PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By any measure, it's been a remarkable year for Wilkes University. As we take the first steps toward achieving our 2010 Vision, it is clear that our accomplishments flow from your tremendous support and the dedication of all members of the Wilkes community—students, alumni, friends and faculty.

We are making excellent progress in building a highly competitive portfolio of academic offerings by improving existing programs and developing new ones. Led by Provost Dr. Maravene Loeschke and an ambitious faculty, we are creating a signature undergraduate experience that will distinguish Wilkes throughout the Mid-Atlantic United States. In addition, new majors in Integrative Media and Entrepreneurship are the first in a series of innovative programs that will further enhance our undergraduate offerings.

As you'll read later in this report, we are also transforming our business program through a generous gift from Trustee Jay Sidhu M'73. I'm confident that when the Jay Sidhu School of Business and Leadership opens in 2004, it will be regarded as a national model for undergraduate leadership and business education. The work we are doing to develop a program grounded in the concepts of emotional intelligence and authentic leadership will ultimately influence the entire Wilkes experience.

We also have made remarkable strides in our quest to develop support programs that provide exceptional service and make it possible for the University to operate more effectively. Examples include significant improvements to our athletic facilities and enhancements to student life in the areas of dining and campus safety.

By instilling fiscal discipline and thanks to your remarkable generosity, we are making strong progress toward renewed financial and institutional strength. As we move toward our 2010 Vision, it is clear that your financial support will be as important as ever to ensuring the success of Wilkes and those who choose to better themselves through their experience here.

Make no mistake, your gifts do have a direct impact on students. Tuition revenues cover only 90 percent of the cost of providing a quality Wilkes education. This leaves a budgetary gap that is filled largely through your gifts to the Wilkes Fund. In that sense, every Wilkes student is on a scholarship that you have helped fund.

Your gifts also add value to your Wilkes degree. Increased support from alumni and friends is one of the key indicators of a viable institution. Diminishing reliance on tuition revenue will allow us the flexibility to become more innovative and creative in our academic programming and support services.

For all that you do for Wilkes, and for all that you will do to help us achieve our shared vision, thank you. Together, we are building a University that is poised for success in 2010 and beyond.

All my best,

Joseph E. (Tim) Gilmour, Ph.D.
President

JAY SIDHU SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

A $3 million gift by Wilkes trustee Jay Sidhu M'73 and Sovereign Bank is being used to expand and reshape the university's business curriculum into a nationally recognized program.

The funds are being used to establish the Jay S. Sidhu School of Business and Leadership, creating a range of programs serving students from undergraduates to executives. The school will provide a strong core business education reinforced through the development of leadership skills and effective, ethical business practices. In addition, it will house a center for executive education to provide leadership development programs for business executives from throughout the region.

"We are deeply grateful to Jay and to Sovereign Bank for their support and for giving us the opportunity to build an exceptional business program at Wilkes," said Wilkes President Tim Gilmour. "Jay Sidhu personifies the professionalism and values that our future business leaders will need to succeed. It is upon those principles that our new curriculum will be built."

Taken together, the gift is the largest contribution from a Wilkes alumnus in Wilkes' 70-year history. In 1999, Mrs. Geraldine Nesbitt Orr provided funds to establish the Nesbitt School of Pharmacy at Wilkes University in honor of her late husband, health care benefactor Abram Nesbitt, II.

MARKS OF EXCELLENCE

ABOVE & BEYOND

Wilkes employees inspire minds, enrich souls, and provide invaluable services to our students. That's what they get paid to do, but members of the Wilkes family also go above and beyond the duties and responsibilities listed in their job description and find it in their hearts and paychecks to financially support the students they serve every day.

A new strategy that mobilized employee leaders to solicit their peers has been positively received and is helping to create a culture of employee giving. Over the past three years, participation in the University Family campaign has increased dramatically—from 23 to 92 percent. This special campaign continues to grow in percentage and serves as a direct reflection of the commitment of Wilkes employees to support students above and beyond the services and knowledge they provide.

Special thanks to Joe Mangan and the Facilities Management Division (above) for securing 100% participation for the 2004 campaign among the security, custodial and maintenance teams—a remarkable effort from a wonderful group of men and women!

MARKS OF EXCELLENCE

PAUL A. O'HOP HALL DEDICATION

Friends and colleagues of Paul A. O'Hop gathered at a June 26 reception to honor him with the dedication of a University building at 263 South River Street.

The former vice president of Business Affairs and Auxiliary Enterprises retired on December 31, 2001 after 16 years of service to Wilkes.

During his administrative tenure, more than 20 campus buildings were purchased, constructed or renovated. With the development of the Fenner Quadrangle, Paul's vision of creating a traditional college campus setting was achieved.

MARKS OF EXCELLENCE SENIOR CLASS GIFT

Though they have walked across stage and earned their degrees, members of the class of 2003 have left their mark on campus—literally. Continuing a long-standing tradition of class giving at Wilkes, members of the class pledged nearly $2,000 to fund repainting of the railroad trestle adjacent to Raltson Field. The trestle was painted with Wilkes colors several years ago and has served as a gateway to those attending athletic events at the athletic complex.

But it is showing age and deterioration (above). The newly painted trestle will have a bright new look and provide a warm and friendly welcome to students, alumni, and friends attending athletic events at the sports complex. The class gift will also serve as a reminder of all they learned and experienced as students at Wilkes and help to establish a tangible and lasting connection with their alma mater.

They provide the seeds of philanthropy and the beginnings of lifetime giving to Wilkes.

A very special thanks to the Class of 2003 donors.

URBAN STUDIES CENTER

Wilkes is in the final stages of an effort to establish an Urban Studies Center that will provide research, analysis and consultation in support of the revitalization in Wilkes-Barre and other cities.

The Center's primary mission will be to help reinvigorate Wilkes-Barre into a thriving place to live and work by providing intellectual capital, analysis and best practice thinking to its problems and opportunities. In addition, the center will be proactive in bringing together key constituencies from the area and beyond to develop a vision and an action plan for their efforts.

The revitalization of Wilkes-Barre will serve as a test case for the Urban Center. Within five years the Center will become self-sustaining through marketing its services to other cities and regions.

The University has secured a portion of the seed funding to establish the center, and is seeking to attract additional financial supporters to help underwrite the first several years of operation.

The project was initiated through a gift from Wilkes alumnus Bill Montague '68 and his wife, Susan. Recognizing their inextricable link to downtown Wilkes-Barre, College Misericordia, King's College, Luzerne County Community College and Penn State Wilkes-Barre are partnering in the effort to establish and operate the center.

"The first five years of the center's operation will be a critical time of outreach and growth," said Wilkes University Vice President for Advancement Dawn Atwater-Haight. "By partnering with those who are passionate about rebuilding this region, we hope to provide the funding necessary to secure the center's long-term success."

The concept was the topic of a March 27 Wilkes University President's Breakfast during which nationally recognized economic revitalization expert Dr. John Gilderbloom (pictured above, center, with Trustee Eugene Roth '57, Atwater-Haight, President Tim Gilmour and Bill and Susan Montague) outlined the success of a center in revitalizing downtown Louisville, Kentucky.
