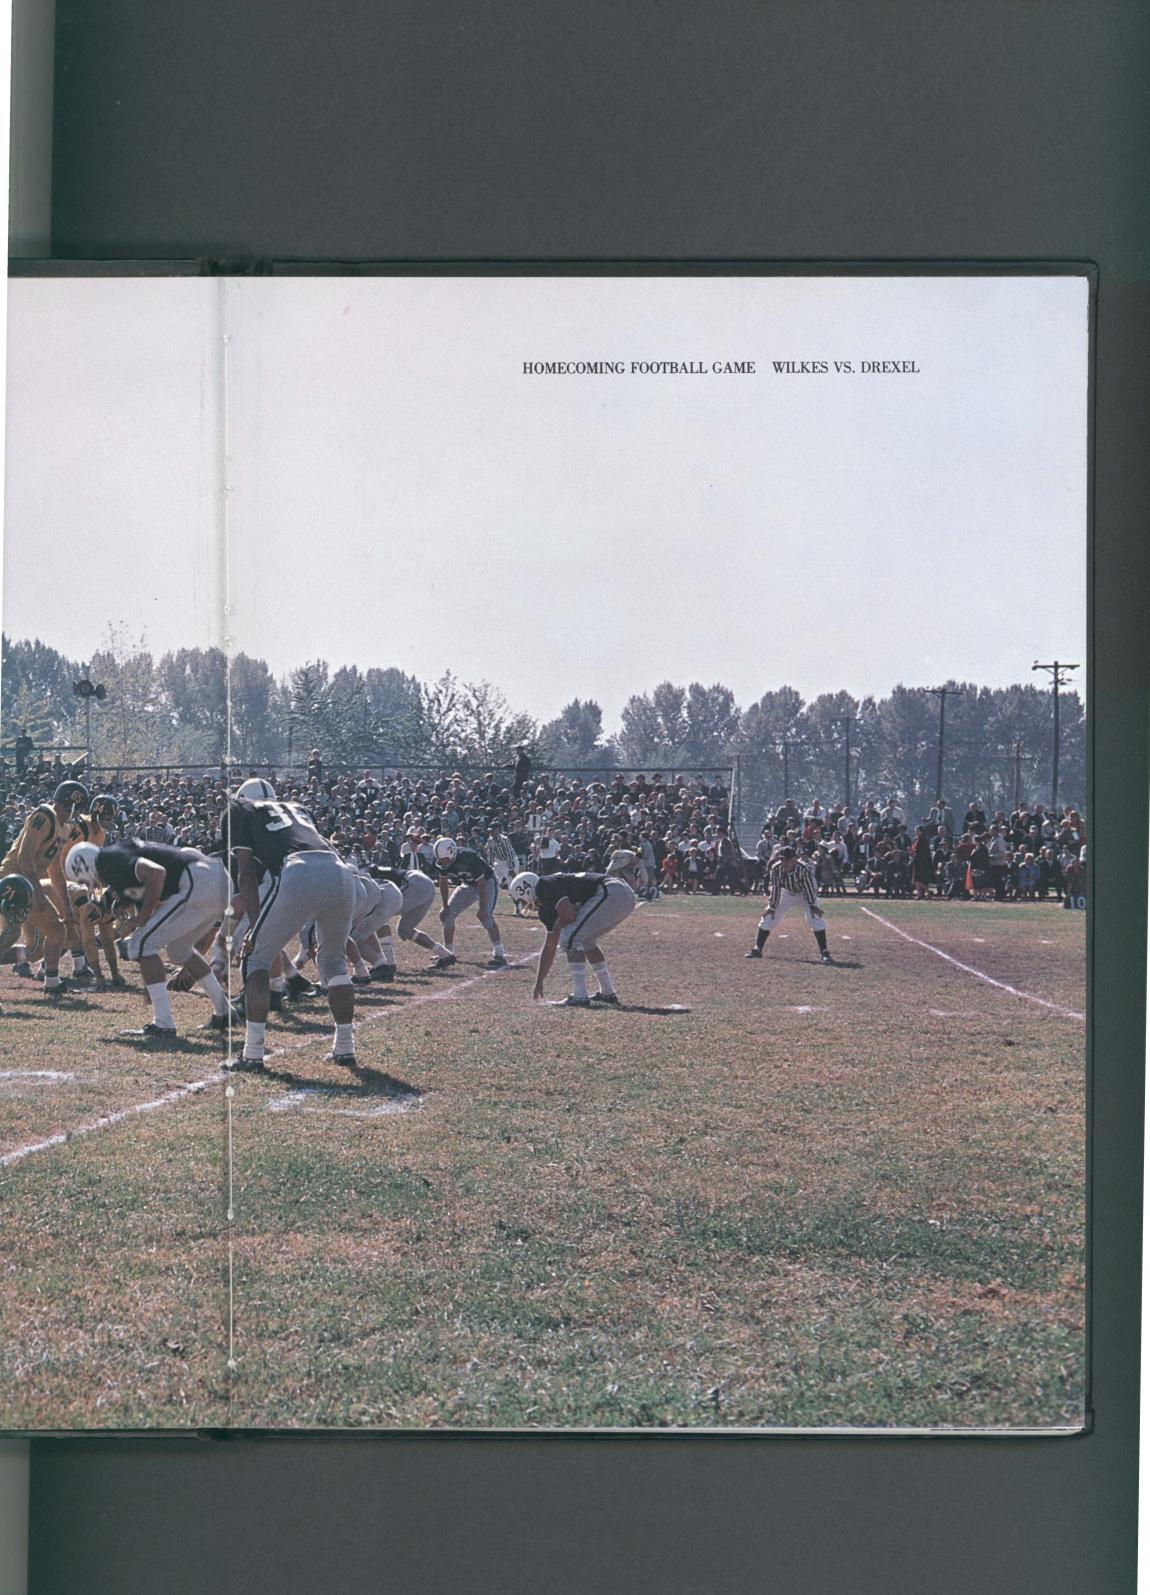

Sincerely yours,

lugue S. Faku

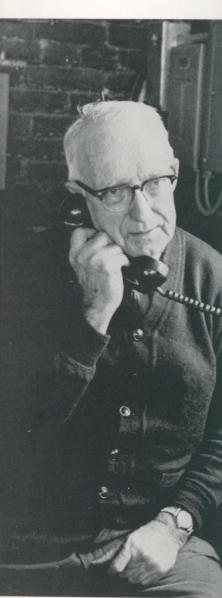

To Mr. William Jewis

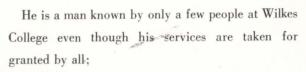

He is a man who has given twenty years of service, working day and night, for bettering the appearance of our campus;

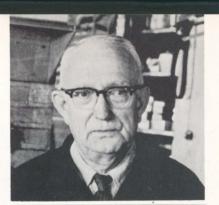

He is a man who has grown with the college;

He is a man who has won the respect and admiration of the administration, the faculty, and his staff of approximately a hundred members;

He is a man who is loved by all with whom he is associated for his friendliness and dry, British sense of humor;

He is a man who offers not only his service but also his "self" to his tasks;

He is the man to whom the 1964 Amnicola is dedicated. Mr. Jervis, thank you!

REFLECTIONS OF FALL

Fall is a time of ending or completion, leading eventually to something new. Leaves wither and tumble to the ground, causing the trees to face the destructive forces of Winter bare of protection. Just as the trees shed old leaves in preparation for the new, so also does a college student shed the leaves of his past experiences and prepare to face alone the new forces and pressures with which he must inevitably come into contact. Fall is a time of bright color, yet it is a time of gloom. A student's first days at Wilkes can be a period of fun and new, enjoyable life-experiences. However, the gloom of doubt does surround the student who is constantly asked to question and to make his own decisions, perhaps for the first time in his life. He will survive; he must survive! Just as the trees manage to face all of Nature unprotected, so also must the student have the strength and fortitude to help him work his way through his first days at Wilkes, his Fall of college life.

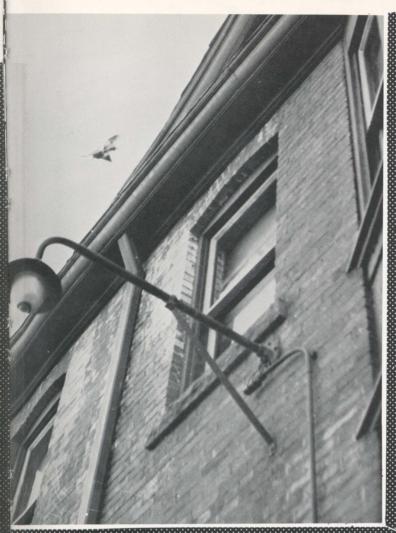

As the generation of so is that of men.

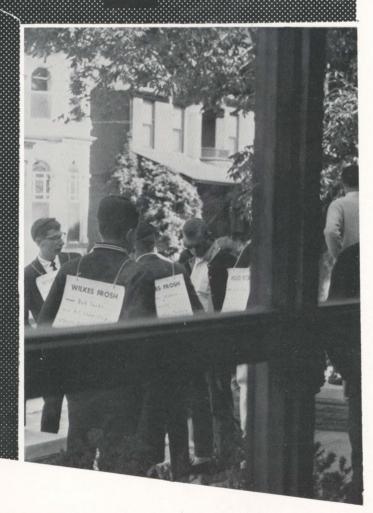

With Fall came the beginning of a new school year. Students returning from vacations and summer employment entered Wilkes perhaps for their first, second, or third year, or perhaps for their final year of college. For those returning, memories of past school semesters were reflected in anticipation of new, even more rewarding experiences. For those entering Wilkes for the first time, excitement and anxiety were reflected in the challenge of facing a new experience. Suddenly, the Wilkes College campus, dormant during the summer months, was bustling with life. New classes were begun, and with them came new people, perhaps new rewarding associations, a new dormitory, a new addition to Stark Hall, a new facade for the Bookstore. Freshmen entered into their first weeks at Wilkes with dinks and Student Handbooks, signs, and funny outfits, hoping that they would not be caught by any apperclassmen. The upperclassmen, already used to the whirlwind of Wilkes social and academic life, began to look ahead to football and homecoming, to Friday night dances and proms, to dorm parties and fun. Most important, upperclassmen began seeking out old friends who had in previous years brought them great pleasure and satisfaction. Wilkes, in the Fall, was a Hum Drum of reflections; reflections of summer pleasures, of seeking out old friends, of discovering new friends, new experiences, and new classes, and of a growing, both intellectual and social.

As the generation of leaves, so is that of men.

What do these men of the Maintenance crew mean to Wilkes? They probably go unnoticed by most of the students although they are an essential part of the college. Their work is probably more apparent to a visitor than it is to a student. We have come to take for granted the quality of their work reflected in the neat, attractive appearance of our campus. Achieving this appearance, however, is a year-round job for the crew under the supervision of Mr. Jervis. This year was especially difficult because of the heavy snowfall. To us the snow meant a few days free from classes, to the crew it meant a great deal of work plowing and making sidewalks passable. In addition to their work during the school year, the men of the crew are on the job while we are vacationing during the summer. When we return in September to our beautiful campus, we see the results of Mr. Jervis and his crew.

Being chosen to represent Wilkes in "Who's Who in American Colleges" is one of the most esteemed honors any Wilkes student can have bestowed upon him. The qualifications are high, and they include much more than an outstanding scholastic average. He must exhibit strength in leadership, willing cooperation, active participation in extracurricular activities, and future usefulness in society. Candidates for Who's Who must be recommended by the faculty and administration and the final selection is made by a national board.

Congratulation to you all! You are indeed a credit to your college.

Reflections of winter see the student in activity. Winter finds group outings, crisp, fresh carnivals in snow; finds the classroom warm and inviting: the campus itself is a poem, a poem of living, working. Even with respect for the majesty of winter, its pomp, its beauty, the student makes a joyful mockery of hibernation and winter's power to lull to sleep:

WILKES BAND

The membership of the Wilkes Band is composed not only of music majors but also of many Wilkes students in other fields who are proficient in playing band instruments. Under the direction of Mr. Donald Marcase, the band is an active organization on campus throughout the school year. During the football season, a portion of this symphonic band provides the music for the games, accompanies the kickline during intermissions, and provides the music for the annual bonfire held during Homecoming. During the remainder of the school year, the Wilkes Band also presents a concert and an assembly program. The three weekly rehearsals held for the band contribute the time necessary to develop both the individual's playing and the tone and quality of the entire band.

This year's Beacon under the editorship of Barbara Lore represented a year of changes and controversies. At long Tuesday Night sessions a conglommeration of campus kooks and Clark Kents drank coffee, took surveys on men's underwear, scandalized the neighbors, and compiled from the week's events Wilkes most complimented newspaper. A new format of extra-campus news, special issues, a wider variety of editorial features, and a philosophy of "taking a stand" was a major spearhead in piercing the perennial Wilkes bugaboo-Apathy.

BIOLOGICAL SOCIETY

The Biological Society is composed mostly of Biology majors. This club is very active on campus; they have speakers, films, and demonstrations of the latest scientific advancements.

COLLEGIANS

The Collegians, directed this year by Dick Probert, is a student-organized and student-conducted chorus for men. They present more than a dozen full concerts during a school year in addition to a tour and twenty or thirty short appearances before civic groups, teachers' organizations, and other groups requesting their talents. This group sponsored a dance in order to raise funds for more music and club social affairs.

COLLEGIATE COUNCIL FOR THE UNITED NATIONS

The CCUN is organized for the promotion of the ideals of the United Nations. They send delegates to various conferences to participate in discussions.

CUE AND CURTAIN

Cue and Curtain is Wilke's dramatic organization; it provides its members with the opportunity to gain acting, staging, lighting, and other technical training in putting on their yearly productions.

And, my dear, get to ride the first broom!

EDUCATION CLUB

The Education Club serves as a link for students between teaching preparation and the teaching profession. The club entertains guest speakers, goes on field trips, and attends conferences at neighboring colleges. The Education Club is a charter member of the Student PSFA

CLUB

Never mind why—just say that you're a sports fan, not an athletic supporter.

The purpose of the Engineering Club is to introduce to the engineers the creative and challenging aspects of the Engineering profession. Through technical papers presented by members, field trips to industrial plants, lectures and talks by professional engineers, and films and various social activities, they are led to realize the opportunities in engineering.

Student Government, composed of a President and four representatives from each class, provides a direct link between the administration and the students. It plans, supervises, and coordinates all student activities; appropriates funds for activities budgets; and serves in an advisory capacity to the Director of Student Activities and the Administrative Council. Some of the main activities which Student Government sponsored this year included Winter Carnival and the Spring

Weekend events such as the Cinderella Ball, the Smothers Bro-

Freshmen are required to don dinks and strange outfits, to carry with them and memorize the contents of their student handbooks, and to wear "identification tags" in order to become introduced to both the traditions and people of their newly-met collegiate "home."

October 5, 1963 marked the beginning of a tradition on our campus—Fall Parents' Day. Planned to promote parental understanding of the life of a student, as well as to encourage parental interest in the school itself, the event was a huge success.

In order to accomplish the goal, a hectic pace was set for the attending parents. Registration, visits with the faculty, and a soccer game filled the morning schedule, with a noon luncheon beginning the afternoon festivities. It was here that Dr. Farley delivered the Welcoming Address. At 2 p.m. the parents were invited to attend the football game of the day, followed by the "Post-Game Pickup." At 8 p.m., Cue 'n' Curtain enacted a series of one-act plays especially for the parents' enjoyment, and afterwards a full-length Manuscript film capped a "Perfect Day." And so a tradition is born...

This year, as for 3 years past, Hollenback Hall received the trophy for the best over-all display. Weckesser Hall won the award for the best women's dorm display, with Hollenback again taking honors in the men's dorm division. The Education Club topped all others in their division.

A torch-light parade, pep rally, and sports dance on Friday, October 25, began this year's activities. Saturday provided both a soccer and a football game. During half-time of the football game lovely Gail Roberts was crowned Homecoming Queen of 1963-64. That evening the Homecoming activities were brought to an end with two dinner dances, one held for the undergraduates at the Wilkes Gym and the other for the Alumni, held at the Host.

The Inter-Dormitory Council at Wilkes, besides being the governing board of the dormitory students, also acts as an organizer of social activities on campus. IDC sponsors many dorm parties; the biggest of these was the All College Christmas Party which they hold annually. A dance, the Roaring Twenties Dance, offered both dorm and day students a chance to don their flapper outfits and spend an enjoyable evening dancing to music of the twenties. The most rewarding of IDC activities is their Scholarship Fund for Zoes, a Greek orphan. This year in order to raise money for their

CONVOCATION AND DEDICATION OF RESEARCH AND GRADUATE CENTER

The influx of a host of illustrious persons—Mrs. Johnson, Governor and Mrs. William Scranton, Congressman Daniel Flood, Dr. Frank P. Graham, UN Representative to India and Pakistan and Chairman of the Area Redevelopment Administration—transformed Convocation Weekend into one of the most colorful events of the year.

The Convocation was scheduled for the purpose of conferring the first honorary degree given by Wilkes upon Mr. Walter S. Carpenter, a member of the board of directors of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Company and a friend of the College for many years.

In conjunction with this event, the recently completed million dollar Graduate Research Center, an extension of Stark Hall was officially dedicated.

The dedication of this Center attracted public officials, both state and national, interested in its potential for the area's industrial growth. All of the many speakers of the weekend stressed the theme of area and regional redevelopment and the importance of such a center where scientific personnel from the community could find the research facilities necessary for the progress of modern industry.

Governor Scranton, in addition to speaking on regional development as a state challenge, presented Dr. Farley with a signed agreement for a $15,000 research project in the anthracite mine drainage field, bringing the total research contracts of the new center to about $200,000.

The presence of a potential Presidential candidate interested local news and communications representatives who queried the Governor about his political plans at a press conference in Weckesser Hall.

Representatives of AP, UPI, ABC, NBC, CBS, and more than forty newspapers and magazines were on hand to relay these events to all parts of the world. NBC and CBS both produced special programs on this visit and photos of Mrs. Johnson at Wilkes appeared in the April issue of The Ladies Home Journal.

Last of the Red Hot Mamas

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.

The Lettermen's Christmas Formal was held this year on December 16 at the Wilkes College Gym. As the receiving line greeted the guests, the strains of Herbie Green's Orchestra could be heard. For the occasion, the gym was transformed into a winter wonderland of pines and a snow-covered floor surrounded by the traditional reds and greens of the Yuletide Season. As usual, Santa paid his visit and assisted in the caroling which took place at intermission. As a climax of this enchanted evening a Snow Queen was chosen. As the music ceased, the couples strolled hand-in-hand into their own wonderlands of the Christmas Season.

Annually the mid-semester recess brings with it the Winter Carnival at Wilkes. This year's Carnival was held on Friday, January 31, at Buckhill Falls in the Poconos. During the day students were able to enjoy many different sports events. For the bravest of the brave, skiing facilities were available. For those who enjoy figure skating, there was a skating rink at the falls. For those winter sports enthusiasts who were afraid to ski and couldn't skate, sledding facilities were also available. Laughter and activity marked the success of this event. The grand finale was the Winter Carnival Dance held that evening with music supplied by the Rhythm Aces. After the dance, tired and sore students began the return home amidst the falling snow-this snow topped the evening with a blanket of white.

FRESHMAN WEEKEND

Freshman Weekend, held this year from April 21-24, offered Seniors in high school planning to attend Wilkes their first taste of the flavor of college living. At this time, they were invited to spend a weekend with a dorm student who introduced them to the pains and pleasures of Wilkes. During the weekend the prospective students might even have picked up secret information on what professors to avoid and what courses to fear. To add pleasurable topping to this weekend, IDC planned a dance and a dorm party; while Manuscript presented a Bergman film, "Wild Strawberries."

"The cloths, Art, The cloths"

Glamor and excitement filled the gym on the evening of February 22 as the finalists in the "Miss Best Dressed" Contest entered. This combination fashion-show-contest provided a campus entry for "Glamour" Magazine's annual contest which reveals the ten most stylish women on the American college scene. To display her adeptness with attire for different occasions each contestant modeled a campus ensemble, a daytime traveling outfit, and an evening dress chosen solely from her own wardrobe. Poise, general good grooming, tastefulness in selecting styles and colors befitting to her features, and good sense in managing her clothes budget were the criteria considered. This year's Ten Best Dressed chosen by student voting were P. DeHaven, J. Edwards, R. Friedlander, B. Gallagher, B. Hyatt, L. McCloskey, A. M. Micklo, M. Persic, J. Smith, and R. Watkins. and disappointment.

Not all the action of the gridino takes place on the playing field. The current of emotions which come from the sidelines also adds to the atmosphere of the game.

Every play executed by the team is echoed from the bleachers and the bench. The spectators experience every success and every failure that the players encounter as can be seen from these photographs.

Frank Wallace watches from the Frank Wallace watches from the sidelines with an empty stare of disappointment. End Ron Grohowski pictures the discouragement of his team from the bench. Defensive back, Doug Yeager silently adds his support as he anxiously watches his teammates.

Maybe defeat was due to morale, or lack of a cohesive attack. Whatever the reason, be it a lack of some spiritual force or simply mistakes, the players are not the only ones who feel the depression of defeat or the elation of victory. These emotions are multiplied by every onlooker in the stands and by each player on the bench, whether they were a physical part of the action or not.

The Wilkes Soccer team opened the 1963 season on a sour note by losing to the Warriors of Lycoming. The booters quickly rebounded the following week, however, to take a 1-0 victory over Mora-vian. It was then four games until we tasted victory again. The Colonels dumped Muhlenburg 6-3 after playing to a scoreless tie with Madison F.D.U. the previous week.

The Colonels managed to pick up only one more win in the remaining games and dropped an 8-1 decision to an MAC championship squad from Elizabethtown to close the season with a 3-6-1 record. Dick Morgan was the mainstay of the squad, scoring six goals which was Wilkes' total points. Morgan was also voted three Stagg medals, a newly instituted award for leadership and ability, by a vote of his teammates.

Walt Prusakowski, who was co-captain with Morgan, was also a valuable asset to the team. Prusakowski was next to Morgan in scoring and produced numerous key goals throughout the season. The loss of these two is sure to be felt by the squad.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

A host of returning veterans with good support given by newcomers accounted for the excellent showing of the women's field hockey team in posting a 4-2 record.

Joann Kearney and Pat Davis acted as the playmakers of the team. Miss Davis was honored for her efforts by being named MVP for the team at the Annual Awards Dinner, where she also received the "Outstanding Woman Athlete" trophy.

Roseanne Hallet and Jo Signorelli also lent their aid to the winning effort. Miss Hallet received the Women's Lettermen scholarship at the "Awards" banquet.

Next season appears to be promising for the girls' coach, Mrs. Doris Saracino as many of this year's team are underclassmen.

WRESTLING TOURNAMENT

The 32nd edition of the Wilkes Open Wrestling Tournament, better known as the "Rose Bowl of Wrestling," was one of the most successful in the history of the event, with hundreds of wrestlers from all over the country competing for honors.

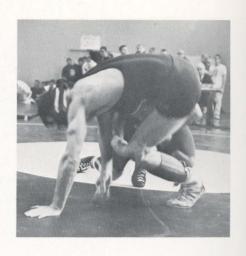

The "Rose Bowl" provides a training ground for officials as well as wrestlers and coaches, and is thought to be the largest event of its kind in the world, providing two days of top notch competition between grapplers of national renown.

In the past, Wilkes' own wrestlers have shown well, with Brook Yeager having gained honors as the "Outstanding Wrestler" of the event several years ago.

In this past edition, Yeager copped 2nd place. John Gardner and Ned McGinely also made an excellent showing, with Gardner registering two pins before being eliminated in the quarter-finals, and McGinely going down in defeat in an overtime bout with a wrestler who was runner up in the tourney.

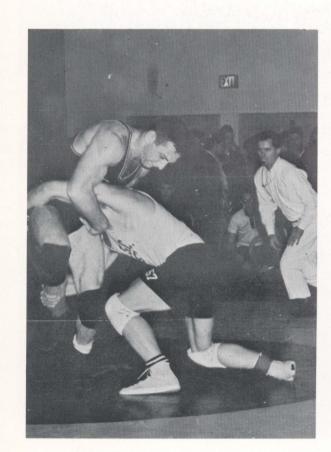

Greg Ruth, of the New York Athletic Club, copped most of the individual trophies in the event, including the "Outstanding Wrestler" award. The NYAC also copped top honors from defending champion Bloomsburg. Wilkes placed 7th in the Christmas affair.

WRESTLING

Coach John Reese continued in his rebuilding of the wrestling team by compiling a 5-2-1 record for the season. Reese gained some promising talent in the likes of Dave Hall and Bill Tinney, two freshmen who showed well in their first year.

Outstanding for the Colonels was Brooke Yeager, the scrappy 130-pounder. Yeager has a long list of achievements, including a silver medal for his placing second in the NCAA small college nationals. On his way to winning the silver medal, Yeager defeated last year's champion in a close overtime bout. Yeager was also named "Outstanding Athlete" by the Wilkes coaching staff. Late in the season, Yeager sustained a chest injury and was forced to miss the final meet, as well as the MAC tournament.

The loss of Yeager was the second major setback to the Colonels' hopes of regaining MAC supremacy, as John Gardner, former MAC champion, was forced to suspend his wrestling activities at the start of the second semester.

Ned McGinley, always a steady contender, made the usual good account of himself in taking often heavier opponents in the 123-pound bracket. McGinley will be the 1964-65 team captain.

The Colonels will be losing only Yeager through graduation, but that loss is sure to be felt. However, Coach Reese has gained some fine new talent and is looking forward to a successful season in the coming campaign.

Although Ferris' first season was far from satisfactory, the team showed signs of awaking. Next season's team will be endowed with many returnees, since only Dick Morgan and Al Doner will leave via the graduation route.

Among those who will be returning are Joe Chanecka and Dale Nicholson, who averaged 12.95 points per game, and Joe Stankus, the Wilkes center. Russ Jenkins and Leon Obrzut round out the returning starters. Fewis will also be depending upon Ron Serfoss to give the team a solid core. Serfoss was ineligible for the varsity as a transfer student this year. He performed so well however, that his teammates elected him co-captain with Chanecka.

The women's basketball team compiled a good record this season, paced by the outstanding play of veterans Jo Signorelli, Rose Hallet, and Jo Ann Kearny. The squad was also aided by the efforts of such newcomers as Pat Davis, and the team as a whole is to be congratulated.

Hampered by the cold weather and seriously weakened by a lack of returning talent, coach Welton Farrar's golfers were able to log only one win for the season in MAC competition.

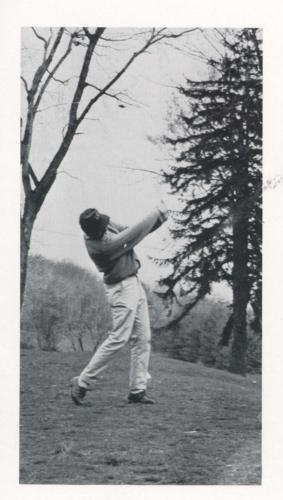

Coach Farrar will be losing Jim Ward, the captain of the team, which adds further headaches for the next season. Ward was named MVP from the squad and has been the mainstay of the team for several seasons.

It may turn out that the newcomers to the team will develop in time, however, and the duffers will improve their status on the links.

SWIMMING

The Colonel swimming team came of age in 1964, as school records fell. Ken Young coached the Wilkes swimmers to the best season in the history of the team as new talent bolstered the Colonel attack.

Harry Heesch, a freshman, and Ron Dagget, a sophomore, were only two of the many standouts on a team which showed a great deal of improvement in just one year.

Heesch came out of the season with the satisfaction of having set three new records, one of which was a chester YMCA pool record in the 200-yard freestyle. Heesch also tied the 100-yard freestyle mark set by Jack Barnes, the team's captain.

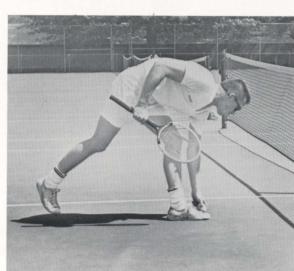

Daggett knocked off the 200-yard individual medley mark and was also a member of the 400-yard free relay team of Scholey, Heesch, Barnes, and Daggett which set a new record for that event. The new records were set as follows: 200-yard backstroke, Chuck Petrillo; 200-yard freestyle, 500-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle (tie), all set by Heesch; 200-yard individual medley, Daggett; 400-yard free relay, Daggett, Scholey, Barnes, and Heesch.

With a wealth of returning lettermen, Coach Young may look forward to the next campaign with high expectations.

TENNIS

The season was not without its disappointments, however, as Wilkes ace, Bill Douglas, tasted defeat for the first time in two years.

Captain Gary Einhorn displayed his usual brand of unconcern in driving many of his opponents to distraction with his incomparable use of gamesmanship and steady tennis play. Einhorn, a senior, and a self-taught player, and Owen Francis, also a senior, completed the year undefeated in doubles competition.

The Colonels ran up against

The Colonels ran up against a tough Moravian squad as the Greyhounds accounted for two of the three Wilkes losses. Lycoming was the only other team to gain a decision over Coach MacFarland's netmen. The coach will be losing several of his starters, but has many fine underclassmen who are just beginning to come of age to bolster the outlook for next year's schedule.

BASEBALL

Coach Rollie Schmidt was blessed with an entire returning lineup to produce the first .500 season since 1958.

Fireballer Gary Popovich and Rick Klick made up the nucleus of the mound crew, with Nick Gentile displaying late strength as the Colonels completed a highly successful season.

The Colonel defense played a big part in the fortunes of the team, with Tom Trosko and Matty Himlin standing out for the diamondmen. Himlin displayed excellent clutch play, as did Trosko, as both men turned in some key plays throughout the year.

Lou Zampetti, who shared captains honors with Himlin, also lent his bat to the effort, while holding down the third base spot. In all, it was real team effort, and one of which coach Schmidt can be rightfully proud.

REFLECTIONS SPRING

At the earliest ending of winter, In March, a scrawny cry from outside Seemed like a sound in his mind . . . Surrounded by its choral rings, Still far away. It was like A new knowledge of reality.

Wallace Stephens In the course of the four-quartered year, spring is the season of the dawn and is a sunrise of the mind and of the soul. The spirit is birth and growth; the theme is love and wisdom; these are spring's metaphor.

In spring, the student himself becomes most sensitive to the growth internal. Suns and showers tender a new fertility within the Self; it is with knowledge and learning as it is with Kahil Gibran's celebration:

I have sent to thee seeds and thou has made them to flower; and the young shoots and thou has raised them as trees. For thou art the virgin field that giveth life . . .

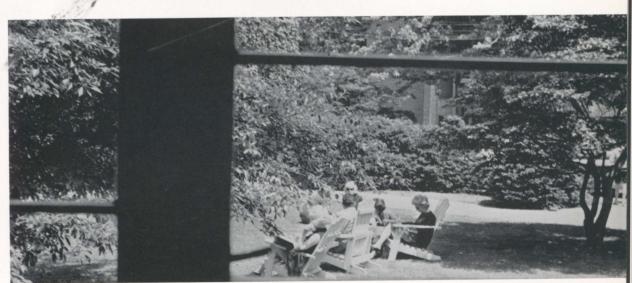

The campus blooms within as without, rain pools reflecting splashes of flowered color and couples walking as one through new grass. Both love and wisdom, the love of wisdom and the wisdom of love, are an eternal season in their beauty; soul and mind, together, one. It is this Unity which The Upanishads evoke, saying:

Thou are imperishable. Thou art the changeless Reality. Thou are the source of like.

NOTES FROM THE CELLAR

The struggle's almost over and we've beaten them all; the clock, the dust, the bills. We made the proper sacrifices to the gods and we tried to straighten out the books and records. All taken into account, cloudy to gradual clearing is forecast.

The attack began above ground, in the rarely seen sunlit campus where apathy runs rampant. The subterraneans infiltrated the student body, propagandized the faculty, petitioned the student government, and pleaded with the administration. The faculty was understanding, and the administration was polite. The students were, of course, indifferent.

Some surprising transformations occur under such conditions. Barbara Koshinski, being the first copy editor in the last five years, changed the AMNICOLA from a scrap book into an accurate record of a year past. With a minimum of help, she completed most of the copy herself — certainly a tremendous task. Thanks, Barb.

Keith found that art and a yearbook can be combined into one work and will, perhaps, prove it one day. Bill Williams showed us that photography is art. Along with his assistants, Nick and Ange, Bill recorded the struggle above ground as scheduled by Theresa Martincavage and Grace Jones.

Underground, in the darkness, apathy could not exist. Mildew grew, water spread, dust ruled eternal, but not apathy. Processing and developing the material they gathered from above ground, the boys from the darkroom turned their photographs over to the staff. We, in turn, laid out the pages and organized the pictures and copy. Seemingly simple yet exceedingly difficult, the work progressed slowly through the late hours of the nights.

The 1964 AMNICOLA was put together by not a few, but by many of the cellar dwellers. My thanks to contributors like Jack Hardie, Joe Lipinski, and Jane Kindervater. Thanks, Blanche and Barb Bigus, for all those hours of typing and drawing triplicates. Thanks to Eddy and Dave for those last minute captions and thanks to Mike Landesman, the first efficient and responsible business manager I've met. We just might make it, Mike.

Of all the wonderful gang that almost caught mildew poisoning with me, two people changed the seemingly impossible task into reality. After three years of working closely with Bill Williams, thanks seems completely inadequate. Without those tremendous photographs the yearbook could not exist. With Keith, I changed that mountain of photographs into that which you have just seen. Without his assistance, advice, and companionship, I could not have done it.

It's been an unforgettable year and I'll never forget it. Thanks to the dark, damp cellar and to the antique typewriter. Thanks to the Chevy and the Dorf. Thanks to the swivel chair rides and the coffee pot suppers by candle light. Thanks to the survey on men's underwear and the funny-looking Swiss Guards posted on flaky walls. Thanks to a damn great gang for a tremendous year.
