

Revise This - December 2010

Revise This!

2017

2018

[Revise This! -
November 2019](#)

Revise This! Archives

REVISE THIS ARCHIVES

Contents:

Susan Cartsonis Joins Advisory Board | James Jones Winner Announced
Colum McCann Wins National Book Award
Marlon James Named Finalist for National Book Critics Circle Award
Cecilia Galante Joins Creative Writing Faculty | Page To Stage
Faculty Notes | Student Notes

Susan Cartsonis Joins Advisory Board

Film producer Susan Cartsonis joins the Advisory Board of the Graduate Creative Writing Program.

She is a Producer and President of Storefront Pictures. In 2000, The Hollywood Reporter named her one of the top five grossing of the year for her film What Women Want (starring Mel Gibson) and Where the Heart Is (starring Natalie Portman, Ashley Judd, and Sally Field). Cartsonis was an executive for Twentieth Century Fox for nearly a decade before leaving to build two successful film companies. During her tenure at Fox, she helped develop and supervise Nell, The Truth About Cats and Dogs, Buffy The Vampire Slayer, and many others, including a film adaptation of Wilkes faculty member Beverly Donofrio's Riding in Cars with Boys.

Prior to her career at Fox, Cartsonis was an instructor for New York University's Dramatic Writing Program. She received her M.F.A. in Dramatic Writing from N.Y.U. and a Bachelor of Arts in Theatre from U.C.L.A. Cartsonis credits her degree as instrumental in her development as a producer, "When you work with writers, it's invaluable to be able to speak to them as someone who has written screenplays and plays and respects the creative process, struggle, and sheer challenge of creating something and seeing it through to completion."

Cartsonis is no stranger to teaching. She has taught at NYU as well as been a speaker and graduate critique professional at UCLA, USC, and SCAD. With such a strong connection to academics, she is a welcome addition to our Creative Writing Community. "Mentoring is part of being a producer—with writers young and old," says Cartsonis, "Creative writing programs are so important in generating the next batch of talented film makers, novelists, and story tellers."

James Jones Winner Announced!

Gina Ventre of Columbus, Ohio, was awarded first place and the $10,000 prize in the 19th Annual James Jones First Novel Fellowship contest for her novel Moon's Extra Mile. The competition is co-sponsored by the Graduate Creative Writing Program of Wilkes University and the James Jones Literary Society. Runners-up in the competition were David Kim of Costa Mesa, Calif., for his manuscript Serendipity; and Laura Walter of Lakewood, Ohio, for her manuscript Finding Opal. They were each awarded $750.

Colum McCann Wins National Book Award

Colum McCann, winner National Book Award

Colum McCann, a member of the advisory board for the Wilkes University Graduate Creative Writing Program, has won the National Book Award for his novel Let the Great World Spin. The award was presented on Nov. 18 in New York City. The award – considered one of literature’s most prestigious – is presented in the categories of fiction, nonfiction, poetry and young people’s literature.

As a member of the Wilkes creative writing program’s advisory board, McCann has provided input on course content and curriculum, performed readings from his work at its residencies, and been a thesis reader for degree candidates in the program.

Let The Great World Spin takes place in August 1974, when a mysterious tightrope walker is running, dancing, leaping between the Twin Towers, a quarter mile above the ground. It chronicles the lives of a group of New Yorkers, weaving their separate stories against the backdrop of the tightrope walker’s feat.

Some of McCann’s other novels include Zoli, Dancer, and This Side of Brightness. His fiction has been published in 30 languages and has appeared in The New Yorker, The Atlantic Monthly, GQ, Paris Review, Bomb and other places. He has written for numerous publications including The Irish Times, Die Zeit, La Repubblica, Paris Match, The New York Times, the Guardian and the Independent.

In 2003 he was named Esquire magazine’s “Writer of the Year.” Other awards and honors include a Pushcart Prize, the Rooney Prize, the Hennessy Award for Irish Literature, the Irish Independent Hughes and Hughes/Sunday Independent Novel of the Year 2003, and the 2002 Ireland Fund of Monaco Princess Grace Memorial Literary Award. His short film, “Everything in this Country Must,” directed by Gary McKendry, was nominated for a 2005 Academy Award.

McCann lives in New York City, where he teaches creative writing at Hunter College.

The mission of the National Book Foundation and the National Book Awards is to celebrate the best of American literature, expand its audience, and to enhance the cultural value of good writing in America.

Marlon James Named Finalist for National Book Critics Circle Award

Marlon James, Finalist for National Book Critics Circle Award in fiction

Marlon James' novel The Book of Night Women was a finalist for a National Book Critics Circle Award in fiction by the National Book Critics Circle.

The finalists were announced in January, and the winners were announced on March 11. Other finalists included memoir writer Mary Karr, former U.S. poet laureate Louise Glück, and former National Book Award winner William T. Vollmann. The other fiction nominees included Hilary Mantel, Jayne Anne Phillips, and Michelle Huneven. Mantel won the fiction category for her novel Wolf Hall.

The National Book Critics Circle, founded in 1974, is a nonprofit organization with around 600 members, "book reviewers who are interested in honoring quality writing and communicating with one another about common concerns."

James worked on The Book of Night Women while he was enrolled in the creative writing program. He also teaches at Macalester College in Minnesota.

Cecilia Galante Joins Creative Writing Faculty

Cecilia Galante, newest member of Creative Writing Faculty

Young adult novelist Cecilia Galante has joined the faculty of the Graduate Creative Writing Program.

She is the author of five young adult novels. Her first, The Patron Saint of Butterflies, was selected as a Young Adult Book of the Year by the Northeast Independent Booksellers Association, a Top Ten Pick for 2008 by Amazon, and a Recommended Read for Teens on Oprah's website. Another one of her books, Hershey Herself, will be translated into Polish in 2010. Her other novels include Willowood, and The Sweetness of Salt, which will be published in 2011. She has BA from King's College and an MFA in Creative Writing from Goddard College.

Her first interactions with the faculty and students came in January when she attended the residency. "It was thrilling. I had no idea that I was going to be among such a crowd of intellectuals and have peers that are so successful," she said.

Galante is no stranger to teaching. She spent years teaching high school English in the Wilkes-Barre area, though she is currently on sabbatical. But when it comes to teaching in the Graduate Creative Writing Program, she plans to use what she learned as a graduate student at Goddard.

"I'm trying to borrow more from my experience as a student. My teachers at Goddard were incredibly supportive and astute," she said. "I've been able to draw from that experience and insert criticism in a way that doesn't kill the spirit."

Besides teaching, Galante is also hard at work on her first adult novel, and the process has not always been easy. "It's been incredibly daunting. For young adult, you're allowed to write more simply and straightforward," she said. "So, I was getting caught up in sounding like an adult and sounding smart enough."

Galante added that the process has been easier lately, and she's confident the book will stand on its own. She has to submit a manuscript by the end of April.

Though this will be Galante's first adult novel, she admitted that she was not initially attracted to the young adult genre.

"I wasn't even familiar there was a YA genre when I wrote my first book, The Patron Saint of Butterflies. My agent said we were going to market it as young adult, and I was devastated. I didn't think it was young adult," she said. "I sat back and waited, and she was right. It became a successful young adult book and a crossover book. It appeals to adults and young adults at the same time.”

Bonnie Culver Helps Area High School Students Take Written Work from "Page to Stage"

Bonnie Culver

Students in four northeast Pennsylvania school districts have a chance to become playwrights in a special program being piloted by Bonnie Culver, director of the Graduate Creative Writing Program. Culver worked with two graduate students, Sarah Pugh and Cory Brin, on a master of fine arts project developing a pilot program, “Page to Stage.” Culver is working as guest artist in four high schools – Hanover Area, Hazleton, Tunkhannock and Wyoming Valley West – to teach basic elements of playwriting to students.

Culver was in the schools Tuesdays and Wednesdays from Feb. 2 to March 25. Each student presented a 10-minute play. One or two plays from each school will be chosen to be presented at the Fine Arts Fiesta in May.

Wilkes University’s long-term goal is to replicate this with fiction, poetry, film, and nonfiction with creative writing students and faculty serving as guest artists in area schools with a final arts festival on campus.

Faculty/Staff Notes

Lenore Hart's new novel The Raven's Bride (named after the poem by Edgar Allen Poe) will be published in both hardcover and paperback by St. Martin's Press in February 2011.

David Poyer's latest novel Ghosting, a story of a dysfunctional family threatened on a weeklong sailing excursion, will be published by St. Martin's Press in November 2010.

Bonnie Culver, Creative Writing Program Director; Advisory Board member Column McCann; plus faculty members Mike Lennon, Lenore Hart, and Kaylie Jones all served as workshop instructors at the August session of the Norman Mailer Writer's Colony in Provincetown, MA.

Bonnie Culver, Creative Writing Program Director, and Jean Klein, playwrighting faculty member, each had a ten-minute play included in Shorts for All Seasons: America Revisited: An Evening of Short Plays at the VENUE, Norfolk, VA November 12-20.

Christine Gelineau's essay "Cops" was published in the winter issue of The Florida Review as a runner up in their Editors' Award in Nonfiction.

Rashidah Ismaili Abu-Bakr's poetry was published in Bending the Bow, a collection of love poems from Africa, published by Southern Illinois Press.

Sara Pritchard's story "Sip the Wine" was published in Vol. 76, No. 1 of New Letters (Dec. 2009). Her story "Two Studies in Entropy" won a Pushcart Prize and is included in the 2010 PUSHCART PRIZE XXXIV BEST OF THE SMALL PRESSES anthology, and her story "Help Wanted: Female" is forthcoming in Vol. 6 (2010) of The Tusculum Review. Sara will be reading at the River Festival of Books in Huntington, West Virginia, on Friday, April 16, 2010.

Student/Alumni Notes

Morowa Yejide's short story "Tokoyo Chocolate" appears in the Japan-based collection Yomimono, published in September, 2010. Her short story "To Do List" was nominated for the Dzanc Best Books of the Web 2011 by Jersey Devil Press.

Gale Martin's opera blog (www.operatoonity.wordpress.com) has received critical attention, and she has been named an accredited Bachtrack reviewer for the Metropolitan Opera.

Starr Troup attended a week-long workshop at the Norman Mailer Writer's Colony in Provincetown, MA. She was awarded a summer scholarship and spent the week at the center working with and learning from other professional writers.

M.A. student Amy Archer had part of her memoir entitled "Bad Connection" published in the December issue of the Journal of Truth and Consequences.

M.A. student Cindy Dlugolecki's play, "Violet Oakley Unveiled," was showcased at Villanova University on Thursday, March 18. The one-woman show helped celebrate Women's History Month. Violet Oakley was the first woman in art history to paint murals in a public building, and her home and studio were only a few miles from Villanova's campus, according to Dlugolecki. Dlugolecki, the actress, director, and tech team were also the guest of five different departments at Villanova, including Women and Gender Studies, History, and Art.

M.F.A. student Brian Fanelli's poem "Freshman Year" was published in the February issue of My Favorite Bullet.

http://www.interiornoisepress.com/0010_FANELLI_FreshmanYear.html,

and his poems "In a Club's Cracked Mirror" and "Why I Said No" were published in the March issue of Word Riot <http://www.wordriot.org/archives/976>.

M.A. student Kimberly Loomis-Bennet's poem, "It Is Sweet and Decorous To Be Poor in One's Country," was published in the Winter 2010 issue of The November 3rd Club.

<http://www.november3rdclub.com/2010/02-2010/poetry/loomis-bennett.html>

Alum Pete Kaszyk's short story, "You're Not My Father," was accepted for publication by Kerlak Publishing for inclusion in its WTF Anthologies edition. Publication date is pending.

Alumnus Brian Fanelli's chapbook of punk rock poetry, entitled Front Man is now available through Big Table Publishing. It was released in October, 2010.

Alumna Dawn Leas will see the release of her first chapbook "I Know When to Keep Quiet" by Finishing Line Press in November. Leas received her MFA in January 2009, and this chapbook is 26 pages of her original thesis. Leas will be the featured reader at Anthology New and Used Books in Scranton on November 26th at 7 p.m.

Alums Maureen Hooker, Bill Lowenburg, and Matthew Hinton will all appear in the fourth volume of the acclaimed Mailer Review, which was released in November.

Alumni Jonathan Rocks, Bill Lowenburg, and Matthew Hinton each attended week-long workshop at the Norman Mailer Writer's Colony in Provincetown, MA. They were awarded summer scholarships and spent their time at the center working with and learning from other professional writers.

Quick Links

Campus Safety Career Development and Internships

Centers & Institutes Online Programs

Online Nursing
Programs E.S. Farley Library

Human Resources Jobs at Wilkes

Offices & Administration Accessibility Statement

Financial Aid Adobe Acrobat® Reader

Registrar's Office Finance Office

Student Work Study
Jobs Investor Relations

Veterans Services

Wilkes University

84 West South Street

Wilkes-Barre, PA 18766

1-800-WILKES-U

Contact Us

Wilkes University ©

e

d

c

f