DEDICATION

In the spring of 1936 Eleanor Farley came to Wyoming Valley. In her less than thirty years here she managed the extraordinary. The impression she made on her community will never be forgotten.

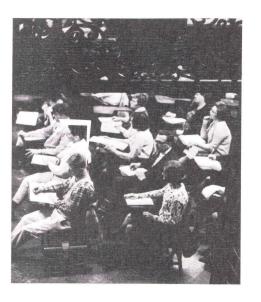

Endowed with a rare gift of creativity, she approached it as she approached life, fully and sincerely. She was recognized as a skilled musician and poet. The sensitivity that equipped her to deal with the rigors and splendors of music and poetry likewise enabled her to partake completely in the symphony of life, its problems and troubles, its pleasures and joys. It allowed her a special privilege: to hear and to feel that "quiet stir of life that carries on in silent strength." She was a woman who sensed the ambivalence of life, in herself and in others, and who was sensitive to its pits and its peaks. To hear a close friend speak of Eleanor Farley, or to read her poetry, is to meet an understanding friend, an individual who felt and thought deeply and acted sincerely.

We knew Eleanor Farley best as she was connected with the College, as she lived with it from its beginning to its present state, as she watched it grow and grew with it. She is an integral part of the complex we call Wilkes, and the Alma Mater which she wrote is a symbol of all that she has given to the College. To all of us, whether we met her or not, she was present. Her presence may have been as indefinable as a feeling of confidence, of assurance, or of belonging. Those who were fortunate enough to have met her on their way to and from classes will remember her smile. And those who have had the pleasure of speaking with her will remember the easy, natural charm of her gentle tones.

We can no longer meet her on the walks, but, "as nothing's ever ended, done," to all with whom she came in contact Eleanor Farley will remain, in an understanding look, a warm smile, a softly-spoken word. To the students and to the College she will remain forever as the brightest facet of our tradition, the tradition of Wilkes College that she did so much to form.

FOREWORD

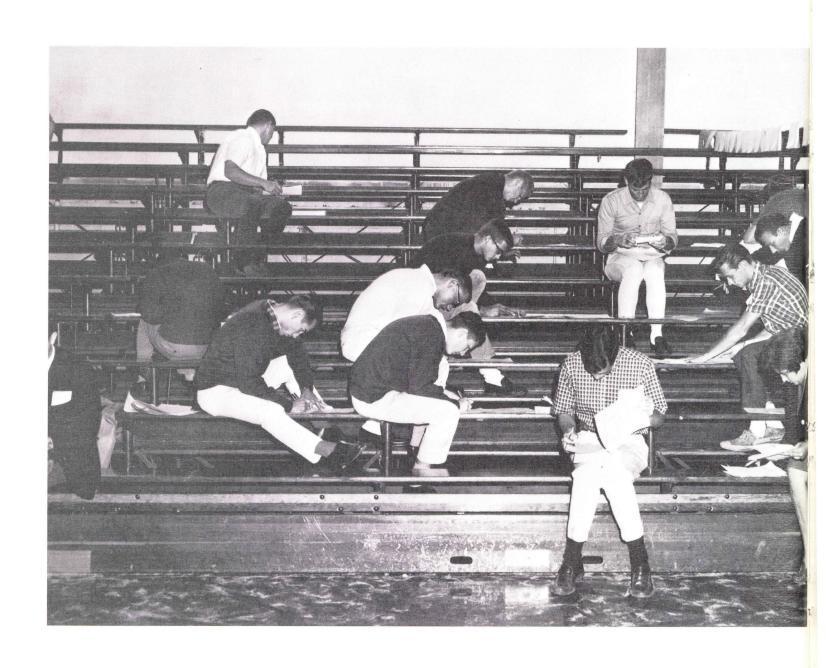

In the following pages, in pictures and words, the Amnicola for 1966 has tried to capture and relate the aura of the future, its promise, its demands, its vital attraction. It is our wish that we will kindle in all an awareness of the necessity of hope and action and the danger of despair and stagnation.

Our keynote is the portal. To all of us, this theme has special significance. In our years at Wilkes we have opened many doors and found behind them emotional, intellectual, and spiritual rewards. And now we are about to open the biggest door, the door that will give us entrance to a new world. We are going to face a challenge, one we must fully comprehend before we can meet it. The world we are entering is different from any we have ever known, one that demands, above all, conviction and adaptability. This world is unique and to become a productive unit in it will require a unique mentality. It will require the mentality whose first desire is progress, not security, the mentality that has the strength and intelligence to recognize that the present is only a path to the future.

We must be ready now to close some doors behind us and to open new ones. And we must have the will and wisdom to continue this process throughout. Our years at Wilkes have bred in us all the qualities that will enable us to approach a closed door and see not frustration but hope. It is this hope, always before us, this desire for something new, something beyond our past achievements, that will inspire us to produce those things, whatever they may be for each of us, that constitute a full, worthwhile life.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO THE CLASS OF 1966

Someone has said that "the only man to envy is he who has lost himself in a cause that is greater than he is."

In this day when "exploration of space" emphasizes our passing from the known experiences of the past into the unknown experiences of the future, we need to become involved in such a cause. We may be guided by ideals; we may be motivated by conviction; we may be sustained by faith, but we require involvement in "a cause that is greater than self." A wise involvement in such a cause gives substance to our ideals and convictions and develops integrity and stability within us.

If we are to attain some measure of serenity and happiness in the midst of revolutionary developments, cultural exchange, and the loss of accepted customs, we need the stabilizing influence that comes from involvement in a cause that is greater than any of us. May each of us recognize, however, that our involvement will require continuing examination and evaluation, for without such questioning we may give blind adherence to an unworthy cause. The Nazis did.

The need of our time is for men of vision, of conviction, and of enlightenment. It is my hope that your years at Wilkes may have prepared you for constructive involvement in the great issues of our times.

Warmest wishes to you!

The Rhythm of Time

You must build a firm foundation Within you, a State, a Nation, Not let Hope be your constructor, Expect Time to change the structure.

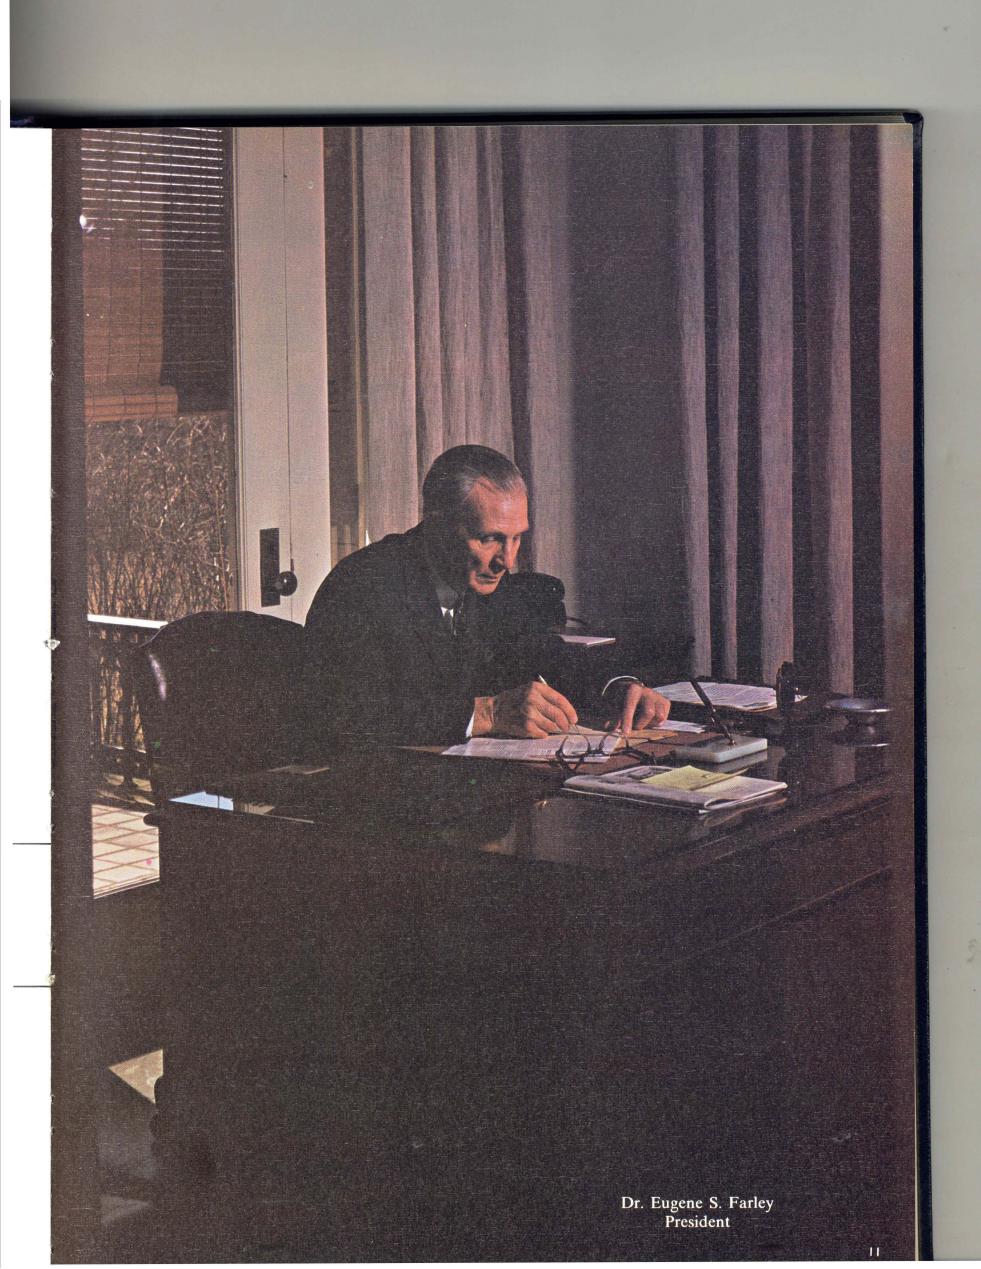

You should be a careful workman, If you wish to get fine work done, Giving strength where strength is needed Hearing words before unheeded.

Time can only work by using Strengths or faults you've been excusing, The foundations you have charted, Or the building you have started.

Time moves on with steady rhythm, Causing firmness or indecision, Moving on in strength or weakness Magnifying each uniqueness.

LIBRARY

Kirby Hall's 72,700 volumes have been slowly creeping up the walls, around the window sills, up over the banisters, and under the busts of Shakespeare, Dante, and Pope. As the student struggles about the stacked corners and middles-of-therooms, he longs for a quiet desk in an airy windowed room, no forty watt bulb hanging over his squinting brain. Thus the plans for the new two million dollar library to be completed by December, 1967.

In order to meet the requirements of all areas of study contained within the boundaries of this institution, the administration has called upon faculty representatives for the various departments to plan and discuss the specifications of the new library. The group acts as a laison between the faculty and the administration, whose aim is to satisfy the College's needs for its students.

The College's students who have become representative of its fullness and depth of spirit and academic qualities receive national recognition in the annual publication of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. These men and women symbolize the college's activity and well-being and its ability to achieve.

These are singular students who use their free hours to strengthen the College's purpose and to perpetrate its meaning. By entwining the academic and the extracurricular, these students serve to enrich these four years for the student body. From their leadership other students learn.

EVENTS

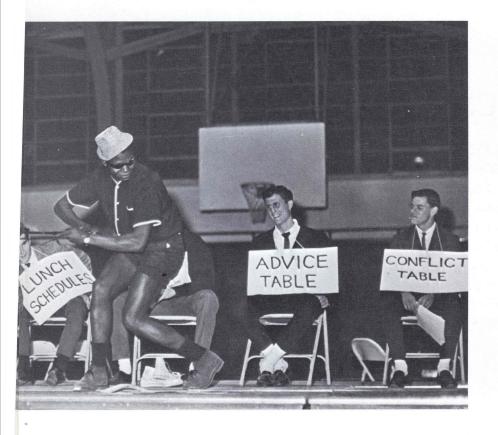

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

Skit Nite, Hell Nite, and Tribunal are devices used to "break-in" the new Freshmen. Under the guidance of the upperclassmen, the new Frosh are oriented to the nature and pleasure of Wilkes College and its student body. The shy are exposed and the extroverted are reckoned with and, most important of all, everyone gets to meet everyone else.

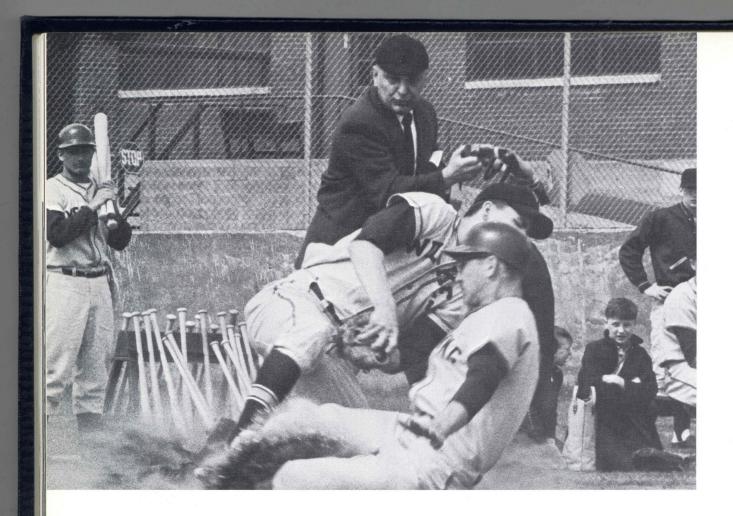

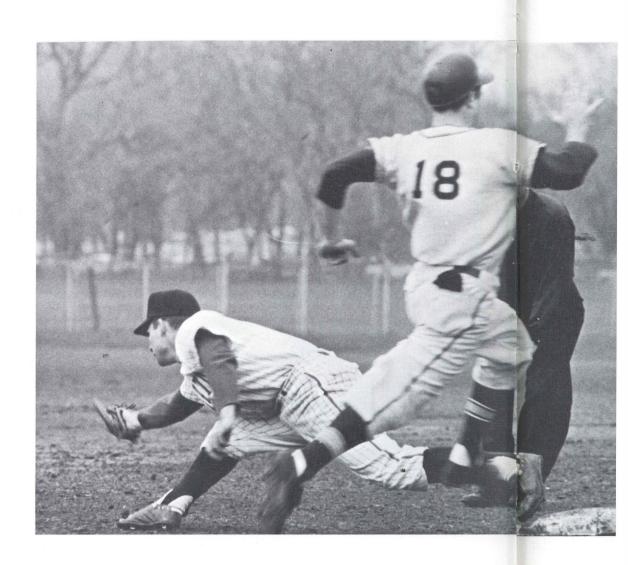

THE FOUR FRESHMEN IN CONCERT

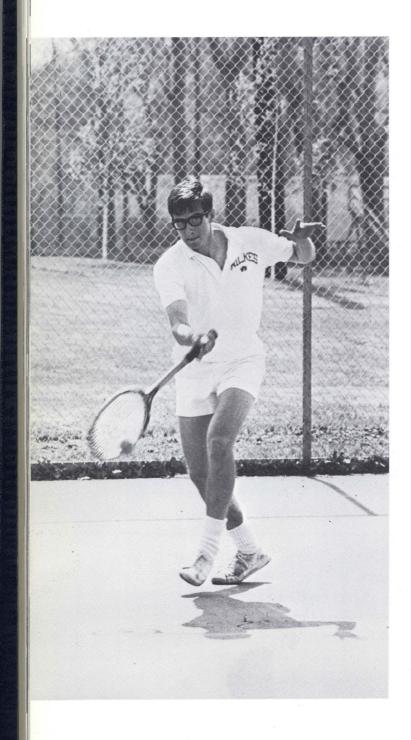

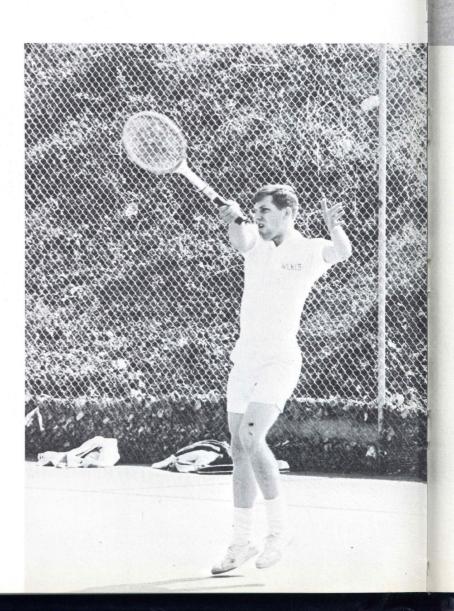

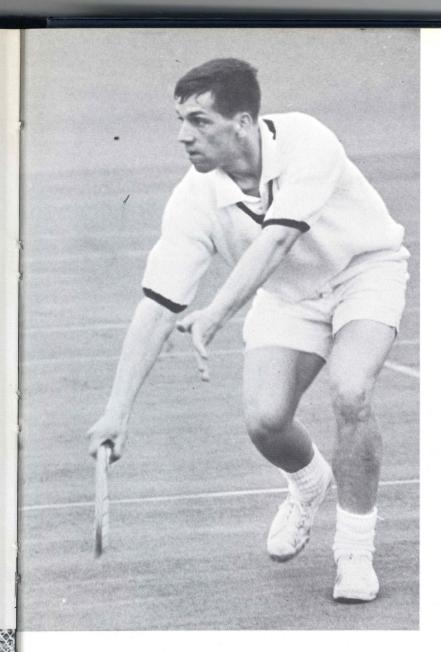

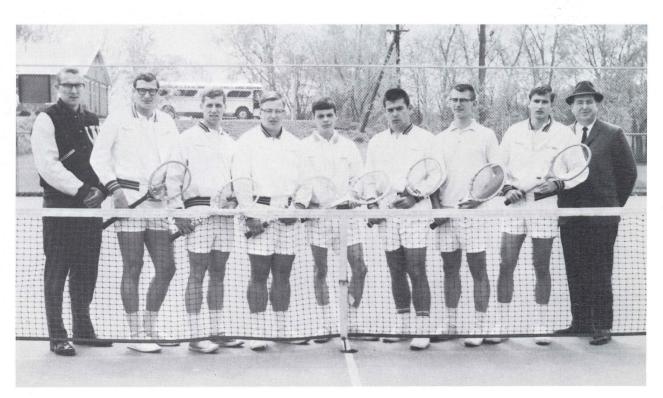

TENNIS

The tennis squad faced a tough season and finished with a 3-9 record. The netmen twice defeated King's College and Scranton University. Captain Tom Rokita led the squad and always turned in an excellent performance. Other outstanding players were Dan Klem, Carl Magagna, John Sheldon, Joel Meyers, Ronald Piskovik.

With the entire squad returning, the next campaign appears to be a promising one for the netmen.

Hold Fast — But Softly

Hold fast a dream.

Softly — swiftly catch it

Before it's gone forever
In golden light of day.

Quickly before it's gone

Hold fast that dream of night,

Yet do not crush its beauty,

Nor make your hold too tight.

If crushed or held too firmly

If crushed or held too firmly Your dream will never be Yours to keep within you For all eternity.

SPECIAL THANKS TO

Bob, for his patience and creative thinking...

Theresa, for her devotion...

George, for a job well done...

Alicia, for her nimble typing fingers and sense of humor...

Pat, for his ability to express our thoughts in words which escaped us...

Mr. Colson, for his confidence...

to the entire staff... and all those who cooperated so willingly to make our task so worthwhile.
