DEBBIE KOCH ELECTED QUEEN

Debbie Koch, a pretty senior coed from Bricktown, N.J., has been chosen by the Wilkes College student body to reign as the Homecoming Queen for the 25th Annual Homecoming this weekend.

Homecoming Festivities Mark 25th Anniversary

A campus-wide run off election held last week resulted in the election of Debbie Koch, a senior coed from Bricktown, N. J., as homecoming queen for the 25th annual celebration.

This year, for the first time in the institution's quarter century history, the homecoming court will consist of three princesses.

Josie Schifano, Paula Cardias and Randy Wells were chosen to reign with the queen for the silver anniversary weekend celebration.

The queen and her court will participate in the various activities throughout the weekend, and be crowned during official ceremonies at halftime of the Wilkes - Ithaca game on Saturday.

The queen and her attendants will ride in the car caravan to Ralston Field and be seated in a special section on the fifty-yard line.

The coeds were selected in a campus-wide election from among the senior women on the basis of personality, appearance, academic standing and participation in extracurricular activities.

Other halftime activities include the presentation of gifts to the queen and her court by Wilkes College President Francis J. Michelini, a half-time show, featuring the Wilkes College Band, the twirlers, the cheerleaders and the strutters. Official announcement of the winners of the homecoming displays will also be made at this time. Categories include best over-all display, best display made by an organization, best men's dormitory, and best women's dormitory.

Miss Schifano is an elementary education major from Pittston. She has been active in the Student Government and is currently a resident assistant at Chesapeake Hall.

Miss Cardias is an English major from Seldon, Long Island. While at Wilkes she has been active in the theatre, appearing in such productions as "Miss Julie."

Miss Wells, is a psychology major from Lebanon, Pa. She has been an active member of the cheerleading squad for Wilkes.

Homecoming activities first began in 1947 — the year Wilkes received its charter as a four-year liberal arts college. Since that time the Homecoming Weekend has been growing with new and more diversified activities being added each year.

In 1958, for the first time, student committees were added to formulate the activities and carry them through. Prior to that it had been the responsibility of the BEACON to initiate activities and select the Homecoming Queen and her court. It was also in that same year that undergraduates began participating more in the Homecoming activities.

During all of the Alumni activities will be the following special features: central registration and information for alumni at the Hotel Sterling Lobby which includes class lists of "Who's In Town For The Weekend," babysitting service, free campus shuttlebus service to and from the football game, alumni travel programs information, homecoming souvenirs, parking at all times during the weekend at the Hotel Sterling and at Parrish Hall.

FLOOD PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT HEALTH ORIENTATION

Congressman Daniel J. Flood will be the principal speaker at an orientation program in medicine and health professions to be held on Saturday, at 10 a.m. at the Wilkes College Center for the Performing Arts.

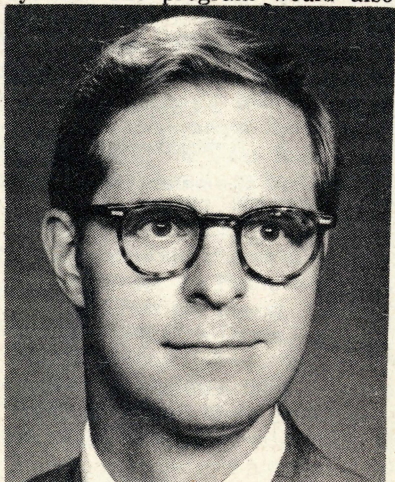

This was announced by Dr. Edward Stockham, project director for the college's six-year Wilkes-Hahnemann Medical Program, which began in September of this year.

Approximately 100 freshmen are currently enrolled in the program in family medicine, which centers around successful completion of the integrated academic and medical curriculum resulting in two degrees — an undergraduate baccalaureate degree from Wilkes College and a Doctor of Medicine degree from Hahnemann Medical College six years after entering the freshman year at Wilkes.

Congressman Flood, whose talk will be directed mainly to the pre-med students, will speak on the view of Congress on the primary health delivery system in the United States."

Dr. Stockham has extended an invitation to all related health personnel in the Valley to attend the lecture including members of both the Luzerne County Medical Society and the Luzerne County Dental Society.

The purpose of the orientation program in medicine and health professions will be to introduce the student to the concept of the primary health care delivery system, expose the student to the available career opportunities in the health science fields.

Dr. Stockham explained the primary health care delivery system as being divided into three principal phases: (1) the providers, (2) the specialists and (3) the workers.

The providers would be the physicians and personnel who have direct contact with the patient and serve his needs. The specialists would be those people who serve the providers with the ancillary services and the workers would do the routine tasks necessary for the providers and specialists to function efficiently.

The program will be presented in a panel-type discussion with members of the panel, each giving a 10 to 15 minute presentation concerning their specific function. Following the presentations, a moderator will direct questions to the panelists.

In this way, Dr. Stockham explained, the concept of the primary health care delivery system will be introduced at a very early stage in the students' development.

Editorially Speaking

Welcome Alumni

The old, familiar faces of the Wilkes College alumni will be seen this weekend as they return to visit their alma mater and cheer the Wilkes Colonels on to victory this Saturday.

But this year the returning alumni will gain a new insight into the institution they had been a part of for four years. The campus greeting the returning alumni will be different, of course, but in more than the usual sense of progression.

Returning alumni will be able to view the progress that has been made possible through their contributions to "Operation Snapback" — the college's solution to $10-million in damages following the June 23 disaster.

The Beacon would like to extend a deep welcome and a thanks for a job well done. Conceivably, last June there would have been some doubt as to the possibility of Wilkes College returning as an institution of higher learning. Now, we have proven our ability to Snap Back, and a good part of this recovery is due to the generosity of our Alumni.

Our Mailbag Is Empty

Every Thursday when the issue of the Beacon comes out, students in the Commons and the Cafeteria complain that the news coverage in the campus paper is lacking.

Whenever an article appears in the Beacon, it is obviously fair game for any member of the campus community to criticize errors of news judgement, coverage or events.

These same people sometimes carry their arguments into the classroom situation. Yet, there is an easy out — or perhaps, a not-so-easy out.

For, it demands at least 15 minutes of your time. It involves sitting down at a typewriter and — quite simply voicing your opinion in a letter to the editor.

It almost appears as if members of the Wilkes Community are afraid to stand up for what they believe is right.

It becomes a matter of simply saying, "THEY wouldn't print it anyway." Try us.

In many cases we simply don't have the staff available to cover each and every event on campus.

This is where you, the Wilkes College Community, comes in. If you have an idea for a story or know of some event coming up — let us know or make a contribution.

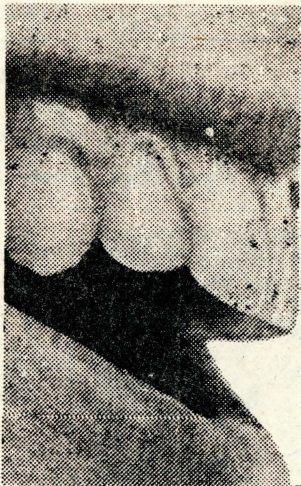

POLICY STATEMENT

Letters to the editor must be typed and submitted by the Saturday prior to the next week's publication. We reserve the right to edit all material. Letters will not be printed unless they are signed. Names will be withheld upon the writer's request.

NEW BEACON WRITERS

Though we haven't re-seen everyone who's visited us this fall, we're hoping for a 100 per cent turnout on Tuesday, October 24, at the Beacon Office, Shawnee Hall. Assignments will be discussed.

War Extracts U.S. Apology

To the Editor:

Today comes news of American bombs destroying the French Diplomatic Mission in Hanoi, putting new strains on Franco-American relations. We have rushed apologies to France for the death and destruction. It was a mistake. The week before last we bombed a hamlet in Cambodia killing 88 civilians. It was a mistake and we apologized.

What a long list of embarrassments and apologies the war has engendered. And here on the campus all is quiet. No mention of today's atrocity. No mention of yesterday's. No apprehension for tomorrow's. It's as if no one knew. It's as if no one were responsible. The silence is weird, freakish, crushing.

CLUB NOTES

The Psychology Club will present Joseph Kanner, Director of Testing Services, speaking on the topic, "Careers in Psychology," today Stark 109, at 11 a.m.

This lecture is the first in a series sponsored by the Psychology Club for the purpose of serving as a link between faculty and students, and creating an informal atmosphere by which the many different aspects of the field of psychology can be learned and appreciated.

Anyone interested in the discussion is cordially invited to attend. Other speakers and topics will be announced at a later date.

The program will also introduce the students to the medical and health services of the local community and surrounding areas.

Orientation sessions will be scheduled during 14 different periods throughout the academic year with each session announced in advance from Dr. Stockham's office.

MINISTRY INITIATED

by Deborah Ann Hargraves

A Student Government Committee has recently aided in the creation of a campus ministry. Commuter Council President Buddy Bresinski, SG representatives Kathy Moran and Maureen Kortbawi investigated and approved the organization of a Wilkes College Chapter of the Campus Ministry Organization. The purpose of the Campus Ministry is to unite all the students of Wilkes, regardless of religion. Membership is open to all students.

This is a freely officiated organization without officers and all students have equal say at the meetings. There will also be a short church service held on campus every Saturday night.

Credit for the concept must be given to two of our seniors who attended a 10-college progress-meeting at St. Pius X Seminary, Dalton, on October 8.

Representing Wilkes at this meeting was Inter-Dormitory Council President Jim Fiorino and Anne Fisher. Miss Fisher has served on Student Government and was a semi-finalist in the Homecoming Queen election.

Also attending the meeting were student representatives from the following colleges: King's, Marywood, Scranton University, Mansfield State, East Stroudsburg State, Lycoming, Williamsport Community and the Hazleton and Lehman extensions of Penn State. The majority of these colleges had a Campus Ministry Organization of their own prior to the progress meeting.

The meeting had a dual purpose: the first was to check on the progress of the colleges which already have on-campus ministries; the other was to integrate the Organization into the operations of the colleges which didn't.

Father Bendick, of St. Pius X Ministry, organized and conducted the meeting and was assisted by Buddy Snyder, the student representative from East Stroudsburg State.

After an open discussion between the priests, nuns and students, the group divided into two individual discussion sessions. Father Bendick headed a discussion among the priests and nuns while Snyder took charge of the inter-collegiate "student rap-session."

Fiorino and Miss Fisher returned to Wilkes with the intent of creating a chapter of the Campus Ministry Organization here. After a meeting with Father Adonizio, of St. Mary's Parish, the duo decided to open discussion of the program with Student Government. After all arguments were heard, SG created a committee to examine the concept fully. Soon after, the Wilkes Campus Ministry was initiated.

As of yet, there are no additional activities scheduled other than the Saturday nights' service. There will be a state convention in the near future and held at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. The Campus Ministry is considering the possibility of sending a few students to represent Wilkes College.

CPA Recovery Cited As Slow

by Floyd Miller

Due to the devastation of the Center of Performing Arts and the three week opening delay, the Wilkes College Drama Club has been forced to reschedule two of its plays and has eliminated another.

"The Matchmaker" will be presented November 9, 10 and 11 and "The Little Foxes" is to be shown almost a month later, December 7, 8 and 9.

As in many buildings, the C.P.A. has no heat or hot water. Many things were lost such as tools, furniture, costumes, hardware, flats, some scenery, props and paints. Replacement is in progress but is painstakingly slow.

The only damages that are not expected to be repaired by showtime are the seats and the electrical switchboard that controls the stage lighting and other stage electronics. Parts have been ordered but they are not expected to get here in time and the lights will not be able to dim.

Mothers and Other Strangers

Like nearly every other mother in the world, my Mother told me never to talk to strangers. As a child I kept my mouth shut in public buses, trains, restaurants and restrooms, I went through the formative years pointing a lot. Everyday before I'd walk to school, alone, my Mother would whisper in my ear, "Now be sure not to talk to strangers. Or you'll be sorry."

And Chairman Mom is a real pro at her own teachings. She leaves notes for the milkman, turns away the Avon lady, and doesn't use a mouthwash, "just so people won't be tempted to talk to me."

"Me, she talks to," my Father laments. "How did I ever get so lucky?"

Recently, my 14-year old brother, Barry, and I got together when nobody was looking. He told me that his teacher, Mr. Elmm, sent home a note to my mother. "Barry is uncommunicative and does not partake in classroom discussion. Please come in to see me."

So my Mother dragged in and sat in conference in Mr. Elmm's office.

"Why is it that Barry won't talk in class?" he asked. "He won't talk to his peers."

"Peers, shmeers," my Mother told him. "I told the boy not to talk to strangers."

"But I don't understand..."

"You will never understand, Mr. Elmm, until you've been a mother."

Last week, she called me up to see if everything was going well.

"So listen," she said. "Now that you live away from home, you don't talk to anyone, do you?"

"Of course not."

"You don't talk to anyone? How're you ever going to meet anyone if you don't talk to anyone?"

"But you told me not to talk to strangers..."

"...or you'll be sorry. Remember that."

"Well, at what point does a stranger become someone you can talk to?"

"When he becomes your mother."

"Mom, didn't you ever talk to a stranger?"

"Yes, once. And look what happened to me."

"What happened?"

"I married your father."

My mother also applies her philosophy to strangers -- like the President of the United States.

"You see," she said, "if that man had listened to his mother and not talked to strangers, we'd be getting along with other countries now."

She looked up startled "You're going to argue with a mother?"

And history is not exempt from Mother's adage.

"If that girl Juliet had listened to her mother and not talked to strangers, she'd be alive today."

I visited a friend in New York last month and spent half the day finding someone who'd stop long enough to give me directions.

"I don't understand it," I told my friend. "No one will talk to me in this city. What is it with these people?"

"What can I tell you?" my friend told me. "Everyone in the city of New York has a mother who told him not to talk to strangers. In fact, if my Mom knew I was talking to you right now, she'd murder me."

Recently, I told my parents that I would be coming home that weekend for a visit. When I called, I talked to my Father because my Mother was out at bridge -- "Either playing or jumping off, I'm not sure which," he said.

An hour later my Mother called.

"I'm hurt," she said.

"Why?"

"Because you didn't tell me you were coming home this weekend."

"But I told Dad to tell you."

"Sure," she sighed. "I had to hear it from a stranger."

Lovette Offering Feminine Seminar

by Mark Carmon

The first and only course in women's studies has been initiated by the Foreign Language Department at Wilkes. "Feminine Perspectives in French Literature" is a 300 series seminar open to all students. The course will be taught in English translation for non-language majors by Miss Mary Lou Lovette.

The seminar will utilize French literature from the 13th century to the present day. The aim of the course is not to make wide-eyed fanatics of the 22 female members of the class, but to help them gain an awareness of their feminine and human condition. This will be accomplished by reading and discussing the works of famous French authors such as Moliere, Racine, Diderot, Flaubert, Simone de Beauvoir and others.

Miss Lovette stated that as a whole, the class was disappointed that no men were involved in the course, but this has not prevented some spirited and challenging discussions among the female students. All of the readings, which are used as supplements to the discussions, do not agree in philosophy or approach. "The Romance of the Rose" by Jean de Meung and "The Girls" by Henri de Montherlant are examples of blatant sexist attitudes. A frank discussion of female sexuality is found in "The Second Sex" by Simone de Beauvoir that is far ahead of its time.

The only problem encountered by Miss Lovette is the scarcity of English translations of works by other French authors such as Madame de Stael and Henri-Marie Beyle Stendhal. She won whole-hearted support from Dr. Michael Sietz, head of the Foreign Language Department, when the idea for a course of this type was proposed last semester. By using this seminar as the core, Miss Lovette hopes to build a women's studies department.

When asked the purpose of the course, Miss Lovette explained it was meant for the student who may not be an active participant in the women's movement, but who is interested in broadening her (or his) knowledge and understanding of certain customs and traditions concerning the treatment and station of women. French literature has a long history of sympathy and support of women and their rights, thus making it ideal for the course.

The turmoil resulting from Betty Freidan's book, "The Feminine Mystique," culminated in the Women's Liberation Movement and

Key Members of the Parent's Day Committee go over plans for the upcoming event.

by Charles Riechers

Parents' Day, an annual fall event for the parents of Wilkes College students, will be held Saturday, November 4. Co-chairmen of the Parents' Day Committee, Student Government President Michael Barski and Inter-Dormitory Council President James Fiorino, seniors at Wilkes, have sent an invitation to attend this affair to all parents concerned.

Registration for Parents' Day will be held in the New Dining Hall from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Tickets for an informal buffet luncheon to be served beginning at 11:45 a.m. in the Wilkes College gymnasium may be procured at this time. The price of tickets is $2.50 per person. Following the luncheon, Dr. Francis J. Michelini, Wilkes College President, will address the group.

A football game featuring the Wilkes College Colonels and Lebanon Valley will be played at 1:30 p.m. at Ralston Field. The day's activities will conclude with a musical program presented by the Wilkes College band and chorus at 8 p.m. in the Center for the Performing Arts.

A tradition for nearly a decade at Wilkes, Parents' Day is an original idea of Arthur Hoover, the present Director of Alumni Affairs at Wilkes. As Dean James Moss conjectures, Parents' Day was originally an excuse to get parents to spend a day at Wilkes, to see the campus and converse informally with faculty and administrators. Too often the students would not take the necessary initiative and invite their parents."

NIMOY URGES INVOLVEMENT

Leonard Nimoy, well-known star of Star Trek and "Mission Impossible" arrived in the Wyoming Valley area last Friday to kick-off a clean-up, fix-up project for the benefit of the flood-ravaged residents of Kingston and South Wilkes-Barre.

Speaking before near-capacity audiences at Wilkes College, Nimoy made a plea for volunteers from the area institutions to join students from King's, Misericordia, Swarthmore and Bryn Mawr Colleges in the project over the weekend.

Weekend plans included helping the elderly move back into their homes and building playgrounds for children at trailer parks.

Nimoy urged the audiences to "do the right thing, for doing the right thing is the ONLY kind of soul-food."

He called the recent catastrophe in the area a "terrible tragedy." Unfortunately, according to Nimoy, "few people outside the area are even aware of the disaster."

Nimoy stated that the flood relief "should not be handled on a partisan level. Do it (the work) and argue about it later."

Following the brief plea, students had the opportunity to question the vivacious man who had pledged his active support for George McGovern.

"I'm here to relate to you," stated Nimoy, "Perhaps the best way would be through pointed ears."

When questioned concerning his complete involvement in the McGovern campaign, Nimoy stated that he was involved in this campaign "Because I helped elect Richard Nixon in 1968."

Nimoy went on to explain his statement by saying, "Everyone should be involved in politics, and I believe everyone is involved in politics by being inactive or active."

Nimoy explained that he did not vote for Nixon in the last election, but he did not campaign against him -- thereby, helping him to get elected.

The television star admitted that he agreed with McGovern's decision concerning the Eagleton affair for two reasons: Senator Eagleton should have mentioned his medical history and if he had continued to run, there would have been no time for other issues.

When questioned concerning the tax cuts and other promises usually voices by politicians, Nimoy replied, "no President can immediately guarantee anything except that which is within his direct jurisdiction. I do believe, however, that it is possible to operate on a philosophy and that your plan of action requires the support of the people."

In response to McGovern's failure to vote on anti-war legislation Nimoy replied that "McGovern believes that it is obviously impossible to end the war, except through the direct actions of the Administration."

Nimoy went on to say that the spiritual dignity of man was lacking. "I abhor an Administration that forces people out of work then calls them less than Americans because they are unemployed."

Leonard Nimoy

VIEWPOINT

McGovern Forces Seen In Long Uphill Battle

by Gary Horning

The campaign trail in which only one party is actually doing any campaigning, has taken on a new note. Instead of beating a dead horse i.e., the Watergate Affair, International Telephone and Telegraph, and yes, even the war, George McGovern has turned forces towards his single most powerful campaign weapon; his character versus that of President Richard Nixon's.

The polls which McGovern has so steadfastly refused to acknowledge have long indicated that the Vietnam War is simply no longer a major campaign issue in the eyes of about 70 per cent of the voters.

And yet McGovern has ceaselessly pondered the war, the Administration's constant blundering and the Thieu Regime. The truth remains however, that right or wrong, the American people no longer give a damn.

And thus comes the moral issue. Somehow Americans have always given a damn about moral issues and George McGovern intends to exploit that issue to its fullest extent.

McGovern, according to "Newsweek" magazine, has even lost the credibility issue to Nixon. A recent Gallup poll showed President Nixon holding a three to one edge as the more sincere of the two men. "McGovern has lost the credibility issue," said one aid. "There's no way he can get it back in time."

The credibility issue was lost with Senator Thomas Eagleton. That unfortunate affair smells as badly to many Americans as does Watergate, International Telephone and Telegraph and hasty defense spending put together. It smells because McGovern's polished image of honest George is now badly tarnished.

And now the moral issue. "Newsweek quotes McGovern as saying 'The President sets the moral tone of this nation, and this administration reeks with permissiveness toward... corrupt interests...'"

The President, however, continues to observe from the White House. Holding such a vast lead in the polls, he doesn't even comment on the McGovern charges. Nixon' for that matter' will campaign perhaps one day a week, until the polls indicate more public exposure is necessary. That may be never.

McGovern is having financial problems as well. Presidential campaigns can be paid for by the people as much of McGovern's is, but the people of 1972 back his foe. Now he needs more and bigger funds to finance a media campaign aimed at nine half-hour television shows.

But the picture remains to be bleak for the thousands of McGovern volunteers throughout the country. Their man is down and almost out of time and money, the two essential elements of any successful campaign.

McGovern's latest effort may be his last. Yet, it seems to stand little chance of survival.

Students Air Policy Ideas In Art Dept.

It's just a beginning, but students majoring in Fine Arts will have a say in their department's policy decisions.

The art student body will elect two representatives and two alternates to serve as their voice during staff meetings.

"We're interested in the interests and directions that students have," explained Henry Casilli, Chairman of the Fine Arts Department. "The purpose is to open up communications."

The students who are elected will air gripes and ideas that pertain to the art students affairs. And these representatives will have the same voting rights as the instructors!

However, Casilli stated that the student representatives will not take part in every decision. They will attend staff meetings and vote "only when students' issues arise."

When asked if two students could provide an adequate liaison between the art body and staff, Casilli struck upon the simplicity and novelty of the idea. "The burden is on how they (the student representatives) would communicate." Casilli conceded that the idea would be "relying upon the initiative of the students involved."

Casilli was elated as he expounded upon the possibilities of the program. Student representation during staff meetings could permeate into all the departments on campus.

B.S. Degrees In Nursing To Be Awarded At Wilkes

Wilkes College will award a Bachelor of Science Degree with a major in Nursing beginning in September of this year, according to an announcement made by Wilkes President Francis J. Michelini.

The establishment of the Department of Nursing and the new four-year program will combine with a current program at Wilkes that enables nursing students to gain a Bachelor of Science Degree in Nursing Education.

The new degree program which recently received approval by the Pennsylvania State Board of Nurse Examiners will be under the direction of Ruth W. McHenry, R.N., chairman of the Department of Nursing, who has been working closely with college and state officials in the development of the program.

Emphasis is placed on the prevention of disease and the delivery of health services to the people in both the hospital and community settings. There is an opportunity for students to focus in depth on nursing practice in complex situations and planned experiences with students in other health programs in the delivery of health services.

The proposed curriculum design covers a four-academic-year period totaling approximately 126 credits. Nursing will be introduced in the freshman year and experiences from the simple to the complex will progress throughout the sophomore and junior years. In the senior year, the student will have the option of selecting an area of concentration related to the care of sick people or to family and community health.

Opportunities for individualized learning experiences will be provided along with appropriate practical experiences designed by the student in a senior year experience.

The program will prepare the professional nurse practitioner for his/her role in society, offer the graduate the opportunity to complete the requirements for the Bachelor of Science Degree, provide a foundation for graduate study in nursing, and develop continuing educational programs in the emerging concepts of nursing for currently practicing nurses.

Many resources of the community will be utilized for clinical practice such as the Home-Health Services of Luzerne County, Wyoming Valley Hospital, Nesbitt Memorial Hospital, Wilkes-Barre General Hospital, Veterans Administration Hospital, Rural Health Corporation Clinics of Luzerne County and others.

Registered nurses may be admitted only to the Bachelor of Science Nursing Education program for the year 1972-73 and should complete the nursing education requirements within two years for this degree.

It is anticipated that diploma graduates may elect to enter advanced standing by the 1973 academic year.

Nursing candidates are considered for all of the financial aid programs for which they qualify. An award may combine a scholarship, a loan, a grant and a work opportunity. Students must be admitted to the college before their applications for financial aid will be considered.

Mrs. McHenry, chairman of the newly formed department, served as assistant director of nursing at Hahnemann Hospital, director of nursing service at Memorial Hospital, assistant professor of nursing at Pennsylvania State University, assistant chair of nursing and assistant professor at Syracuse University.

Applications to the Nursing program may be obtained by writing to the Dean of Admission, College, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania 18703.

Wilkes' Nursing Director Attends National Study

A recent seminar on nursing curriculum and self instructions laboratory at the University of Colorado was attended by Mrs. Ruth W. McHenry, director of nursing education at Wilkes College.

She was among 185 nursing educators who spent three days studying grantmanship and evaluation with the faculty of the Denver institution.

Robert S. Brittain, M.D., F.A.C.S., Director of the Inter-Hospital Educators Association of Porter and Swedish Hospitals in Engelwood, Colorado was among the instructors present.

Other notable resource people in attendance were Leland Royce Kaiser, M.A.H., Ph.D., coordinator for the program in Comprehensive Health Planning at the University Medical School in Colorado.

James K. Hoffmeister, B.S., M.A., President of the Test Analysis and Development Corporation of Boulder, Colorado, and Betty K. Mitsuga, R.N., Ph.D., professor of nursing at the University of Colorado.

Mrs. McHenry has been active at each of the four National Conferences. In 1970 she planned and chaired the Syracuse Conference at the Sagamore Conference Center in Adirondacks.

Mrs. Ruth W. McHenry

Before coming to Wilkes, served as Assistant Chairman, Assistant Professor of Nursing at Syracuse University; assistant Director of Nursing, Hahnemann Hospital of Philadelphia; and local as Director of Nursing Service at Memorial Hospital.

International Club Offers Help To Unfamiliar Foreign Students

Another person's country can be a very lonely place unless someone offers the hand of friendship and understanding.

That, in essence, is what the International Club of Wilkes College is attempting to do by its existence and efforts on the local campus.

Mary Cheung, a native of Hong Kong and president of the International Club, is determined to work with her five-member executive council to make life on the campus and in this country more enjoyably familiar to the foreign student.

The charming resident assistant has a humble but convincing way of making someone listen when she expresses her concern for the plight of the foreign student -- especially during their first years in this country.

Finding a solution to the problems facing the foreign students is one of the key points of interest that Mary is counting on to put new life into the three-year-old International Club.

"We have approximately 60 members," she said, and then quickly added "even some American students who are interested in our aims." It is Mary Cheung's hope that through the process of explaining the need of more assistance and cooperation that the International Club can become one of the most active on campus.

Assisting with the overall revitalization of the organization is Assistant Dean Edward Baltrukitis, who had experience on the college level with International Club organization on other campuses.

Since most of the members of the club come from foreign countries and have many problems in quickly relating to the American way of life and the unique habits of campus life in particular, it is Miss Cheung's desire that the club will be able to pave the way -- "make things a little smoother" was the way she put it.

She is working with her executive committee to devise a plan whereby the older members of the club will be able to set up a first-stage program that will enable them to work closely with new students to get them over the rough spots.

The program these older members are working on will not be solely confined to campus life, but will work toward moving outside the academic confines -- speaking and meeting with local civic and social groups, taking trips to important cities in nearby states, introducing their culture to Americans so that a better understanding may be gained through the exchange of meetings and holding events which will bring more Americans into contact with the foreign students.

One of the highlights of the year's events -- and there are many planned -- will be a trip to Washington, D.C. over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend through the sponsorship of the Foreign Students' Service Council in the nation's capital.

A key project will be the start of an international newsletter, with the name "International Spice" under consideration, which will carry stories about foreign students' impressions of life in the United States.

So ambitious is the program that the foreign students could well end up not only learning more about the campus and the country than American students, but might even have more fun doing it!

SG Hits Security; Ad Hoc Committee

by Randy Steele

A tint of fear and excitement colored the faces of most of the Student Government representatives as their fellow members relayed stories of exhibitionism and attempted assault last Monday night.

Inter-Dormitory Council President Jim Fiorino spoke of a recent incident involving an exhibitionist and co-ed. He urged the membership to begin to take serious action concerning a student security force, whereby male students would be available as escorts after dark.

Greg Hollis dropped the real bombshells as he told SG of many incidents he had heard of involving not only exhibitionism but also attempted assaults. SG President Mike Barski declared that the situation demanded immediate concern.

The Ad Hoc Committee reported promising successes with the Board of Trustees. SG President Barski, IDC President Fiorino and Commuter Council President Buddy Brezinski were all extremely optimistic about the Board's interest in extending communications with the student body.

The presidential candidate of the Communist Party, Gus Hall, has asked to come to Wilkes on Friday, November 3. There is no charge for the visit and SG President Barski explained that the man is a historical figure.

Also, the debates between students and faculty representing President Richard Nixon and presidential hopeful George McGovern have been moved to the New Men's Lounge on Wednesday, November 1, at 7 p.m. The King's College Debating Team is being asked to moderate.

"There will be sufficient police protection there," added Linaberry and seats will be reserved by sections instead of individually as originally planned.

The by-laws from SG's new constitution were read for the first time. After a long, arduous series of debates, the membership devised a number of changes.

The WCE is making its first contribution to the area by sponsoring 60 pee-wee football champions of Wyoming Valley called the Luzerne Lions. The children are going to be the guests of the College at the Ithaca football game Saturday. They will be served free soda and hot dogs.

Steve Apaluski has been made assistant director of WCE. Future plans of the organization include cleaning up Kirby Park on Saturday, October 28.

The senior class is presenting a film festival of comedy. A matinee will be open to the public, free of charge, Friday, October 29, 2:15 p.m., in the C.P.A.

IDC is sponsoring a halloween party in conjunction with the film matinee. The party is for children and will take place at Casey Park. IDC President Fiorino confidently reported that, "We'll get 'em all sick and everything."

IDC is also sponsoring a pumpkin carving contest for the dorms. Each dorm will be given two pumpkins to carve. There will be judging. One pumpkin from each dorm will be given to children in various trailer parks. When confronted with the unexpectedly high costs of pumpkins (8 to 12 cents per pound), someone suggested that there were other ways of getting them.

The Lehigh University dance marathon netted $1600 for the Eugene S. Farley Library.

Richard Mendelsohn announced that he was resigning as chairman of Project Reach-Out because of his grades and commitments to Commuter Council. He will continue to act as chairman until Reach-Out elects another.

WCLH 90.7 FM Wilkes College Listening Habit

by Bonnie Church

This past summer along with shoveling mud, the staff of WCLH was making extensive plans for its return to the air waves this fall. One idea which is becoming a reality is the expansion of programming into the realm of news. This recently formed staff plans two nightly broadcasts of campus news, local, regional and national news.

The staff will work closely with David DeCosmo, the WCLH station adviser and news director for WILK radio. His guidance in the initial stages of such an undertaking will be most valuable.

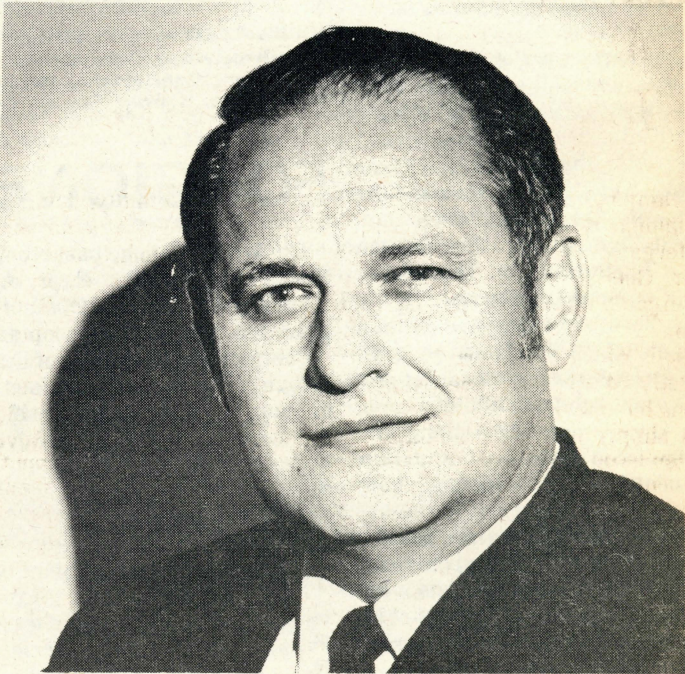

On this past Monday the Manuscript Society made its debut on WCLH. The Society plans a weekly broadcast on Monday evenings at 10. Mike Scholnick recently recited the words of Bob Dylan interspersed with his music and for next week's broadcast, Brent Spencer will do Milton's "Paradise Lost."

In keeping with the station's philosophy to serve not only the college but also the community, the Institute of Regional Affairs plans bi-weekly reports on local and regional happenings. For the first broadcast tonight at 9:30 Director Andrew Shaw and several college students will interview County Commissioner William Crossin.

Future plans include an interview with River Watcher - Nick Souchik on October 26.

In case you weren't able to see "Four for Broadway." WCLH was there to tape the performance. It will be aired at a later date.

Concert and Lecture Series To Feature Jack Anderson

Jack Anderson

One of the most well-known and controversial journalists of our time will speak at the college gymnasium on Monday, October 30 at 8 p.m. Pulitzer prize winner Jack Anderson has proven to be the nation's most well known and talked about columnist following his exposure of the ITT case and the Nixon Administration's stand on the India-Pakistan War.

A muckraker in the true sense of the word, Anderson, whose Washington Merry-Go-Round column is syndicated in 700 newspapers, says his purpose is "To expose and oppose. To be an ambudsman to the oppressed, the minority groups, people who are calling out and not being heard."

And in the 26 years he has been writing for the column (as junior partner until Drew Pearson died three years ago), he has been doing just that. With Pearson, their exposes helped convict three congressmen for kickbacks, led to the resignation of Eisenhower aide Sherman Adams and worked to discredit the late Sen. Thomas J. Dodd for mixing private and public funds.

Since taking over the column upon Pearson's death, he has been struggling to overcome a reputation for inaccuracy and oversimplification that has plagued the column since it began some 35 years ago. And it would seem that he has "arrived." For in January, 1972, Jack Anderson became the most quoted source in Washington after he released secret government documents on the U.S. role in the India-Pakistan war and by asserting that the Nixon Administration "lied" in saying that Washington was neutral in the conflict. Another recent expose which gained him respect in journalistic circles involved the fixing of the Nixon Administration's biggest anti-trust case, with ITT, by Attorney General John Mitchell. The tell-tale evidence was a memo which was supposed to have been destroyed, but inadvertently was not.

Anderson lives on secret documents, and his column thrives on inside reports of high-level discussions, as well as intimate glimpses of public figures in off moments. And all the information goes into his "infernal furnace," as he refers to the eight newspaper columns a week syndicated by Bell-McClure, five 90-second television commentaries for Metramedia, now shown in 16 cities, and a local 15-minute radio show. In addition, he is Washington editor of Parade magazine.

Although he does not hesitate in pointing out the human frailties of the politicians and bureaucrats he opposes, Anderson himself seems beyond reproach. Married and the father of 9 children, he is a strict Mormon, neither drinking nor smoking. He does not travel in Washington social circles, nor attend press conferences, preferring to both work and play at his home, with his family.

Soccermen Tie Scranton; Stevens Defeated

Colonelettes Beat Bloom; Tie Albright

The 1972 Soccer Colonels Squad Slashed

Now At 2-4

by Laraine Mancuso
Donna Donces

Can victory be told by a game's score or is it something more that decides the victor? If it is the score, then Wilkes played Albright to a 1-1 tie. If not, then Wilkes finally beat Albright.

For the past three years, Wilkes has played Albright and has always come out the loser, with some of the losses being shutouts.

This year the game proved different. The Colonelettes scored in the first half and held the Albright line from scoring until late in the second half. Wilkes was in control of play 70 per cent of the time.

Coach Meyers was "extremely pleased with the total aggressiveness of the offensive line" and with the "determination of the backfield to prevent Albright from scoring." Credit was also given to goalie Laraine Mancuso for a well-played game.

The Wilkes goal was scored by Angella Centrella on an assist from Stephanie Pufko.

Seeing varsity action for the first time was Jane Molinini and Vicki Guistivite who filled in for injured Gayle Kinback.

Although the Albright game officially ended in a tie, it raised the spirits of the Colonelettes and psyched them up for their match against Bloomsburg on Thursday.

Bloomsburg Shutout

Winning always gives a team a good feeling, but it gives an even better feeling when you beat a team that a year before annihilated you. Such was the feeling among the Colonelettes on their way home from Bloomsburg after defeating them 2-0.

Although the game started off with Wilkes looking a bit jittery, the team soon grew accustomed to the Bloomsburg tone of play. The forward line looked very aggressive as they rushed the Bloomsburg goal at every opportunity. During the second half of the game the good positioning of the Wilkes defense made it difficult for Bloomsburg to take advantage of its free hits and roll-ons.

Mrs. Meyers feels that her early prediction, that game experience would improve the team, is coming true and looks at this game as an "encouraging victory."

Seeing Varsity action for the first time and showing potential as a line player was sophomore Ellen Schwartz.

The Wilkes goals were scored by center forward Rae Greene on an assist from halfback Sue Ditson and by inner Kathy Haughey.

The win even's out the hockey team's record at 1-1-1 and gives the Wilkes team and goalie Laraine Mancuso their first shutout of the season. Colonelettes home on Thursday with a match against Keystone Junior College. The game will begin at 3:30 p.m.

Come on out and support the team!

FORGIONE—NEW ASSISTANT COACH

The Wilkes College basketball program has been enhanced for the winter campaign with the addition of former Plains High School mentor, Jim Forgione, to the Blue and Gold cage staff.

Forgione, a native of Dunmore, replaces Rich Davis as the Colonel's assistant basketball coach. Davis, a Wilkes graduate and all-time hoop great, will depart the area in the near future to serve a stint in the Army.

Commenting on the loss of Davis, Wilkes head coach Rodger Bearde stated, "We are sorry to see Richie leave the program. He was a tremendous asset respected by the players."

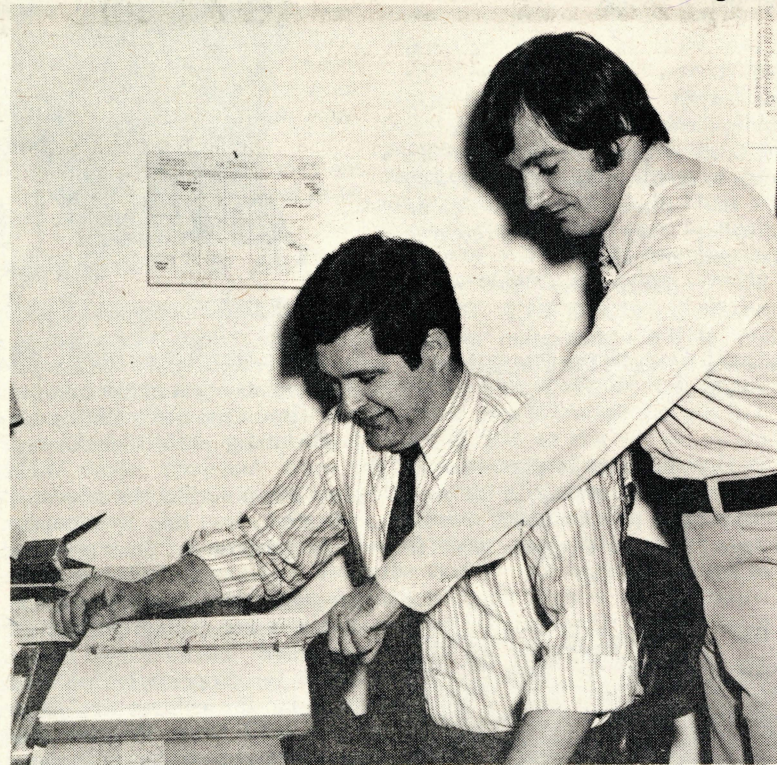

to our winning effort and well Bearde is elated over Forgione's appointment, "Jim is strong on fundamentals and well versed on our style of play. He should be a valuable part of our plans in the years to come."

Forgione is a veteran of football, basketball, baseball wars at Dunmore High School. After graduating from Scranton University in 1965, he assumed coaching duties at Plains High School where he served until that schools merger into Wilkes-Barre Area last year.

His 1971-72 Plains squad captured the District Two Class C championship and advanced all the way to the PIAA Class C Eastern Playoffs before bowing to the eventual state titlist, Mt. Penn.

Colonels Cream Upsala; Set For Ithaca

Check Twins Lead Offense

With the twin brother combination of Andy and Dave Check providing most of the fireworks, the Wilkes College football Colonels spoiled homecoming celebration ceremonies for Upsala College, defeating the Vikings, 14-0.

The crucial Middle Atlantic Conference victory raised the Colonels seasonal log to 3-1. Andy Check scored both of the locals touchdowns.

Dave Check working the defensive halfback position in place of injured Rick Masi, returned a fourth quarter intercepted pass 45 yards to signal the Viking offensive demise. This set up a Wilkes tally.

Senior linebacker, Frank Galicki was extremely destructive for his fourth straight week, gording the Vikings for 12 first hits and six assists, helped on defense by Fred Marianacci, Terry Blaum, Jeff Grandinetti, and Rich Lack.

Marianacci, Grandinetti, and Steve Adamchak came up with the opportune fumble recoveries while junior halfback, Bob McBride, joined Dave Check with a pilfered pass.

The stolen aerials raised the Colonels' seasonal interception count to 11. Twelve fumbles have also found their way back to the Blue and Gold defenders.

Andy Check was the leading rusher of the afternoon, racking up 44 yards on 24 carries. The Central Catholic alumnus now has gained 271 yards this season.

Jeff Giberson completed only two of seven attempts for 23 yards.

Viking quarterback Lou Perpichino, a 6-1, 190-pound center, got his team off to a rousing start as they moved the ball well before fumbling the ball on the Colonel 19. This later proved to be their deepest penetration of the game.

Big break for the Blue and Gold came late in the second stanza when a snapback to Upsala punter George Issaef sailed high over his head, into the endzone. Issaef picked up the loose ball and returned it to the Viking eight before being run out of bounds.

Andy Check reached the four on two short gainers. He added the finishing touches on the next situation, skirting left end for six points with 2:28 left in the quarter.

With time running out, the Vikings were forced to the air and found their dreams of a comeback squelched by Dave Check.

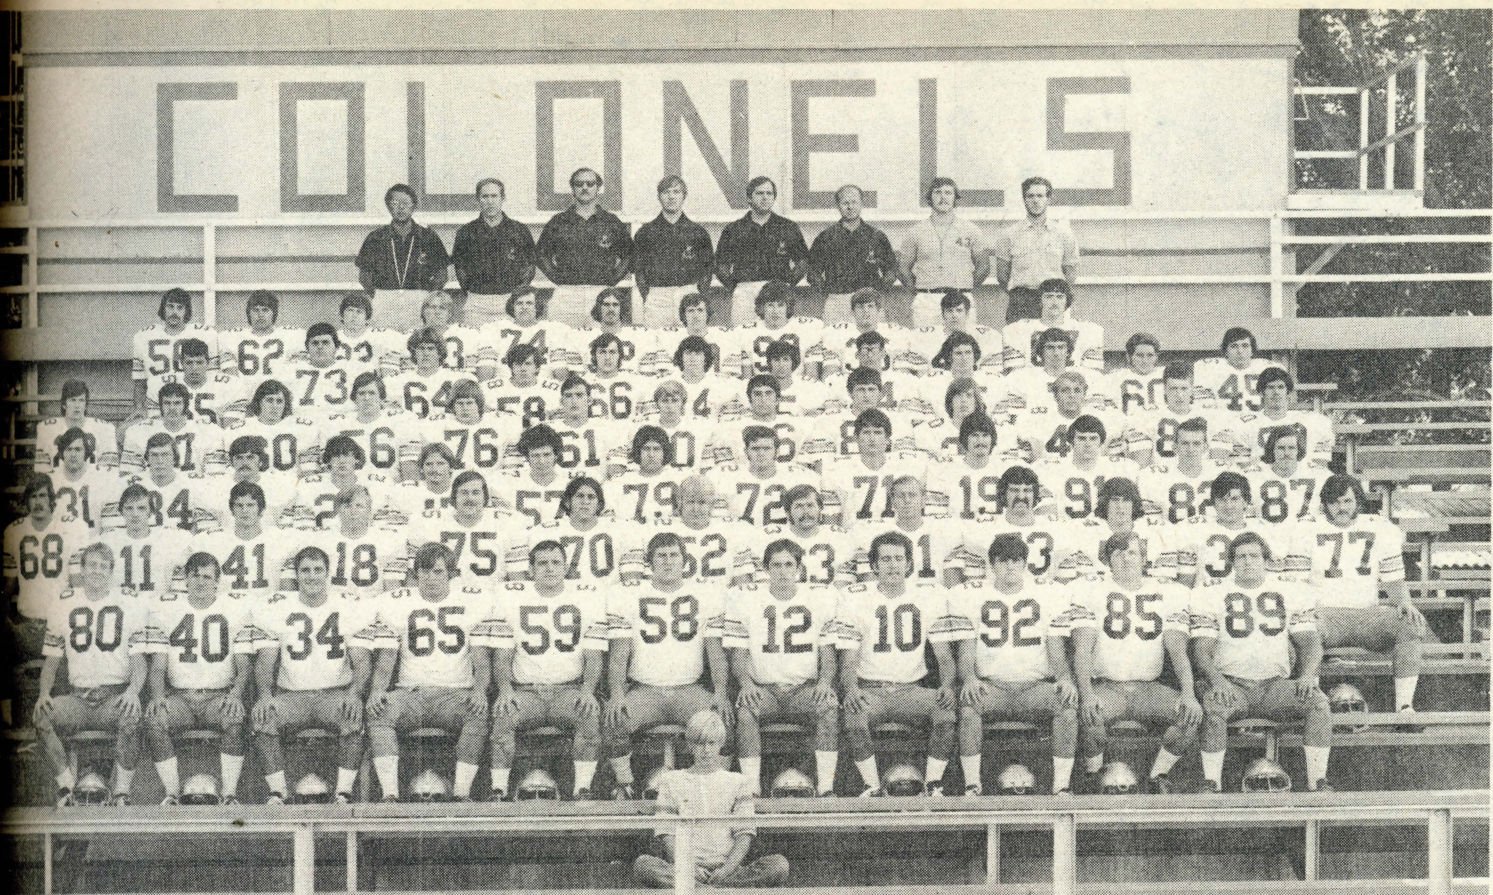

The 5-10, 180-pounder robbed Perrochino near midfield and returned to the Upsala 13-yard line.

Brother Andy took the show from here and culminated the family outing with a nine-yard scamper off left tackle. Terry Blaum's placement with 9:33 left in the game made it 14-0.

The Colonels will be home this Saturday for a big homecoming encounter against Ithaca College. Gametime at Ralston Field is set for 1:30.

By virtue of the victory, Wilkes raised its alltime series edge to 4-2 over Upsala. The Vikings defeated the Colonels, 26-20, on the same field seven years ago. This was later to signal the starting point for their memorable 32-game streak.

SPORTS PRISM

by Steve Jones

That's once. That's twice. That's three times."

of you are familiar with the story about the man and wife riding in a and buggy. After the horse needlessly stops three times with the man and one of the above three statements for each of the respective stops, and the man from the buggy and shoots the horse. When his perturbed wife by his action, he turns and coolly says, "That's once."

Dis has been with Wilkes and the Ithaca Blue Bombers. For three s Jr. tive years the Ithacans have dealt the Colonel gridders absolutely ating blows.

RECENT SCORES

Am 69 Ithaca, at Ithaca, ended the Colonels 32 game win streak - at that longest in the nation. Final score was 13-7. In 1970 the Blue Bombers Stated the Colonel's Homecoming with a come-from-behind 25-21 h. And last year they halted another Wilkes unbeaten streak, 41-28. over Ithaca would not only partially avenge three straight losses ke Homecoming a much sweeter affair, but it would probably boost onels current eighth place ranking in the race for the Lambert a is a stronger team than their 3-2 record indicates. In their first loss, ey set up three West Chester TD's with fumbles deep in their own y. Against Cortland, they led 16-7 entering the final quarter and lost espite winning statistically.

BOMBER ATTACK

Blue Bombers are primarily a rushing team operating out of the ne T formation. Their ace fullback, Mike Welch, last year made a the Colonel defense and he's back, but is being contested his position Remick who set an Ithaca school record by rushing for 236 yards on es against RIT.

Colonel "D" has shutout three of their first four opponents, but should air hands full with the wishbone. Offensively, the Blue and Gold eable to move the ball, but whether or not they can move it enough is question.

eculation now, but the Prism projects pleasant memories for the d one half hours at Ralston Field at Homecoming 1972.

Pigskin Predictions

by Ray McNulty

WILKES VS ITHACA

This game pits the powerful Colonel defense yielding less than seven points per game against a juggernaut Ithaca Bomber offense averaging 21 points per game. The upstate New York aggregation have beaten Wilkes the past three years including last year's 41-28 decision. Look for Galicki and company to provide the visitors with a rude reception. The huge homecoming crowd at Ralston Field will provide the Colonels with plenty of momentum as they upset Ithaca by a 21-14 margin.

KINGS POINT VS C. W. POST

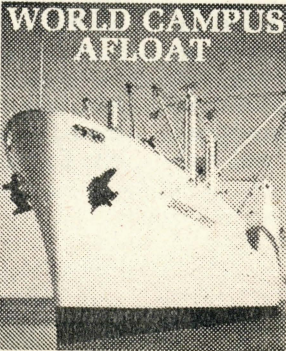

The C.W. Post Pioneers will rely upon 36 returning lettermen including defensive standouts Bob Foster and Tom Quinn. Also prominent will be transfers Bob Pelcher (Arizona State) and Reggie Staughn (Grambling). The offense returns Ron Carmon who rushed for 940 yards last year. Despite three wins, Kings Point has been experiencing difficulties in its offensive line. The Kings Point Mariners were routed by C. W. Post last year by a score of 47-0. This years game will be more respectable but the results will be the same. C.W. Post to win, 34-14.

LEBANON VALLEY VS MORAVIAN

The Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley with 29 returning lettermen will visit the upset-minded Moravian team in a battle at Bethlehem. The home field advantage will be the major factor as Gary Martell and his cohorts get revenge for last years 20-7 loss to Lebanon Valley. Final score will read Moravian 27, Lebanon Valley 14.

SCOREKEEPER WANTED

The Wilkes College Basketball team is in urgent need of a scorekeeper, a statistician and an assistant manager. Anyone interested in these positions may contact Bruce MacIntyre, Room 133 New Men's Dorm or Coach Bearde.

When this 25-year-old researcher wanted to investigate a possible cancer treatment we gave him the go-ahead.

We also gave him the right to fail.

At Kodak, it's not unusual for a 25-year-old like Jim Carroll to win the title of senior research physicist. Like any company involved in a lot of basic research, Kodak has felt the pressure of modern technology and the need for young, fresh thinking. So we hire the best talent we possibly can, and then give them as much responsibility as they can handle. Whatever their age.

We have departments and divisions, like any company. What we don't have are preconceived ideas about how an expert scientist's time should be spent. So when we received a request from the medical community for assistance in experimenting with lasers as a possible cancer treatment, we turned to 25-year-old Jim Carroll, who is deep in laser technology, and gave him the go-ahead. He built two half-billion watt laser systems, one of which Kodak has donated to the National Institute of Health.

The lasers proved unsuccessful in treating cancer, but we'd make the same decision all over again. We entered laser technology because we have a stake in business. We let a young researcher help the medical community look for a means of cancer treatment because we have a stake in the future of mankind.

To put it another way, we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own needs, we have often furthered society's. After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

Kodak
More than a business.
