

MUSIC DEPARTMENT TO PRESENT TWO SHOWS

Three masques from "The Fairy Queen," by Henry Purcell and a one-act opera, "Chanticleer," by Seymour Barab will be presented by the Wilkes College Music Department tomorrow and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Center for the Performing Arts.

The evening's presentation will be under the direction of Richard B. Chapline, associate professor of music at Wilkes.

Members of the cast for "Chanticleer," an adaptation from Chaucer's "The Nun's Priest's Tale," are: Nancy Greenberg, Lorene Daring, Stanley Yunkunis and Glen Flack. Accompanist for the one-act opera is Julie Levoy.

"The Masque of the Drunken Poet" lists the following cast members: Nancy Schultz, Molly Jackiewicz, Fred Pacolitch and Donald Mock.

Cast members for "The Masque of the Four Seasons" are: Carol Pochaski, Charles Robbins, Corinne Crispell, Paula Castrucci, Bruce Phair and William Metcalfe.

"The Masque of Hymen" includes: Paula Cardias, Gretchen Winfield, Eileen Connor, Charles Robbins, Constance Oliveri, Celeste Ametrano, Mary Elizabeth Morris, Christine Donahue, Kenneth Stone, Carolyn Kresge and Judith Sanger.

Accompanist for the three masques is Michael Haberkorn.

"The Fairy Queen," an anonymous adaptation of William

Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," is the source of the three masques to be presented.

The masque had its beginnings in medieval times with a folk spectacle called a mumming, which showed traces of ancient pagan ceremonies and was characterized by a procession of masked figures.

These spectacles later developed into elaborate and costly entertainments sponsored by and given for the aristocracy. They were set to appeal to the eye and the ear. Stage direction will be handled by Dr. William Martin, with scene design by Klaus Holm.

SG PRESIDENTIAL VOTE SLATED

Auerbach And Fiorino Contend For The Office Of IDC President

by Mary Covine

Nominations for next year's Inter-Dormitory Council officers were held this week in the Commons of the Wilkes College campus. George Pagliaro presided over the poorly attended meeting in which James Fiorino and Lee Auerbach were nominated for the office of president.

Whether due to the absence of many dormitory representatives, or because of sheer apathy, there was only one nomination for the office of vice president which was declined by Stephanie Pufko and no nominations for the office of treasurer.

For the office of recording secretary, Stephanie Pufko again declined; however, junior sociology major Joanne Sullivan of Chapman Hall accepted the nomination.

Corresponding secretary nominations were filled by two candidates, Karen Skasko, a junior biology major from Sterling Hall and Leslie Cook, a freshman from 36 West.

Obviously disappointed by the lack of participation President Pagliaro reminded representatives in attendance that, as a matter of policy, nominations would be opened next week before an actual vote for the offices is taken. Presidential nominee Lee Auerbach, a sophomore accounting major from Fair Lawn, New Jersey, offered several policy statements to the Beacon.

Auerbach, upon careful contemplation offered several areas for possible improvement with regard to the Wilkes College campus. High on his list was the establishment of a game room to be located in the New Men's Dorm.

Other areas for possible improvement that he sees are better food service, more on-campus activities, a closer working relationship between IDC and Student Government and an attempt to make dorm students

Fahmy Readies 'Project Egypt'

A member of the Wilkes College Education Department is back from Cairo, Egypt, making preliminary plans for a group of 15 representatives of Pennsylvania colleges and universities to spend six weeks taking part in a seminar this summer.

Dr. Mahmoud Fahmy, who spent last year on a similar educational project in India, will take a temporary leave of his teaching duties at Wilkes College to head the program which has been called "Project Egypt."

The objective of the mission will be to develop a curriculum on "The Modernization Process and Education in Egypt." The curriculum is to be designed essentially for college level classes in the United States with particular relevance for the education of prospective teachers.

The group will develop documentary and audio-visual materials, which can be disseminated to other American Association of Colleges For Teacher Education institutions. It will be co-authored by American and Egyptian participants which will ensure their authenticity. Equally important as the final curriculum will be the improvement in competence and cultural proficiency of faculty members due to their first-hand experience in a non-Western milieu.

Dr. Fahmy returned to this country on Monday and is making his presentation concerning arrangements for the June 15 to August 15 overseas seminar at the first of a series of briefings for Nominations for Student Government President were announced during a recent meeting. Incumbent President Howie Tune will seek another term at office with representatives Michael Barski and Peter Jadelis challenging.

Nichols Claims Election Invalid

Jim Loftus announced that he would secure two voting machines for the upcoming election to be placed for two days, Wednesday and Thursday, April 12 and 13, in the Commons between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and in the New Men's Dorm between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Only 17 votes were cast in the Parrish Snack Bar during the last election.

IDs will be used exclusively. Comments on the voting cards included "pretty ridiculous," "downright miserable" and "just isn't going to work."

A rather surprising turn of events occurred when Woody Nichols, who was disgusted with the events of the SG representative and class officer election, motioned to declare the entire election invalid. Nichols offered in support of his argument that the voting proposal had not been adhered to. The majority of the membership disagreed with his case and promptly defeated the motion eight to three with seven abstentions.

POCO and John Hammond will be appearing at the Kingston Armory, Sunday, April 30. Tickets for outsiders will be $3 apiece. An additional $1175 was secured from the All-College Weekend Fund for chairs. The rental fee is 25 cents per chair.

Mark Chamberlain of the Clean Environment Committee asked SG to ban posters and other printed material gradually and to establish a P.A. system for both dorm students and day-hops.

President Tune explained that at present a Commons-Cafeteria intercom isn't possible, and Ann Schifano asked how a littering law could be enforced. However, President Tune asked for a proposal next meeting.

The Surprise of the Week Award goes to Lee Auerbach who announced that there is a pool table disguised as a regular table in the bookstore. He suggested using it since so many students have been wanting one. Someone wondered how they were going to get it out!

The Ralston Field Bus Petition secured a final total of 310 names. SG gave the petition a vote of confidence.

Presidential Contenders

The Wilkes Student Body faces a difficult decision in the near future — the election of Student Government President. This is a position which will affect the direction of the college for the next academic year and possibly for several years in the future.

We gave the three candidates running for this office an opportunity to state their positions in this week's issue. Studying each platform carefully, it still remains a difficult decision to choose a candidate to support.

All three candidates come with previous experience in the student governing body. Howie Tune and Mike Barski will be seniors next year. Pete Jadelis will be a junior next year, but Howie held the same position in his junior year.

Perhaps it would be best to say that the platforms do the candidates an injustice. Past action and involvement, along with a suitable direction for the future then become the criteria for the selection of Student Government President.

Judging from past experience and a potential future, it is our opinion that Mike Barski would make the best president. It is our belief that he has all the necessary qualifications, which added to past experience and knowledge, should provide the campus with a more than adequate representative for the office of Student Government President.

Whatever the outcome of the election, the Beacon would like to wish the candidates the best of luck in their campaigning, and the desire that our Student Government will receive the necessary backing for a successful term next year.

Concern Questioned

It really says a lot for a college campus of approximately 2,600 students that we can't even find people concerned enough to run for some of the most important positions on campus.

We, as a student body, gripe when there is even the slightest indication that we are not being given adequate representation. Yet, when this privilege is accorded us, we shirk the responsibility by failing to come forth with representatives.

A recent Inter-Dormitory Council meeting was a prime example of the lack of concern on the part of the student body. Two positions, that of vice-president and treasurer, remain open. Another position, that of recording secretary, remains with one nomination. There isn't even a choice.

It seems that priorities in this case, and probably in several others throughout the Wilkes campus, are definitely being misplaced. Positions which were once thought of with the highest regard are now thought of as simply an added burden on a college student.

Granted, the office of vice-president is not the most appealing, but it is, nevertheless, a position which has to be filled, and carries with it a degree of responsibility.

The election results weren't the only indication of a lack of student concern. There has been a great deal of absenteeism evident in both the student governing bodies, Student Government and Inter-Dormitory Council.

Instead of sitting back and complaining when the job being done is inadequate, how about coming out and taking an active role in the shaping of our college career?

TREACY AIRS KEY ISSUES

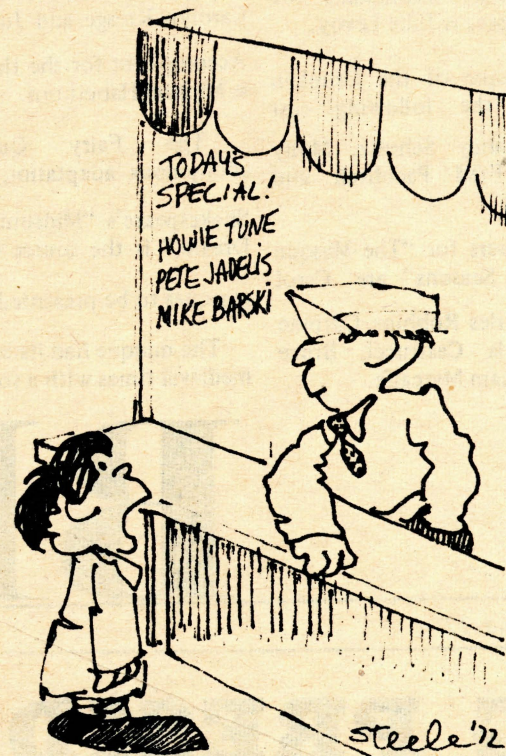

To the editor,

Through my observation of various legislative processes utilized here at Wilkes College throughout the last four years, I have concluded that there is a definite and preferred process by which changes can best be achieved. As has already been proven by methods utilized by student leaders, other than those seated in Student Government, it is essential to leave constantly open an avenue through which both student leaders and Administrators can effectively communicate and work together. The point to be drawn is that in gaining three important policies passed this year — open visitation for both women and men, the new calendar change, and the issuing of freshmen women's keys — the guidance for the successful implementation was provided by concerned student leaders, other than our current Student Government President.

I feel it necessary to point out the importance for the student body to elect in their president a man who is both imaginative in his goal yet realistic enough to lead the students of Wilkes to the attainment of these goals; someone who is able to gain the respect and trust — that does not now exist — of the people in Weckesser Hall.

Sincerely yours,
 Joseph M. Treacy

Jadelis, Tune, Barski Compete For SG President

JADELIS

TUNE

The prime purpose of the Student Government is to serve the needs of the student body. It is my conviction that the present situation of the Student Government is not conducive to sufficiently execute its principal function.

In the past year improvements have been legislated and yet many more need to be instituted. Apparently the failure to initiate great improvements is due to a continual lack of communication between major factions of Student Government and the Administration. This lack of communication ultimately leads to the inefficiency of the entire Student Government. The inability to command an efficient and constructive rapport with the college newspaper is also a great hinderance to the amount of influence Student Government can have on campus. What is most important is that the influential factions of the college, meaning the Administration, SG, IDC and Beacon learn to work together and successfully iron out the growing problems of Wilkes College. It is my sincere pledge to bring about a greater understanding between the Student Government and the other important college institutions.

Priorities must be stated at the beginning of the year and followed through. If elected President, I propose to initiate special standing committees to work on such projects as a better grading system, the reconsideration and hopeful elimination of some required courses, a more effective evaluation of professors and teachers, an alleviation of the parking problem and plans for a student center. These committees would be an essential part of the next Student Government administration. Representatives would be appointed from the Student Government to act as chairmen and mediators.

Active students wishing to participate in any of these committees would be recruited to work as the nucleus for further improvements. This is not meant to be a method for passing the buck from the Student Government to the student body itself, rather it is a suggestion to help alleviate the pressures faced by Student Government and hopefully make SG more effective. Student Government is a small organization and fails to meet all the desires of the student body because of its size and the addition of these standing committees, of non-members of Student Government, will lead to greater effectiveness.

To provide better communications between students and their government, and also to the aforementioned pressures of the Student Government, I would like to provide convenient, regular hours in which students may speak directly to any members of SG executive council and voice his opinion. These informal meetings during the day will provide an accessible way for commuter students to play a greater, more influential role in the Student Government which is as much theirs as it is the dorm student's. Also these meetings will hopefully furnish SG with new ideas and more importantly, if executed properly, these meetings will enable the weekly meetings of SG to move more smoothly because minute details and preparations can be done then, leaving time to concentrate on more important issues at the weekly meetings.

Throughout this platform letter I have stated in general terms what improvements I hope to initiate. My belief is that the President of Student Government must work with the other members and to state that I, myself, intend to do specifically this or that, is not only unrealistic but childish.

In closing I would like to congratulate George Pagliaro, Mark Paikin and Stephanie Pufko on the work they have done in having the New Visitation Policy put through. I wish I could say SG played a greater role in this major improvement, but hopefully next year credit for new important improvements for day and form students will be given to the Student Government for its efforts.

Before attending to my qualifications and platform, I would like to thank the Beacon for allotting this space.

I feel my qualifications readily disclose that I am interested in serving the students. I have been a member of the Student Government for three years. In the past year I have been instrumental in initiating and implementing the new calendar for next year. Furthermore, with the aid of four concerned students, we are in the process of alleviating the parking problem of off-campus and day students by establishing a shuttle bus system. These tangible evidences coupled with an enthusiastic and sincere interest to solving student problems indicate that I am a worthy candidate for the position.

In light of all campaign pressures and commitments I refuse to be blinded by the honor of running for this office and eagerly promise you the sky. On the other hand, my motives and aspirations are realistic and with proper cooperation can be far-reaching.

Foremost in my mind is the revampment of our constitution. The archaic and inflexible document we presently abide by is a major source of student concern. This constitution must be modernized to keep astride with a favorable intellectual and social atmosphere.

Closely behind this reform would be a more attentive eye over the Student Government budget and expenditures. My goal is to eliminate any illicit spending or profiting that comes before the Student Government.

Thirdly, within the Student Government itself, I want to reestablish a stricter adherence to the guidelines of Parliamentary procedure. It's here, loose observance to the rules, that confusion arises and paves the way to a disorganized meeting.

Another priority would be instituting a system of making announcements at regular intervals in the Commons, thus keeping the day student as informed as possible. Also I want to explore the possibilities of students expanding their voices over our radio station.

A final goal would be to investigate the prospects of students picking up a course during the month we will have off at next year's semester break. I do have more ideas and programs, however, the above are the most prominent.

Although it would be in keeping with politics to promote an idealistic environment to persuade your vote, I can't give a bona fide guarantee that electing me will immediately turn our campus into a rose garden. However, I can guarantee one thing: one year of an administration dedicated to the resolution of student problems.

Finally, next year is critical for the students and Student Government alike. Time is a vital element. We can't wait and see what happens while events pass us by. We must use time as a tool, and with your vote I'd like to do precisely that.

The past year, in my opinion, has been a fruitful one for Student Government. In addition to the passage of several crucial issues, there has been a noticeable change in the posture of the Administration. The student opinion report was instrumental in bringing this about. For the first time, we were able to back up our positions with cold fact. This year, Dr. Micheline supported our position on visitation; the results are apparent.

Many things that were elusive dreams a year ago, such as women's visitation, the commuter council, the car shuttle (soon to come into operation) and the new calendar, have been granted. While I cannot claim sole credit for these things, I believe our spirit which spurred these reforms can be carried on to meet any stumbling block a student may encounter. I'm not a miracle worker; let's face it, this is a conservative school, and some things will never change. But that doesn't mean that we won't try. It's never been my practice to make promises, out of fear that they might not be fulfilled. I'm not starting now. I can't give you promises, but I can give you hope.

NOTICE

We would like to remind students that they have a voice in this election if they choose to use it. Elections will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, April 12 and 13. Voting areas are the Commons and the New Men's Dorm.

EFFECTIVENESS QUESTIONED

by Pat Moran

"Expansion Key Word for New Program" was the headline given to the story on the committee for Teacher Recognition and Effectiveness as reported in the October 21, 1972, issue of the Beacon.

But key word or not, the expansion never came to pass. Committee chairman Michael Barone stated that although the committee has been meeting weekly since November, nothing is ready to be presented to the Administration for official consideration.

Barone went on to explain that the committee may recommend a type of evaluation that would be between the department chairman and the members of his department. This would provide different types of evaluation for different teachers.

Concerning the question of a mandatory evaluation, the committee chairman said that it may be recommended that a mandatory evaluation be given to a teacher during his first year, then later it would be on a voluntary basis. For teachers with tenure, possibly an evaluation once every two or three years would take place. Following this plan, all faculty members would participate at least once in the program.

The aim of the program now is to make it "department initiated" with a great deal of the burden falling on the department chairman.

Adding once more that nothing has received an official seal of approval, Barone said that the earliest anything will be presented to the Administration is May.

FESTIVAL PLANS UNDERWAY

by Beth Kaye

The weekend of May 5, 6 and 7 will mark the annual Cherry Blossom Festival sponsored by several area colleges. This year through the efforts of Mr. Thomas Moran, coordinator for the participating schools, Mike Mariani, student coordinator and chairman of the Cherry Blossom Festival Committee, Wilkes College will be actively involved. Also participating will be King's College, College Misericordia, Penn State Extension, Wilkes-Barre Business College and Luzerne County Community College.

The Cherry Blossom Festival, a three-day event, features various booths set up along the River Commons. Some highlights of the weekend include the movies "M-A-S-H" and "Butch Cassidy and The Sundance Kid," a frisbee contest sponsored by the Letterwomen, recitals, a dance in the gym and the Raft Regatta. There is also a possibility of a concert on the River Commons.

The Raft Regatta is perhaps the most popular attraction and takes place on the Susquehanna River from Pittston to Wilkes-Barre. The course is 7.2 miles long with the finish line between North Street and the Market Street Bridge. Entry forms can be obtained from Dean James Moss. Ribbons and trophies will be given out for various events.

Regulations concerning the construction of the raft are as follows: The raft must be a homemade, flat, barge type vehicle of four sides, rectangular or square, but not three or two sided as a rowboat or canoe. It may not have a hull like a ship. The major part should make up the base or framework and may consist of logs, timber, rails, ties, boards, beams, lumber, planks, rafters, barrels or inner tubes. The minor part will consist of fasteners and approved accessories (seats, oars, paddles, poles, sails, etc.) and may consist of any material.

Each raft must be at least 4½ feet wide for its entire length and at least 4½ feet long. It may not have any mechanical devices or means of propulsion. Sails are permitted. Each raft is limited to 4 poles, oars or paddles. Oar locks, rudders, centerboards or other types of fixed attachments are prohibited. Each raft must have a tow line securely attached to the frame by screw eye or bolt (not nails).

The members of the committee are hoping this weekend will be a success. Any class, club or dormitory interested in participating should call activities chairman Jim Fiorino or Mike Mariani.

CAMPUS HAPPENINGS...

In a recent Inter-Dormitory Council meeting, President George Pagliaro discussed, in detail, the rules and regulations that would govern the new Dormitory Visitation Policy.

The policy, which went into effect Wednesday, March 22, was termed an "extended responsibility" for dorm members by President Pagliaro. Violations of this policy brought forth an extended discussion by the members. It was made clear that a violation of the policy encompassed more than a neglect to abide by the determined hours.

A major point stressed was the maintenance of quiet hours. Pagliaro inferred that a lack of cooperation with regard to this point could result in the lifting of weekday visitation.

Failure to sign in, as well as thoughtless inconveniencing by a third party also constitute violations which could be brought before the Judicial Council.

Pagliaro asked male IDC representatives to stress to the men in their dorms the implementation problems involved in instituting visitation in women's dorms and asked that the men on campus cooperate and not make said implementation any more complicated or difficult.

Pagliaro clarified what he meant by "implementation problems" by explaining that women's dormitories will operate on a proctor system in which an assigned woman will be required to sit in the lounge of her house and sign guests in and out. The president also commented that the resident assistants in each house are responsible for the correct procedure employed and implored members to carry this message back to their respective dorms.

Any student who, because of a policy violation, loses his privileges, will not only lose the privilege to entertain guests in his or her room, but will also be unable to visit in any other dormitory room on campus.

Any violation of the visitation policy will be directly reported to the dormitory council who will determine and suggest any punitive action to the Judicial Council, which will make the final decision.

All visitation hours must be posted at each entrance in every dormitory. Failure to do so will result in action taken by the Judicial Council.

more abreast of the functioning of IDC.

In an attempt to solve some of these problems, Auerbach would attempt to plan more social activities such as coffee houses, publishing a monthly or semi-monthly IDC Newsletter and moving weekly IDC meetings to the center lounge of the New Men's Dorm in order to pull in those inhibited students that are hesitant to travel to the Commons for meetings.

With regard to working with the Administration, Auerbach sees little or no problem when dealing with "reasonable" people. His philosophy - "You have to get your foot in the door first and force should only be used when all ends are eliminated."

Opponent to Auerbach in the race for the presidency is junior business administration major James Fiorino from Succasunna, New Jersey.

When approached for a statement, Fiorino smiled and said, "I can't make any promises. I know I can handle the job and only want to move the student body steadily forward."

Fiorino, the present activities chairman of IDC, is looking beyond Wilkes- functioning as a social unit, though he commented on possible improvements with regard
