

Homecoming Concert Set Earl Scruggs Revue To End Activities

Staff Plans 27th Yearbook

Key editorial and business personnel of the 1974 Amnicola — the Wilkes College yearbook — already have begun organizing assignments for members of the staff that will put out the publication for the 27th year.

Shown discussing plans for the layout of the book, pictorial content, class pictures and various special sections are, left to right — Helen Evancho, Freeland, business manager; June Beerish, Larksville, and Susan Zbegner, Wilkes-Barre, co-editors.

The publication will contain the photographs and biographical data on more than 500 persons who will receive their degrees in the Commencement ceremony scheduled for Sunday, May 26.

Homecoming Queen Selection Postponed Until Later Today

Elections for the Homecoming Queen and her court, previously scheduled for Tuesday, have been cancelled. Elections will be held today.

A misunderstanding occurred between those running for the position, and the ballot box was not available.

A male senior, Lionel Green, planned to be a write-in candidate. This phenomenon led Student Government to adopt a resolution that future queens be a senior and female. If Green does run, he would be automatically disqualified.

John Barrett decided to campaign for Green to stir up interest in Homecoming Queen elections and to clarify the necessary qualifications for Homecoming Queen. He noted that his point of clarification was not taken by the body at the last SG meeting.

Foreseeing that President Nixon may veto the Labor — Health — Education and Welfare Appropriations Bill, SG moved that it would send letters of protest to Representatives Hugh Scott and Dan Flood. If vetoed, four million dollars worth of federal student financial aid would no longer be available.

Student Government has approved establishment of a Freshmen Unity Committee. This committee, established by two freshmen, Leon Gondel and Grant Phillips, is to establish, provide and maintain college spirit at pep rallies and other student affairs. The committee will concentrate their efforts on the freshman class.

Student Government will offer a $15 gift certificate, redeemable at Moondance Record Shop, Public Square, to the winner of the contest SG is sponsoring on WCLH. Guesses may be unlimited, provided contestants enter their name and address on each index card. "Wilkes is where it's at," is the clue.

Tickets for the Homecoming Concert featuring Earl Scruggs and John Hartford are available at the CPA, 10 a.m.-3 p.m., and at the New Men's Dorm, 4-7 weekdays. Tickets are free with Wilkes I.D., others $4. Sales end October 12. Tickets for the Dinner Dance at the Treadway are in the bookstore, price $15 per couple, and includes buffet and open bar.

A Pocono Downs party is planned for October 20. Costumes are required and a prize will be issued to the holder of the best costume. Premium beer (Schlitz or Budweiser), chips, pretzels and candy are on the menu. Price will be $2.50.

SG discussed joining working with the National Student Lobby, a worthwhile organization. The group is a lobbyist group.

SG is recruiting students who wish to travel with Bernie Vinovski, assistant director of admissions, and "sell Wilkes College as a student" at the high schools that Vinovski visits. These trips would be of one-day duration.

Student Government has decided that all members of the faculty, staff and Administration are cordially invited to all SG affairs. SG retains the right to re-evaluate this ticket policy at any time. Due to the current economic situation, the members will pay for their tickets.

ATTENTION FRESHMEN

Freshmen who have received National Direct Student Loans for the 1973-74 academic year may now sign for them at the Finance Office in Parrish Hall, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The final event of the 1973 Homecoming will be a concert by the Earl Scruggs Revue and John Hartford on Sunday, October 14, at 8 p.m., in the Wilkes College Gymnasium on South Franklin Street.

Tickets will be available Monday, October 8, through Friday, October 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Center for the Performing Arts. Tickets will also be available at the University of Scranton, Misericordia College, and the music shop, Moondance, located on Public Square.

Other student activities for the weekend include a bonfire on Thursday and a dinner dance to be held at the Treadway on Friday the 12th. Dorm parties for the students will be held Saturday evening.

Rick Simonson '69, general chairman of Homecoming Weekend, and Art Hoover '55, director of Alumni Affairs, have completed the final plans and the weekend is slated for several activities.

To launch the 26th annual homecoming will be the judging of campus displays on Friday, October 12, by an alumni committee comprised of Sandra Bloomberg '71 and Matt Kopetchny '69.

A "Homecoming Huddle" for the grads will be held at 9 p.m. in the Hotel Sterling to get tuned up for Saturday's hectic events.

Some of the features of the "Huddle" include refreshments, pep rally, songfest and films of last year's Wilkes-Upsala grid encounter. Coordinating the festivities are J.J. Jarzenbowicz '59, Joe McGraw '69, Marcella Vinovski '70 and Joann Wargo '72.

A "Majors Meeting" has been set aside for Saturday morning to give the alumni a chance to meet informally with the faculty from their old area of majors.

Rounding up the morning's schedule will be a soccer match, pairing the Colonel booters of Thomas Rokita versus Stevens Tech. Starting time is 11 a.m.

The annual pigskin battle between the Colonels and the Vikings of Upsala is slated for 1:30 at Ralston Field. The game is crucial in the Middle Atlantic Conference champion race.

Running in conjunction with the football tilt will be the Wilkes College cross-country team in action against Rider. The 4.7-mile race will start and end at Ralston Field.

National Alumni President Reese Jones '56 and Rick Simonson '69 will participate in half-time activities, which present the new Homecoming queen and her court of princesses.

Following the game, the schedule turns to the Artillery Park practice field, where alumni can recall the day's events at a "Fifth Quarter" gathering. Refreshments will be available. Garf Jones '72, Bill Dongas '69 and Pat Ratchford '73 are the directors of the event.

To fill the 6:30 to 9 p.m. time slot, an optional smorgasbord will be served at the Hotel Sterling. It will be a reunion year for the members of the 1938, 1943, 1948, 1953, 1958, 1963 and 1968 graduating classes.

The busy Saturday's activities will

Editorially Speaking

The following letter was written to James Torbik, editor of the Beacon by Dr. Francis Michelini, president of the college, in response to the lead story in the September 27 issue of the Beacon:

Dr. Michelini writes:
Dear Jim:

I would like to congratulate you and the many students who have been involved in doing the research and reporting for the Beacon. It is always easy for those not involved in such activities to be critical at times by failing to recognize that such service is an extra curricular activity performed by students learning to develop the skills of journalism.

My letter is not intended to be critical of the reporting or writing of the lead article in the September 27 issue which described the work of the admissions office and the general discussion of programs and reasons for student selection of the College. However, the sub-title indicating that enrollment is stable should be clarified.

We are indeed running contrary to state and national trends where enrollment losses in many private colleges in Pennsylvania are averaging 10 per cent and where community colleges and state institutions are also experiencing severe shifts in enrollment patterns. The final figures for Wilkes enrollment this semester are somewhat below 2300 full-time day students. This figure represents a drop of approximately 5 per cent from last year's enrollment and is considerably lower than might have been expected.

The reasons for enrollment changes are complex and range from varying attitudes of the general public with respect to the value of higher education to a post-draft situation, a changing market situation for graduates, and most significantly a changing financial situation for students as costs increase and sources of funding decrease.

At Wilkes in particular, where 73 per cent of our students receive financial aid, the decision to pursue opportunities in higher education is frequently linked to the nature of the financial aid package available to students. There has been considerable national concern expressed by educators about the shift in the nature of federal student aid and the changes in criteria being employed in the evaluation of eligibility for such aid. Our financial aid officers have been reevaluating all aid packages and sources of aid to enable us to accurately assess the needs of students in light of constantly changing criteria. Secretary Pittenger at a meeting in the area on September 21 indicated that increased state efforts will be made to WRITE ON Parking Problem Solution?

To the Editor,

Your editorial of 27 September ("Parking Still A Problem") has finally motivated me to formalize a reply to the parking situation for the students of Wilkes College.

For one year I've watched the students passively accept the hundreds of traffic tickets they receive from the local police. To me they are being "bled" of their scarce dollars and are being exploited when they infuse thousands of dollars into the local economy. It continues to amaze me that this generation of students who are heirs to Watts, Detroit, Newark and other such tactics have accepted this state of affairs.

In hopes of stirring up action, I will propose the following plan. Adopt guerilla tactics to counter this attitude on the part of the local constabulary and local government officials.

Step I — Insist that Wilkes College issue student decals to be placed on a specific location on the student's car.

Step II — Take a deposit of $5.00 for that decal.

Step III — The Commuter Council establishes a schedule of vigilante patrols made up of community students.

Step IV — Arm each vigilante with a pocketful of nickles and a notebook.

Step V — Assign each vigilante to a street where Wilkes College students park.

Step VI — During their scheduled patrolling period the vigilante looks for parking meters about to run out of time. He checks to see if the car has a Wilkes student decal; if so, he puts a nickel in the meter and puts the decal number in his notebook.

Step VII — The Commuter Council keeps accounts of funds expended against decal numbers. All charges under $5.00 are returned; all charges over $5.00 are added to the student's college bill. As students are identified who abuse or take advantage of the system, they are refused decals and left to battle the parking problem on their own.

Step VIII — The Commuter Council

Stambaugh's Meeting With Authority Postponed Until Tuesday, October 16

At the regular meeting of Commuter Council, it was announced that the meeting scheduled for October 10 between the Parking Authority and Mike Stambaugh was postponed until October 16.

Commuter Opinion sheets have been distributed by representatives of the Council. Any commuting student did not receive an Opinion Sheet can obtain one from any member of the Council.

On October 4 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Commons, a run-off election between Tom Uren and Marjorie Gottlieb will be held. Also, elections for junior class representative will be held. All commuting students from the respective classes are urged to vote.

Commuter Council has been allotted airtime on Monday from 5:05 to 5:15 p.m. on radio station WCLH for its own use. Each week a member of the Council will be featured, with Mike Stambaugh, president of the Council, slated to be the first speaker.

Parents' Day on the campus is to be held on November 10. All interested students who would like to volunteer as student guides or would like to help in any way can either give their name to a C.C. representative or attend the next meeting of C.C.

It was proposed that the amount of members of C.C. will be increased in each class from five to possibly six or seven members.

It was suggested that a bazaar similar to the one held at Cherry Blossom Time could be initiated for Homecoming. The possibility of this suggestion is being looked into by President Mike Stambaugh.

Commuter Council acts as a sounding board for commuter complaints. However, it seems that when given the opportunity to voice their complaints at C.C. meetings, little interest is shown. Announcements were placed in the Commons inviting all commuter students to attend the meeting, but only one student was in attendance. He asked that possibly another bike rack be placed in the vicinity of Commons. The Council will see if this could be done.

In relation to this and commuter complaints, Commuter Council is initiating as a part of meeting agenda the "Sounding Board." The "Sounding Board" gives commuting students a chance to express their opinions and on what they feel the Council should look into.

In other announcements, Bill Petrusca is available for counseling. Also, all day students should have their I.D.s updated.

The next scheduled meeting of C.C. will be held on the second of the Commons, Thursday, October 4, at 6 p.m.

In One Man's Opinion

FIRST AID TEAM

One of the most worthwhile organizations on campus, which is relatively unknown to the majority of students, is the First Aid Team.

The First Aid Team was organized last year by the class of 1976. So far the team, with the exception of two members, is all sophomores. The team is a sub-committee of the Human Services Committee which has Dr. Turoci as its advisor.

The team's 25 members are all student-oriented and organized, and the squad is expecting a larger turnout this year. The team's first training meeting is sometime after October 7, and if any freshmen or upperclassmen are interested, they may contact Captain Mark Letavish at 823-9953.

The Wilkes First Aid Team is strictly voluntary and is trained by the American Red Cross. To be qualified to administer first aid with the team, one must undergo two courses taught by the Red Cross. The first course is a standard 10-hour course that the student must successfully complete before moving to the second course, which is an advanced 16-hour course.

Upon completion of these two courses, the trainee then becomes certified by the American Red Cross to practice first aid anywhere in Pennsylvania because of the Good Samaritan Act which states if a person becomes qualified by the Red Cross, then he can lawfully practice first aid.

Sophomores John Barrett, chairman of the Human Services Committee, and Mark Letavish, captain of the First Aid Team, are the remaining organizers of the First Aid Team, which has an array of activities that they perform. Some of these activities include donating blood and helping the Red Cross during Blood Donor Day, volunteer work for the Red Cross, work for the Wilkes-Barre Disaster Service and Wilkes Community Effort, and this year they will run the highly successful March of Dimes WALKATHON.

Right now the First Aid Team covers most of the college's sporting events. They cover and will cover football, soccer, wrestling, basketball, lacrosse and baseball. Insurance-wise, the squad is supported by the American Red Cross. It is highly unlikely that the squad could be involved in a lawsuit, because they are not like a doctor and do not perform the services that a doctor might do. They just serve as a back-up until professional medical help arrives. Their primary functions are to stop bleeding, minimize pain (without medication) and prepare for transportation.

They also serve as a back-up for the school nurse. The team members live in all parts of the campus and if, for example, an accident occurred in Chapman Hall, the team would have a member living in Chapman, and that member would try to make the injured person comfortable until the school nurse arrives. After the nurse comes, their job is done.

Thanks to Student Government, the First Aid Team was able to purchase about $1,000 worth of equipment to aid them in their work. All members have first aid kits, and each of the five captains have larger industrial first aid kits. They also have an orthopedic stretcher, demand resuscitator and an air splint.

The team supports 25 members, five of which are captains, and are available 24 hours daily. Most of the members are biology majors, but any student can join regardless of his major.

The First Aid Team will cover injuries occurring in dormitories, but the full-scale organization of that coverage is in the early stages of operation.

According to a team spokesman, "We would like to get at least one member from every dorm on campus." Each member will eventually have a special first aid sticker on their doors so that students and Resident Assistants can call on them for help when needed.

The five elected officers of the squad are as follows: Mark Letavish, captain, (Webster); Mary Ann Rusnak, (Delaware); Joe Marchetti, (Dirksen); Bill Finley, (Dirksen) and Charles Munson, (Diaz).

The members of the First Aid Team are extremely dedicated to their work and school. They can be a determining factor of a person's health, where immediate care is necessary. They spend countless hours working within the school and community. Anyone interested in becoming involved in a worthwhile group should join this one. Wilkes College should be thankful they exist.

Weight Gain Okay During Pregnancy

Contrary to general practice, Dr. Myron Winick, director of the Institute of Human Nutrition at Columbia University, advises women to gain between 20 and 35 pounds during pregnancy to safeguard the health of their unborn babies.

Quoted in the current issue of Feminine Fitness magazine, Dr. Winick warns against weight-losing diets during the prenatal period no matter how overweight the woman is.

"Diets during the period can reduce a baby's birth weight to a dangerously low level for survival," concludes the doctor in the Feminine Fitness article, "and malnutrition could seriously retard cellular growth, causing damage to the infant brain."

COLONELS ON RADIO

WBRE, 1320 on the AM dial, is in its eighth year of broadcasting Colonel football games. Their next broadcast is the Colonels' encounter with Moravian on Saturday. Joe Gries handles the play-by-play.

Take Small Bites

The National Safety Council of America estimates that 2500 Americans choke to death on food each year — making food inhalation the sixth leading cause of accidental death.

And yet, write two physicians in the July 12 issue of "The New England Journal of Medicine," even doctors are unaware that many sudden deaths during meals are caused not by heart attacks but by people choking on a piece of meat. "This may explain why," write Dr.

William Eller and Dr. Roger Haugen of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., "a physician in a restaurant recently tried to give a choking victim mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, which is the equivalent of trying to pour water into a corked bottle...the victim of the 'heart attack' goes to his grave with a chunk of meat still lodged in his throat and the surviving spouse never receives the double indemnity insurance benefits due for accidental death."

In their article, "Food Asphyxiation—Restaurant Rescue," Dr. Eller, 58, a gynecologist, and Dr. Haugen, 50, a pathologist, both practicing at Holy Cross Hospital in Fort Lauderdale, reveal that the size of the pieces of meat people try to swallow is indeed amazing. "The average size approximates that of a pack of cigarettes, and the largest piece encountered at autopsy was over eight inches long.

Dr. Eller says, "I know it's difficult to believe, but we've found on autopsy one woman who used to swallow whole potatoes. It's absolutely incredible what people will gulp down. Roger (Haugen) and I have discovered that many restaurant victims are wearers of badly-fitting dentures, or they insist upon eating without their dentures. They get to the point where they are swallowing larger and larger pieces of food until one day they swallow a piece that's too large, and if they're unlucky, they choke to death."

Suppose you are dining with a friend, and a piece of meat is lodged in his throat, you can often extract it by simply reaching down his throat and grasping it from the windpipe with the middle and index fingers of your hand.

According to Drs. Eller and Haugen, slapping the victim on the back is frequently a waste of time, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation before the obstruction is removed is futile, waiting for an ambulance is another waste of time, "To our knowledge," they say, "no one with an obstructed airway has survived a trip to the nearest hospital."

Some restaurants, Dr. Eller is glad to report, are equipped with a curved plastic tweezer which he invented some years ago. It's called a "Choke-saver," is marketed by Dyna-Med, Inc. (P.O. Box 2157 Leucadia, Calif. 92024, and sells for $5.95.)

The tweezer is inserted into the throat, and when squeezed, grasps the meat and is then withdrawn as one removes a splinter with a pair of tweezers.

"The best thing," Eller advises, "is to cut your meat into small rectangular pieces, to chew well and to eat slowly."

Bad Food Choices Yield Malnutrition

There are more persons in the U.S. suffering from malnutrition because of ignorance than because of poverty, according to Dr. George V. Mann of the Nutrition Division of Vanderbilt University.

It is standard to blame poverty for malnutrition, and although lack of money does have something to do with it, studies have shown that many malnourished people make bad food choices, to fill up on artificially sweetened soda.

For example, it's pretty obvious The importance of nutrition in that fruit juices have more nutrition health and increasing the life span at less cost than soft drinks. But the was pointed out clearly in a experience of managers of the five-year study in Guatemala. Martin Luther King food co-op in School children in one village Washington, D.C. has been that in received food supplements, while spite of attempts to educate poor those in another village received people about the relative nutritional special medical care, health merits and cost, they still choose education, improved water supply so-called "fruit" drinks, which contain little fruit and no nutritional served as a control.

Thus, they may two programs were about equal in persuade a child who needs a glass reducing the death rate.

Housing Directors Review Posts

Jansky Enjoys Key Position

by Marianne Montague

"I'm really excited about being here."

Miss Lynn Jansky, new assistant dean for residence life is very enthusiastic about coming to Wilkes. Along with Mr. Steve Placko, Miss Jansky is in charge of the campus housing program. From her office in the lobby of Pickering Hall, Miss Jansky supervises the women's halls and R.A.'s. Miss Jansky and Mr. Placko also hold combined workshops with the men's residences and R.A.s to discuss problems pertinent to both the men's and women's dorms.

Miss Jansky has been active in housing for four years. She received her B.S. in mathematics at Frostburg State College in Maryland and her Master of Arts in student personnel administration at Ball State University in Muncy, Indiana. She was involved in housing part-time during school.

She most recently served as a counselor in an 800-women residence hall at Western Carolina University in North Carolina. She became interested in Wilkes because of its "unique housing program" and because Wilkes has some "really nice places to live—comfortable and homelike." She feels that Wilkes dorms, which are comparable to houses, create a better atmosphere for living as opposed to the high-rise dormitory where she worked in North Carolina.

Miss Jansky hails from Baltimore, Maryland. She enjoys outdoor sports and likes to "keep active."

Paintings Shown By Miss Richards

An accomplished artist, Miss Sabra Richards, is showing her paintings today and tomorrow at the Conyngham Art Gallery, South Franklin Street, Wilkes-Barre.

The exhibition is open to the public, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Miss Richards has received several awards and honors for her works.

Among her awards are: the 1972 Painting Prize, Syracuse University, N.Y.; the 1972-73 Museum Prize, Arnot Art Museum, Elmira, N.Y.; and the Purchase Prize, Central N.Y. Art Open, DeWitt, N.Y.

Exhibitions of her paintings were displayed in some of the top museums in the northeast: Robertson Center for the Arts and Sciences, Binghamton, N.Y.; Avanti Gallery National Competition, N.Y.C.; Gallery Rome, Rome, N.Y.; and the Catskill National Painting and Sculpture Show, Liberty, N.Y.

Exhibitions of her paintings were

Wilkes College has two new faces on campus, as far as the housing of students is concerned. Steve Placko, pictured above on the left, and Miss Lynn Jansky, from their offices in Pickering Hall, handle all activities concerned with dorming of Wilkes College students.

Placko, a 1969 graduate of Duquesne University where he received his B.S. degree, went on to study at Hofstra where he garnered his M.S. degree in counseling and guidance.

Miss Jansky, who states she is excited about her new position, received her education from Frostburg State College and Ball State University in Muncy, Indiana.

The housing office is in charge of some 700 dorm students.

assist in developing supplemental financing where federal program guideline changes have created an unusual differential for students. It remains to be seen what form this increased assistance will take in the Commonwealth.

Our general first-year admissions also dropped slightly from the pattern of the past few years. In light of the situation at the College in the fall of 1972 immediately following the flood, it is a tribute to the hard work of many people that we were able to overcome the negative image of the post-flood damages to the college. Our community was not the most attractive environment for parents or prospective students.

The most significant loss, however, came with non-returning students and, to the best of our knowledge, the determining factor in these decisions was financial. Many families who suffered extensive damage had special flood assistance last year that enabled their educational costs to be met. However, many of these same families are now involved in repayment of SBA loan obligations and many of the special benefits of rent subsidy and flood scholarship subsidy have terminated. We have talked to Secretary Pittenger about the needs over the next few years of the students whose families are in these situations and in addition have campaigned for additional funds to be used for supplemental scholarship aid. Unfortunately, many students eligible for such consideration do not communicate with the financial aid office before making the decision to drop out for a period of time. Our hope is that these students will be returning to complete their education as every effort will be made to provide the assistance necessary to do so.

We made the decision last year to maintain tuition at the 1972 level, although this has made it extremely difficult to develop a balanced budget. We have maintained a level of salary increases for faculty and staff that is essential in this inflationary economy. The only way to increase the revenues available for meeting these increases is through greater efficiency and economy of operation. Students can help by cleaning their own rooms, and utilizing trash bins on campus; this will minimize the maintenance time required for cleaning up around the buildings. These seem like such simple things and, yet, a considerable amount of the operating cost of the College is based on how conscientiously the students will recognize their interest in the College operation.

Management consultants have been at work for the past three months in developing more efficient methods of servicing the College's many operational requirements. Despite all of these efforts, it is quite certain that tuition increases will be required for 1974. Our tuition charge is still significantly lower than most of the other private institutions in the Commonwealth. Within the realistic requirements of budgeting, every effort will be made to keep such increases as small as possible.

I hope this communication will provide some additional insight into the over-all operation of the College. Many people in higher education today can only cry "doom and gloom" for the future. I believe we at Wilkes have an optimistic view of the future based on the realization that human society can never go backward in time and that the expanded knowledge and skill required to function in our contemporary society places a greater demand on higher education and will continue to put a premium upon the individual prepared to make a contribution to society with the added intelligent understanding that comes from higher education.

Once again, my thanks to all of your student reporters who have been doing such a conscientious job.

Sincerely yours,
Francis J. Michelini

Kosher Kitchen Idea Raised At IDC

by Chuck Riechers

The possibility of providing a kosher kitchen was raised and discussed at the Inter-Dormitory Council meeting Sunday. In essence, the plan provided that Temple Ohav Zedek would prepare and serve the meals. Students would be charged the same rate currently charged. These funds would be paid to Ohav Zedek instead of Food Service.

Kosher Kitchens have been used at other schools with some degree of success. IDC representatives are to present the idea to their respective dorms and report the reactions at the next meeting. The program is not necessarily restricted to students of the Jewish faith. Commuter students would also be able to eat lunch in this manner, although using a different payment plan than resident students.

An organizational meeting of the Food Committee, scheduled for last Thursday, was cancelled. The meeting will be held today in the cafeteria. Chairwoman Jane Mata-

Placko Sees Few Changes

by Rich Colandrea

At age 24, Steve Placko, Wilkes' new assistant director of housing finds his first full-time job was a likeable and challenging.

He doesn't like the barriers that exist between faculty and students which is why he prefers that students call him by his first name. He feels it is more personal when he meets with students and is on a first-name basis.

Placko who grew up in Bernardsville, N.J., received a B.S. in education from Duquesne University and an M.S. in counseling and guidance from Hofstra University.

When asked about any anticipated changes in the dormitories, Placko quickly responded that there will be none this semester simply because there hasn't been any student interest to call for a change. He said in regard to co-ed dorms that a remote possibility that could take place in the future.

The only changes that will be made in accordance with present policies are "any and all that are seen by the administration, faculty, and students as beneficial and constructive."

The Resident Assistants, according to Steve, have thus far done a good job. They will continue to be evaluated and by May the new R.A.s will be chosen for the following year.

A newly enforced housing rule is the one in regard to dormitory parties. Each dorm must fill out a questionnaire approval sheet which will have to be approved by the Housing Office. Placko says that this is to help organize any type of function that takes place in a residence hall. It is to serve as a guideline so that the function will be controlled and successful.

The Housing Office is in charge of approximately 700 students and Steve wishes to get to know as many as he can. He uses "Placko's Law" which says that the person closest to the students knows the most.

His goal as Assistant Housing Director is to reach out and help many students as possible. "I hope that all students feel free to discuss anything with me this year," Placko considers himself a friend on a professional level. Next time you talk to him, just call him Steve.

Wilkes Drama Department Schedules 'The Crucible'

One of the most controversial plays of our time is announced by Wilkes College Drama Department as their next attraction to be presented at the Center for the Performing Arts in mid-October. This is "The Crucible," by Arthur Miller, who won the Pulitzer Prize and a reputation of being one of the most important American playwrights of our time with his great tragedy, "Death of a Salesman."

"The Crucible" is a melodramatic re-telling of the historic witchcraft trials in Salem, Mass., in 1692. When it was first presented in New York in 1953, it became one of the most hotly discussed subjects of the time, because it was not merely an historical play but clearly "a parable with a 20th century application," in the phrase on the part of those of Time Magazine; the McCarthy "witch hunts" were then in full swing.

The author declared that every one of the 22 characters in his play had a similar role in the terrible episodes of 1692 in Salem when 19 persons were hanged as witches on the hearsay of hysterical accusers, and others saved themselves only by "confessing" their having made pacts with the Devil. Miller focuses most of the attention of "The Crucible" on the fate of a young farmer's wife, accused of witchcraft by a girl who hopes that thereby she might eventually replace the wife in the affections of the husband — and on the doom that this husband also meets when he attempts to extricate his wife from the unfounded charge before the prejudiced authorities.

Frank Clare will be seen as the young farmer with his stubborn search for justice in a time of fear, and Leda Pickett will enact the role of his wife. Robert Klein will appear as the over-bearing deputy-governor of the colony who presides over the trial. Fred Pacolitch will portray a minister who becomes appalled at the hysteria that overwhelms the colonial village, and Robert Leach will appear as another minister who chips up the orgy of bigotry to save his own position. Others in the cast include Ruthanne Jones as the woman whose lies launch all the hideous persecutions, Kathy Fritts as an intimidated ally, and Kit McCarthy, Debbie Yakus and Mary Kay Malloy as other girls who try to escape persecution for having dared to dance by night in the forest, and thereby cast fateful suspicion upon the scores of harmless villagers.

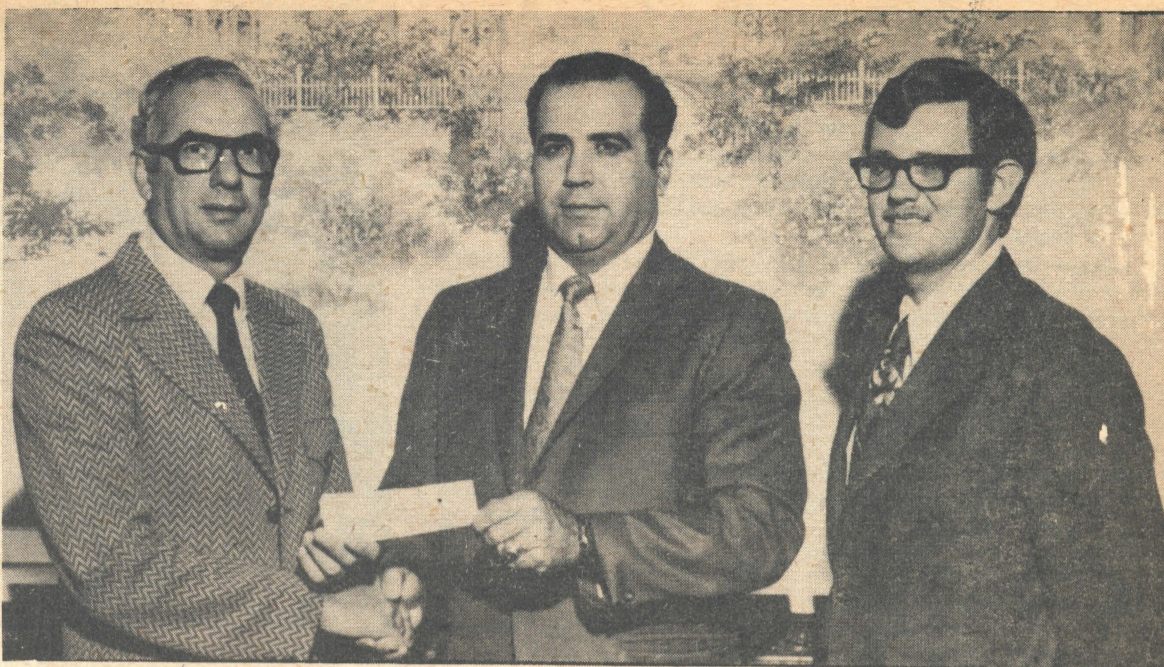

"The Crucible" is being directed by Jay E. Fields of the Theater Department at Wilkes College.

Council pays all traffic tickets given because the vigilante patrols fell down on the job.

Those are the basic tactics. It will take excellent management and teamwork but just might provide a rallying point for the students of Wilkes College. As Senator Sam Ervin says, "The easy way is the wrong way." This is not an easy way but it is one solution to a perennial problem.

Sincerely,
Dick Carpenter

Woodwind Choir Lecture Planned

A woodwind choir lecture and demonstration will be presented free of charge for area instrumental teachers and college music majors by the music department of Wilkes College on Monday, October 8, at 3 p.m. in the recital room of Dorothy Dickson Darte Hall.

The clinic will be conducted by Nilo W. Hovey, internationally renowned woodwind authority and guest conductor, who has been invited by William Gasbarro, chairman of the Wilkes College Department of Music, to discuss problems of intonation, tonal balance, interpretation and woodwind texture. The demonstration ensemble will be made up of advanced students in the college music department.

Hovey, who is educational director of Selmer Division of The Magnavox Company, has been actively engaged in the school band movement since 1925. From 1926 to 1944 he was Director of Instrumental Music in the Hammond, Indiana, public schools. From 1944 to 1957 he was Chairman of the Music Education Department and Director of the Concert Band at Butler University, Indianapolis, Indiana. During this period he was the recipient of the J.E. Holcomb award for his contribution to the advancement of the University and the Arthur W. Baxter award for superior teaching.

He has served as lecturer, clinician, adjudicator and guest conductor in all sections of the United States and in Ontario, Canada. In the latter capacity he has appeared with the United States Navy Band, the United States Army Band, the Canadian Air Force Band, and many Intercollegiate and All-State High School Bands. Numerous instrumental methods and books of instructional material written or edited by Hovey are widely used in the schools of the United States and Canada.

Hovey has been an active member of the American Bandmasters Association for over twenty years and served as its President in 1970-71. He was President of the Music Industry Council in 1962-64. He is an honorary member of the Canadian Bandmasters Association, of Kappa Kappa Psi and Phi Beta Mu. Hovey is also a member of Phi Kappa Phi, honorary scholastic fraternity, Phi Delta Kappa, fraternity of men in education, and Phi Mu Alpha (Sinfonia).

He was most recently honored by being elected by the members of Kappa Kappa Psi to receive the fraternity's highest distinction, "The Distinguished Service to Music Medal," in appreciation for his work in the field of industrial research and progress in his chosen profession.

Three Wilkes Professors Complete Doctorate Study

by Andrew Petyak

Three Wilkes College faculty members recently received their doctorates. The three are John Furlow, Jr., of the History Department, Meade Kemrer of the Sociology Department and Edmond Walters III of the Education Department.

Dr. Furlow received his doctorate in history from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N.C. He is well-versed in the history of Latin America and he attended a seminar on Latin America in Washington, D.C. last spring. The seminar was conducted by Temple University, in cooperation with the State Department. He has also been invited to the conference to be held in the spring of '74.

Dr. Furlow has contributed several articles to the American Folklore Journal and is presently preparing an article for that publication on the wife of Gifford Pinchot, a former governor of Pennsylvania. He is concerned about the career opportunities available to liberal arts majors and is hoping to hold a conference with these students on the subject.

Dr. Furlow resides in Wilkes-Barre with his wife Judith and their two sons, Samuel and David.

Dr. Kemrer received his doctorate in archaeology from the University of Arizona. His interest in archaeology led him to pursue studies in the subject after receiving a B.A. in biology from Lycoming. He has participated in excavations in both northeastern and southwestern United States, and he has also worked on excavations in the Middle East.

Presently he is conducting a course on archaeology here at Wilkes College. Dr. Kemrer would like to establish a field program in archaeology at Wilkes. This program would include both teaching and excavating.

Dr. Kemrer resides in the area with his wife Sandra, who shares a mutual interest in the subject.

Dr. Watters received his doctorate in education from Lehigh University. His doctoral thesis was entitled "Botswana: The Evolution and Development of Formal and Informal Education." He is currently working on a book on the educational systems of Botswana and South Africa. Dr. Watters' main interest is comparative education.

Last summer, Dr. Watters organized a trip to the Federal Republic of Germany and to the German Democratic Republic for Wilkes students, faculty and others. The purpose of the trip was to study the educational systems of both nations and to be exposed to the culture of the areas. Dr. Watters is presently arranging for a group of German students and teachers to come to Wilkes College around Easter. The group will also visit Washington, D.C. He is also making plans for another tour to Germany next summer.

Sabra! Now there's a name for an artist. Cool yet unbelievable. Soft, and yet wildly soft. And so was her art. total imaginary experience!"

Mrs. Richards (no relation to our own local master, Philip Richards) has created a smooth balance between color and movement. The whites aren't placid pure whites and the blue is bluer here than there. And how about that yellow-green-orange! Except for a couple picky places, her placement, value and intensity of color was marvelous.

And as smooth as her lines are, there's always a tricky little juxtaposition — a ripple, a joint to give those lines their 'second energy'. You could dance to these paintings.

Among my favorites were her "Sea Wash II," "Landscape Green" and "Untitled Orange." But there were so many more — I simply was tired of writing down titles.

There was one work, "The Studio," which made an attempt at capturing the additional element of texture. I didn't feel it worked. It was uncomfortable. But please permit yourself to decide.

Overall, it was a rare delight to witness such professionalism. Phil Richards commented, "You'd have to go to New York (City) to see this kind of show." was another credit to the total idiocy of our locale. We'll never maintain the quality of exhibit we need for our own enlightenment if we don't bother to sponsor quality professionals. Mrs. Richards graduated with laude from Syracuse University and continued her work at Cortland. She has had numerous exhibits in New York state.

An award of first prize in University College competition in '72, another first at the Arnold Museum in '72 and an honor mention in '69 at Everhardt Museum in Scranton round out her honors.

Is stealing a long distance call worth a criminal record?

The use of money credit cards, electronic devices or any other means to avoid paying for phone calls is against the law. It's stealing—pure and simple.

In this state, conviction for making fraudulent phone calls may result in:

- A fine of up to $15,000
- Up to seven years in jail
- Restitution for the total cost of the fraud
- Court costs
- A permanent criminal record

One more thing: modern electronic computer systems are being used to track down offenders.

The penalties may seem harsh. But the cold fact remains that the law does not look on phone fraud as a lark.

This corner met its Little Big Horn last week when it guessed wrong on five of thirteen games. That puts us at 24-13-2 for the season, but things are looking up (we hope).

We thought Denver had the manpower and talent to overcome tough Chicago, but we were incorrect and the Bears steamrolled their way to victory.

Other miscues this week included the Green Bay-Minnesota contest where we mistakenly went with the Pack, San Francisco's loss to the Rams, the Jets embarrassment by the Buffalo Bills, and Kansas City's stunning victory over the Oakland Raiders.

Well, so much for the past, the future is now, as George Allen would say.

MINNESOTA AT DETROIT

This black and blue division contest should really be a good one with both teams coming off impressive wins. Chuck Foreman, the Viking's tremendous rookie running back has put the finishing touches on a fine offensive machine.

Detroit can also put points on the board, but they are just a little weak on defense. They are using two rookies in their secondary, one of them, Dick Jauron of Yale, hadn't played defense since high school until last week.

We see it—Minnesota 14, Detroit 13.

Harriers Defeated

Down, but not out, the Wilkes College cross country team is still looking for its first win after opening their third campaign on a losing five-contest skein.

Blue and Gold harriers have been dealt setbacks by Scranton, 42-19; Bloomsburg State, 44-18; West Chester State 50-15; Madison FDU, 33-23; and Baptist Bible, 45-18.

Despite the losses, Coach George Pawlush has been encouraged with the constant improvement of his runners. "Everyone seems to be in good spirits," Pawlush said, "I think before long our hard work will begin to pay off."

One man who isn't giving up is freshman Mark Zavoy, who has a first, second, and two thirds in his first season. Jere Woods, Jim Godlewski, Duane Sadvary, Larry Pekot, and Jeff Metzger have also shown success.

Pawlush Widens Lead Over Forecasters

"Bullseye" Pawlush extended his lead to two games over runnerup B.J. Vinovski in the Beacon forecasting poll this week. One of the gutsy picks that gained Pawlush a full game over everyone was the Oakland-Kansas City contest. All of the other forecasters went with the Raiders after their impressive victory over the Miami Dolphins the week before. But Pawlush had a premonition that Kansas City was really up for this one and as the results show, he was correct.

The standing after two weeks look like this:

1. George Pawlush 17-3.
2. B.J. Vinovski 15-5.

3. Paul Domowitch 14-6.
4. Jim Nasium 14-6.
5. Denise Welsh 13-7.
6. Jim Torbik 13-7.
7. Art Hoover 13-7.
8. Bob Corba 12-8.

(ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S SPORTS QUIZ)

1. Emerson Boozer, who is still active with the Jets.

2. Mike Bass. He picked off Yepremian's "pass" and scampered for a touchdown.

3. John Brockington of the Green Bay Packers, Jim Brown of Cleveland, Jim Taylor of Cleveland, Joe Perry of San Francisco, Leroy Kelly of Cleveland, Jim Nance of Boston-New England, now with the New York Jets.

4. The eight former Heisman Trophy winners who are still active in pro football are: Pat Sullivan of Atlanta (1971), Jim Plunkett of New England (1970), Steve Owens of Detroit (1969), O.J. Simpson of Buffalo (1968), Steve Spurrier of San Francisco (1966), Mike Garrett of San Diego (1965), John Huarte of Chicago (1964) and Roger Staubach of Dallas (1963).

5. The two teams with long winning streaks are the Bears and the Vikings. Bears won 13 straight and in 1969, the Minnesota Vikings won 12 straight before losing to Kansas City in the Super Bowl.

Ohio State Overtakes USC

Unpredictable would be an idealistic word to describe the 1973 college football season and the attempts of a multitude of teams to capture the national title.

For the first few weeks, it looked as if Southern Cal was too devastating for the rest of the collegiate elevens, and would walk away with another championship and an unblemished record. But a funny thing happened last Saturday night in Los Angeles. The Trojans were fought to a standstill by the Sooners of Oklahoma, 7-7.

Nebraska, who figured to be another powerhouse, after crushing UCLA in their opening game, has had trouble the last two weeks, and barely got by North Carolina State and Wisconsin.

Oklahoma State, who people tend to regard with very little seriousness when it comes to a national championship, are making a name for themselves in the opening weeks of the season.

Well, let's take a look at the BEACON top 10 for this week. There certainly are a number of changes.

1. Ohio State
2. Michigan
3. Penn State
4. USC
5. Oklahoma
6. Notre Dame
7. Tennessee
8. Oklahoma State
9. Alabama
10. Nebraska

Here's a look at this week's contests involving the top-ranked teams.

TEXAS TECH at OKLAHOMA STATE

Yes, fans, Okie State is for real, and they are going to prove it this Saturday. Tech has been playing respectable ball, but that's just not good enough to eke out a win. We'll take State walking away.

GEORGIA at ALABAMA

Georgia was ranked very high in the pre-season polls, but has performed very poorly in their first two games. Alabama is making a lot

Soccermen Routed, 7-0

Last Saturday, the Wilkes College soccer squad bowed to Philadelphia Textile, 6-0. The booters of Coach Tom Rokita, played a rugged match, competing against one of the top teams in the nation.

Philadelphia fields a powerhouse squad including many foreign players, among which many are the nation's current top scorers.

Starting goalie, junior Don Mock, who had his work cut out for him, played a tough game with sophomore Steve Chaldorf taking over in the second half.

Gridders Looking For Third Straight Victory

Hosting Moravian

by Paul Domowitch

The Wilkes College gridders will try to make it three in a row this Saturday afternoon, when they entertain the Mules of Moravian College.

Blue and Gold football fans are probably still in awe over the dazzling performance turned in last weekend by the tough Colonel defense. Led by the efforts of senior defensive tackle, Jeff Grandinetti, and linebacker Rich Lack, the defense held Lycoming College to a mere 46 yards on the ground as Wilkes won walking away, 25-0.

But rushing defense wasn't the only story last Saturday, as Colonel defenders picked off an amazing total of 10 interceptions. Unbelievable! In addition to that incredible accomplishment, the Wilkesmen also recovered four Warrior fumbles.

With the light, there always must be some darkness, and that darkness was the Colonel offense, which managed only 119 total yards, and failed to put one point on the scoreboard.

As anyone can see, the Colonels definitely have the offensive potential, with a great array of talented backs and receivers and an experienced forward wall. What is the problem then? The problem is that the quarterbacks, namely Greg Snyder, Chuck Suppon and John Waskowsky have failed to grasp the basic concept of the new Colonel offense as of yet.

In the triple option setup which they use, the quarterback must read the defensive tackle's move before deciding whether to hand off to the back coming through the line or keeping and moving around the end, where he can keep the ball or pitch out to his trailing back. What is happening is that the quarterbacks are predetermining what they are going to do instead of waiting for the defense's first move.

This will all come with experience, and with two relatively easy contests on tap with Moravian and Upsala during the next two weeks, the Wilkes offense should be jelled for the two key games of the season; namely, Ithaca and Juniata.

Individual honor was bestowed on Jeff Grandinetti this week, as he was selected to the weekly ECAC All-Star squad, for his tremendous play against Lycoming. Jeff was in on 10 tackles, recovered a Warrior fumble, and blocked a Lycoming punt which he picked up and ran in for a Wilkes score.

Just the week before, Grandinetti was named the MAC player of the week. What an athlete.

And now a look at this week's opponent, Moravian:

According to the Wilkes scouting report on the Mules, they are a good fundamental football team. They are a running offense, keeping the ball on the ground about 70 per cent of the time.

Leading their rushing attack is tailback Bob Gratz and fullback Tom Role.

They are basically a 4-3 defensive setup and like to loop their linemen a lot. Their secondary is small, but they do not relinquish the long pass very often.

If the Colonels go at a definite weak point in the Moravian attack, they can probably pick them apart with short passes.

Beacon sees it: Wilkes 29, Moravian 3.

Sports Chatter

by Paul Domowitch

Football is the name of the game on the Wilkes College campus these days, as Coach Rollie Schmidt's gridders appear to have an excellent shot at capping their first MAC title since 1969.

The Colonels' offense has not come into its own yet, but the defense has played well enough to push the Colonels past Susquehanna, 20-13, and Lycoming last week, 25-0.

Against Lycoming, the defense held the Warriors to only 46 yards on the ground the entire contest, and picked off an amazing 10 interceptions. The offense has looked unsure at times, but anyone who analyzes their roster knows they have championship potential.

The blockade in the way of the Blue and Gold title hopes is Juniata College, who behind the passing of highly-touted signal caller, Gary Shope, are ripping up the MAC. Last weekend they shut out Albright, who appeared to be one of the Northern Division contenders, 17-0.

Coach Schmidt knows he can't look past his two upcoming games with Moravian and Upsala, but in the corner of his mind lurks the thought of beating Juniata and capturing all the marbles.

A nightmare hit the New York Jets two Sundays ago when their high-priced quarterback, Joe Namath, was sidelined with a shoulder operation. Namath incurred the injury when a Baltimore linebacker got to the gimpy-kneed quarterback on a blitz play in the opening quarter of the Jets-Colts game.

If the New Yorkers have any hope of gaining a playoff berth, they must pray for a very quick recovery of Namath's battered shoulder. Fortunately, it does not require surgery, but there has been speculation that Joe won't be back in action for as many as eight weeks. On the brighter side are reports that the Beaver Falls, Pa., native might be ready for the Denver game on October 28. Who knows!

Judo Club Triple Victor

Wilkes College gained some recognition on Sunday, September 22, through its Judo Club as Fred Murty, instructor and member of the Judo Club, fought his way, undefeated to first place in the 176 lb. division at the Hun Judo School Invitational Tournament at Clarion State College.

Fred had 8 wins and no losses for the day, including a first place victory in less than 60 seconds. He also captured the Grand Championship match by defeating the first place winner of the Unlimited Weight Division who outweighed him by 100 pounds.

There were competitors from various colleges including the University of Pittsburg, Indiana University, Clarion State and Penn State. An unexpected third honor was awarded when Fred and another judoka, John Yuschovity, (second place winner, 176 pound division) from Avoca, won the second place Team Trophy after they fought together as a team. The team that won first place had approximately 14 team members. Out of more than a dozen teams competing, John and Fred comprised the smallest team.

Fred expressed his gratitude to the Student Government for making his competition possible.

"Deacon makes the Beacon while talking with Craig 'D' Deacon about himself and the progress, his buddy made preceding wisecrack in the ground.

The soft-spoken Deacon hails from Howell Township, New Jersey. He is a senior now majoring in business administration, and his discovery at Wilkes College was an amusing one. He remarked that he found out Wilkes four or five years ago reading the Sunday edition of the New York News. The article mentioned the Colonels as being one of the nation's top contending college teams.

For those of you who are unaware, Craig plays a fine outside line for the Colonels. A six-letter going into this year, Craig plays the "Suicide Squad" his first seasons with the Colonels. A respectable lacrosse player in his own right, Craig has also been named a tri-captain for this year's lacrosse team.

"This year the Colonels' strength lies in their fine morale, attitude, and desire," asserts Coach Schmidt (obvious traits nurtured with the talents of Coach Schmidt's talents). Weaknesses, Deacon comments, a lack of depth in some positions. He expressed confidence in his back-up man — sophomore Bessler.

Craig refused to make a prediction for the Colonels' entire grid season. Because he claimed that "everybody makes predictions, they don't come through anyway." In his soft-spoken but confident manner he hesitated to emphasize the Colonels' two toughest opponents — Juniata and Ithaca, in that order.

A resident assistant in Gore Hall, Craig's interests include weightlifting, deep sea fishing and also scuba diving off the Jersey coast. Weightlifting was apparent to me when I noticed a healthy number of weights lying around his room, which, incidentally, is tastefully decorated with handsome woodwork, fireplace, and plenty of posters. His future plans after graduation, Craig cited labor relations as a strong possibility. With his obvious confidence and congeniality, I say his chances for success are at the top.
