Wilkes conducts program review

• University officials are taking a critical look at the academic programs offered at Wilkes. Class offerings may be streamlined in upcoming years, but officials haven't said where the cuts will come.

By TONI ODEN
Assistant News Editor

Wilkes University has taken a step in the right direction to reconstruct academic programs in the best interest of the students.

The University has engaged the help of Noel-Levitz, a private consulting firm, to conduct a Comprehensive Program Analysis on all existing programs at Wilkes.

"It is being done to determine what Wilkes does best and to resculpt it to be the highest quality academic program possible," said J. Michael Lennon, Vice President for Academic Affairs. "We want to provide the best education for the lowest price for our students."

A Program Audit Committee was formed to assist in determining the current strengths, weaknesses, and potential of each program. This has been an effort in order to focus on programs that need to be enhanced.

Funds will be taken from underdeveloped academic programs and transferred to those that need more support.

"We will be looking at all programs simultaneously providing a good basis for comparison, which is the key to a successful analysis," said Lennon.

Lennon said each program will be analyzed using the same criteria: demand, quality, productivity, cost, availability of qualified personnel to deliver the program, maturity, program impact, benefits, and justification. Lennon said that it is difficult to judge the quality of a liberal arts or business program since there is no professional exam to take, as there is for a pharmacist or a doctor.

The project's success will be largely dependent on faculty, staff, and students. Representatives from each of these groups are on the Program Audit Committee. Meetings and consultations will take place with each department on a regular basis. This will ensure that valuable feedback is obtained from those who hold the most knowledge of Wilkes and its goals.

High hopes exist for the project. A target date for the completion has been set for April 1996. The committee wants to do a complete and thorough job to make this a successful step for the university's academic future; therefore, if more time is needed it will not create a problem.

Memorial ceremony held for Anthony Marseco

• Family and friends gathered outside Barre Hall Sunday to remember the Wilkes student.

WILKES-BARRE — Family and friends of Tony Marseco gathered for a short memorial ceremony outside Barre Hall on Sunday.

Three trees were planted in honor of Marseco, a Wilkes student who was killed in a motorcycle accident earlier this year.

Ali Quereshi, a member of Student Government Executive Board, said friends had been discussing the possibility of a ceremony for several months. He said they decided to hold it on Sunday afternoon in order to avoid class and work conflicts, so family and students were able to attend.

Police find pot plants at student apartment

• Firefighters responded to a fire at an Edwardsville apartment and discovered some of the smoke coming from what they believe to be marijuana plants.

By JOHN-ERIK KOSLOSKY
Beacon News Editor

Edwardsville firefighters discovered what they believe to be burning marijuana plants at the apartment of a Wilkes University student on Friday, October 20.

The fire at an apartment at 158 East Grove Street left police looking for Zachary Wright, the tenant at that apartment, for questioning.

Students who know Wright said, at the time of the fire, he was on a Department of Geo-Environmental Sciences and Engineering field-study camping trip with his classmates at the Ratchford Field Station in Southern Luzerne County near Shickshinny.

Edwardsville police said they found what they believe to be several undamaged potted marijuana plants, as well as bags of marijuana and seeds. Police said they also found "elaborate lighting and cultivating equipment." Several other items of drug paraphernalia were also discovered, according to police.

Edwardsville Fire Chief Ray King told local reporters he believes the origin of the fire was an electrical overload caused by the heavy lighting and cultivating equipment.

No one was injured in the blaze, but it heavily damaged the apartment and another apartment in the building, leaving both apartments uninhabitable.

Police obtained a search warrant for the residence that Friday and took the plants and other items into custody.

According to the Wilkes University Registrar's office, Wright is enrolled as a junior Earth and Environmental Science major.

No arrest had been made as of Wednesday night, and Edwardsville police would not comment in detail on the investigation.

"All I can say right now is that it is an active investigation," said Sgt. Mike Slusark. "If and when there is an arrest, then it will be public."

Edwardsville police are conducting the investigation with assistance from the Pennsylvania Department of the Attorney General and the Luzerne County District Attorney's Office.

Board of Trustees welcomes four new members

WILKES-BARRE — Wilkes University's President Dr. Christopher N. Breiseth and Eugene Roth Esq. '57, chairman of the Board of Trustees, recently announced the appointment of four new members to the University's Board of Trustees.

The new members are Melanie Maslow Lumia, Dallas; Kenneth H. Taylor Jr., Wyalusing; and Wilkes alumni Robert Mugford '56, of Wilkes-Barre, and Michael H. Cook '79, Shavertown.

"Wilkes University is proud to welcome four new trustees into the University family," said Breiseth. "Their expertise will help Wilkes maintain its goal and vision for the future, making the University an excellent place to study and learn."

The Wilkes University Board of Trustees is made up of nearly 40 men and women from across the United States. Members meet four times a year with Wilkes' senior level administrators to provide direction and focus in issues pertaining to all aspects of the University.

His professional affiliations include the American Meat Institute and his civic and community affiliations include a member of the board of directors for the Guthrie Health Care System and for the Wyalusing Industrial Development Corporation, Plains Township. He received an associate's degree in engineering from Wilkes in 1956 and a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Penn State University in 1961. He has been a registered professional engineer since 1967 and is currently registered to practice in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. His memberships include a 20-year membership in the American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineering and membership in the University Council of Wilkes University.

Cook is president and founder of Berkshire Capital Partners and serves as general partner for Berkshire Partnership, L.P. New recruiting plan benefits students

• New recruiting plans would provide Wilkes students $250.00 tuition reimbursement for helping to recruit a new student to the University.

WILKES-BARRE — Wilkes University President, Christopher Breiseth has announced a new initiative that will help the University's recruitment efforts and will benefit current Wilkes students through a strategy that could lead to a tuition credit.

Anthony Shipula II, 78', director of Alumni in Admissions, is in charge of this initiative that is part of a new student, alumni, trustee and volunteer effort to complement the University's enrollment efforts.

"As colleges and universities strive to meet the enrollment challenges of a smaller available number of prospective students, we need to engage our students in the process of identifying and recruiting students to Wilkes University," said President Breiseth. "Alumni, trustees, students and volunteers are in the best position to help the University."

Through this new initiative, current Wilkes students who identify a prospective student who ultimately matriculates full-time to Wilkes, will receive a $250 tuition credit for each student recruited. For seniors who graduate before the recruited student matriculates, there will be the same discount on graduate credits.

"As our students get involved, they not only benefit Wilkes by leading family and friends to the University, but they benefit themselves with a $250 tuition credit," said Shipula. "This program has clearly-defined parameters that require the new students to become a full-time matriculant at Wilkes before a tuition credit can be realized."

Shipula will be meeting with interested Wilkes students next week to review how this program works. If you are interested in participating in this program, meetings will be held Tuesday, November 7, at 11:30 am, Wednesday, November 8, at 4 pm, and Thursday, November 9, at 11:30 am. All meetings will be held in COB Room 106.

If you are interested, but unable to attend the meetings please contact Shipula at the Admission Office, at extension 4411 or from off campus at 831-4411.

Quereshi said about 45 people attended the memorial ceremony.

He said family and friends are in the process of establishing an endowed scholarship in the name of Tony Marseco.

Quereshi said about $3,000 has been raised thus far. The fund still requires $7,000 to meet the $10,000 minimum value for an endowed scholarship.

Funding will also be generated from a plan allowing members of the senior class to donate a sum of $100 over the course of five years, Quereshi said.

He said anyone who would like to donate to the scholarship fund is invited to do so.

Editorial —

Is it just me or have you noticed that the last couple of weeks have been extremely hectic?

Walking through campus, I've noticed the sighs and tired looks on the faces of so many Wilkes students. And to my amazement, we are not alone. Talking to friends at other colleges proves my point: we're just burnt out.

With Thanksgiving only a few weeks away, some professors have been busily cramming to keep pace with their syllabus, while students wonder if they'll ever get a break.

Week after week, tests keep piling up and papers follow not to far behind. And it seems that no matter how much work we do, the list of assignments and projects keeps getting longer.

Today, I had an interesting conversation with one of my copy editor's. A few days ago Colleen's mother asked her to carve pumpkins with the family. Although Colleen wanted to help, she explained to her mother that she had too much work to do and couldn't help out. Her mother responded, "Colleen, I know you have a lot of work to do, but you still have to take time out for yourself and stop to smell the roses."

Now, isn't that the truth. Instead of becoming overwhelmed by the amount of work you have, why not take a deep breath and find something relaxing to do.

Since fall is one of the most beautiful seasons in the Wilkes-Barre area, go outside and enjoy yourself. Take a walk through Hickory Run's National State Park. Ride your bike through Kirby. Or even sit under a tree at the Seven Tubs.

Enjoy yourself. That's what life is all about. Don't get me wrong, school work is very important and it really must be completed. But instead of getting caught up in the whirl-wind of all you must do, sit back. Don't let life pass you by. It's really too short to begin with.

Idle Chatter

with Michael Butchko

"I saw a werewolf with a Chinese menu in his hand, walkin' through the streets of Sojo in the rain."

A belated happy All Hallow's Eve, friends, neighbors, and things that go "bump" in the night. It has been pointed out by the John Jacob Astor of the Chatter that recent columns are becoming too serious, and that this entity was founded upon a lighthearted theme. So we're going to get a little silly this week, partly because it's good for what ails you, and otherwise because some of us are fresh out of ideas.

Last week's Roving Reporter sans pictures asked people all across campus about their favorite Halloween costume. Although the basic stance of this column reads that Halloween is possibly the most confusing holiday we have, some very interesting and perhaps humorous ideas came to mind concerning certain costumes the Chatter would love to see.

Costume 1: How about Newt Gingrich dressed up as Mother Theresa? Or Strom Thurmond as Pope John Paul II? Yes, the Republicans are coming to your doors, fellow citizens, to rip the money out of your mattresses. That is, if you believe what you hear. If they do show up at your house, expect them to be closely followed by Pat Schroeder as Joan of Ark and Dick Gephardt as . . . I don't know, maybe a viable, credible, politician. That would be a stretch.

Costume 2: William Jefferson Clinton as a butter-milk waffle. The President will probably not complain; who among us wouldn't mind being toasted and them smothered in butter and syrup? Please don't answer.

Costume 3: The entire Cleveland Indians lineup as hitters. The object of this game is to score runs, not to ignore reporters.

Costume 4: Shaquille O'Neal and Deion Sanders as athletes. Attention please: all Dallas Cowboy and Orlando Magic games will now be televised on the Cartoon Network, where these two caricatures belong.

Costume the Last: Election Day is next Tuesday, and the four county commissioner candidates are throwing their last pieces of mud. Gentlemen, your costumes: for Frank "I Love My Bookie" Crossin, a Mr. Ed costume tailored to resemble Cigar, the horse only a bookie could hate; for Joseph Jones, a fountain pen which writes in (what else?) red ink; and for Jim Phillips, a pair of deerskin overalls with one strap down, and a club Barney Rubble would be proud of. That way his clothes can have a caveman mentality as well. As for Tom Makowski, he should go as the Riddler: he's the only question mark in the group. This time, that's a positive.

That's all for now. We'll chat again next week.

By RANDI HERSHMAN
Beacon Features Editor

On Halloween night the Arnaud C. Marts Sports and Conference Center echoed with the combined voices of the National recording artist Rusted Root and 3000 screaming fans.

Formed in 1990 in Pittsburgh, Rusted Root are best known for their infectious harmonies and blasting energy." The band includes, Liz Berlin, John Buynak, Patrick Norman, Michael Glabicki, Jim Dispirito and Jim Donovan. Together creating a magical and intensely powerful sound that is altogether new to the music industry.

The group opened with "Back to Earth" and continued playing such well known hits as, "XTC", "Cat Turned Blue", "Lost in the Crowd", "Send me on my way", and "Rain."

Opening for the band was Joan Osborne a performer whose style of music rests somewhere in between modern rock, traditional blues and gospel. According to Rolling Stone, Osborne is "the next explosion waiting to happen." Songs such as "One of Us" and "Ladder" sent a roar throughout the crowd.

"Rusted Root is said to be part of a new breed of musicians who are accumulating legions of fans through their engaging live performances and roots-based music."

"I thought the concert was incredible, it was the best time of my life," said Tracy Gibbs a junior at Wilkes University. "I was pleased with how Wilkes put the concert together and with how much Wilkes has been doing for its students."

"It was pretty damn good," smiled Tara Kurland, a senior, also attending Wilkes University. "The music was as much felt as it was heard. I was really impressed."

But, the students weren't the only people impressed. According to Karen Bednarczyk, the band and crew were very pleased with Wilkes University and its students, claiming that Wilkes was the best school that they had worked with on tour.

Karen also added that Rusted Root was the "most successful concert we've ever had."

With two successful concerts under wraps, Wilkes students eagerly await the arrival of Alanis Morissette in December.

Sabbatical Proves Rewarding

By ROWE SWIENTISKY
Special to the Beacon

To be a teacher is to touch the future, whether we are speaking of today or five years ago. It takes a lot of constant study to give a teacher the confidence they need to help today's students.

Students are growing up in a changing society and teachers need to be familiar with those changes. In that regard, teaching is like medicine where doctors need to take classes and attend conferences. Teachers need to keep current and that's what sabbaticals are all about.

The Wilkes faculty handbook, page 56, defines sabbaticals in the following way. "Faculty members may request ... sabbatical leaves to enable them to carry on activities that will increase their value to the University and will be professionally rewarding. Such activities may include academic work toward advanced degrees, post-graduate work, or research in a field of choice. May be one semester with full compensation after each 12 semesters of service, or a full year with half compensation."

In the weeks to come you will learn that the outcome of the recent sabbaticals taken by Wilkes faculty has benefited the students greatly.

While the teachers enjoy time off, they are researching and studying the latest trends by actually being involved as students. They bring back up to date knowledge which they can now pass on to their students. This knowledge is not only more current, but it is often taught with renewed.

As you read on I hope you will feel the enthusiasm and glow I felt and saw as I talked with Gay Meyers, associate professor of Education at Wilkes University, about her first sabbatical experience.

Gay took her sabbatical to "make contacts with principals, give Wilkes students the opportunity to at least observe field experience, and possibly student teaching within urban areas."

With her new excitement Gay is setting a fire at Wilkes.

She is now the chair of Human Diversity Committee and she will also be adding two new courses that will aid the Wilkes Education Department. The new courses are Inner City Experience, which will focus on urban education, and Multicultural Education, which will deal with understanding cultures and the backgrounds of students.

Multicultural Education will also help develop better teaching methods for her students.

Gay observed many Philadelphia schools, by sitting in on classes with students. She did this by viewing her world through the children's eyes. She sat in the classroom with the students and talked with the students. She even went as far as being the shadow of a fifth and ninth grader at local schools.

What did Gay learn? "Children are children no matter where they live." What she wants us to understand in this area is that children's abilities in urban cities are vast, due to their intelligence, background, and up-bringing. Gay feels she can teach to her students how to better handle urban classroom situations.

Teachers in urban areas face many problems that are relatively unknown in this area. Some children in urban schools have seen their father beating their mother. Some have been asked to do drugs and then viewed or even taken part in a gang killing, and all of this before school starts for the day.

The thoughts of these children are not just on education but how to survive in their own backyard. Professor Meyers wants to teach and interact one-on-one with Wilkes students who will be teaching in urban areas.

Just listening to Gay got me pumped and if you know Gay Meyers you know she is vibrant, exciting, captivating, and loves to teach. Now imagine her with a new goal of teaching, one that excites her to the extreme.

Now is the time to take a class from Gay. Meyers is like a forest fire that can not be contained and it is contagious. This is one fire that I hope Wilkes lets burn throughout the community.

What does Gay say to the people who want to X out sabbaticals? "They lack understanding of the intensity of the work that many faculty do... renewing experience makes you fresh and current."

Gay received her B.S. in Education from Lock Haven and her M.S. from Wilkes.

Hunger and Homeless Weekend

"Hunger in the U.S. has increased by 50% since 1985... between two and three million Americans are homeless today."

The Second Annual Hunger and Homelessness Weekend will be held from November 11th through the 18th. This week is designed to cause us to pause and consider poverty as it affects our lives, our city, our country, and our world. A week to do in even more... to volunteer, to attend a lecture, to see a film, to sit in on a panel discussion or relax at a meditation service. You may experience a day of hunger or spend a night outdoors in order to learn and to help.

All activities are open to the public. We encourage you to attend at least one of the many fine programs provided. Last year, over 450 students were involved with the week.

Highlights include: the Walk Against Hunger, the Oxfam Fast (it's not on the cafeteria Thanksgiving Dinner Day this year), and the Sleep Out with the film "With Honors."

Football team wins fourth straight

• O'Donnell's kick helps Colonels edge Aggies, as Rine connects with Alston for the team's only touchdown.

Beacon Staff Writer

Joel O'Donnell kicked his second game-winning field goal of the year this past Saturday as the Colonels defeated Delaware Valley, 10-9, at Work Memorial Stadium in Doylestown, Pennsylvania. O'Donnell's 30-yard field goal with 5:44 remaining in the game gave Wilkes its fourth consecutive win. The victory clinched the tie for the MAC Freedom League title. The Colonels improved to 5-3 on the year and 3-0 in the Freedom League.

A short punt by Delaware Valley's Jeff Engels set up the game-winning field goal. Wilkes took over at the Delaware Valley 35 yard line after game when quarterback Neil Rine connected with Ryan Alston on a 28-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter. A roughing the passer penalty against the Aggies was a key play in the 66 yard, six play went into half-time with a 7-6 lead.

The Aggies took a 9-6 lead with 10:52 left in the third quarter, when Engels kicked a 35-yard field goal. Later in the quarter Matt Soncini returned a Mitschke.

Tailback Elijah Powell did not play for the Colonels. He was expected to play, however an injured ankle kept him out of the game. Powell injured the ankle a week earlier in the first quarter of the Colonels victory over William Paterson.

This Saturday the Colonels travel to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, to take on the Moravian College Greyhounds. The Colonels last played at Steel Field in 1992, losing to coach Scott Dapp's Greyhounds, 28-14.

Engels' 12-yard punt. Wilkes moved the ball to the 12 on five plays. The ensuing 30-yard field goal was O'Donnell's second game-winner of the year. The senior kicked a 19-yard field goal against Juniata with just 25 seconds remaining to give the Colonels a 29-28 victory earlier in the season.

Wilkes scored first in the scoring drive. O'Donnell's extra point gave Wilkes a 7-0 lead.

The Aggies scored on the next possession when Nate Sausser ran for a touchdown from the 5-yard line. The touchdown capped off a seven play, 65 yard drive by Delaware Valley. The extra point, however, was missed and the Colonels punt 66 yards for an apparent Delaware Valley touchdown, however the play was negated by a holding penalty against the Aggies. Wilkes also didn't take advantage of a scoring opportunity in the third quarter when O'Donnell missed a 21-yard field goal. The attempt was set up by a 70-yard screen pass to tight end Augie

Lady Colonels invited to "The Dance"

•Wilkes University field hockey team makes first-ever NCAA Tournament appearance.

By MICHAEL BUTCHKO
Beacon Sports Editor

For the past three years, the Wilkes University field hockey team has made the NCAA Division III tournament their post-season goal. But in each of the last two years, the team has settled for an ECAC bid.

This year's hopes were

NCAA Division III Championship bid. They are one of 16 teams which have been invited to the tournament.

The magnitude of the invitation is not lost on Coach Malatesta. "We're ecstatic as a team. This is something we've looked forward to all season."

Once the euphoria of the news began to wane, the Lady Colonels started preparing for their first round opponent, Cortland State. Cortland State has won the Division III national championship the past two years, and looks to become only the second collegiate field hockey team ever to win three dampened again when the team fell to Lebanon Valley College in the Middle Atlantic Conference Semifinals. Even head coach Addy Malatesta was expecting the worst. "I thought we might have slipped by the voters," she said. Not this year.

"We're ecstatic as a team. This is something we've looked forward to all season."

For the first time in team history, the Wilkes University field hockey team received an consecutive national championships. The only other one to accomplish that feat was Old Dominion on the Division I level.

Cortland may have an historic past, but this year's squad is only the second seed in their bracket, a product of their 14-5-2 record on the season. Coach Malatesta calls them a "seasoned, post-season team, hard to handle, but we'll be up for this."

Wilkes is the third seed in the bracket, with this weekend's games being played at Messiah College in Grantham, Pennsylvania. As the number one seed in the bracket, Messiah is the host school. Their first round game is against Mary Washington College from Virginia, after the Wilkes game on Friday. The winner of the Messiah game will face Wilkes or Cortland State in the round of eight.

Welcome to the Show!

The field hockey team wants a few more chances to celebrate victory. They will have their chance in the NCAA Division III field hockey playoffs, starting this Friday.

The Lady Colonels have had moderate success against ranked teams this year, so they should not be intimidated by Cortland State. The team has been led by its core of seniors, including Kim Kaskel, Sue Richardson, Steph Hastings, and Theresa Havel. Kaskel has 15 goals and nine assists, while Richardson has 12 goals and six assists. Equally as important are the contributions of Hastings and Havel, as Hastings has six goals and four assists, while Havel has three goals and four assists.

Goaltending will be crucial in the NCAA Division III Championships, with the tandem of Tracy Engle and Pam Truszkowski. Engle has a goals-against average of .81, while Truszkowski sports a .94 average.

Now that the Lady Colonels have made history, they hope to make a statement by reaching the NCAA Division III Final Four.
