Tailgating issue unresolved

By SUE MYCARTY
Beacon Staff Writer

Disturbances and arrests at the Wilkes vs. Susquehanna football game on Saturday, Sept. 21, may lead a campus commission to rethink the university's tailgate policy.

The commission, comprised of the director of Alumni Affairs, a public relations department representative, the president of student government, the vice-president of campus development, and the director of campus support services, usually meets two to three times a year.

This year the commission held a special review meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 25, as a result of jeering and taunting from Wilkes students behind the Susquehanna University players bench, arrests for underage drinking, and citations for disorderly conduct to three non-alumni adults in the parking lot.

The disturbance between

Wilkes students and Susquehanna players runs counter to Mid-Atlantic Conference and NCAA regulations regarding sportsmanlike conduct at an athletic contest.

The verbal altercation, which was stopped by Wilkes University Security and Edwardsville police, may lead to disciplinary action from the university.

A frightfully good cause

By COLLEEN HERRON

Get into the Halloween spirit and enter the Devil's Den, ... if you dare.

In preparation for the upcoming Halloween season Wilkes-Barre Area colleges and universities' Circle K Clubs have joined forces to help benefit local charities by sponsoring The Evil Estate.

Students from Wilkes University, King's College, College Misericordia, Penn State's Wilkes-Barre Campus, and Luzerne County Community College decided to respond to a request by the Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Commerce to do the haunted house in hopes of continuing the "College Town" theme.

In past years, the Circle K Clubs at Wilkes and King's were quite successful in raising moneys for local charities. Carrie Bohenick, lieutenant governor of Wilkes University's club reported that an estimated $14,000 was raised within the last three years the ghastly house was in operation.

The Special Olympics, Iodine Deficiency Disorder Organization (IDD), and The Ousterhout Free Library are just a few of the groups that benefited from the hair raising event.

"We simply hope people come out and have a frightfully good time," commented Bohenick.

This year's Evil Estate will be open from Oct. 24th through Oct. 27th and then again from Oct. 29th until Halloween night. Each night the public is welcome to test their fate from 7 until 9:45 p.m. and enjoy knowing they are helping to benefit the welfare of others not as fortunate.

The Evil Estate will be held at the Chamber of Commerce Building, Public Square. There is no admission fee, but adults are asked to donate $4, and children 12 and under are asked to give $2 for area charities.

In cooperation with The Evil Estate, student governments from area colleges are sponsoring a Halloween party Oct. 25th in the lobby of the Kirby Center, Public Square. Food, beverages and over 100 door prizes plan to make this night simply boo-tacular for all who attend. Those with a costume will be admitted for $1, while others will be admitted for $2. If you attend the Evil Estate the same night as the party, you will get in free of charge.

For more information on either event contact Mark Davis, director of university relations @ ext. 4770.

Learn IV set for Oct. 18th

WILKES-BARRE — More than 4,000 kindergarten through university level educators from Luzerne and Wyoming Counties will participate in the extensive and stimulating program workshops that are part of Project LEARN IV, October 18 on the Wilkes University and King's College campuses.

The Theme Development Teams involved in planning for Project LEARN IV were comprised of a diverse mix of individuals involved in local education. Topics to be covered include Chapter five requirements, promising practices and current educational concerns.

Bill Page, motivational speaker will open the program at 8 a.m. with a keynote address at the F.M. Kirby Center for the Performing Arts.

For more information on Project LEARN IV, or to register, call Nancy Davis in the Wilkes University Education Department at (717) 831-4463 or 1-800 WILKES-U ext. 4463.

meeting was held to exchange ideas recommending keeping and improving the tailgating policy.

Wilkes University student Dave Habotski said he didn't notice any disturbance in the parking lot. "I didn't see anything. The handouts we got before the game said we could stay for 45 minutes afterwards, but the Edwardsville police told everyone to go right home," he said.

The handouts, which list Commonwealth laws and university regulations regarding tailgating and the public consumption of alcoholic beverages, are distributed before every home game, along with garbage bags for trash disposal.

According to Jane Lampe-Groh, dean of Alumni affairs, SG president Paula Van Fossen suggested further discussions involve Tri-council representatives and students at large in order to get a better grip on the expectations of the students regarding tailgating.

"We're obviously not on common ground with tailgating," Lampe-Groh said.

Another meeting will be held at the end of the football season to form any recommendations on the policy.

These recommendations will be sent to the general office early in the second semester.

"The concept of tailgating was to have some sandwiches, grill some hamburgers, and if the fan was over 21, have a beer before the game, and give friends and relatives of the players another 45 minutes after the game," Lampe-Groh said. "The concept was not to allow for a four hour party in the parking lot."

Although incidents involving parking lot disturbances have increased since last year, university policy hasn't yet changed regarding security. Wilkes Security, the Edwardsville Police, and private security firms are brought in for every function and athletic contest involving the attendance of more than four or five thousand people.

"Evaluation of the policy is an on-going business," Lampe-Groh said. "Every aspect of this campus and its events must be evaluated regarding any potential changes, particularly if the events are giving you problems."

Student Government Corner

— with Bill Pastewait

Wow!! Was that an incredible weekend or what??? Thank you to all who helped out and participated in this past weekend's Homecoming Activities. Congratulations to all of the sports teams for a great weekend, and to this year's Homecoming King and Queen, Dave Clancy and Paula Van Fossen.

Well, the next big Student Government event is Casino Night on Friday, November 15. Come out and get that Atlantic City type atmosphere, blackjack, roulette and the wheels. Prizes will be auctioned off for the winners. But if you are feeling really lucky, pack your bags, and bring it to the event, because you could win an all-expense paid trip to NYC for the weekend. That's right, all you have to do is pack a bag and bring it and you are entered. A limousine will be waiting for the winner and a guest after Casino Night to ship them away for a fun-filled weekend in the Big Apple.

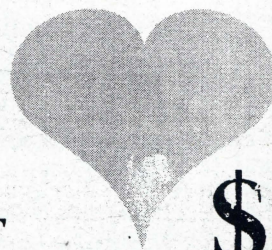

But until then, here are some other things you may want to check out that are happening around the campus.

October 22, 1996: There will be a block captains' meeting for all students interested in becoming block captains for the campus crime watch program. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. in the media room of the library.

October 25, 1996: The Wilkes-Barre Community will be having a Halloween Party for the local college campuses in the area at the Kirby Center from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Cost is $2 if you don't wear a costume and $1 if you do. It's early, it won't take up your whole night, there will be food, and it's bound to be a lot of fun. If you want this community to continue promoting the college town atmosphere, then grab yourself a costume, and get to this event.

That's it from me for the week. One more congratulations goes to Lisa McClintock for Student Government Representative of the Month for September. Way to go Lisa, keep up the good work. I know its Fall Break but if you are around this weekend get to the game on Saturday to see Wilkes play Kings in football. Have a good break.

Attitude makes the difference

"The longer I live, the more I realize the impact of attitude on life. Attitude to me, is more important than the past, than education, than money, than circumstances, than failures, than successes, than what other people think or say or do. It is more important than appearance, giftedness or skill. It will make or break a company... a church... a home. The remarkable thing is we have a choice every day regarding the attitude we will embrace for that day. We cannot change our past... we cannot change the fact that people will act in a certain way. We cannot change the inevitable. The only thing we can do is play of the one string we have, and that is our attitude... I am convinced that life is 10% what happens to me and 90% how I react to it. And so it is with you... we are in charge of our attitudes." —Charles Swindoll.

In my freshman year of college my dad sent this to me one day in the mail. Although it's been hanging on my wall since then, it wasn't until today that I got the true meaning behind these few words of wisdom.

Basically what I've learned is that attitude is something we all possess. However, we make the choice whether or not our attitude will be positive or negative. Throughout life we will all experience many ups and downs that will challenge us. And with these challenges we can do one of two things. We can let the problems take over our lives or we can learn from our mistakes and move on.

Everything in our life goes back to three central words: It goes on. In 1914, Thomas Edison's manufacturing facilities were severely damaged by a fire. In this fire, he lost nearly one million dollars' worth of equipment as well as all the records he kept. But the next morning, Edison simply said, "There is value in disaster. All our mistakes are burned up. Now we can start anew." Can you imagine what our world would have been today if Edison said "I can't" rather than "I'll try?"

When confronted by failure, disappointment or rejection, it's easy to walk away and give up. And sometimes when we're down, some people will kick us even harder. It is then that we must adjust our attitude, hold our heads high and try our hardest to hold on. We have total control of our attitudes. It can either make us or break us. The choice is ours.

The Near Side with Rick Tym

Game 2, American League Championship Series. The Yankees are down to the Baltimore Orioles, in desperate need of a rally. A pitch is hit and the crowd roars as the ball streaks their way, the ball determined to make its way out of the park. Seemingly a home run...so a ten year old boy sticks out his hand, hoping to catch a little of the American pastime. He actually reaches in a bit, hanging ever so slightly over the railing which separates the fans from the playing field. The ball is almost caught; the boy drops it, and a more enthusiastic (actually, probably obsessed, but we'll get to that later) fan snatches the ball from the stands.

Fan interference, ladies and gentleman. It seems to be the only thing the sports world is focused on, especially now that the Yanks have ended the Orioles World Series hopes. The outraged fans call for justice, saying that the ball would not have been out had the little boy not reached for it. But the umpires rule it a home run, and the Yankees squeak by the Orioles, putting another stone behind them in their quest for the pennant. But here's the thing: when fans come to the stadium to see their favorite teams play the game, why do you think they're carrying gloves with them? It's not because they're going to use them as a seat cushion. So for all you out there still griping about fan interference and how the Yankees should not have been given the home run, put a sock in it. It happens. It happened again in a later game in the ALCS, when a ball bounced over an Orioles' outfielder and was snatched by a fan. Could he have made the play? Doesn't matter...the play was ruled as a double, and the game went on. The game has to go on, unless baseball is going to adopt an instant replay system.

And what about the boy, who seemingly won a major league baseball game at the age of 10? He didn't even get to keep the ball. The other fan who got the ball after it was deflected by the child called the boy's home the next day, saying that he could get the ball back "for the right price". I'll tell you what — that guy should be ashamed of himself. Steinbrenner should have bought the ball back for the 10 year old. Poor kid. Or, maybe not — word around the campfire is that the boy has season tickets next year, along with getting some pretty nifty box seats for the remainder of the now past American League Championship Series. I think he even got to be on Regis and Kathy Lee the next day. Good for him — he certainly deserves it.

As you can all see after reading this, I did not discuss Commonwealth Long Distance this week. I am meeting this week with some of their representatives to discuss some things before running the article. Sooner or later, I'm sure the article will be run. I didn't think that many people were paying attention to this weekly piece. I'm glad someone is, though — for better or worse. As always, any comments, questions or suggestions, you know where to reach me. I hope everyone has a good Fall Break; enjoy the day off while you can, before it gets too cold out. Hang in there, everyone, and we'll talk again next week.

Scholarships offered to prospective college students include Type 1 covering all tuition and fees, Type 2 worth up to $9,000 per year with an additional $1,000 subsidy offered by Wilkes University and targeted scholarships usually directed at state supported schools.

In addition, Wilkes University, and King's College provide free room and board for ROTC scholarship cadets entering these institutions.

This year's AFROTC scholarship application deadline for high school students graduating in 1997 is December 1, 1996. Interested students should contact the local Air Force Recruiter for applications.

Many Cadets enroll in Air Force ROTC after entering college, upon learning of the Scholarship Actions Program available to college freshman and sophomore students already enrolled in college.

Lt. Col. Greco stated, "we still have capacity for at least 20 more cadets, and our department staff is prepared for more as word gets out about the opportunities and scholarships we have to offer here."

The scholarship offers are valued at up to $15,000 a year for college freshman and sophomores at Wilkes University and twelve other cross-town universities and colleges in northeast Pennsylvania.

In addition, all scholarship recipients receive $150 a month tax-free stipend (spending money), plus free room and board for students transferring to Wilkes and King's. Sophomores will not get this opportunity again next year. You must have two years of schooling remaining to take advantage of this offer and you must apply early enough this year to be selected to attend summer field training.

College students can attend the cross-town institution of their choice, while simultaneously attending fully accredited Air Force ROTC classes at Wilkes University one day a week.

These cross-town institutions are: Bloomsburg, Keystone, King's, Lackawanna Jr., Luzerne County Community, Marywood, Misericordia, Penn State Hazleton, Penn State Scranton, Penn State Wilkes-Barre, University of Scranton, and East Stroudsburg.

Students at these institutions should contact their school's registrar office for details.

Lt. Col. Greco explained that Air Force ROTC is looking for students with a "well-rounded" background including academics, athletics, extra-curricular activities, and part-time work experience, while placing a great deal of importance on leadership experiences.

"Air Force ROTC will then enhance these same qualities with outstanding leadership training and activities to prepare the Cadet for duty as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Air Force."

He went further to say that, "as a Second Lieutenant, your starting base pay will be approximately $25,000 a year, while receiving 30 days vacation with pay each year."

Greco noted that for regional students who want to pursue an Air Force ROTC scholarship and subsequent commission with the U.S. Air Force, Wilkes University is "the place to be."

Scholarship interviews are currently underway at Air Force ROTC, Wilkes University, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania.

To schedule an interview, or receive more information, contact Lt. Col. Greco, or Captain Stewart, or receive more information contact Lt. Col. Greco, or Captain Stewart, Unit Admissions Officer at 1-800-945-5378, extension 4860; or write AFROTC Detachment 752, Wilkes University, Slocum Hall, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania 18766-0001.

Wilkes field hockey clinches playoff berth

By STEVE ROTH
Beacon Staff Writer

The never-say-die Lady Colonels were victorious over a very physical Gettysburg team, 1-0 on Thursday, and a resilient Delaware Valley squad, 2-1 on Saturday, in an affair that was decided in overtime.

Senior forward Tonya Masenheimer's persistence gave the Lady Colonels an overtime victory over MAC rivals Delaware Valley and a MAC playoff berth.

Her unassisted goal at the 8:44 mark of the extra period defeated an Aggie team that was running smoothly on all cylinders, while the Lady Colonels seemed to be sputtering along at half power. "Going into overtime, I told the girls to give everything they had left," said Head Coach Addy Malatesta. We played tired and flat all day. We couldn't get our feet under us to get going."

The Lady Colonels were playing their fourth game in seven days. "We're going to take a few days off to re-group and heal from a couple of injuries," said Malatesta.

Despite their fatigued condition, the Lady Colonels broke a scoreless tie with 10:51 remaining in the first half, when Carrie Chipeco scored her 10th goal of the season.

However, less than two minutes later, the Aggies struck back when Melinda Ormsbee scored off a penalty corner to tie the game.

A back hander off the stick of Masenheimer gave Wilkes the overtime win.

"Carrie just passed it, and I got the shot off," said Masenheimer.

Two days earlier, the Lady Colonels defeated an intense Gettysburg.

"They were mean," said Chipeco. "But we were mean right back."

Chipeco displayed her aggression by scoring the games' only goal with just 5:25 remaining, after being sidelined for five minutes due to a mouth injury.

"My first shot was blocked by the goalie's pads," said Chipeco. "Then I got the rebound and knocked it in."

Chipeco has been in a scoring zone lately. She's scored a goal in four out of the past five games, including a hat-trick in Wilkes' 5-0 victory over Susquehanna last Tuesday.

As it's done the entire season, the Lady Colonel's defense came up big once again. Defender Heather Evanish was in the face of the Bullets leading scorer, Tedra Fazendeiro the entire game, denying her any formidable scoring chances.

The defense as a whole played very strong. Especially in the first half, when Gettysburg had control in their offensive zone for over five minutes. Noell Brooks, Jeannette Uhl and Lee Meyers cleared consecutive penalty corners to hinder the Gettysburg offense.

Goalies, Tracy Engle and Pam Truszkowski combined for the shutout. In fact, Truszkowski had the shutout in the 5-0 victory over Susquehanna.

"Pam has played very well in practice," said Malatesta. "We're trying to give her some playing time." The combination of two talented goalies could be an important asset for the Lady Colonels in the post-season.

Banter in the Booth

with Michael Noone

Baseball is a kid's game. Never was that more clear than in the eighth inning of Game 1 of the American League Championship Series, when 12-year-old Jeffrey Maier got his glove on a ball hit by Yankee Derek Jeter and knocked it away from the Orioles' Tony Tarasco. The umpires called it a home run instead of fan interference, and the Yankees eventually went on to win the American League pennant in five games.

Immediately young Maier was a darling of the New York press. "Angel in the Outfield" was the headline in The New York Post. Maier even upstaged the presidential campaign. A new star was born in New York, a kid who plays little league in New Jersey. Maier didn't hold onto the ball, but it didn't matter as far as Yankee fans were concerned. Maier was treated like a hero during Game 2 of the ALCS. He was given seats directly behind the Yankees dugout. He signed autographs for his adoring fans and he was honored by chants of "Jeff-rey, Jeff-rey" by the New York faithful.

Now the Yankees will be in the World Series for the first time in 15 years and all of Maier's life. Enjoy the Series, Jeffrey, but you probably should stay out of Baltimore for the next couple of years.

Colonels come back to win over Juniata

Quarterback Boo Perry and receiver Mike Gundersdorf combined for 22 fourth quarter points as Wilkes came back to defeat Juniata College 28-27 for a thrilling Homecoming victory. With the win, the Colonels improved to 4-1 on the season and kept their playoff hopes alive.

Juniata jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead when quarterback Anthony Molinaro hit receiver Jason Falvo for a 67 yard touchdown on the Eagles first play from the scrimmage. The point after attempt by Mike Pringle failed.

The Eagles continued the scoring in the second quarter when running back Jim Rivello scored from the six.

Wilkes got on the scoreboard when fullback Larry Zellars scored on a one-yard run. The Colonels trailed 12-6 at half-time.

On the opening possession of the second half, Rivello scored the second of his three touchdowns. Rivello also caught the two-point conversion pass, giving Juniata a 20-6 lead.

The Colonels entered the fourth quarter down by 14 points but refused to roll over and die. Gundersdorf caught a 65 yard touchdown pass from Perry to cap off a three play 76 yard drive. The Colonels' two point conversion attempt failed and Juniata had a 20-12 lead.

Juniata answered the Wilkes touchdown when Rivello burst into the endzone from four yards out to finish off a four play 66-yard drive. Rivello would finish the day with 130 yards on 25 carries. Pringle's extra point gave the Eagles a seemingly insurmountable 27-12 lead with less than nine minutes remaining in the game.

However, Perry and Gundersdorf were just getting warmed up. A nine play 86-yard drive resulted in a 40 yard touchdown pass from Perry to Gundersdorf. Gundersdorf then caught the two-point conversion to make the score 27-20 with 4:13 left in the game.

The Wilkes defense then came up with an important stop in the clutch. The Colonels held the Eagles to three plays and forced Juniata to punt. A confident Wilkes offense then took over on its own 29, with 2:31 left in the game and two timeouts remaining.

The game came down to a fourth and 19 for the Colonels on their own 31 with 1:26 remaining. After a timeout, Perry dropped back and was forced to scramble and found Gundersdorf down field behind the Juniata secondary. Gundersdorf caught the pass in stride and streaked into the end zone for a 69-yard touchdown that pulled the Colonels within one point at 27-26.

Wilkes coach Frank Sheptock did not hesitate to go for the two point conversion and the win. Perry took the snap, rolled to his right, froze the defense with a pump fake and ran across the goal line untouched for the Colonels' first lead of the day.

Juniata had one last possession and just over one minute left to try to ruin Wilkes' homecoming. The Eagles advanced the ball to the Wilkes 31-yard line with 28 seconds remaining in the game. However, cornerback Tulio Santiago intercepted a Molinaro pass on the one-yard line to preserve the comeback win.

Perry finished the game 21-36 for 298 yards and three touchdowns. Gundersdorf set Wilkes records for the most touchdowns in a career and most points in a career. Gundersdorf finished with 254 yards on 13 receptions and three scores.

This Saturday the Colonels take on cross town rival King's College at Monarch Field at 1:30 p.m. Wilkes has defeated the Monarchs each of the three years since their rivalry was renewed.
