Keystone Five Last Bison Opponent Sport Dance Set For Saturday Night

St. Stephen's Auditorium Site of Cage Sport Dance; Bucknell Orchestra To Play

The student body of Bucknell Junior College will enjoy the second sport dance of the semester tomorrow night at 8:30 in St. Stephen's Church House, when it will dance to the rhythmic tempo of the Bucknellians, directed by Reese Pelton.

The first sport dance of the semester was held last Saturday night in St. Stephen's auditorium following the close of the wrestling season, which saw Bucknell defeat its city rival, King's College. The huge crowd which attended the affair following the sports event was well pleased and many people expressed the desire to attend another sport dance soon. The Bucknell Student Council, headed by John Riley, decided at the last meeting that a sport dance could be held tomorrow night to commemorate the close of the junior college basketball season.

The evening has been well planned for the students of this institution by the committee appointed by the Student Council president. Joe Savitz, one of the key men on this year's cage team, was named chairman of the entire evening's entertainment. According to Savitz, the student body will attend the basketball game between Keystone College and Bucknell during the early part of the evening. Following the contest the students and their friends are invited to attend the sport dance.

Members of the committee, under Savitz, have been working for the past week in order to make this dance one of the most gay and colorful ever sponsored by this institution. During the course of the evening the orchestra has arranged to have several specialty numbers, which will feature the vocalists of the Bucknellian band. Refreshments will be served during the course of the evening.

It is expected that the affair tomorrow night will see one of the largest crowds ever to attend a sport dance sponsored by Bucknell Junior College.

Members of the Student Council have informed the Beacon staff that this year's social calendar will be highlighted by some of the best activities ever to be presented at this institution. Plans are underway to sponsor several big all-school dances before the semester closes as well as to revive the cabaret dance, which was one of the biggest hits with the students of past semesters. Another plan, which is still in the tentative stage, is the running of a Sadie Hawkins Week. The entire week will see the male students of the college under the power of the supposedly weaker sex. Climaxing the week's events will be a Sadie Hawkins' Day dance.

N. Y. PAPER ASKS STUDENTS TO PICK TEAM

The New York Herald Tribune is issuing an invitation to all college students who know their basketball to participate in the selection of the players for the East-West All-Star basketball game to be played at Madison Square Garden on March 29. The game is held for the benefit of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund. The 1946 East-West contest made it possible for over 1,000 children from New York's tenements to be sent to the country last summer.

Each college student is eligible to submit his or her choice of the ten best college players in their section — East or West. Only one of the ten nominations may be made from the student's own campus; nine must be from other schools. All ten must be from one section — East or West. The individual ballots are to be sent to the Sports Department, East-West Game, New York Herald Tribune, 230 West 41st Street, New York 18, N. Y.

The names of the ten players should be typewritten or printed with the school of the player following his name. The student must sign the entry and list the college he is attending, including in addition his personal address. All entries must be postmarked by March 18. Final selection of the two teams will be made by the Sports Staff of the New York Herald Tribune on the basis of a player's record — combined with the preferences of the student basketball fans from the East and West.

JACK "Chippy" JOSEPHS

Jack "Chippy" Josephs, former Meyers High School and Eighth Airforce All-Star fullback, was recently elected to head the newly organized Bucknell Junior College Monogram Club.

Spanish Fiesta Set For Friday Night March 14

Plans are rapidly being completed for the Spanish Fiesta to be held Friday, March 14, at the Irem Temple Country Club. Music will be furnished by Lee Vincent and his orchestra, which is known through this part of the country for their fine musical entertainment.

Miss Martha Siseth, head of the Spanish Department and advisor of the Spanish Club, has announced that plans are just about completed for the first big social affair to be sponsored by that organization.

The main attraction of the Spanish Club's semi-formal dance will be the musical entertainment. Lee Vincent and his orchestra have recently been acclaimed one of the top bands in the nation. Downbeat, the magazine of the music world, gave considerable space in one of its recent issues to the praising of the local musician and his group.

Members of the dance committee have arranged to have several specialty numbers done in Spanish fashion during the course of the evening. Allen Bloomberg, known through Wyoming Valley for his piano playing, is in charge of arranging for several of the acts to be featured next Friday night, and he has promised to provide the students and their friends with some of the best entertainment ever presented at an affair sponsored by the junior college.

Bucknell Cagers Close Season With Keystone Five At City Y. M. C. A.

By TOM MORAN

The curtain will close on Bucknell University Junior College's 1946-47 basketball season tomorrow night at the city YMCA, when this institution's quintet, coached by George Ralston, will play host to a classy Keystone College court club.

The junior college five will be trying to take its seventh win in 19 starts when it runs up against the Lackawanna County courtmen. The last time the two college teams met, which was on January 31, at Keystone, this institution's cagers almost upset the proverbial applecart for the upper state quintet, but a last quarter rally enabled the Keystone club to take the contest by a 55 to 51 count.

Keystone Favored

While the Keystone squad will be the favored club on the boards tomorrow night because of its win over Bucknell in the previous meeting of these two clubs, the Bucknell five will be out to end the season with a win. From all indications, and taking into consideration the showing the club has made during the last few contests, the Ralstonmen will give the upper-state club plenty of trouble.

It's rather difficult to put the finger on the reason for the sudden improvement in the junior college cage squad, but there definitely is new life in the club. Only about two members of the team that started the season are still playing first-string ball, while the remainder of the club is composed of men who started the season parked on the bench. Joe Savitz, who really began dropping the sphere through the cords in the first King's College-Bucknell contest, has become a permanent member of the starting five. Danny Gilroy, who was virtually a scoring machine under cover, has also been firmly embedded on the starting squad, and has proven by his recent scoring feats that he can be a powerful factor in determining which end of the score the junior college is going to own. The last of the recently added scoring triplets is Joe Harvey, former Nanticoke High grizzer and cage star, who has been dropping the pill through the hoops quite frequently of late. Harvey was not an active member of the squad during the early part of the season, but since joining the club has added considerably to the junior college scoring power.

The two regular members of the squad who have been seeing plenty of action since the season started are Bill Johns, former GAR cager, and Joe Swartwood, es-

Ashley High performer. Both men have been playing excellent ball and are among the top scorers of the club.

I. R. C. Plans Meeting Tuesday

The International Relations Club will meet Tuesday at 3 p. m. in Chase Hall Lounge. The main part of the meeting will consist of an informal discussion. The topic of discussion being "Should the I. R. C. Be Used As a Means of Propaganda?" From evidence of past discussions all who attended can be assured of an interesting and enlightening hour of informal discussion.

There are several openings for the delegation which will attend the regional conference of the Intercollegiate Conference On Government to be held at Marywood College, Scranton, on April 18. Any person interested in model legislature should contact Mr. Mailey for the details concerning this delegation.

The Intercollegiate Conference On Government originated in 1933 at the University of Pittsburgh and began to sponsor annual meetings at Pennsylvania colleges and universities the following year. Each meeting is in the form of a model governmental body, this year's and every odd numbered year's being in the form of a unicameral legislature. Bills are proposed and voted upon as in a real legislative session. Each school represented has a number of votes according to its size.

BEACON STAFF MEETS TODAY

Members of the Beacon Staff are requested to attend a meeting this afternoon at 4 in the Beacon office. Members will receive assignments for the regular issue of the newspaper, which will appear next Friday.

Members of the Photographic, Typing, and Business Departments must attend this meeting.

J. C. Sports Program Grows

Only a few semesters ago Bucknell Junior College's sports activities consisted of basketball and an intra-mural sports program, which never did include every member of the student body. Today, the junior college has a better sports program than most colleges in this section of the country.

The basketball team provided a foundation upon which today's sports program could be built. The second team to enter the junior college sports agenda was baseball, added to the list a year ago. Next came the announcement that football would be sponsored by the school in the fall. Soon afterwards, wrestling was on the list of active sports. Now, as things stand, a tennis team will represent Bucknell in the collegiate sports world starting April 19.

Before too long this institution may go one step further in the sports world and bring the girls into the sporting spotlight. Many of the colleges throughout the country at the present time have girl's basketball, field hockey, and swimming teams. Although no definite statement has been made there is reason to believe that the tennis team will be open to women players.

SPIRIT IMPORTANT

Ever since we can remember we have been hearing about college spirit. It was always the proper thing to say at a crucial moment when a fan came up with, "Let's give 'em the old college fight." Believe it or not, this spirit, although sometimes the butt of many jokes, is really important. There is hardly an affair, either socially or athletically, that could be the least bit successful if the spirit was not driving the people involved.

During the war years, when this institution had an enrollment of approximately 300 students, there was little in the way of college spirit. This, however, could be expected, because people had a war on their minds. What is the excuse today? The recent basketball and wrestling contests were not the best example of college spirit. Perhaps, it is because the average college student is more matured today than the college lads of old, who thought nothing of wearing a heavy fur coat, a silly dinky, and waving a school banner when dear old Siwash was playing its collegiate rival.

Since the increased enrollment at this institution, there has been a noticeable rise in the amount of college spirit displayed by the members of the school, but it is still not up to what it should be. There's really nothing wrong with yelling your head off when the occasion calls for such action. Many of the students think nothing of paying a dollar and a half to see a baseball team play and feel as though they have not received the most for their money if they don't come home hoarse. Here at Bucknell the student is admitted to athletic contests free of charge and the only thing the student fans say all evening is something like, "Gosh, it's hot in here. I wonder how much longer this thing can last?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Letter to the Editor

Dear Ed,
I have often enjoyed the fine satire written by Mr. Feelzwell which is very prudent in its philosophy, and I crave more of this material. Not for humor's sake, but for the Truth which is inherent therein. May I add a little note to his latest remark pertaining to the carelessness of our manners about the campus grounds. People are greeted in a very poor manner about the campus and the class. This merely reflects upon the students' poor breeding which was developed in the home and surrounding community. Respect has been tossed to the winds. The girls at our school are many times treated as mathematical equals, that is like "dogs". Disrespect has been prevalent in our school entirely too long. A re-examination of social values is urgently needed within many student members. This reflection may also be shown in the young ladies' manners. Some of them are sloppy, and the use of good language is sadly lacking. Modesty, poise, and dignity has also been cast aside. It is about time this institution developed something besides book-worms, crystal gazers, and nightclub specialists. We need more young ladies and respectful gentlemen.

William Tomusko

Dear Ed,

In reference to the splendid Thespian production of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", I was amazed at the ignorance of the student audience, who constantly laughed or giggled when an actor had to give his or her best in a profound dramatic moment which requires a tremendous emotional strain. The actors were besieged and distracted by witty retorts which probably satisfied the facetious jokers and mimics in the forward part of the audience. I know the majority of the people appreciated the fine acting combined with the sincerity and zest which the members of the cast candidly presented. But the difficulties they encountered from a part of the audience and the dignified manner in which the play continued is a tribute to patience, diligent work, and the tremendous sacrifice of time which they so eagerly expended towards the play's success. My hat is off to excellent Thespian organization of which the school can acknowledge with pride.

William Tomusko

Dear Ed,

The schedule of classes for this semester is, as many students have said, "in a mess". Considering the enormous job confronting the registrar and his staff, this is to be expected and cannot be helped. But as one looks around, he begins to wonder if the school is being run for accommodation or education. At the end of the term the school officials say they have accommodated 200 more students, but has the education of any of the 1200 students been effected? The answer to this question involves a serious problem deserving serious consideration. Perhaps the future of America depends on it!

BISON GRAPPLERS CLOSE
MAT SEASON WITH WINDEFEAT BUCKNELL UNIVERSITY VARSITY
GRAPPLERS, 19 TO 11

By HANK ANDERSON

Bucknell J. C. wrestling team finished its first season with an impressive 19 to 11 victory over the Bucknell University varsity matmen at the YMCA last Saturday night, to make it two wins in five starts for the institution's first year at the mat sport.

The wrestlers met some stiff competition in their initial season. This is evident by the large scores made by the junior college mat opponents during the first three meets, which the local grapplers lost to Cornell, Franklin and Marshall, and Princeton, before taking their first victory over King's College grapplers. After the first three losses the junior college wrestlers were shifted down to lower weight divisions and with the experience they picked up during the early part of the season, the club began to shape up.

Sparked by Vince Cavanaugh, former Forty Fort High School grappler, who had contributed the only team points during the first three meets, the junior college grapplers began to rack up victories when it met King's College. During the final two meets the team did some fine wrestling. The inexperience which had previously held the squad back was no longer a handicap.

Cavanaugh, who compiled four victories in five starts, was Bucknell's outstanding matman. Captain Jim Farrell, also an ex-Forty Fort matman, and Steve Wolff, former Seminary grappler, gave good accounts of themselves. Walt Hendershot, who had no experience at the grappling game before coming to this institution, proved in his last two matches that he has a genuine talent for the sport.

Coach Cromwell Thomas did an excellent job of training his wrestlers. With most of the present material returning next year he will likely produce one of the best grappling squads in the East.

CROMWELL THOMAS

Cromwell Thomas finished his first year as coach of Bucknell Junior College's first wrestling team, when his aggregation topped the Bucknell University varsity grappling team, 19 to 11, Saturday night at the Wilkes-Barre YMCA.

J. C. TENNIS TEAM OPENS
AWAY APRIL 19

Adding another sport to its athletic program, Bucknell Junior College Athletic Department, headed by George Ralston, this week announced the schedule for the first tennis team to represent this college.

The six-game schedule, which will include three home contests to be played in Kirby Park, lists some of the top-notch tennis schools of the east. The first contest for the junior college squad will be April 19, with Lehigh Frosh as the opponent, with the engagement scheduled to be played at Lehigh. On April 26, the junior college club will travel to Susquehanna University, where it will engage that institution's varsity courtmen. May 3 will see the college's tennis players battle it out with Cornell junior varsity. On May 10 the junior college team will play its last out of town engagement when it will be the guest of Princeton University.

The local tennis fans will get their first chance to see the Bucknell team in action on May 16, when this institution's courtmen will play host to Syracuse University. On May 24 Cornell Junior Varsity will be the attraction here. Tentative matches have been arranged with Wyoming Seminary and Keystone College, although no definite date has been set for the engagements.

Inasmuch as a team will not be picked until a week or two before match play begins, likely prospects are urged now to avail themselves of the YMCA to condition themselves. Several candidates have already begun practice in the handball courts. Regular workouts against a practice board cannot be overemphasized. The continual stroking of practice shots will help more than anything else, to bridge the gap between autumn and spring layoffs. The schedule suggests hard, tough competition, the kind that will demand the best from every player. A month of gradual training will help immeasurably.

Thespians Hold Tryouts For Three New Productions

Tryouts for the three Shakespearian plays to be present at this college soon reached a climax Wednesday night, when a total of 80 students signed as prospective actors or members of the many crews of the productions which will be presented sometime in the spring.

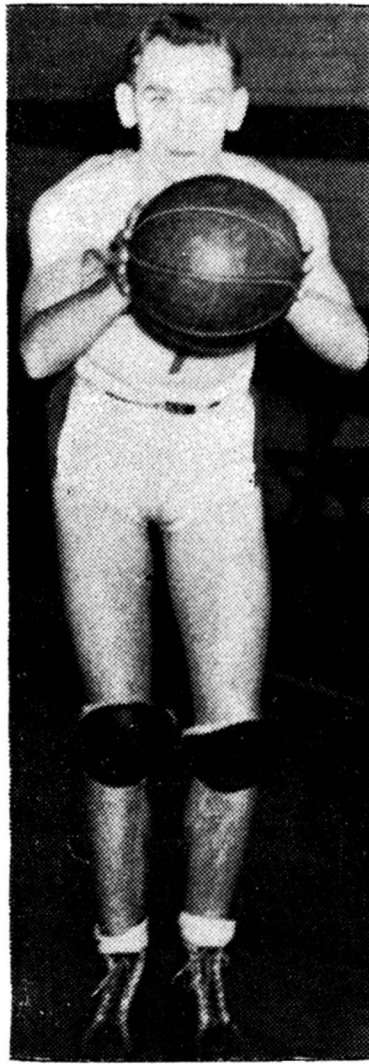

First rehearsals for the plays, which will be presented alternately, will begin Monday, March 10, under the leadership of Miss Blandina Foster.

It is the sincere hope of all concerned that "Macbeth," "Twelfth Night," and "The Taming of the Shrew" will be received with as much zeal as was "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Anyone interested in working on crews is requested to report to the campus theater Monday or Tuesday night.

J. C. CAGERS SET FOR KEYSTONE

Bill Zukausk and Joe Swartwood, two of George Ralston's key courtmen, will see plenty of action in tomorrow night's contest.

Both cagers have had plenty of former experience in the basketball world and have contributed considerably to the victories in the junior college score book this year.

FASHION HIGHLIGHTS

WOMEN

Fashions have changed considerably in the past two or three years, on campus as well as in other walks of life. At Bucknell the change has not been too noticeable, but the girls go "all-out" for the newest styles in clothes and hair-do's.

Those good-looking suits with the long jackets, bustle effect, attractive buttons, and straight skirts have made their appearance and are becoming more numerous all the time.

White or colored blouses with ribbon ties give the wearer that certain schoolmarm look and constitute an ideal outfit for school.

Tidiness is one of the main factors of our modern dress, exemplified by sweaters tucked in skirts; wide belts around waists; skirts longer and more tailored; blouses with full, long sleeves and lots of embroidery.

The girls are decidedly getting away from bobby sox. Attractive, low-heeled black or brown shoes are coming to the front, and a welcome sight they are. We think the men will agree with that.

Hair styles change little except to become more extreme. Upsweeps adorn a few heads, George Washington hair-do's (hair brought back and tied at the nape of the neck with a colorful bow) some others, feather cuts are losing out, we're sorry to say, and long hair-do's prevail.

As for the remainder of women's fashions, they are concerned mainly with jewelry and accessories too numerous to mention here.

MEN

If we were to choose an ideal outfit for the Bucknellian, we'd choose:

Art Smulowitz's light grey pin stripe suit with the single-breasted jacket.

The perfect shirt would be that yellow one of Bob Morris's. It, too, has a pin stripe.

The tie is Robert Dido's. It is navy blue, with large gold flowers scattered every-which-way.

On top of all this we'd put Bill Jones' navy coat and the bright yellow scarf he wears with it.

For shoes there are Ray William's dressy brown oxfords.

Then if we wanted to add one last, loving touch, we'd borrow George Carpenter's hat — the one that he always forgets to take with him.

And if he wore glasses, those of Bob Talarsky would be our number one choice.

Monogram Club Holds Meeting

Bucknell University Junior College Monogram Club held its monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon in Kirby Hall. Jack Josephs, who was recently elected to the office of president, was in charge of the meeting.

The group discussed plans for obtaining sweaters for the members of the organization. The recently written constitution for the club was reviewed by the members and several changes were suggested. Bob Gorgas and Bob Waters, members of last year's junior college football team, were in charge of reviewing the new constitution.

Before another week has passed the athletic minded at Bucknell University Junior College will be swapping their basketballs and wrestling mats for tennis racquets and baseball bats. The cage team will add the "30" mark to its official season tomorrow night when it meets Keystone College at 8 in the city YMCA. The wrestling team has already tacked up the "closed for the season" sign.

Without a doubt the junior college will be much stronger in these two winter sports next season. Here's hoping that Coaches George Ralston and Cromwell Thomas are back in the driver's seat again next season.

Several members of the student body have expressed interest in the tennis team, which this institution will sponsor this spring. The first match is scheduled for April 19 with Lehigh Freshmen as the opponent. Daily work-outs for the candidates of the new team are held in the handball courts at the YMCA.

Another notch in the junior college's belt of sports activities.

King's College's unbeaten basketball team will get its first real test of the season when it runs up against Teddy Casey's powerful Mansfield STC five Wednesday night, March 12, at the West Side Armory. Tickets for this affair may be procured from Jim Nolan, editor of the King's Crown.

BEACONETTES—A call should be issued within the next two weeks for candidates for catcher and pitcher positions on this year's junior college nine. The big problem is the weather and in-door accommodations for the men to hold practice.....Leo Castle, one of the key-men on the Seminary grid team last year, will enroll in this school in the near future, if he hasn't already done so.....Rumor has it that several of the other members of the 1946 Sem grid machine will also have their address changed to this institution before it comes time for the junior college to hold grid practice.....Sammy Elias, ex-Meyers High cage and grid performer, is enrolled in Bucknell Junior College and will be a big asset to the school in its athletic program next year.....Sammy was a member of the 1943 Wyoming Valley Conference Championship Football team and later served in the Army Air Corps.....Although final arrangements have not as yet been made, there is a good chance that the King's College-Bucknell football contest next season will be played the Saturday after Thanksgiving as the curtain closer in Wyoming Valley grid competition. Without a doubt, it would be one of the best finales that this region has ever witnessed.

Bob Gorgas and Bob Waters, both members of last year's football team, have been named to the executive positions of the newly organized Bucknell Junior College Lettermen's Club.....Word from Lafayette informs me that Ivy Williamson, former assistant grid coach at Yale University, has been named Head Football Coach at that institution. One of the key men on his team will be Jack Feeney, former all-scholastic end in 1944 from Kinston High School.....Members of the junior college Lettermen's Club will vote on accepting a new constitution sometime next week.... The Wyoming Valley Sports Journal, edited by Jim Mayock, former Wilkes-Barre Record Sports Editor, offers a full column of local collegiate sports, as well as coverage on special sports events of both King's and Bucknell Junior College.....

Pictured above is the 1946-47 Bucknell Junior College basketball team, which will see action against a reportedly powerful Keystone College team. The contest to-tomorrow night will be the last on the junior college cage schedule. On March 15 the team will play its first game in the Pennsylvania Junior College Athletic Association's basketball tourney to be held at Hazleton.

PRO - WRESTLING DIFFERS FROM AMATEUR MAT SPORT

AMATEURS ON THE LEVEL; PROS GIVE FANS THRILL

By JOE SULLIVAN

There is a vast difference between professional and amateur wrestling. The superior dexterity of the professional grappler is no longer the primary factor in distinguishing him from the amateur. The pro wrestler puts on a colorful spectacle for the amusement of the onlookers, whereas the amateur earnestly battles his rival in true competitive sportsmanship.

There has been a decided trend by the pros to please the cash customers by a splendid array of physical stunts, frequently planned in advance. The promoter, realizing the public demand for showmanship, arranges schedules whereby wrestlers are periodically rematched. The verbal agreement between the contestants and the promoter calls for alternate victories by the so-called rivals. The box office receipts best prove the popularity of matches of this type.

Philadelphia's Convention Hall has recently been the scene of such demonstrations. The fans turn out to witness performances staged with such artistic fervor as might be seen in the old-time vaudeville shows. Thousands are attracted to mat contests for the same reason that multitudes attend baseball games when the veteran showman, Boobo Newsom, is slated to pitch.

It is not unusual for ringside customers to be greeted suddenly by a supposedly baffled wrestler. As part of the act, one of the performers is hoisted in the air and thrown from the square circle. In such a case the burly grappler usually leaps to the apron of the ring and, in a vain attempt to enter the ring, plunges into the ropes and rebounds into the lap of some hysterical fan.

The referee for such matches is usually a well-known sports personality. Perhaps the most famous wrestling referee today is "Two-Ton Tony" Galentto. Tony recently received advance billing as the guest referee of the main attraction at Convention Hall in the Quaker City. Thousands of patrons, who otherwise would not be present, were on hand to greet the former pugilist who succeeded in hammering Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis to the canvas.

Thousands of enthusiastic sports admirers assembled in the smoky arena to watch Tony and the two well-publicized grapplers go through their paces. The huge throng clamored anxiously as the ex-prize fighter made his appearance. The stocky referee then motioned for the two huge men to start the fireworks — and the battle was on.

The two headliners proceeded to stage their exhibition. Suddenly there was a momentous din in the packed arena as the referee and one of the wrestlers launched a free-swinging boxing match. The giant grappler, who was apparently dissatisfied with Tony's decisions, rushed him against the ropes. The squat referee managed to shake himself from the clutches of his pursuer. After being slammed about for several minutes, Galento caught his opponent with a right uppercut to the chin. The boxing attraction ended as suddenly as it had begun. However, the mat contest was resumed after the fallen wrestler was revived.

The sports public, as well as the general public, desire showmanship — but to only a certain extent. The average fan gets a big "kick" out of watching pro matmen stage fake contests because actually nothing is at stake. But let the amateur, who is battling for individual fame or for the honor of his school, sell himself to his opponent — that's a different story. The ire of the sports world is aroused and things begin to happen. The recent football scandal clearly proves this point.

Swartwood, Johns Lead Cage Scorers

Joe Swartwood and Bill Johns lead the junior college cage team in scoring so far this season. Swartwood is in top place with 179 points as a result of 70 field goals and 39 foul shoots completed in 18 games. Johns is trailing in second place with 147 points after sinking 57 field goals and 33 foul shots during 18 contests.

SPANISH CLUB CUBA TRIP SET

Under the sponsorship of the Pan American Airways, about 40 students of Bucknell Junior College will spend a week's vacation in Havana, Cuba, April 3-10.

They will live in the Royal Palms Hotel during their stay, and will entertain in many different ways by the Havana Chamber of Commerce. The students will be the guests of the University of Havana and thus will be able to promote Pan American relations. They will tour various parts of Cuba and will see the cock-fights and sugar plantations (for a slight fee you might obtain five pounds). But most important of all, these Bucknellian ambassadors will be in Cuba for the spring fiesta and thus can expect top-notch hospitality from their Latin-American neighbors.

Polish Club Plans Formal Dance May 3

An announcement made last week by Peter Kopko, president of the Bucknell University Junior College Polish Club, stated that that organization would sponsor an all-school semi-formal dance in the Crystal Ballroom of the Hotel Sterling on May 3.

Although final arrangements have not as yet been made it is believed that this first affair of the Polish Club will be one of the most delightful held during the Winter semester.

The next issue of the Beacon will carry full details of the affair as well as names of the committees in charge of arranging for the dance.
