Wilkes puts construction plans on hold while the Wilkes-Barre Planning Committee reaches a decision

By GINA M. TAGNANI
News Writer

It was early August when Wilkes University set its goals for the 25 million dollar campus renovation program.

The university went through what they thought were the normal procedures, at least the procedures followed by the university, and obtained a building permit and authorization from the city of Wilkes-Barre, namely the mayor, to go ahead with their project.

So they did.

Until last week.

The university was represented at the Wilkes-Barre Planning Commission meeting on September 12, to ask for permission to convert their recently purchased property at 267 South Franklin Street into offices.

But instead of permission they got reprimanded for, according to Commission member Bill Lisman, "not asking prior permission for the commencement of their project."

"This is a new step we have never encountered before," said Dr. Christopher Breiseth, president, Wilkes University, "and it is a nuisance."

It was expressed at the meeting that Wilkes was destroying history. In response to that Paul A. O'Hop, vice-president Business Affairs And Auxiliary Enterprises at Wilkes, has served on the city's Historical Task Force and according to O'Hop, "if you take a tour of the historical downtown you're bound to see Wilkes' buildings.

"We own 58 buildings, most of which were built before 1920," said Breiseth, "to say we're destroying the historical value of the downtown is absurd."

According to Breiseth, it was illogical to renovate the building that they had torn down on South Franklin Street.

"It would cost something like $350,000 to make it safe, and we offered it to anyone who wanted to take it off its foundation and move it and that we would contribute to the moving whatever it would cost us to demolish it. There were no takers," said Breiseth.

It seems as though that was the building that gained the most attention.

O'Hop is in the process of setting up a series of working sessions with the Planning Committee.

"This whole ordeal really creates a timing problem," said O'Hop, "if you look at it with the students at the center it is an irritant, and not as effective and efficient for the student." According to O'Hop the university is not incurring any greater cost.

Wilkes University has put the projects on hold for the time being, at least until the working sessions with the Planning Committee are complete.

Transfer students on the rise at Wilkes

By SANDY KENDIG
News Writer

For the first time in three years Wilkes University is looking at a large transfer class.

Wilkes enrolled 773 new full-time students this September. Of those students, 183 came to Wilkes from another college.

The number of transfer students this fall is up from 156 students in September 1992.

Of the 183 students, approximately 38 of them are 24 years of age or older, according to Paul S. Adams, Dean Of Academic Student Services. Adams added that "the adult learners are coming back to school for a variety of reasons, some for the learning and knowledge and to upgrade their skills while others are coming back because the economy necessitates it."

Wilkes University has also enrolled 159 new-part time students this fall.

"At least 90% of these part-time students will bring previous college experience," said Adams. "Part-time scheduling, finance and convenience have a lot to do with students returning to school."

"Wilkes University has a good working relationship with the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre area colleges," says Emory Guffrovich, Dean of Admissions at Wilkes University, which is one reason why students are able to transfer into Wilkes.

According to Guffrovich, when prospective Wilkes students have their initial meeting with the Wilkes admission officers they find out what credits are likely to transfer just from working with an unofficial transcript.

Being told up front what they can expect from Wilkes is a plus, according to Guffrovich.

Over half of the students transferring into Wilkes are from the local two year institutions.

Fast Facts on Transfers

• Fall 1992 there were 159 transfer students

• Fall 1993 there were 183 transfer students

• 38% were 24 years or older.

Students AIDS Awareness Committee is busy

By MARLENE MATOSKY
News Writer

The Student Aids Awareness Committee has been busy trying to raise funds for Wilkes' observance of World Aids Awareness week.

This past weekend the Student AIDS Awareness Committee manned a booth at Festival '93 in Public Square. The booth had a Barney pie-in-the-face game, which consisted of throwing pies in the faces of Wilkes biology professors Dr. Phillips, Dr. Kenneth Klemow, and Dr. Michael Steele.

The booth raised money for the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt. The committee would like to thank the three professors for the use of their faces.

The committee still has two upcoming events: the first annual Walk for AIDS Awareness and the Rock-4-Life concert.

The walk will be held on September 26 at 1 p.m. Registration will be in the Stark Lobby at noon. At the registration, all of the sponsor money must be turned in. All teams must have a minimum of five walkers; individual walkers may also participate.

The walk will cross the Market Street Bridge and will continue towards Kirby Park. Once at Kirby Park, the walkers will walk three laps around the track and will then return to the Stark Learning Center. Prizes will be awarded to the team and the individual who raises the most money.

Registration forms and additional information are available in SLC 366.

The Rock-4-Life concert will be held on Monday, October 11 at the Woodlands Grand Ballroom at 7 p.m. The line-up includes Daddy-o and the Sax Maniacs, Twice Wilted, Freight Train, Ace C. Dukey, and So What. Tickets cost seven dollars and are on sale in Stark Lobby, the Woodlands front desk, and Gallery of Sound at Midtown Village. The concert is open to all ages.

All of the money will help to fund campus activities for Wilkes' observance of World AIDS Awareness Week, which is in early December. The committee plans to bring the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt and Jeanne White, the mother of teenaged AIDS activist Ryan White, to the university.

Rule #1: Don't walk alone

By ALLYSON HANNIGAN
News Writer

Wilkes University has a problem with attacks on campus. Within the past couple of weeks, there have been several incidents where females walking alone have been hit from behind.

To help prevent recurring incidents Wilkes University urges that one should never walk alone, especially at night. If you are going to see someone, have them meet you halfway or take a friend. Another way to prevent yourself from getting attacked is to walk in well-lit public areas.

Along with walking with someone you should always be aware of your surroundings.

Students can also use the escort service provided by the Wilkes Security office. This service provides a person or officer to walk you to your destination at anytime.

The security desk, which is located in the SLC Lobby, also provides flashlights with plugs on them that, when pulled, make a loud noise. This will help to scare the attacker and give you a chance to get away.

If you do get attacked, report it to the security desk immediately. Don't be afraid or ashamed to tell someone because they can give you help or get help if you need it.

Remember to follow all safety rules the next time you are walking alone because they could help prevent you from being attacked.

National Hispanic Month celebrated

The VA Medical Center, Wilkes-Barre, and Wilkes University will continue to celebrate National Hispanic month with a Diversity Panel and Food Festival.

A Diversity Panel Discussion will be held in the Recreation Room at the VA Medical Center on Thursday, September 23, at 1 p.m.

Panelists will include a business owner, student, teacher, travel agent, and a Wilkes-Barre police officer who are natives of Mexico, Cuba, Spain, and the Dominican Republic.

Wilkes University's annual Homecoming, October 1, 2 and 3, will offer dozens of events for Wilkes alumni, family and friends to attend during the weekend-long celebration of the university's 60th anniversary.

Golfers can get an early start by participating in the Annual Golf Tournament at the Mill Race Golf and Camping Resort in Benton on Friday, October 1. A shotgun start at 12:00 p.m. will begin the tournament, organized in a Captain and Mate format. Entry fee includes green fee, golf cart, prizes and buffet dinner.

The Annual Friday Night Frolic will begin at 8 p.m. in the Annette Evans Alumni House on the Wilkes University campus. Passes for the Wilkes vs Delaware Valley football game on Saturday will be available at the Frolic.

For those interested in the theater, the students of the Wilkes University Music, Theater and Dance Department offer the classic farce, "Charlie's Aunt" in the lower level of the CPA. Shows are scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, October 3 at 2 p.m.

A day of traditional homecoming activities and events will keep students and alumni busy. Dr. J. Michael Lennon, vice president for academic affairs, and members of his staff will discuss the new Doctor of Pharmacy program and the implications it will have on the physical plan at Wilkes. This session is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. at the Annette Evans Alumni House.

In celebration of Wilkes University's 60th Anniversary, alumni, students, and friends will gather at the new field house overlooking the football field at 11 a.m. Sponsored by the Alumni Association, this "Return to the Hill" will be followed by a rededication of the Field House facility.

At 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, October 2, the Wilkes University Colonels will face Delaware Valley at Ralston Field. Colonel Bob, the University's mascot, cheerleaders, and the university's winning football team will highlight the homecoming festivities.

Students finding obscene messages on their answering machines

By BRAD HAYS
Co-Copy Editor

Imagine coming home from a busy day of classes or a late night out to find your answering machine blinking. You play back the message, and to your surprise, you find that is an obscene phone call. For some students, this situation has become a reality.

According to Dean Jane Lampe-Groh, dean of student affairs, a few students have reported that they have received obscene messages either verbally via their answering machines or written on their message pads on dormitory room doors.

Lampe-Groh said that the first reports came in early in the morning on September 4. "I had called security because I wanted them to know that I was in the office doing some work and that I was in the building alone. They told me that there were some reports that I might like to read, so they brought them over to me. I read the reports and wrote the memo."

The memos were then distributed to the students in Evans Hall, where the reports were coming from.

The messages, according to security reports, were obscene in a sexual nature and that they were directed towards men and women.

According to Lampe-Groh several reports have been filed, but the exact number of reports and telephone calls is not known.

Lampe-Groh said that this is a serious crime because it violates four laws: the Wilkes University Student Handbook law, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania law, Federal law, which means it violates a FCC (Federal Communications Commission) law, and the Pennsylvania Ethnic Intimidation Law.

The violation of the Pennsylvania Intimidation Law is one of the more serious of the four violations. According to this 1982 law, it is illegal to make fun of or make an offensive comment out of hatred towards someone because of their national origin, race, sex, etc. "If this law is violated then you should be reported to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania," says Lampe-Groh.

Lampe-Groh also said that this is serious offense because it is a form of sexual harassment. "Sexual harassment is when you make anyone feel uncomfortable in their living conditions," says Dean Lampe-Groh. "It doesn't have to be an overt sexual act to be considered sexual harassment."

According to Lampe-Groh, if the students are identified, then they will "be brought through the full and fair channels of disciplinary action." Lampe-Groh says that she has an innate belief that the person or persons who have been leaving the obscene messages do not know the harm that they have caused.

"However, I can not take this lightly because I have a responsibility towards the students and I have to handle this internally," concluded Lampe-Groh.

In the meantime, if students find that they have received an obscene phone call, Lampe-Groh suggests that they should report it immediately. "No one should suffer harassment because of their gender, national origin, race, or sexual preference," states Lampe-Groh. "This is wrong, just bottom line wrong."

Rivalry. Rivalry can take on many forms. One of the common forms of rivalry, especially among the younger generations, is sibling rivalry. (I know. My sister and I always used to be at each others throats.)

For us college students, however, the most common forms of rivalry are between our different colleges and our sports teams. Wilkes University has many rivals, but none of them are as strong as our rivalry with King's College down the street. This rivalry has been going on since the very beginning.

There have been jokes, rumours, wins and losses between Wilkes and King's in the past. However, there has been one positive interaction between us and that was the mixer that occurred last Friday night. This mixer brought us together and gave us the opportunity to get to know one another. Lets face it, when was the last time you got the chance or took the chance to meet with a King's person?

Although many students showed up at the King's gym to support our Colonels basketball team in the past, that was hardly a friendly environment. I think the mixer was a success because it gave us a chance to meet the students. What many students don't realize is that it isn't the individual students themselves that we are rivaling with. It is more like the "bragging rights." In other words, by winning or striving ahead of them as a school we gain the right to say that we are a better school. So this makes the rivalry more of one for school publicity than one against Wilkes or King's students.

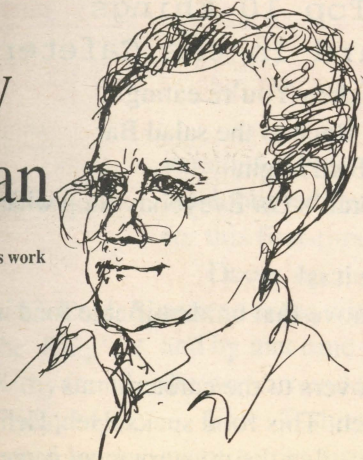

I was just informed that starting in November, Wilkes is going to play their first football game against Kings in 50 years! This will undoubtedly add to the rivalry. It is the first time King's has had a varsity team and it is going to create a hell of a lot more tension for sports. (Even though we know who will win!) There, that is a perfect example of the rivalry I'm referring to. Although we will never extinguish the rivalry, we may be able to understand what it is all about.

IDLE CHATTER

By MICHAEL BUTCHKO

News Editor

This weeks chatter was anything but idle.

First, the grand plan for Wilkes' sprint into the 21st century has been slightly delayed. But that issue is covered at length in this week's issue. No, what concerns me this week is fruit. Grapes, specifically. And sour ones at that.

In this case, the produce department is King's, and the manager is the "John Doe" who first raised the stink last week about the Wilkes University basketball program. Until anyone knows the full story, and I doubt anyone ever will, I will refer to the complainer as John Doe. Mr. Doe believes that certain members of our men's basketball team are academically ineligible to play. These accusations were made without any type of proof. But why should that stop anyone?

The bottom line is this: Coach Jerry Rickrode has built a winning, clean program. When Wilkes-Barre's other college was so successful in the late 1980s, no questions were raised about their team. Now the shoe is on Wilkes' foot which happens to be planted firmly in the buttocks of King's College on the basketball court, and there are accusations?

Grow up. And until there is a single piece of evidence, get over it.

Whatever happened to this "bearing false witness against thy neighbor" stuff?

Appearing in bookstores this winter, Under the Tarnished Bell Tower: The Unauthorized Story of Wilkes Basketball.

Someone alert Coach DeMelfi: start losing as soon as possible, or you'll be accused of paying players. Or buying them cars.

Obviously he doesn't listen; if you had Lebanon Valley and forty points in your office pool, you lost.

You do realize that if Boris Yeltsin is president of Wilkes, the whole staff is out the door tomorrow.

In today's want ads: Now accepting applications for the position of member of the Russian parliament. Must have experience in dealing with intoxicated leader.

I saw Boris' press conference, and all I thought was, "I hope that's tea he's sipping."

But I still figured it was Vodka.

President Clinton spoke to Yeltsin on the phone on Tuesday. After the conversation, Bill cleaned house in Cabinet. He thought it might be cool.

Sorry to be going so soon, but someone has to cover the story that Coach Rickrode is tainting the water to make his players grow. Or maybe Tags can take care of it. But if King's says it, then it must be true.

That's all for this now. And yes, we will continue our chat next week.

what

If you answered 'C,' you are not only a heterosexual male, but you probably also own a "Free Mike Tyson" T-shirt. But then again, don't we all?

If you did pick choice "C," don't despair. It doesn't make you sexist, no matter what Patricia Ireland says. Women frequently accuse men of, ah, how do you say, not making the greatest eye contact. Or, as that snappy little Amanda puts it: "My eyes are up here!"

So maybe we have a problem. Maybe we treat women as nothing more than sex objects. Maybe our behavior is so morally reprehensible that men as a species should be condemned and branded until the end of the line.

Maybe not.

I have one word for all you gentlemen: accountability. Or lack thereof. The trend in society is to blame others for your own actions. Far be it for me to break a trend. It is not our fault that we view women this way. It is society's fault.

Take television. Not mine, I mean TV is general. The commercials which grace our sets send one loud message — sex sells. From alcohol to cars, women are used as sales pitches for various products.

What have we learned? That women are just another possession, or even worse, ornaments which do nothing more than enhance the inanimate objects they attempt to sell. Even to Seymour, that's sick.

So in a serious end to a trembling topic, let's hope that advertising executives lay off the sex-sells mentality. Right now, it fails to treat women as what they are: beautiful, yet often misguided, human beings. Until that time, this attitude, unfortunate though it may be, will persist. No matter what he says, that's just the bottom line.

By AMANDA HUGINKIS

A trivia question for you, the '90's woman:

You're walking down the street, hair all coifed, make-up expertly applied, heels clicking and briefcase in hand, when all of a sudden you hear a near construction worker let out a catcall that makes you blush to your toes. You

- A) smile and make sure he gets a nice view from behind
- B) feel degraded, pull your coat closer to you, and reprimand yourself for dressing more conservatively
- C) wonder when this double standard between men and women is going to end

Only "A" is a wrong answer in this day and age.

Women everywhere wrestle with the conflict between being accepted as equal by men and being treated as a sex object because they "look good." (Women would have thought that looking good would lem?) On one hand, women want, and considered a man's equal no matter what the fashion designers say, no women I know wants to go to work in a navy pinstriped three piece man's suit. Unfortunately many women feel that this is the only way they can be taken seriously.

What's worse is that when women hide their sexuality they are compounding the problem. If men don't hear that it's not okay to treat women as sex objects, then they're just going to continue to do so. (Believe me, guys aren't going to figure anything out on their own, especially when it concerns female sexuality.) Men will continue to look in your chest (I mean eyes) and you that they find you irresistible. (Translation: they want to check the results of your measurements up close and personal.)

We have to let our male counterparts know that the not so subtle mating game of years past is no longer acceptable to today's woman. Yes, we want to be good and sure, it's nice when our efforts are recognized by the opposite sex. Everything has a proper time and place. Degrading remarks yelled from scaffolding is not the way to appreciate a woman's finer qualities.

Although Seymour says it's not the guy's fault (Does that sound familiar to all the males everywhere have to start taking responsibility for the way they treat women. Like it or not guys, it's no longer just a man's world. This is the world of the woman and both sexes have to realize that that means females should simply concentrate on being a woman. That's right, we no longer have to try to act like a man to compete. Being a woman is more than enough. It's the communication between the sexes reflects that.

Hey Seymour, did you hear what I said? My eyes are up here.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach speaks at Wilkes University

By LYNNMARIE
ROSENCRANCE
Features Editor

Dr. Oscar Auerbach, a pioneer pathologist of the affects of cigarette smoke on the respiratory system, spoke at Wilkes University Monday evening.

Dr. Auerbach discovered the startling affect that cigarette smoke has on the diseases Lung cancer or bronchus cancer. In 1955, while attending the Clinical Pathologic Conference, the quest to find the cause of lung cancer began.

At the conference the participants were shown photos of a man who died of lung cancer due to prolonged exposure to chromite, a mineral that consists of an oxide of iron and chromium, while working in a chromite mine. It was here that the hypothesis was devised that chromite had an affect on the lungs.

Dr. Auerbach and some associates went to work studying the lungs of smokers and non-smokers. Their studies extended over 11 years resulting in three major publications. The last publication was printed in 1963 and was submitted to the Surgeon General. In response to this new information, the Surgeon General appointed a committee in order to investigate further. Four years later, the Surgeon General placed warnings about cigarettes causing lung cancers on all cigarette wrappers.

However, Dr. Auerbach's studies did not end there. He is presently studying the affects smoking has on emphysema. He lectured on the subject Monday evening. He said "emphysema are holes in the lung that affect the walls of the air-sacks. They are scarred and they rupture the walls of the air-sacks. When you have enlarged air sacs that is when you have emphysema."

He went on to say, "If I had an alternative, if I had to die of lung cancer or emphysema, I think I'd be better off dying from lung cancer, because it goes by so fast."

Dr. Auerbach explained that a person suffering from emphysema goes through stages. At first the patient discovers difficulty in running, then walking up stairs, next walking, until he/she is finally confined to a wheelchair. At the final stage of emphysema, the patient is considered a lung cripple. Finally, the air sacs are unable to expand and the walls rupture which can cause serious problems.

I would like to thank Dr. Oscar Auerbach, on behalf of the student body for all of the time and effort he put into his studies, and also for speaking at Wilkes. Dr. Auerbach is entering his 89th year of life, and is still working hard to preserve it.

Sculptures and drawings depict a new view

WILKES-BARRE—

Friends, students, peers, and members of the community gathered at the Sordoni Art Gallery on the Wilkes University campus for a reception recently to see a new view of the Wyoming Valley. Herb Simon's exhibit, "Places and Things: Sculpture and Drawings 1987-1993," on display at the Sordoni Art Gallery through October 3rd, includes representations of places from the region as well as common items, altered to present a new point of view. The exhibit represents a new direction for Simon's work which has been primarily abstract.

"In any direction an artist follows certain things are gained, others lost," Simon said. "The play of formal relationships... has been followed by sculptures and drawings in which memory, nostalgia, the absurd, the bizarre, the humorous and the self-referential have been given scope."

Professor Emeriti at Wilkes University, Simon attended New York University where he earned both Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees. He has studied at the Hans Hofmann Art School and Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture. Since joining the Wilkes faculty in 1969, Simon has taught sculpture and three-dimensional design as part of the University's Art Department.

His work has been included in numerous invitational solo and group shows. Simon's metal sculptures have been acquired for public spaces in Wilkes-Barre, Harrisburg, and Bethlehem.

Wilkes and King's hit the Core with nuts and bolts

By ANDITA PARKER-

Part of Festival '93 Core 5 Wilkes-Barre was the King's / Wilkes Mixer at the Kirby Center in Public Square on Friday night. The mixer was sponsored by the festival committee as well as student organizations from both universities. Over people packed the lobby of the Kirby Center for this first-time event.

Doors opened at 9 p.m. I arrived at the mixer at 9:10 p.m. and by that time the line was all the way around the corner.

Free T-shirts were given away to the first 150 students who walked through the door. The T-shirts were donated by the Wilkes University and King's College Student Government organizations.

Bob Loftus of WKRZ 98.5 FM provided the music for this non-alcoholic party. Loftus gave away numerous prizes, including eight $25 cash prizes donated by Wilkes' and King's Student Governments.

There was also plenty of potato chips, pretzels, and snacks. Bartenders were serving various mocktails to party goers throughout the night.

At the door, each student received either a nut or a bolt. I saw many people mixing and thought the point of taking a nut or bolt was to see who you matched up with in order for students from the two schools to interact. The only problem with this was that the people giving out the nuts and bolts didn't specify which sex got which hardware.

Overall the party was a hit. I saw many people mixing and having fun. I met a lot of people myself, from King's and Wilkes. The event was definitely worthwhile from the beginning to the reluctant ending at 1:00 a.m.

"Bat Out Of Hell" is Back

By JOHN DORSEY
Features Staff

Meat Loaf's Bat Out Of Hell II: Back Into Hell is actually the third time around for the duo of singer Meat Loaf and songwriter Jim Steinman. The two first joined forces to create the 1977 classic Bat Out Of Hell (which by 1987 sold over 7 million copies in the United States alone) and then Dead Ringer in 1981.

The cover is fantastically drawn and has the same man on the flying motorcycle that bursts out of the graveyard on the cover of the first album. This time, however, the motorcycle rider is flying toward a gigantic bat in order to save a winged beauty in what looks to be a nightmarish version of New York city.

Written, produced, and arranged by Steinman, there are 11 songs which take up a full 75 minutes.

The first single, "I'd Do Anything For Love (But I Won't Do That)," takes up a whole 12 minutes on the album and is by far the best song, putting the much shorter radio version to shame. It begins with what sounds like a motorcycle engine and ends with a beautiful exchange between Meat Loaf and Bonnie Tyler.

At one point she says, "Will you make me some magic with your own two hands? Can you build an emerald city with these grains of sand?" to which Meat Loaf responds, "I can do that!" But when she says that it won't be long before he cheats on her, he says "I won't do that!"

The other songs are also well written and performed. Steinman's use of cliches for titles such as "It Just Won't Quit," "Objects In The Rear View Mirror May Appear Closer Than They Are", and "Out Of The Frying Pan (And Into The Fire)" are also well done. His lyrics are vivid and filled with imagery.

For example, there is the scene he creates for "Out Of The Frying Pan": "So wander down the ancient hallway...taking the stairs only one at a time. Follow the sound of my heartbeat now. I'm at the room at the top, you're at the end of the line."

The fact that the songs are so long ("Objects" goes for 10 minutes) is a nice change from the usual three to four minute tracks that dominate the charts today.

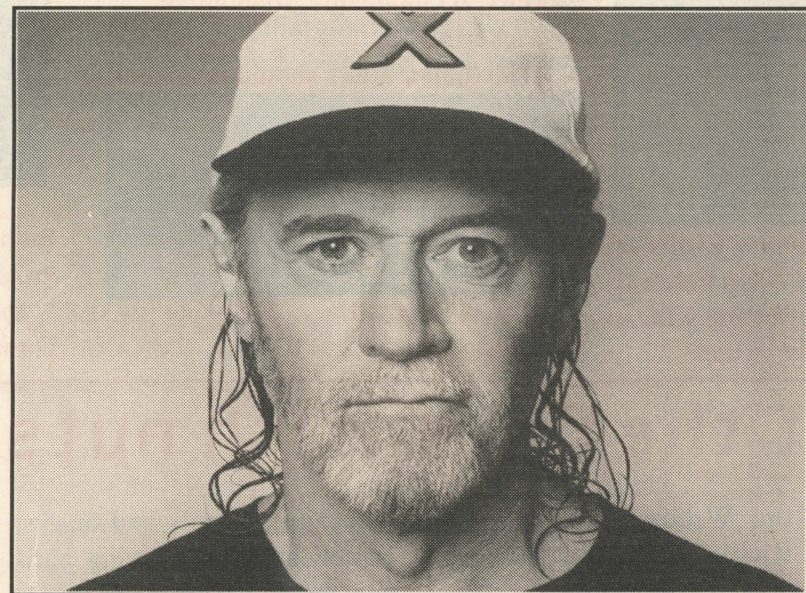

Praises can't be sung for every track on the album. The instrumental "Back Into Hell" isn't very exciting and Steinman's dialogue in "Wasted Youth" may be irritating to some. There are no songs here that could rival the classic "Paradise By The Dashboard Light" from the first album, but as a whole it is a solid comeback.

Whether or not it is a critical success, there is no doubt that the record will be a monetary success. Bat Out Of Hell continues to soar high!

For a little change of pace this semester, the Programming Board sponsored an evening of video karaoke last night from 4-10 p.m. in Rumours. Featured were the Amusitron video game, Lip Sync and Karaoke Music Videos.

In the Interactive Music Video, participants were even able to watch themselves model designer fashions or play baseball for their favorite team.

Students were able to take home copies of themselves in semi-music stardom. With props like guitars, wigs, and costumes, some videos really came to life.

Popcorn and soda were provided by the Physics Club.

There were mixed opinions to the virtual reality expected on campus.

According to Chris McMahon, "It was just videos superimposed on a blue screen, instead of actual interaction with the computer."

However, Wayne McDonnell, a Wilkes senior, seemed to enjoy lip-syncing to Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.

Said McDonnell, "I never did it before. It was a great experience."

Colonels travel to Upsala to face Vikings

WILKES-BARRE—Off to its second straight 2-0 start, the Wilkes University Colonels will look to make it three-in-a-row on Saturday against the Upsala College Vikings. Kickoff time at the Donald B. Walker Field in West Orange, NJ is set for 1:30 p.m.

The Colonels, who are coming off a 41-0 thrashing of Lebanon Valley, will be looking to start the year 3-0 for the first time since 1971.

Wilkes comes into the Middle Atlantic Conference (MAC) Freedom League ranked eighth in the Lambert Poll and 30th in the Don Hansen Football Gazette poll.

Leading the Colonels into the game with Upsala will be quarterback Boo Perry, named the MAC Player of the Week and selected to the Eastern College Athletic Conference Division III Honor Roll after his performance against Lebanon Valley.

Perry, a sophomore, threw for a career high 355 yards and three touchdowns in the win. His TD passes were for 46, 42, and 46 yards.

"Boo had a great game," said Wilkes coach Joe DeMelfi. "He saw what the defense was going to give him and took advantage of it. He has really matured this year as a quarterback and it is evident so far this year."

Perry is leading the MAC in passing with 544 yards on 34 of 59 passes. He has four touchdowns and two interceptions on the year.

Wide receiver Steve Endres is also off to a good start in 1993.

The senior from Palmerton has caught 16 passes for 225 yards and is tied for second in the MAC. Endres is now just 30 catches away from tying the Wilkes all-time receiving record held by Anthony DiGrazia ('84-'87).

Another favorite target for Perry in the early going, and one who brought some needed speed to the lineup, has been freshman Ryan Alston who has nine receptions for 165 yards and two touchdowns.

On the ground senior Jason Smith is seventh in the MAC with 127 yards on 44 carries. He topped the 100 yard plateau against Plymouth State but was held to just 18 yards against Lebanon Valley.

Defensively the Colonels did a great job against the Dutchmen holding them to just 111 yards in total offense.

For the year Wilkes has been scored upon just once and not all in the last seven quarters. The Colonels are also allowing just 188.5 yards a game in the early going, tops in the MAC.

Senior Mike McCree leads three interceptions and in Wilkes in tackles with 27 while another senior Larry Trakes has 20 tackles and three sacks.

Also topping double figures in tackles is Jason Feese with 15 and a sack; Mark Buss and Aaron and Mike Johnson. Saab leads with 13 each; Jake Cole with 12 and a sack; and Joe Johnson has 16.

"The defense did a super job all day," DeMelfi said. "They held Lebanon Valley to just 1.5 yards per play and made all the big plays when they had to."

Upsala, 0-2 on the year coming off a 21-18 loss to Kings College on Saturday. The Vikings have now lost two games by a total of six points.

Quarterback Leroy Williams leads the Vikings in passing with 388 yards, four touchdowns, and two interceptions.

When the Colonels are aware of linebackers Andre Saab and Mike Johnson.

The Colonels will end the season on Saturday, October 23, at 1:00 p.m. in Ralston Field.

Sophomore standout O'Connor had another outstanding effort with 11 kills and six blocks.

The Lady Colonels now hold a 4-2 record on the season.

The team will play in the Lebanon Valley Tourney this Saturday. Games begin at 10:00 a.m.

The Wilkes University women's tennis team opened up the 1993 season by splitting their first two games.

Picking up wins for the Lady Colonels were Gina Taylor (6-2, 6-3), Jessica Bixler (6-4, forfeit), Karen Beling (6-1, 6-2), Arada Kunyosying (6-2, 6-3). In doubles it was Beling and Bixler winning in straight sets (6-1, 6-1).

Wilkes, however, was not so lucky against Scranton. The netters fell six games to three to the Lady Royals.

Getting wins for the Lady Colonels were Taylor (6-3, 5-7, 6-3), Beling (6-3, 7-5) and the tag team of Bixler and Beling (6-4, 7-5).

The Wilkes University field hockey team improved their record to 5-2 over the weekend.

On September 15, the Lady Colonels beat Albright 3-2. Theresa Havel led the way with one goal and one assist.

On Saturday, after trailing 1-0, Havel and Toni Farinella scored quick goals to lead the Wilkes field hockey team to a 2-1 victory over St. Lawrence University. Havel scored the tying goal at 21:55 of the second half off an assist from Kim Kaskel. Then only 1:47 later, Farinella scored off an assist from Justine Nemshick.

Allowing just three shots in the second half, Wilkes outshot St. Lawrence 35-17.

The Lady Colonels suffered a tough loss to William Smith on Sunday afternoon, losing 2-1. Goal tender Tracy Engle recorded 12 saves while Angie Polny scored Wilkes' only goal on a penalty stroke.

Lady booters remain optimistic

By ERICA KRAMER

A spectator would think that the Wilkes University women's soccer team's spirit would be as dreary as the weather was on September 15. This, however, is not the case. Coach Tim Barrera gets more optimistic as each day passes.

The Lady Colonels faced a tough Mulhenberg team on the 15th. The Lady Colonels were defeated 6-0 but Barrera did not have 11 girls to play. Because of injury and a shirt roster, the club was reduced to only nine players.

On Saturday, September 19, the club was on the road again traveling to Eastern. The team was defeated 3-0.

However, this score does not reflect the play of the game.

"We should have won this one," said Barrera of the loss. "We out shot them 16-9."

The Colonels just didn't seem to get the breaks the Eastern squad did.

One bright spot these past few weeks has come from goalie Tanya Daigle, who held her own by racking up 32 saves.

The Lady Colonels face Centenary on the road Saturday at 11:00 a.m.

The Wilkes University football team moved to 2-0 with Saturday's 41-0 pounding of Lebanon Valley.

The Colonels got on the board early after a 64-yard drive capped off by quarterback Boo Perry's 46-yard touch down pass to Mike Gundersdorf. Joe O'Donnell added the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Wilkes' good fortune continued when Lebanon Valley fumbled the kickoff. The ball was picked up by Colonel Dan Rought, and was returned 24 yards for a touchdown. O'Donnell's kick was blocked.

Late in the first quarter, after a Lebanon Valley punt, Perry went deep again. This time he connected with Ryan Alston for a 42-yard touchdown. The point after was good, giving Wilkes a 20-0 lead after one period.

The second quarter brought yet another Colonel touchdown when Perry hit Gundersdorf on a 46-yard scoring strike with :41 seconds remaining in the first half. The point after failed, giving Wilkes a 26-0 half-time advantage.

The Colonel's defense took over in the second half by turning away several Lebanon Valley scoring opportunities.

Kicker O'Donnell opened up the fourth quarter with a 25-yard field goal.

The defense then decided to get in the scoring act when cornerback Tom Horvat scored two touchdowns, just four seconds apart.

Horvat picked off a pass, and returned it 18 yards for a touchdown. Just seconds later, the Dutchmen fumbled, and Horvat picked the ball up and ran two yards for the touchdown.

Both extra points went wide, giving Wilkes the 41-0 victory.

Head Coach Joe DeMelfi was very pleased with the win. "I was very happy with the way we played. Perry had a great game and the defense was outstanding holding Lebanon's Valley offense just 111 yards in total offense. The two just put in a super effort on their part," stated DeMelfi.

Leading the defense were co-captain Mike McCree with 14 tackles, and Larry Trask with six tackles and 1.5 sacks.

Joe Woodward added six tackles and an interception while Mark Buss and Jason Feese had five tackles each.

Offensively, Boo Perry was 21 of 33 for 355 yards, and three touchdowns.

On the receiving end, Steve Endres caught nine passes for 120 yards, while Gundersdorf caught five for 137 yards and two touchdowns. Alston had four catches for 77 yards and one touchdown.

The Colonels travel to Upsala College on Saturday before returning home to play Delaware Valley next weekend.

The men's soccer team succumbed to two tough opponents last week.

The team lost to Scranton at home last Wednesday. The final score was 2-1. Chris Erb scored the only goal for Wilkes in the first half on a penalty kick.

The team then traveled to Upsala on Saturday, where the Colonels were defeated 3-2.

Russ Hiser scored the first goal with 4:42 left on the clock in the first half, to give Wilkes a 1-0 lead at half time.

Upsala, however, answered back in the second half with two quick goals.

With fifteen minutes left to play, Erb scored off an assist by Chad Heffner to tie the game at 2-2.

With one minute remaining, Upsala scored the game-winning goal of the contest to secure the victory.

Erb now leads the team in goals with three, followed by Matt Rosenburg with two. Mike Herb, Russ Hiser, and Chad Heffner are the third leading scorers with one goal apiece.

Erb, Herb, Heffner, and Dean Kotometros lead the team in assists.

The Colonels are now 1-5-1 overall, and are 0-2 in the MAC (Middle Atlantic Conference) Freedom League.

The team will host FDU-Madison this Saturday. Kick-off is at 1:00 p.m.
