ROBERT S. CAPIN IS NAMED WILKES' THIRD PRESIDENT

President Robert S. Capin

President Honored By Appointment

Upon notification on yesterday afternoon of his new position as president of Wilkes College, Robert Capin commented, "I consider it an honor to serve as president of Wilkes. The job is a particular thrill for me, because I have participated in all phases of Wilkes College's history — first as a student, as a faculty member, as academic dean, as acting president and finally as president."

The future of Wilkes will require the cooperation of the students, faculty, administration, and the Board of Trustees. I will, of course, be working as my own man, but I will work as fairly and equitably as possible in making all decisions concerning Wilkes College. I recognize the fact that the job cannot be done by one person, and will continue my open door policy.

"An immediate search will begin for a new academic dean. We are looking for someone with high credentials from the outside. We will also be looking for a director of development. We recognize the fine job Mr. Moran and Mr. Hoover have done in the past; however, we need an individual from the outside who is especially trained in the job."

"At this time we will have to re-examine our goals and policies and not make change for change sake, but when appropriate."

"In closing, I hope that the Wilkes family will not work for me but with me, for the future mission of Wilkes."

S.G. Endorses Capin

Newly elected Student Government President Gina O'Brien said yesterday that Robert S. Capin is a good choice as the new president of Wilkes College. He will work well with Student Government, and Student Government will work well with him.

O'Brien added that she felt Capin has a good insight into the problems of the college, having served as student, faculty member, academic dean, acting president and finally as president. O'Brien concluded by saying that, "I have confidence in President Capin, and in his goals for the future of Wilkes."

Interdormitory council President Bruce Lear, and Commuter Council President Dave Cherundolo were unavailable for comment.

Robert S. Capin, who has been serving for the past eight months as acting president of Wilkes College, has been selected as the third president in the 43 year history of the private, co-educational liberal arts college.

Announcement of the appointment of Capin, a resident of Kingston, was made by Attorney Joseph J. Savitz, chairman of the Board of Trustees, following the annual Spring meeting of that body yesterday afternoon at the college.

The appointment of Capin to the full-time presidency climaxes efforts by the Search Committee, headed by U.S. Circuit Court Judge Max Rosenn, for the past eight months.

The Presidential Search Committee, made up of members of the board, and faculty and student representatives, screened more than 200 applications and held personal interviews with those the committee felt possessed the qualifications being sought for the top college position.

The announcement of the selection of Capin by Atty. Savitz said in part:

"Based on our investigation and study these past 10 months, the Board has concluded that the appointment of Mr. Capin as the third president of Wilkes College is in the best tradition of the institution whose only prior chief officers were Dr. Eugene S. Farley and Dr. Francis J. Michelini.

"We are mindful of Mr. Capin's experience in the business world as a certified public accountant, as a professor, as the Wilkes College Dean of Academic Affairs, and most recently as acting president. He has demonstrated extensive talents and understanding of the goals and objectives of the college. He has performed to the complete satisfaction of the Board of Trustees, which has the primary responsibility for selecting the president of the institution."

"The trustees have been impressed by Mr. Capin's keen judgement, his unique ability to carefully deal with problems firmly and fairly and, at the same time, command the respect of faculty, student body and administration."

Atty. Savitz went on to state: "These are crucial times when all institutions of higher learning have tough problems to resolve in maintaining their academic quality, their financial stability, and their respect in the academic community. It is the Board's belief that Mr. Capin demonstrated his capabilities and leadership qualities as acting chief executive officer. He has performed superbly as acting president these past nine months and the board has the utmost confidence that he will do even better as the President."

"The trustees are pleased that they have secured a man of Bob Capin's calibre, character and qualities. We are confident that his selection will meet the approval of all levels of academic and community standards."

"We extend our congratulations to Mr. Capin. We know that his future performance will not only maintain Wilkes' excellent reputation, but will enhance it as the years go by."

Capin, in becoming the president in the fifth decade of the college existence, was appointed acting president last September after Dr. Francis J. Michelini, who had served for five years, resigned to become president of the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities in Harrisburg.

At the time of his appointment as acting president, Capin had been serving as dean of academic affairs. He continued in this dual role while the Search Committee carried out its assignment.

The first president of Wilkes College, Dr. Eugene S. Farley, served from 1936 to 1970, when he vacated his office to become chancellor of Wilkes College and Dr. Michelini, the dean of academic affairs, was named by the board to the top post.

Judge Rosenn, who chaired the Presidential Search Committee, also added words of tribute to the announcement for the work performed by his 12 member committee.

"Our committee was an exceptionally diligent, conscientious and able group," Judge Rosenn said. "The members performed their duties with the greatest of diligence. They spent many hours performing duties at considerable personal sacrifice. The committee members were perceptive and most cooperative with the chairman and with each other. It was a great committee with which to work."

Capin, a 1950 graduate of Wilkes College, becomes the first alumnus to hold the top position. He came back to the campus in 1956 as a part-time instructor, while conducting his private accounting practice.

In 1959, Capin was certified by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as a public accountant and that same year joined the Department of Commerce and Finance as a full time faculty member at Wilkes College.

The new Wilkes president taught various accounting courses and, at the same time, continued his own education, receiving a master's degree in business administration (MBA) from Lehigh University in 1969.

It was in 1965 that Capin began combining his academic duties with administrative assignments at Wilkes College when he was named director of the Evening and Summer College.

He served in this role for two years and began laying the foundation for the time when Wilkes would join other institutions of higher learning in an expanded Continuing Education program that is a major part of college academic programs today.

Increased classroom activity and the guidance of the Wilkes College Accounting Internship Program, which he founded, kept him away from major administrative chores until 1974, when he was appointed by Dr. Michelini as dean of academic affairs.

In September, 1975, he was asked to serve as acting president, a position he described as calling for the "recognition and response to the need for improving communications at all levels of college administration with particular emphasis to opening new avenues of communications between the Office of the President and students, faculty, administration, and the Board of Trustees."

During his interim period as acting president he has endeavored to carry out this self-imposed mandate, which resulted in greater involvement by students, faculty and staff.

When he assumed the post of acting president, Capin reaffirmed for members of the President's Council and Department chairpersons what he described as "the basic reason for the founding of Wilkes College — to provide quality education to all qualified students in a manner that will give each student every opportunity to become eligible for and entitled to a college degree without any compromise toward the high standards which have always been a way of life at Wilkes College."

Capin, a resident of 331 Wright Avenue, Kingston, is married to the former Libby Smulovitz. The couple has three children Ellen Lubin (married); Deborah M. Buckler (married); and David L., a student at Wyoming Valley West High School.

The Best Choice

The announcement of Robert S. Capin as third president of Wilkes College yesterday afternoon was a blast of fresh air to the administration, faculty and students of this college.

Since September of 1975, when Capin was asked to take on the responsibility of acting president, along with his duties as dean of academic affairs, he has performed his duties in each position in the highest professional way.

We applaud vigorously the Presidential Search Committee — the seven members of the Board of Trustees, Professor Welton G. Farrar, Professor Charles B. Reif, Professor Benjamin Fiester, and students Edward Zaborney and Debra Latero for their keen insight and constant deliberations in sifting through the 200 applications in search of a president.

Throughout his eight months as acting president, Capin has conducted himself in a way that has commanded respect and admiration from perhaps the majority of Wilkes College students.

His distinct ability to assess certain situations with a sharp, open mind, we feel, will show in even greater proportions in the upcoming years as the college's chief administrative officer. His professional ability as a certified public accountant and as a businessman will guide Wilkes College through the financial storm that hovers over all of our nation's colleges and universities.

The position of president of this college was sought after by some 200 members of both the academic and professional world. The Board of Trustees, in the beginning, made clear that they were not placing sole emphasis on a candidate holding a doctorate degree, but rather an individual who had a strong background in financial, academic and community affairs, of which Capin tops the list in all three areas.

Capin will have tough shoes to fill as the third president of this college, as he is preceded by two of the finest educators and human beings — the late Dr. Eugene S. Farley and Dr. Francis J. Michelini. We are certain, though, as we were in our first publication in September where we editorially supported Capin for the top spot, that he will lead Wilkes College into new and challenging areas that will enhance to even a greater degree the prestige and reputation that this college already has.

We feel that his appointment will bring even greater cheers from the surrounding community and the 9,000 alumni of this college.

The BEACON congratulates the Board of Trustees and the Presidential Search Committee for the selection of a man whose abilities will expand Wilkes College in the collegiate world.

To President Capin, our highest praise for being chosen as the third president of Wilkes College.

S.U.B. Director Criticized

To The Editor:

I would like to propose a question about the S.U.B. director, Patti Fichtner. After attending several board meetings, it is quite obvious that Miss Fichtner does not possess the leadership qualities required for this important position.

In addition, Miss Fichtner is on the blue card. The blue card means that you do not need financial aid and that money to pay a blue card worker comes directly from the pinball machines. A white card worker does need financial aid and 90 per cent of the money to pay these workers comes from the government, while only the remaining 10 per cent comes from the machines. Despite Patti being on the blue card, she works in the S.U.B. and is also director. This is taking away from the white card worker's opportunities and the S.U.B.'s revenues to help improve facilities. Why is a blue card student working for and directing the S.U.B. when there are many white card workers more qualified for her position?

The whole idea of the S.U.B. is to provide student recreation and to raise the needed revenue to improve facilities for this purpose. For example, Patti has worked sixty hours this month. By not being on the white card, Patti's earning for the month of $120.00 are being taken directly from S.U.B. funds. If she was on the white card, only $12.00

Accusation By Stool Seen Narrow-minded

To The Editor,

In reference to Evelyn Rae Stool's letter to the BEACON, the news of her "mistake" was on radio and television. So to blame it on a student who was at the security desk was very narrow-minded of her.

The Ear Ring King

would have come out of S.U.B. funds, the remainder being paid by the government, allowing $108.00 more for supplies and repairs to be made.

Another point I would like to bring up concerns the previous election of a new manager for Pickering gameroom. After talking to each candidate for about two minutes, Patti came to the conclusion and persuaded the entire board to vote for one candidate on the basis that he was a sophomore and the other a freshman. Patti stated that both had similar qualities to fulfill the position. She did not take into consideration the fact that the person not chosen had a greater financial need, spent more time working in Pickering, knew both the man that collected and the man that repaired the machines.

According to Patti, this is of minor importance. The candidate who did receive the job is a biology major, and as everyone knows, spends a great deal of time studying, allowing for less time to be put into the position. Too many people are under the impression that biology majors are the only ones that exist on this campus. Believe it or not, there are other people.

If Patti Fichtner is to accept the responsibilities of her position, she should learn how to handle the job before making hasty decisions.

Histories Of Two Former Wilkes Presidents

As the college names its third president in nearly three decades, it can be noted that the first two presidents of this institution had a number of common characteristics.

Dr. Eugene S. Farley served as president for 24 years after a 10-year term as president of Bucknell University Junior College. His successor, Dr. Francis J. Micheline, held the office for five years before accepting the presidency of the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities, a position Dr. Farley also once held.

Both men received doctorates from the University of Pennsylvania, published a number of pages in their particular fields, held various offices in community organizations, served as board members for several others, and both had three children.

In addition, Drs. Farley and Micheline continually strived to expand the college's staff and facilities to meet the demanding challenges of the future. Dr. Farley, as the first president, planted the seeds of progress and worked to see those ideas take shape. Dr. Micheline continued in the same manner and had the added burden of pulling Wilkes through the devastating flood of 1972.

But despite common goals and similar biographical points, the two former presidents remain distinct individuals.

Born in Phoenixville, September 29, 1899, Dr. Farley was one of four children of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Farley. The Farleys were Quakers, and Dr. Farley was raised as a member of the Society of Friends with membership in the Swarthmore Meeting. A graduate of Swarthmore High School, he matriculated at Pennsylvania State College.

During summer months, Dr. Farley was employed on farms and in a shipyard to earn money to continue his education. In 1921, he received a B.S. degree at Penn State, then entered the University of Pennsylvania in 1923. Aided by a Harrison Scholarship, he earned his M.A. degree in history in 1927 and a Ph.D. degree in education in

A veteran of World War I, the former Wilkes College president taught at Germantown Academy from 1922-1925 and was a member of the faculty at the University of Pennsylvania from 1927-1929. He was director of research for the Newark, N.J. Board of Education until 1936.

It was at this point that Arnaud Marts, then president of Bucknell University, invited Dr. Farley to become administrator head of Bucknell University Junior College in Wilkes-Barre. He was appointed president of Wilkes College when it received its charter as an independent, liberal arts college for both men and women on April 1, 1947.

Only a handful of students were receiving their higher education in a four-story rented building. Through his efforts and dedication to the cause of education, today Wilkes College boasts of a 59-building complex on a campus embracing 23 acres. Farley during his tenure of office, worked unceasingly for the industrial development of the area and integrated the college in this area of activity.

David K. Bickel, Jr., wrote of him, "He was a man who did what he so often dreamed. He created an educational institutional where none existed before, nor likely could exist. Through his efforts and pleadings, he fired the hearts of many influential men who aspired to help make his dream a reality."

In fifteen short years he took a conglomeration of homes, a handful of faculty, and a sparse group of students and made a college that could give back to the community the benefit of an education for its youth, which could never before have been achieved. Through his determination he beat into shape, bricked and mortared, planned and gained support for his life-long goal of imparting an education to a valley he loved and respected so dearly.

He was a firm father image unseen on the modern campuses of today, unheard of in the halls of the modern university. More than that, he was a man: a most fallible man.

Dr. Francis J. Micheline, former president of Wilkes College, now president of the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities, Harrisburg, the late Dr. Eugene S. Farley, first president of Wilkes College, and Congressman Daniel J. Flood, chairman of the Health, Education and Welfare Committee, at commencement exercises some years ago.

He made mistakes as do all men. But unlike the common man, he aspired to goals thought untenable by many, and foolish by some-unlike common men he succeeded where they would not even try."

In 1975, Dr. Farley retired as president of the college, and accepted the position as first chancellor of Wilkes. A year later, he retired from all active service to devote his time to personal writing. In 1972 the Board of Trustees named him president emeritus.

He passed away in 1973, but as a testimonial in memoriam adopted by the Wilkes College family states, "As long as there is a Wilkes College the name and spirit of Eugene Sheddon Farley will linger in the hearts and minds of those who will walk along the pathway of education that he brought forth from nothing but inspiration and hope and made into a vibrant, productive educational womb."

Following Dr. Farley's retirement and 14 months of searching for a new president, Dr. Micheline was named as the second Wilkes president.

A native of Clifton, N.J., Dr. Micheline received his bachelor's degree from Seton Hall and his master's degree from the University of Delaware before going on to the University of Pennsylvania where he was awarded his doctorate.

He came to Wilkes in 1955 as an assistant professor in biology. Dr. Micheline rapidly gained stature and popularity as a teacher and researcher, publishing a number of reports of his research activity in the journals of "Cancer Research," the "American Journal of Botany" and other scientific publications.

In 1962 he was granted a leave of absence from Wilkes to become associate program director of the Institutes Section, National Science Foundation, Washington, D.C., where he was responsible for review, evaluation, and administration of programs in science education. He also organized programs and tours for visiting foreign scientists, who lectured at major American universities under National Science Foundation auspices.

A veteran of World War II, he served with the U.S. Army Air Corps, attached as a member of an air service unit to General Patton's Third Army, and earned a combat service star during the Rhine Campaign in the European Theater.

During his years as Dean of Academic Affairs and president of Wilkes, Dr. Micheline was active in a wide variety of activities of community service. He is still recognized in the state as a leading spokesman for private higher education.

His open door policy toward faculty, administration and students carried over into the concern he had for making himself available to the news media so that he might minimize the possibility of misunderstandings that might affect Wilkes College or higher education in general. His concern for the problems faced by the news media many times brought expressions of appreciation from news people and caused them to hold him in high regard.

One of the high points of achievement came immediately after the 1972 flood, which caused in excess of $14-million damage to the college, and, in the eyes of many, was close to a point of total devastation.

The day the water receded "Dr. Mike" had gathered all the volunteers he could find — college personnel who had rushed back, as well as many friends and just plain strangers who were to quickly become friends — and began the task of getting the college back in operation.

As a result of his leadership and the combined efforts of many who worked 16 hours a day, seven days a week, the Summer College classes were able to resume despite curfews and temporary power in little more than one week after the water had gone down. Because of the assignment of priorities, all major buildings required for classroom and dormitory use were functional in 89 days and the academic year began, to the surprise of many, just one week behind normal schedule.

A tireless worker and an ardent believer in maintaining the college's responsibility to the community, President Micheline never turned down a request to assist an organization or an individual.

In May, 1975, Dr. Micheline accepted the position as president of the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities, a post which he holds today.

Wilkes In Rematch Monday

Keller Out For Season

The pieces were just starting to fall together for Jack Keller. The Colonel catcher had had a rough beginning this season, with his average dropping as low as .186 at one point. But that was all behind him Thursday. The last two weeks, he had been hitting the ball all-over the place, and he finally felt as if he were helping the club instead of being a liability.

Then tragedy struck. Chasing a foul pop in Thursday's game with Juniata, Keller collided with teammate Don McDermott and broke his jaw for the second time in less than 12 months. His collegiate career was over.

Just last season, in a game against Upsala, Keller broke his jaw during a collision at home plate. He missed nearly three weeks of action, before making a courageous comeback toward the end.

But there will be no comeback this time around. "If my jaw hadn't been broken once already, this shot wouldn't have been very serious,"

TODAY'S STARTER — Sophomore southpaw Andy Kreskey, 4-1, will take the mound this afternoon at 2 when the Colonels face Upsala College at Artillery Park. The Colonel diamondmen, under coach Gene Domzalski, are 16-2 on the year. Upsala is 20-5.

Game With Elizabethtown To Decide Playoff Berth

BY PAUL DOMOWITCH

It will be the good guys against the bad guys, Jim Stehle against Carmen Coppol, and alas, Wilkes against Elizabethtown. It's a rematch many of the Colonels thought they would never see more than a month ago.

They had just lost the opener of their important doubleheader with E-town 1-0, and their backs were to the wall. They had to win that second game and they had to keep on winning until they're were no more teams to beat. For a few brief moments, it seemed an impossibility, but the Colonels of coach Gene Domzalski specialize in miracles, and while they didn't turn water into wine, they did win the remainder of their Middle Atlantic Conference North-West Sectional games, including Thursday's 13-3 route of Juniata.

So, the stage is set for the rematch; a game that will decide whether it will be Elizabethtown or Wilkes that advances to the league playoffs next Saturday; a game that will decide whether or not the Colonels have any hope of garnering an NCAA tournament bid.

The game will be played Monday afternoon at Lehigh University's new baseball complex in Bethlehem, beginning at 2 p.m. Expected to start for the Colonels will be Jim Stehle, who picked up the win over Juniata Thursday, pitching seven shutout innings and striking out nine before giving way to reliever Manny Evans.

Wilkes will get a stern test this afternoon at Artillery Park, when they take on MAC North-East Section leading Upsala in a 2 p.m. start. Sophomore Andy Kresky (4-1) will take to the mound against the Vikings; a club that comes to town with a 20-5 record.

Should the Colonels beat E-town Monday, it is feasible that they would be playing Upsala once again next Saturday, in the opening round of the MAC playoffs.

With catcher Jack Keller out for the year with a broken jaw, sophomore Ken Suchoski will be Kresky's battery-mate today. Coming in for Keller in the fifth inning of Thursday's game, after he collided with first baseman Donny McDermott, Suchoski proceeded to get two hits including a home run, and he drove in a pair of runs in the late innings.

DIAMOND DUST: Stehle has run his scoreless innings streak to 22, and his earned run average is down to 0.88...Dallas Greene, farm director of the Philadelphia Phillies, was at Thursday's game...Colonel batting average has scored to .314...Third baseman Jim Michaels has taken over the team lead in hitting, with a .396 average. Right behind him are Greg Snyder (.383), Steve Lesliw (.368), Don McDermott (.328), Tony Schwab (.316), and Mike Supczenski (.312)...team has an amazing 23 home runs on the year, paced by McDermott's seven, and Leskiw's six...pitcher Barry Harcharufka got in a few innins as a first baseman Thursday vs. the Indians...WCLH will be broadcasting today's game, and will also have Monday's game from Lehigh...Winky Leskiw will receive his Athlete of the Year trophy Tuesday morning, at a special awards luncheon in the CPA lobby...

Jack Keller

Golf Team Undefeated

In MAC tourney play on Thursday, the Wilkes College golf team beat Scranton and Lebanon Valley in a dual meet. Finishing scores were Wilkes 390, Lebanon Valley 397, and Scranton 400.

The golf team, which is finishing up the season with a 16-0 record, has a tourney bid to go to the NCAA finals, to be held in Wittenburg, Ohio, on May 25-28.

A qualifying match will be held of the six qualifying teams in the region, and the two victors will be Ohio-bound. Participating in the qualifying tournament does not mean birth, but Coach Schmidt is hopeful that his team will participate.

The four-man team that will see tournament play consists of: Mark Jarolin, Larry Gurnaril, Ken Donlavage and Joe Skladany.

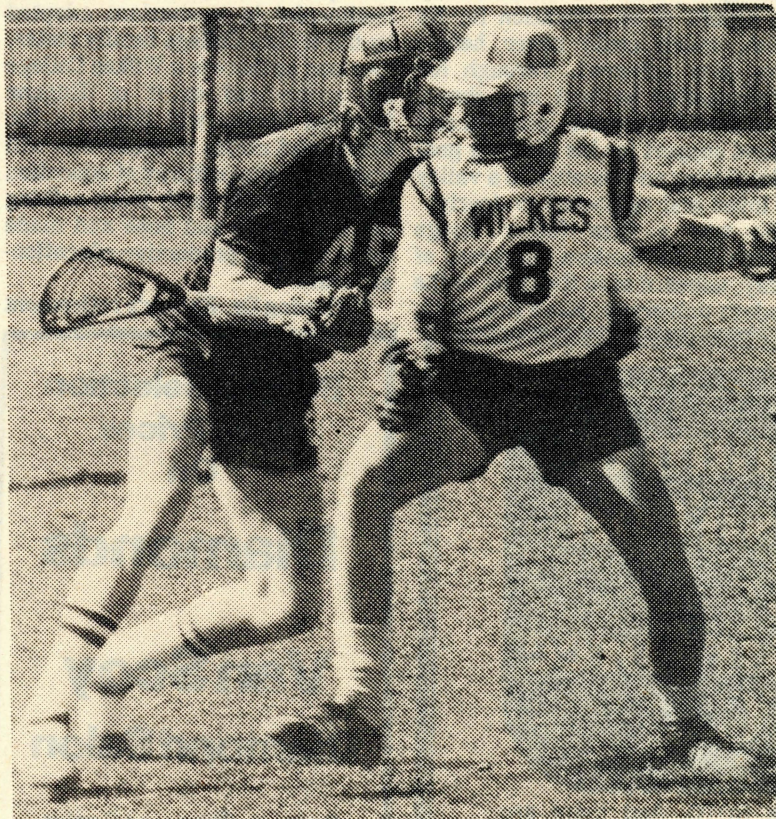

Schmidt commented, "I am proud of the team's record this year, and I hope that the team will go on to capture the NCAA title."

Individual scores from Thursday's meet were:

Jarolin 75
Gurnaril 75
Donlavage 77
Skladany 81

Notice

There will be a meeting of all prospective members of next season's cross country team this Thursday morning at 11, in George Pawlusch's office, on the third floor of Weckesser Hall.

Winter Closes Out Career In Lacrosse Action Today

Wilkes lacrosse team plays the season finale today against Franklin and Marshall at the Lancaster field. On a five-game winning streak, the team will be hoping to boost its overall record to 8-2 to 7-1 in the MAC.

Closing out a fantastic playing career today will be Bill Winter, who has established every lacrosse scoring record at the college. His 118 goals and 91 assists give him a career total of 209 points.

Joining Winter for their final college game will be seniors Fred Lohman, Craig Austin and Guy Dizebba.
