foreword

The works of art that a community chooses to honor and value tell us a great deal about that community. For if art expresses inner vision, then local exhibitions speak to us from the inner life we share.

Old Masters and new, American and international — works of genuine vision have come to a center among us. We feel this art as a living presence. Where there is no vision, as the proverb reminds us, the people perish. But where our cultural legacies shape and focus our vision, they become our most important spiritual resources.

This "Collectors' Choice" exhibition has been made possible by the kindness and generosity of the collectors themselves. We thank them for sharing their valued works of art with us. And we hope their example will encourage other collectors to share with us the joy that comes from living with art.
